

St. Lawrence seaway may lack boldness, British consul says

The St. Lawrence Seaway project is bound to benefit the Lake Erie basin, the Chamber of Commerce was told Thursday night, but immediate benefits may be slow in coming because the project "seems to be too small to accomplish long-term goals."

Stephen P. House, new British consul at Denver, Colo., said "rates on the 176-mile St. Lawrence stretch may — and probably will — be too high to bring immediate benefits." He said they would have to be tested by trial-and-error, like the Ohio "tunnels", and would double be too high at the start.

The new consul said the project envisages deepening and widening of the St. Lawrence river between Montreal and the Welland canal so that 27-foot draft vessels can navigate the distance between Lake Ontario and the sea.

"AT PRESENT, VESSELS loading at Duluth have to transship twice because they can't navigate shallow waters downstream," Mr. House said. "The new plan will cut out one transshipment."

Grain shipments should therefore be cheaper, in principle, when the waterway is ready for use, he claimed. "But it is questionable, Canadian sources believe, that the planners have considered the real needs. What this means is that maybe the St. Lawrence seaway project is too small to do the big job. The economies of Canada and the United States are expanding so fast that by the time the seaway is installed, it will be outmoded."

Hydro-electric power is the principal long-range benefit of the installation, House stated. Canada stands to gain about three-fourths of the hydroelectric potential to be realized by the project. New York state will gain the other fourth.

"SOME ELEMENTS IN Cleveland are pessimistic and some are optimistic. The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce regards the development with caution," the Britisher asserted, "simply because the rate structure is uncertain and the type of traffic to be attracted is not as speculative as the one that will open the Great Lakes to fast ocean-going vessels."

Legion names five to trustee posts; party group set

Five trustees for Ehret-Parsel post, American Legion, were appointed by Commandant Lyle Biddinger Monday night.

Serving a five-year term on the committee will be Past Commandant Robert Kessler, Leo Williamson will serve four years, Sam Robertson one year, Robert Rhine three years, and Clarence Barnes two years.

Also appointed at Monday's meeting was an entertainment committee for the coming year. Selected to serve on it are Mr. Robert, James Lindsay and S. J. Glorioso.

Ehret-Parsel post will be host today at 8 p.m. to the county council meeting. All Legionnaires are invited to attend.

Any Legion member in good standing is eligible to enroll in the 17 weeks of instruction given by the auxiliary state highway patrol. Present members of local fire departments or civilian defense units are not accepted for instruction because of the dual roles played by such organizations in times of disaster. James Lindsay may be contacted for further information concerning the course.

Plans were briefly discussed for the annual Armistice day affair. Nov. 9 has been selected for the supper which will be prepared and served by members of the auxiliary and the dance which will follow.

Civil defense unit to parade at state fair

Plymouth's second platoon, 52nd Mobile Support Group, Ohio Civil Defense Council, will parade Sunday at the Ohio State fair.

It will be Press day, Gov. Frank J. Lausche will receive editors and publishers and their families throughout the state.

A table of organization calling for four officers — a captain, a first lieutenant and two second lieutenants — and 156 enlisted personnel has been tentatively established for the group. Sixty-nine men, completely uniformed, are now enrolled, with another 12 applications pending.

"We will be glad to have men from nearby communities join the unit," Robert L. Meiser, commanding the platoon, said Monday. "The second platoon is authorized to accept enrollment from most of the communities in Huron and Richland counties. If anyone knows of a likely enrollee, it will be appreciated if his name will be given to me."

Board to repair roof with own staff; water pressure issue solved

Bids on repairs to the roof of the water shed apparently too high for present finances, Board of Public Affairs accepted Monday night an offer by its president to donate paint if operating personnel will do the work.

Robert L. McIntire proposed to give paint to repair the roof if Supt. Russell J. Moser and his staff will do the work. Moser replied that while his schedule is full, he will try to complete the work during the next month.

MOSER AND HIS STAFF were admonished not to "tinker with the water pressure without due and ample notice." It was acknowledged that an assistant failed to regulate dial pressure when the water level in the sandpiper was lowered enough to permit inspection by a repair team.

That inspection, Moser told the board, revealed that large sheets of paint applied two years ago are ready to fall off into the potable water supply. He urged consideration of repairs to the tower.

The matter was tabled until specifications of paint can be examined.

Another notice will be sent to reluctant installers of water meters. "After this one, the meters will go in and the householders will be billed for the work, and no questions asked!" the board decried.

MOSER WAS INSTRUCTED to approach Fire Chief Dalton F. McDougall in an effort to flush water hydrants.

Moser asked for and received permission to attend a short course in water and sewer treatment sponsored by Ohio State university at Worthington Sept. 10-15. Expenses were allowed by the board.

Councilman Charles Van Asdale, observing for his associates, suggested the board should coordinate with the council in drafting a code of regulations applicable to the building of new houses and the remodeling of old ones. "What you'll do and what you won't do and what you'll allow the householder to do, ought to be spelled out," Van Asdale said. The board agreed and took the matter under advisement.

Ohioana volume now in library

Vietzen's "Saga of Grover's Cave", a volume of early Ohioana, has been given to Plymouth branch library by Mrs. C. V. Whitney, Mrs. P. H. Root announces.

"The book should be of interest to those who have an interest for early history of Ohio," she reports.

Garber gets degree; successor hired

Frank Garber, resigned industrial arts teacher in Plymouth High school, is among 171 persons upon whose degrees will be conferred tomorrow by Bowling Green State university.

To teach at Grove City college, Grove City, Pa., next month, Garber will receive a master of science degree in education.

Dr. Paul Weaver, president of Lake Erie college, will address the graduates on "Human Relations Across National Frontiers."

Ceremonies, to which the public is invited will be in the main auditorium of the administration building at Bowling Green at 3 p.m.

School Supt. M. J. Coon announces the school office is now open during the day for those who wish to make any inquiries.

Pupils entering the first grade must be six years of age by Nov. 5, 1956.

In the nick of time, the Board of Education Monday hired Roy A. Wells, Shelby route 2, to succeed Garber as industrial arts teacher.

A graduate of the College of Wooster, he is married and lives on a farm.

Police committee asks for second full-time patrolman

Village council switched to Eastern Daylight Saving time Tuesday night, on a trial basis, and convened an hour earlier.

On the whole the change was a success. Since the memory of no man runs to the contrary, all business was dispensed with and the council had adjourned at 9:30 p.m.

THE MEETING WAS NOT without its highlight. After Police Chief Robert L. Meiser, Patrolman Frederick Lewis and the council had thrashed out the question of whether Meiser was entitled to full pay for the period he spent in Virginia to assist his daughter-in-law, the police committee threw a bombshell into the meeting.

It recommended unanimously that another full-time patrolman be hired and obtained the acquiescence of the council in instructing the solicitor to prepare an ordinance empowering the council to do just that.

The committee — John T. Dick and Omer Burkett — said it had considered the situation thoroughly and had found that Chief Meiser is expected to work an unreasonable number of hours and, additionally, the village runs the risk of being without police protection if Meiser is injured or falls ill.

DICK CITED FIGURES from the general fund to show the police department had paid in $1,501 in 1954, $1,318 in 1955 and $796 so far this year.

He said that if the salaries paid Lewis as special patrolman and Salvatore J. Glorioso as substitute — in a year these totalled $927.50 — were considered apart, the village would need to find only $2,672.50 with which to pay a full-time patrolman, who would get a salary of $3,600.

To this Councilman Charles Van Asdale demurred. He cited heavy payments to be made shortly from the general fund, and implied the village would be hard put to find the money, but agreed to allow the ordinance to be drawn and considered at the next meeting.

DICK MADE CLEAR TO Lewis, who was present for part of the meeting, that he would be given first consideration for the new post, if it is established, by reason of his long seniority.

The new natural gas rates were approved on third reading and put into effect. They are published formally in today's Advertiser.

The change in hour of meeting of the village was a surprise. The session was half an hour old when the press, usually prompt in finding seats in the tiny council chamber, arrived, somewhat breathless.

NO EXPLANATION WAS OFFERED for the change. The session was Routine inquiries with respect — or rather lack of it — to sewers and roads were dispensed with in the routine matter — referring them to committee.

It remained for Van Asdale to put searching questions to the council and to the solicitor. He posed them in general fashion, but it was not until

A lady came in the other day from a nearby city to look at Chrome Dinette Sets. When she saw our room full of Chrome and Wrought Iron Dinette Sets, she said, "Oh! My Goodness! You have more chrome than I've seen in any store I have been in. Such beautiful colors." She bought a table with 6 chairs. You will find all sizes and colors - - - Probably 50 sets, you count'em. Tables with one and two leaves, 4 feet, 5 feet and 6 feet long — All with cushioned chairs - - - we don't buy any chairs with flat seats in order to get a low price.

The reason our prices are so much lower than you expect to pay is that we don't pay out much for rent and we have low overhead.

A young couple priced our platform rockers... She said, "Why mother paid $20.00 more for hers two years ago." She couldn't quite believe the low price and the $20 saving. — But the name is on the rocker. They bought the Rocker and a Living Room Suite. They probably saved a hundred dollars on the Living Room Suite.

A fellow from Clyde told us, "Don't let anybody kid you about your Living Room Suites. You are at least $100 lower than any furniture store I have been in and I went into about every furniture store between Clyde and Detroit looking for living room furniture." You figure out how long you have to work to make $120, or how long it takes you to save $120. Another man told us, "We went to Toledo yesterday to some of these big stores on the highway who advertise over TV. I was surprised they don't have as nice a selection or as many Living Room Suites as you have."

You know, folks, it is the nice selections and low prices which makes more and more people say, "I can save so much more at Dekes."

Mrs. Chandler signs 325 lambs sold at Greenwich pool

Willard contract

Mrs. Doris Chandler, for four years an elementary teacher here, has signed a contract to teach elementary grades in the Willard system. She taught at Gallion a year and Fitchville two years before coming here. Emil Fernandez, Jr., who was superintendent at New Haven three years before his resignation, will teach commercial studies in Willard High school. He taught five years at North Fairfield before his assignment at New Haven. He is a graduate of Salem Center college, Salem, W. Va.

More than 325 lambs were marketed at the second lamb pool held Friday at Greenwich. Double blue lambs brought $23 per hundred, single blue $22, and red lambs $20. High water content of pastures is beginning to show in the lambs marketed, John Wells, Huron county agent, reports. "Ordinarily lambs will continue to grow during hot weather if pasture and grain of good quality are available. Some breeds do better if they are shorn. Shearing time for lambs to be marketed in November would be now, in order to have a No. 1 pelt."

Willard man sues for $50,000 damage

Raymond Black, Willard, has filed a negligence suit against Everett Echeberry, Greenwich, at the Huron County courthouse, Norwalk. Mr. Black is asking $50,000 on five counts of negligence as the result of a traffic accident Feb. 6, 1956 in Route 224, three quarters of a mile west of Old State road. The educational committee, headed by Raymond Collins, met to plan the lamb grading demonstration for Nov. 9 and carcass cut-out demonstration on Nov. 14. The carcass cut-out demonstration is a Dog's Life

INTRODUCING THE LEASH by Bob Bartos Prominent Dog Authority
A favorite subject of cartoonists is the dog on leash, pulling its owner willy-nilly down the street or winding him up with the leash. You can avoid such not-so-funny situations by teaching your dog to heel. This simply means that the dog walks calmly by your side. Place the dog on your left and hold the end of the leash in your right hand. Keep it Dog of the Week... FEELINGS...

Toy classification. Size, medium; weight, extreme limit, 14 pounds. Coat, long, with thick undercoat; straight and flat; profuse mane; feathered thighs, legs, tail and toes. Colors: red, brown, black, white, brindle, white, parti-colored, black and tan. Slack, using the left hand to jerk the leash to keep the dog in position or to gain his attention. Command the dog's name and "Heel!" and walk briskly forward. If the dog lags behind or runs ahead, jerk the leash with the left hand, and bring him back into position; then repeat the command: Don't pull him; use sharp jerks on the leash. Make right angle turns to the left and right, keeping the dog in place and repeating the command with each turn. Along with this lesson, teach the dog to sit whenever you stop. Command "Sit," while pulling up on the leash with the right hand and pushing down on his haunches with the left hand. Don't let him lie down. When he has mastered the "Sit," his next lesson should be the "Stay." With the dog in a sitting position, drop the leash, extend the left hand, palm open, in front of the dog's face, command "Stay," and walk away. If the dog follows you, take the leash and again go through the heel-sit-stay routine. "Down" is also taught with the dog in a sitting position. Hold the leash taut with the right hand, and push down with the left hand on the dog's shoulders while giving the command "Down." Feeding tips: Hard-working dogs require larger amounts of food than those which lead less active lives. A safe, dependable all-purpose dog food, such as Friskies, provides dogs with all necessary vitamins and minerals.

Is it -- or isn't it -- sneaky?

Police officials still are in disagreement, and the public has no unanimity of opinion either, about whether it is better for highway law enforcement vehicles to be clearly marked or whether they should have inconspicuous paint jobs.

The American Automobile Association is flatly opposed to unmarked patrol vehicles, claiming that clearly visible squad cars and adequate radar warning signs will obtain voluntary cooperation from motorists without the need for an unpleasant "crackdown."

In a recent poll of Minnesota residents, however, the Minneapolis Tribune found that while there was a split on the question, the majority — more than 70 per cent of both urban and rural population — approved of the use of unmarked cars in police work.

Among the reasons advanced on both sides are:

Pro—Drivers will be more cautious because they will never know when a police car is around; more violators will be apprehended, and if a driver is doing what he should, the markings on police cars don't matter.

Con — in case of emergency it is easier to find the police if their cars are plainly marked; it is sneaky for police to use unmarked cars, and people drive more cautiously when they are on the lookout for marked police cars.

It won't be long until football will be the order of the day in Mary Fate park. Crowds this year should be larger than ever, for many reasons.

The proper authorities should take steps at once to improve matters so far as spectators and the conduct of the games are concerned.

1. Spectators should be banned from the north side of the field. On many instances last season, an official of the game had to admonish certain fans for their conduct at that point. They have no business there. They disturb the visiting eleven and its coach. They interfere with the public address system. In sum, they are a nuisance.

2. Young fans should be stopped from running wildly about the stadium. Somebody is apt to get hurt.

It isn't much to ask, now, is it?

A weekly newspaper published every Thursday morning at 3 East Main street, Plymouth, O. Subscription rates: $3 yearly in advance for addresses to Richland. Huron or Crawford counties; $3.50 otherwise. Second class mailing privileges authorized at Plymouth, O.

And the order to fight on the line in Korea was the third of the decisions that Harry made. There is no intent to broach the question of whether we should have crossed the Yalu, as Dugout Doug insisted, or whether we should have carried the war to a dominating conclusion.

The cards were stacked otherwise. We were a part of the United Nations, and whether you like it or whether you don't, the truth is that both major parties vehemently supported the UN in organization and operation, and still do.

It is an American tradition to honor and hold affection for the underdog. Harry S. Truman is the prototype of the underdog. It was sort of sad that in what may well be his swan song in the game he played well and hard — you may or may not agree he was an all-American; again, that's your privilege — he was so ignominiously defeated.

And this week another convention, with less contest, cut and dried, and certainly the odds-on choice to win the election in November.

A lady in our restaurant asked us the other evening just what is the objection to Nixon.

In a word, it is this: Nixon fits in with the old guard Republicans, the hide-bound, protectionist, high-tariff, anti-labor, monopolistic politicians. In both the wallets whose influence on the policies of the GOP was strong until like was drafted or given them a winner when there was nobody else in sight. This kind of Republican doesn't really like Ike. It only tolerates him because he's popular with the people.

Nixon is another Taft 20 years too late. He is cut from the same cloth as Calvin Coolidge.

This is the first time that a president will be elected (and we are sure he will be elected) with no opportunity to succeed himself. The business of politics being what it is, the boys looking for patronage will desert the president and latch on to a man who can take care of them tomorrow. If that man be Nixon, or our president, we are a little discouraged about the prospects for our future.

What it comes down to is this which do you think is a better choice, Dickie-boy Nixon or Adlai Stevenson?

The really upsetting factor about convention week, to our way of thinking, is the general, base disinterest of the public. Nobody seemed to care a hang. In a couple of places where we had stopped for refreshment after dark, the hitting behind the counter snapped off the TV when Governor Clements was talking. Nobody cares, he said.

We care. And the fact we — and others like us — care means to us that we won't go to the dog's half so fast as if there were none of us left.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir: May I congratulate you on your excellent editorial on George H. Bender, entitled "A difficult decision?" It has never been "difficult" to vote against him, after his visit to Plymouth, many years ago, and listening to his bragging of oratory I never voted for him since. I got a good laugh out of that editorial.

Yours truly,
P. H. Root

FROM OUR FILES

Five Years Ago

Funeral services were conducted here for Mrs. Anna B. Carleton, 73, wife of Loren Carleton, who died in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The John Peifers, Plymouth route 1, narrowly escaped death when their automobile stalled on the Big Four tracks just north of Little London. They leaped from the car a split-second before the locomotive struck it. They were accompanied by their two children, ages four and eight.

The Edward Samahas occupied the cottage of H. James Root in Plymouth East road.

Final debut against the football stadium in Mary Fate park was set. Led by the softball league and Robert Lewis. The league paid $186, and Lewis covered the last 48 cents.

Miss Mary Ferrell, Shiloh nurse, was recovering from a broken knee cap and other injuries, the result of a crash in Route 42 at Lodi.

The John Koks of New Haven occupied a house built by Henry Vanderbilt in Riggs avenue.

St. Thomas Richard Hough took Miss Dorothy Edith Finch as his bride at Lakeland, Fla.

Miss Joyce Ramsey became the bride of Jay Brown in the Willard Presbyterian church.

The engagement of Miss Marjorie Joan Given of Sullivan to Eldon Sourwine was announced by her parents.

Externely dry weather inhibited corn and bean crops.

Maryanne Akers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Akers, underwent tonsillectomy at Mansfield General hospital.

Ten Years Ago

Dr. Charles O. Butner announced he had bought a lot in Maplewood addition, Willard, and planned to build a house there.

Elton Robertson landed a 28½-inch, 8½ lb. pickerel in Lake Erie. Lyle Hamman got so excited when he caught a fish — of smaller size, naturally — that he swallowed a chew of tobacco.

The Charles Davises marked their 50th wedding anniversary.

Miss Barbara Ann Harkwell became the bride of Charles N. Harkwell in New Haven Methodist church.

Jane Boles became the bride of David White Edward in the rectory of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at Warren, Pa.

Eight members of First Evangelical Lutheran church held a reception to meet their new pastor, the Rev. M. P. Paetznick.

The Robert L. Meisers purchased the property of Mrs. Harry Dawson in Plymouth street.

Robert Kessler bought the property of Mrs. Heskitt in West Broadway.

Miss Dorothy Coleman's engagement to Kenneth Fox was announced by her parents.

Questionnaire on School Consolidation

Questionnaire on school consolidation. The purpose of this questionnaire is to obtain information from school districts regarding their views on consolidation. The questionnaire is being distributed to all school districts in the state. The information obtained will be used to help the state board of education in its work of consolidating schools. The questionnaire is being distributed to all school districts in the state. The information obtained will be used to help the state board of education in its work of consolidating schools.

Board solicits consolidation views

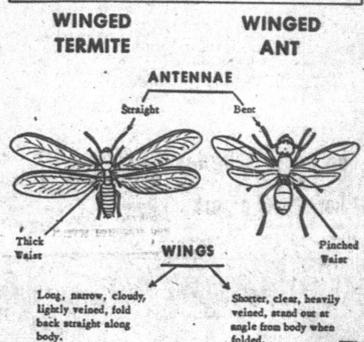

So at 11 a.m. Tuesday Sept. 11, M. J. Coon hit upon an idea that may solve the dilemma, although it is unlikely to make half a dozen families very happy. He asked the Mothers' club to obtain volunteers to deliver the cards by hand, door-to-door.

The cards bear three questions, which seek the voter's opinion. The phrasing of the questions was worked out by Supts. Coon and Homer Beard of the Shiloh schools.

"Do you approve," the first question asks, "of the consolidation of the present Shiloh and Plymouth local school districts? Will you support a bond issue for the building of a high school approximately midway between the two villages?"

A substantial increase in the number of schools taking part in the special school milk program has been reported by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"Flying Ants" May Be Termites

Take a good, close look at the "flying ants" that you may find glistering in the warm sunlight these days near your house or buildings. Chances are they are termites heading for a wedding in your woodwork.

In a country where hoop-la outdoes hoop-la anywhere else, the national conventions of the two major political parties far exceed competition for the foremost spectacle of the day.

That at Chicago last week, after what seemed to be a dull start, certainly lived up to advance notice.

Particularly was this true of the vice-presidential race, with the two candidates straining for victory down to the wire.

To one who has carefully studied the political scene in America over a generation, it was plain from the beginning that Governor Stevenson would win. His managers had worked too hard, too long and too well to lose now to Honest Abe the Hissplitter.

What was astonishing was that Harriman got so few votes — his own New York, Texas and Mississippi, and a handful of others. We had been led to believe his strength was greater than that.

Our portly friend across the street, no casual political observer himself, wiped the mist from his spectacles, shuffled a few magazines on the shelf, and observed that in his view the convention's temper was to tell Harry where to head in.

Our friend's attitude right along has been that Truman was a poor choice for a president, and since difference of opinion is what makes marriages, horse races and politics, we certainly defer to his right to his own opinion in the matter.

But there is a well-spring of international support from reasonable and reasoning observers, men and women whose opinions count for something among scholars, students, and scientists as well as statesmen and politicians, from the greatness of the former haberdasher from Missouri.

One has said that of the seven greatest decisions made in the history of the modern world — he is speaking here of the period since 1700 — three of them were made by Harry S. Truman.

One of them was the Marshall plan, without which the free world would not be what it is today. Old guard Republicans and some of his own party curse the gesture as a colossal giveaway. But anybody with an ounce of judgment can see that the Marshall plan was a great factor toward stabilizing the post-war world and averting a complete runaway conquest by the Communists.

The second of them was the decision to stand by Greece. It was eventually called the Truman doctrine; that the free world (here read the arsenal of the United States) would stand behind and fight with, beleaguered democracies against infiltration and penetration of Communism.

That it won us friends makes it a good decision. That it saved free Europe makes it one of the seven great ones.

Pilgrims favored to win conference

On form, Plymouth's Pilgrims should finish on top of the North Central conference this season. There are three good reasons why this is so. First, the Pilgrims have more experienced players, more lettermen, than any team in the league. Speed-wise, the Pilgrims are only average, but so far as height and weight go, they rank better than average in the league. Second, three of the traditional powerhouses in the league are embarking on new coaching regimes. Tony Aiello, a popular scholastic basketball referee, is the new head mentor at Townsend-Wakeman. He replaces Dick Ziegler of Shelby, who resigned. Cal Cok of Celeryville will be his assistant. Bernie Speckhaake returns after an absence of two years to direct Lodi's Tigers, having spent that time in the Air Force. Tom Bangert resigned to teach and coach in Pennsylvania. Richard Brockert replaces the controversial Chuck Comko at Seville. He was formerly a coach of an army squad in Honolulu. Additionally, Berlin Heights starts its first year of 11-man football and LeRoy (officially, it's Westfield LeRoy) officially, it's Westfield into its second year with a short schedule.

Third, the Pilgrims have a throwing offense that should confound inexperienced squads.

Assuming that Brockert knows what he's about, and the reports are that he does, look for Seville to have a better team than usual. In last year's 44 to 6 rout the Barbers threw a scare into the Pilgrims by scoring first and in Warren Clapp and John Mathys showed two backs who, with experience and more poise, are sure to put terror in any opposition. The Barbers have a smaller squad because there are fewer boys in the school.

Townsend-Wakeman, which upsets the Pilgrims in a lackadaisical contest at Homecoming here last year, was riddled by graduation, but has size, some depth, and an overpowering urge to dump Plymouth.

If the Pilgrim will put their minds to it, however, there is every sign they can pull off an undefeated season. What that is likely to do to a community too long deprived of a winning team, one that has let the defeatist attitude pervade every facet of its life, is only pleasant to contemplate.

Go, Pilgrims, go!

Pre-view draw favors Plymouth; Officials hired

First annual pre-view of North Central football conference to be played in Mary Fate park, Plymouth, Sept. 7 at 8 p.m. will follow this schedule:
8 p.m.: Plymouth vs. Townsend - Wakeman
8:20 p.m.: Berlin Heights vs. Lodi
8:40 p.m.: LeRoy vs. Plymouth
9 p.m.: Townsend - Wakeman vs. Berlin Heights
9:20 p.m.: Lodi vs. LeRoy
Each team will play two 10-minute quarters, one quarter against each opponent.

Plymouth has the breaks. It meets its strongest opponents at a time when the cost is nil.

Officials for the pre-view will be Jim Oberlander, Charles Siddings and Don Reed, all of Bucyrus.

Midget gridders asked to report to field today

Midget touch football leagues are invited to report to the Plymouth East road field today and tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. for tryouts for the September-October schedule.

To be eligible, a boy must be in the second through sixth grades, wear tennis shoes, be equipped with his own helmet.

A four or five team loop of teams with six or eight boys will be organized, Fred Buzard says.

Captains have been appointed from among sixth grade players. They are Bob Wechter, Jim Markley, Dick Lewis and Joe Boyle.

Fathers of boys participating will supervise game. Fathers who have already agreed to donate time for the games, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 6 p.m., are Donald P. Markley, James Phillips, James Broderick, Joseph Lasch, A. L. Paddock, Jr., and Buzard. Written permission of the parent relieving the league of responsibility in event of injury or accident is required before a boy may play.

How diplomats live in foreign climes subject of new books

How diplomats view their assignments is the subject of two new volumes added by Plymouth branch library.

Edwin F. Stanton, career ambassador who retired as chief of mission at Bangkok, Thailand, is the author of "Brief Authority," Mrs. Chester Bowles, wife of the former Connecticut governor and price administrator who served so successfully at New Delhi, under her own name of Cynthia, has written "At Home in India."

Both present sharp, incisive pictures of Americans abroad. Other non-fiction volumes are Emily Post's "Etiquette"; Clyde Merrill Maguire's "Abandon Party and Banquet Book"; "Toscanini" by Chotzinoff; Dr. Thomas A. Dooley's "Deliver Us from Evil"; Fred M. Hochinger's "An Adventure in Education"; T. O. Garland's "Artificial Respiration," which presents the new technique replacing the Schafer prone method; Van Wyck Brooks' study of "Helen Keller"; John J. O'Neill's "Engineering the New Age"; "Birthplace of the Winds" by Ted Bank II; Maxine Newmark's "Technical Dictionary," and Rosenkampf and Wallace's "Bookkeeping and Accounting." Five volumes of fiction, headed by Lion Feuchtwanger's "Raquel," have been received. Others are "A Perfect Woman" by L. P. Hartley; "Hope of Refuge" by Johnson O'Brien's "Farewell the Stranger" and "The Beauty Queen Killer," a mystery novel by Cressy.

BECAUSE GOVERNMENT NOW ELEMENT IN MARKET —

Sloan can't foresee crop prices

After nearly three decades of farming in Richland county, during good times and bad ones, Cloyd F. Sloan has given up trying to figure prices and profits before he gets his hogs to market.

"Things are too uncertain these days," he explains. "I used to be able to figure out how much I'd be likely to make long before my hogs became pork, but not any more. You've got the government in there."

So the 35-acre place, nestled against the Big Four tracks in Planktown north road east of Shiloh is expected to do the best it can, under the management it gets, and when it doesn't make as much as it might, it's less the fault of the land than of the high-powered managers of land in Washington.

FOR ONLY ONE OF THESE three decades has Cloyd F. Sloan lived on the old Miller place. Before that he lived on his own farm in Free road. But when his boys got back from the Army and allowed as how they'd go back to farming if they could find a place to live, Cloyd Sloan figured they could have the old family place. So he looked around and found just what suited him. But he had to wait until its occupants found a place to live in themselves!

This little farm supports a good corn when it's hot too wet. "This year, at this rain has made the stalk high but the corn poor," observes the veteran farmer. "In other years, when the weather was dryer along about this time of the growing season, we got better corn."

No farmer should complain about corn prices, if he's selling right now. Mr. Sloan remarks, "At $2 a hundred, that's a good price for corn," he insists.

The Sloans raise Hampshire hogs and have about 35 of them running in the north lot against the railroad tracks right now. "The Hamp has been good to us," Mr. Sloan observes. "We had our own boar running with 'em earlier — the boys and I share the same boar — and the sow's are good mothers, they do well for themselves after they've been weaned, and take care of themselves when they're growing. What more could you ask for?"

UNDERFOOT, OR NEARLY so, run a flock of white Leghorn hens, straw-bossed by a handsome cockerel, apparently a yearling.

"We just raise enough to have for the pot during the winter and get rid of the rest," explains the veteran farmer.

"That nobody living on a farm should be without the finer things of life is apparently a maxim in this household. Part of the doorway plot is given over to a handsome string of gladioli in all colors and some impressive zinnias and marigolds. Mr. Sloan denies he has a green thumb. "I just plant 'em and take a hoe to 'em when they're small."

Despite the fact that some careless person or other has lost life or limb on a Big Four crossing all around him, Cloyd Sloan hasn't seen an accident of any kind at his crossing since he's been there.

"Don't want any, either. One's too many," he observes.

"I'm not much of a man to give advice," says Cloyd F. Sloan, "and I try to keep my advice to myself. But some of the things you see, why, my stars!"

Young farmers, take note: if you're patient, Cloyd Sloan knows what it's all about, and he'll tell you. But you've got to work up his confidence.

Flower show slated in church Thursday

Shiloh Town and Country Garden club announces it will stage a flower show in the basement of Mt. Hope Lutheran church from 2 to 9 p.m. Thursday.

An invitation is extended to all flower growers in the community to place exhibits in the show. Mrs. Maude Kuckman, club president, states. All exhibits must be placed, however, by 10:30 a.m. on the day of the show.

All exhibits in specimen classes must be grown by the exhibitor. They will be arranged in eight divisions: "Land of the Shamrock", an arrangement in green; "The Market Basket", an arrangement of flowers in a basket; "Tea for Two", an arrangement in a teapot; "Gift From the Sea", an arrangement using shells and driftwood; with flowers and foliage; "Glimpses of Gold", an arrangement in copper; "Farmer's Delight", an arrangement using any combination of fruit, flowers and vegetables; "Garden Pixies", miniatures in three-inch arrangement; and "It May Surprise You", an arrangement in an unusual container.
