

Plymouth wallops Green Springs, 45 to 0

Eddie Taylor took up where he left off last November and scored three touchdowns leading Plymouth to a 45 to 0 rout of Green Springs Friday night.

It was no contest. Outmanned Green Springs never was able to offer much opposition and the Pilgrims scored almost at will. Nevertheless, there were disappointing aspects of the Pilgrim defense, and on four occasions the offense could not move the ball.

Taylor romped 26 yards around left end for his first score, took a 35-yard drive from Emsel for the second and danced 37 yards for the third. He racked up 84 points last season and at this rate bids fair to establish a modern schoolboy record for scoring.

JIM HUNT HAD TWO touchdowns, both on passes. Young Dick Akers hit him on the right shoulder with a 33-yard bomb and Ray Emsel led him beautifully with a 17-yard toss for the other.

Mickey Hampton, banished from the game in the second period, banged through for one touchdown and Duane Utis, playing full back, bucked for the final score in the waning minutes.

Ted Fox kicked only one of seven tries at conversion by placement, and in the second period Dale Solze was tackled behind the end zone after a poor pass from center, for a safety.

Plymouth scored on the first down series. Solze kicked off to Fox on the Pilgrim 20. An 11-yard runback set it on the 31, from there Taylor picked up four. Ray Emsel kept for a first down on the 45 and Fox took a pitch-out to the Bobcat 28. Hampton got two before Taylor romped over untouched.

Next time the Pilgrims got the ball, they scored again. Fox fielded Solze's punt at midfield and picked up 18 yards on the runback.

HAMPTON TOOK A HAND-off through tackle and drove 30 yards to the two, and then piled off tackle for the score.

As the quarter ended, the Pilgrim attack was bogging down, less opposition force without than from resistance within. The Red and White lost the ball on downs on the Green Springs 15 early in the second canto and broke through to halt Solze in the end zone for a safety on the next series.

One play after the ensuing kick-off from the Bobcat 20 and the Pilgrims had another score. Hunt's return laid the ball on the Bobcat 36. Emsel dropped back and fired a sure shot to Taylor, who ran over the goal.

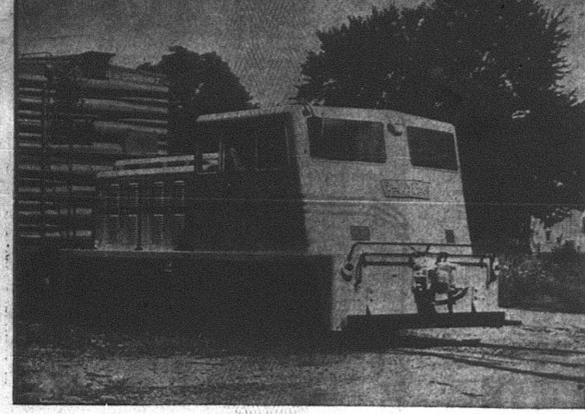

The contest was a travesty from this point. Neither team played brilliantly, and Coach Lew Pettit inserted rookies freely to give them experience.

As a morale factor, he let the regulars back just long enough to push up the score. There was an impression that each time the Pilgrim bench was molested by a hot-headed Green Springs tackle ousted from the game for slugging. Pettit sent his big guns in for one more touchdown.

THE PILGRIMS GOT TWO each in the final quarters. Both in the third quarter were engineered by young Dick Akers, who ran the club well in Emsel's absence and threw accurately under pressure. This lad will be a good one with experience.

Dr. Firestone gets medal for research

Dr. Floyd A. Firestone, consulting physicist, prolific inventor, technical editor and educator, will be recipient Oct. 17 of the Edward Longstreth medal of the Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania. He is the son of the A. W. Firestones of Shiloh.

The Institute is recognizing Dr. Firestone "For his invention and development of a practical industrial tool for the detection and measurement of the location and extent of defects in metal parts by ultrasonic means," namely the ultrasonic reflectoscope.

While earlier researchers had suggested methods for detecting flaws in materials by ultrasonic means, Dr. Firestone was the first to develop a workable system.

IN ESSENCE, THE ULTRASONIC reflectoscope is of significant importance in commercial use because of its comprehensive ability to examine materials for flaws throughout as opposed to surface or near surface inspection of other methods. The applications of this method extend beyond flaw detection. It can be used for determination of elastic constants of solids, metals sorting, thickness measurements, study of shrink fits, solidification patterns, etc.

With the invention of the reflectoscope came the advent of improved quality control of materials and maintenance of equipment.

Without ultrasonic inspection, less incentive would exist to increase the quality of rolled, extruded and forged materials. Today, defects much smaller than the smallest detected by the most sensitive X-ray are detected ultrasonically.

Born in Marysville in 1898, Dr. Firestone was graduated from Case Institute of Technology in 1921. He received his Ph.D. degree in 1931 from the University of Michigan. From 1921-23 he was a research assistant at the Riverbank Laboratory of Acoustics, Geneva, Ill. Subsequently, he taught at the University of Michigan until 1945, where he was an assistant and associate professor of physics. Since 1945 he has been a consulting physicist.

The holder of over 25 patents, Dr. Firestone applied for the basic patents on the ultrasonic reflectoscope in 1940. To his credit also are patents on a photoelectric inspection device, an electric organ, a device for aiding air navigation, a new system of musical notation, an acoustic device for measuring the capacity of milk bottles and

Council endorses hotrods

Officers of the newly formed Halo Hunters, about 20 miles from Willard, have obtained endorsement of the village council Tuesday night for their activities, which included:

1. Use of a half-mile strip of paved road for drag races on a periodic basis.
2. Self-discipline among members, who will wear distinctive jackets and automobile tags, to prevent abuse of traffic and anti-noise rules.
3. Emphasis upon safe driving among members and the general public.

Acting Mayor Thurman R. Ford, speaking for the council, expressed satisfaction with the plan and urged cooperation of the public.

No site within the village appears suitable for roping off of a Sunday afternoon. Police Chief R. L. Meiser told the council, and the cooperation of township and county authorities will be sought.

Officers are Don Baker, president; Francis Donnan, vice president; Theodore Ross, secretary; and Robert J. Fugleson, treasurer.

In what otherwise was a routine session, the council finalized plans to appear as guests of the Chamber of Commerce today at 8 p.m. in the elementary school to explain details of the proposed speed bond issue.

Roger Loveless, engineer for Alden E. Sison & Associates, Columbus, met with the council Monday to go over plans and figures.

such as are available, to prepare the council. Solicitor Joseph F. Dush will appear with the council to respond to inquiries from Chamber members.

THE POSSIBILITY THAT $90,000 federal funds may be obtained from a $1.6 million federal grant to Ohio was laid before the council.

Requirements are the plans for a sewer system must be prepared and approved, and evidence of ability to finance 70 per cent of the cost of the sewage treatment plant and the interceptors must be shown. Estimated cost of these two phases of the plan is $300,000, of which 30 per cent allowed by law would be $90,000.

There is no assurance these funds would become available, the council was told. Nevertheless, applications may be made and vigorously pressed.

School consolidation opposed

Voters in Plymouth school district disapprove of any consolidation with Shiloh schools, a survey conducted by the Board of Education at the order of the Richland county board shows.

Meeting in special session Monday night, the Board counted replies received.

TO QUESTION 1 — "WOULD you approve of a bond issue regardless of where the school would be located?" — the answers were 126 no, 59 yes.

TO QUESTION 2 — "WOULD you approve of a bond issue to build a new high school midway between Shiloh and Plymouth?" — the responses were 116 no, 75 yes.

TO QUESTION 2 — "WOULD you approve of a bond issue regardless of where the school would be located?" — the answers were 126 no, 59 yes.

TO QUESTION 3 — "IS A survey needed?" — the responses were 111 no, 65 yes.

There were 86 cards, the Board reported, with varied responses. Many of them indicated absolute disapproval of consolidation with Shiloh schools but favorable consideration of a scheme to consolidate with New Haven

Responses amounted to about 40 per cent of the households solicited for replies.

After they had studied the cards for the second time, the Board adjourned to go to Shiloh, where the Shiloh board was in session.

Superintendent Homer reported Tuesday the cards sent out in that district would not be counted until after midnight Monday. He urged all patrons of the school district to assist the Board of Education with a reply.

Average residential cost per kilowatt hour going down

Even though living costs have increased steadily, the cost of electricity has gone downward, making electric power one of today's biggest bargains. Actually, since 1943, the average cost per kilowatt hour has been reduced more than 25%. How is this possible?

Increased customer usage — improved power plants and equipment — modern distribution ... all are major factors in our continuous and successful efforts to supply low-cost electricity.

In addition to this low cost, you enjoy the cleanliness, safety and round-the-clock dependability that electric power provides around the home — in business — in industry — or on the farm.

ON THE SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION SURVEY —

Stubbornness never solved anything, any time, anywhere

Let not those who think Shiloh boys and girls aren't good enough for Plymouth children to associate with conclude that by voting against consolidation they are solving anything.

The truth is that we have a small school, badly crowded, pressed for room. Even if we built a new one of whatever size, we would still have a small school, with poorly paid teachers, barely enough money to skin through.

We must have state support, unless we are all willing to shell out money that has never before been paid in this region. To get it, we must have a reasonable size and show that we have taxed ourselves to the hilt.

To the first part of those requirements, the state has said that a high school of a minimum size shall be the law by 1938, or else! Or else no state funds.

A wise man once said, "The people get the kind of government they deserve." It is also true of schools. The people get the kind of school they want, by indicating what they'll pay.

But the people are, for the most part, beyond school age. Think hard about the pupils of the school: are they getting the kind of education that will equip them for the future?

We think not. What do you think? And what are you going to do about it? Resist it though you will, consolidation is the only answer.

By Phineas Whittleseed

Our Suzie came home the other day with a dandy yarn about a lady who opened her refrigerator. There sat Bugs Bunny.

"What're you doing here?" exclaimed Madame. "This is a Westinghouse, ain't it?" inquired Bugs.

"We-ll, y-es, but what difference does that make?"

"I'm just jesting," yakked B. B. We thought it was funny, anyhow.

Belated birthday greetings to our favorite red-head, Doc Faust's eldest, whom we've teased too much too often. She's a good stick, both personally and with that baton, and we wish her well.

The tragedy of Little Rebecca church is more than enough to try men's souls. The fire's origin is questionable. No stove had been lighted in the place since the spring. The electrical inlets were mounted to the concrete walls and had been turned off at the road, in the bargain. There is no brush or other impediments nearby that could harbor a fire. Could it have been a fire-bug, human variety? Who knows?

All we do know is that these faithful folks are without a church in which to worship. They turned out in great number on Sundays, and deserve the sympathy of all concerned.

Donald R. Vanderpool, Plymouth route 1, is receiving donations from sympathetic citizens (and aliens, too, if there are any). Checks and drafts or money orders should be drawn to his order as trustee of Little Rebecca church.

There came to hand a story last week that cried for investigation, and investigate we did. We called two of the principals on the telephone.

Seems a grass widow lady, whose hubby was a no-good, left her flat with a small boy, the apple of her eye, her only child, born to her late in life.

The boy fell ill, and she went to a physician, NOT a resident of the Plymouth-Shiloh community. He diagnosed undulant fever and some other ills, and did a woman job in curing the lad after a long siege. One he had to deliver artificial respiration when the boy seemed to be dead.

After the youngster returned to his school, his mother with tears of gratitude in her eyes called on the doc.

"No amount of gratitude would ever repay you," she said, "for what you have done for me and my boy. And I could never begin to pay you for your professional services. So, doctor, I just hope you'll accept this token of my appreciation."

She laid a hand-embroidered purse of modest size but beautiful appointment on his desk.

"That's all very well," replied the medico. "But I can't pay my office rent on thanks and that purse won't feed my family."

"Just what is your fee, doctor," abruptly asked the mother.

"It's two hundred dollars," he said.

Whereupon she opened the purse and extracted five $100 notes, laid two on the desk, snatched up the purse and walked out.

It wasn't so far away this happened, and it just goes to show that it pays to look before you leap.

Elliott Redies, an old hand in the newspaper business, has just bought the New London Record from Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bennett and Marjorie Hahn. We wish him well. He came to see Thursday and seems like a personable chap who deserves to make good.

Phil Porter, in the Plain Dealer, takes over at this point with some sound observations:

Have you noticed lately that about the only times citizens work up a real heat about some governmental matter is when they are against it? Big, constructive projects which obviously benefit the entire area leave them cold or confused, as if they don't care or understand; they rarely take the initiative to help. But let some eager sewer start a movement to oppose, to vote no, to obstruct, and they really get moving, not only with energy, but with all the passion of provincialism and ignorance.

Theoretically they are for public improvements, but actually they are for them only in someone else's backyard. One of the best examples of this is the uproar the place over the location of the city of Cleveland's new incinerator some months ago. Any fool knows that the city cannot go on forever burning rubbish on the lake front; there is even a court injunction forbidding it, which has been largely ignored as long as the mayor was trying to find a site for the incinerator.

But, in spite of competent engineering advice that it would produce a stink and the corroborating experience of places which have had a modern incinerator, hundreds of people all over Cleveland tried to keep the incinerator out—anywhere at all—if it was near them. Even after the site was finally and painfully chosen, councilmen were abused and silly taxpayer's suits filed. You'd think the irate citizens had no feeling of responsibility for the rest of the town at all.

The same sort of reaction has occurred in many instances. Bay Village people a couple of years ago squatted so loudly against a plan (which would have netted them larger tax revenue) to build a National Carbon Co. laboratory that the company gave up and moved it elsewhere. Republic Steel Corp. was all set to build a lab in Beachwood Village, met the same sort of resistance and gave up.

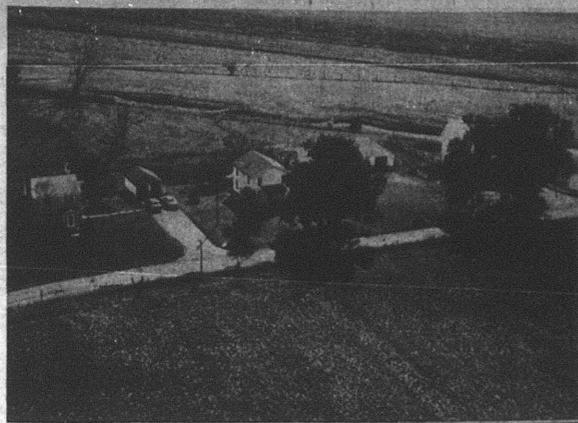

The county for several years has wanted to build a new bridge over Rocky river to eliminate the frightful longstanding congestion over the Detroit avenue bridge, but the residents of Clifton Park squawked, Lakewood refused consent and it is still not legally out of the woods.

When a route for the proposed north-south Ohio turnpike (now probably deferred indefinitely) was projected through the eastern part of the county, residents of Lyndhurst blew their stacks and so did those in Mayfield Heights. So did some of those in Lake County, around Little Mountain. Anywhere else, but not in our backyard, was their cry. Lately we have the absurdity of Valley View, where councilmen having voted consent for the county to rebuild Pleasant Valley road but the mayor now refusing to sign the papers, saying they'd changed their minds.

This negative state of mind is not confined to any one section of the city, county, suburbs or state. It seems to be national, a part of the postwar backwash of a voided consent of "let-George-do-it," of "I got mine, to hell with you, Jack," which is the exact opposite of the idealism, patriotism and self-sacrifice which is inevitably a part of a war effort.

You can dream up a slum clearance, a Garden Valley project, and only a handful of citizens—the ones who are in back of all civic projects—really take an interest. Most don't know and don't care what it is, unless it is going to cost them extra in taxes, and then they're agin' it.

It takes thinking to figure out complex governmental problems and real thinking to help everyone, particularly for citizens who only vote in presidential elections, who don't even know their councilmen or their school board members, who haven't the slightest notion how their tax rate is computed. But let some political flannel-mouth come along and claim he's saving them money or preventing some fancied injustice and chances are they'll believe him.

SELLER'S MARKET GONE, SAYS STATE CHAMBER —

Sewer system bait for industry

"You won't get any new industry, I don't think, until you have a sewage disposal plant installed."

William E. Arnold, executive secretary of the Defiance Chamber of Commerce, was speaking to the Plymouth Chamber.

He responded thus bluntly to a loaded question. A number of his listeners perked up.

For the first time, one who had been through the mill had spoken up. Arnold has been instrumental in garnering three new industries for the city of 13,000 on the Maumee river.

"BUT WHAT DO WE need a new industry for?"

After he had spoken, one member took him aside and asked that question.

"Unless your town is different from others I know about," the personable Arnold replied, "you're in a tax squeeze. You need additional municipal funds and your householders, especially if they are older folks who're retired or living 'on pensions, can't stand the burden of higher taxes. Your level of municipal service is low, and to get them to where you're a modern town, you need another industry to carry the load."

He couldn't have described the situation better if he'd studied it for a month.

Tax rates locally compared with those in larger cities across the state. Resistance to higher taxes, always a characteristic of the Plymouth electorate, has been higher since the end of World War II.

Problems: pressure of rising enrollment in schools, need for additional water supplies, shortage of funds with which to furnish basic municipal services, let alone pay village employees what they're worth.

ANSWER: GET A NEW INDUSTRY in town. With more jobs, more money will be spent here. More people will be able to pay more for government services. Investment of a capital outlay character can be taxed, inventories can be taxed to furnish the village with more funds.

The bait: make it attractive for industry to come here. How: install a modern sewage disposal system, says the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Why is it necessary? "The day of pressure upon industry to disperse is gone," says the Chamber. "After World War II, when much industry was financed by government funds and relied upon government defense contracts to live, the federal government could pressure industry to relocate. The tax structure was arranged so inordinate expenses incident to rebuilding elsewhere could be promptly written off.

"Not so now. The pressure is off. It was a seller's market in 1946 through 1950. Now it's a buyer's market. Industry willing to re-locate is looking for a tailor-made situation. "One of the rules under which it operates is that any factory hiring more than 49 persons has to have a suitable sewage disposal outlet. Expense of building is high enough without having to build a sewage disposal plant."

CONCLUSION: A TOWN stands a better chance of getting an industry if its sewage disposal system is in order.

"Industry today," the Ohio Chamber goes on, "is staffed by young executives, college men, the most part, with young and growing families. The industry which hires them makes a big investment in their training, and the demand for trained men exceeds the supply, particularly in the fields of science and engineering. To keep them, you've got to keep them happy."

Their wives have for the most part lived in highly developed urban areas where municipal services are well developed. Schools are first class, churches and recreational facilities are excellent, shopping is the equivalent of big cities. A young executive isn't likely to be willing to live in a town where his wife can't get these things because she won't be happy. And when she's unhappy...

"But we don't want our town changed with all these fancy ideas from fancy people!"

TO WHICH ARNOLD AND others in the business respond: "Friend, this is 1936. We're living in 1936, not 1936. You can't live in yesterday. It's hard enough living for today. You've got to live for tomorrow and plan for it."

"If you don't, your town will die. Because the squeeze is on a small town, it has to get into industry to carry the tax load or it can't survive. The values and merits of living in small town America are at stake, and to save em, you've got to attract industry."

"The way to handle the situation is to pick and choose your industry. You can't be very picky unless you have something worth while to offer. One of those things is a sewage disposal plant."

That's why the village council maintains, the sewer bond issue will appear on the November ballot.

Garrett, Smith see Alaskan celebration at Fairbanks tele

Two local men witnessed the 34th birthday celebration of Fairbanks, Alaska, July 19-22.

The city staged its annual Golden Days celebration, honoring the pioneers of Alaska with a program of parades, street dances, Eskimo games, gold mining exhibitions, boat racing, beard judging, and a number of other events reminiscent of pioneer days for thousands of visitors and Hobart (Kis) Garrett of Shiloh and Francis Smith of New Haven. Both men are employees of the Hirsch Construction Co., Columbus, engaged in government work. Fairbanks is their headquarters.

The city's growth from a small placer mining camp in 1902 to its present population of 45,000 people is portrayed in a special 104-page edition of the "Fairbanks Daily News-Miner", dated July 18, sent home by Mr. Garrett.

"Up until 1914," an editorial in the paper states, "the city was still primarily a mining camp of wooden frame structures, with few large homes gracing the landscape."

IN THE SPAN OF LITTLE more than a decade, however, the city has shown astonishing gains. No longer is it dependent on a single resource — gold — for its sustenance. It is now a vital center, an important defense center, and a distributing point for the vast Arctic radar projects.

"Today a city that was once a single resource is now the richness of Alaska numbers modest skyscrapers, modern schools and luxurious homes among its structures. Assuredly, property valuations within the city limits are approaching the $30 million mark."

In the years since the city's founding there has been a vast change in the prices and varieties of food stuffs, too.

In the early days vegetable and fruits were almost unobtainable and the prices of all other food stuffs were almost out of this world. Today, thanks to an increasing agriculture in Alaska itself and vastly improved transportation from the States, prices are not too much out of line with prices here.

FOR EXAMPLE AN ADVERTISEMENT in the paper lists Casen's fully cooked and ready-to-heat hams, whole or half ham, at 69c a lb., center cuts, $1.39-lb. and round steak 98c lb.

Airborne fresh lettuce, 33c lb., tomatoes, 39c a tube and California cantaloupes 29c lb. Coffee is advertised at 97c lb.

Miss Lofland marries Marine in Shiloh church

Before the white gladioli decorated altar of Shiloh Methodist church, Miss Ruth Ann Lofland became the bride of Robert Waldo Pittenger in a double ring ceremony Friday at 8 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of the Chester Loflands, Plymouth route, and the bridegroom the son of the W. W. Pittengers, Shiloh, where his mother is postmistress-designate.

The Rev. Thomas M. Shoemaker, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony after a prelude of organ music played by Jack E. McQuate, Plymouth, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Charles O. Butner was soloist.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE BY her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of white lace over satin. It was trimmed with pearls at the neckline. Lace sleeves ended in points over the hands. A head-piece trimmed with lace and small seed pearls held a finger-tip veil of illusion lace in place.

Miss Lofland carried a white Bible with white orchid.

Mrs. Richard Pittenger, the bridegroom's sister-in-law, was matron-of-honor. The bridesmaids were two classmates of the bride at Shiloh High school, the Misses Marlene White and Karen Williams.

All three attendants were attired in taffeta with overskirts of net. They carried nosegays of carnations and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Lofland in the new-of-honor appeared in a navy blue lace over taffeta, with selected pink accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Pittenger wore rose lace over taffeta with blue accessories, set off with blue carnations.

RICHARD PITTINGER, THE bridegroom's brother, was best man. Ushers were Ronald Lofland, the bride's brother, and Eugene Hamman.

One hundred fifty guests attended the bridal reception in the church rooms after the ceremony. A four-tiered cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom decorated the table.

The bridegroom is assigned to Camp Lejeune, N. C., as a Marine. The bride is employed by Shelby Mutual insurance Co. Both are graduates of Shiloh High school.

Mail train service stops Oct. 1

Effects of the expense curtailing program by railroads throughout the country will be felt in Shiloh Oct. 1.

On that date Big Four mail and passenger trains Nos. 447 and 448, the only trains that stop in the village, will cease to operate, Acting Postmaster Glenn Swanger states. Trucks will take their place in delivering mail. So far as is known, no replacement has been arranged for passenger service. Shilohans desiring to get out of town will have to depend entirely on automobiles for transportation, as no buses or taxi service will be available. The new arrangement will benefit farmers on the rural routes, however, Swanger points out. Under the present set-up, train 447, westbound arrives in Shiloh at 10 a.m. to discharge and pick up mail and passengers; train 448, eastbound, arrives at 6:18 p.m. Mail arriving on the morning train is not delivered to rural residents until the following day, as the rural carriers leave the post office before its arrival. The westbound route pacesett truck No. 1A will arrive at 6:50 a.m., allowing the rural carriers to deliver the mail on the same day. The east bound truck will arrive at 7:18 p.m.

The service will operate between Cleveland and Gallion.

Spino wins on links

Michael Spino of Cleveland won the Garrett-Riest Post 503, American Legion golf tournament championship at the Possum Run golf course Sunday afternoon.

Spino carded a 72 to beat out his finalist opponent, Ross (Wardie) Moser, by one stroke in the handicap affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Spino were weekend guests in the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Edna Gieseman, in Mechanic street.

Mrs. Cihla succeeds Wolford as clerk

Mrs. Joseph J. Cihla of Prospect street has been appointed village clerk, succeeding Dean Wolford. The appointment became effective Sept. 1. Mayor Robert Moser states. She took the minutes of her first council meeting Sept. 12.

Chief business at his meeting was the opening of bids for material to blacktop North Walnut and North streets. The Mansfield Asphalt and Paving Co. of Mansfield was awarded the contract on its bid of $7.25 per ton. An estimated 300 tons of the material will be needed to put a two inch coating on the streets, which will cost the village $2.175.

Ex-Shilohans wed

Richard McKone, a former pupil in the Shiloh schools and a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Henry of West Main street, was married Sept. 2 to Miss Roberta Lane, a teacher in the Alameda, Cal., schools.

Now a junior at San Francisco college, he attended school here nine years ago.

Personal Items

David L. (Buzz) Withic, son of Mrs. Edna Gieseman of Mechanic street, resumed his studies at Ashland college Monday after enjoying a six weeks vacation.

A Korean War veteran, he is majoring in business accounting. This is his second semester.

Kathleen Kovack has returned to her home in Cleveland after a visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Henry, in West Main street.

Mrs. Evelyn Mowery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffith of Pettit street, has accepted a position with Hotel Shelbain in Shelby. She began her duties last week.

Mrs. Frank Brinson of Plymouth rural was a Monday night caller on Mrs. Fannie Caldwell in North Delaware street.

Fenton Construction Co. of Ashland was the other bidder. City commissioners have agreed to the county's furnishing labor and trucks for the hauling of the material in lieu of an assessment against the Shiloh Outpost garage operated by the county and located on an acre of ground which it owns at the corner of North and North Walnut streets.

Class of '57 names Elaine Ballitch

Joan Collins, a minor, Nova, charges Joe Collins with neglect and cruelty. She asks custody of their two children. The couple was married in Willard, May, 1954.
