

Mrs. Fox in Boston for another bout with deadly cancer

A courageous young housewife whose battle with cancer has 13 times sent her into an operating room is a patient in Massachusetts General hospital, Boston, Mass., for further treatment.

She is Mrs. Arlene Fox, wife of Richard A. Fox and mother of two small boys. The Foxes live in Curtis court here.

Formerly Arlene Workman of Celeryville, Mrs. Fox has been afflicted with the disease since 1947. Every cavity of her body has been opened and explored for sources of the deadly nodes of calcified tissue which are slowly consuming her frail body.

THE DOCTORS NEVER flinched their duty. The Foxes were told from the start what the trouble was. And neither the courageous Mrs. Fox nor her husband lost faith.

Despite the diagnosis, they had two children and kept up, so much as possible, a normal family life.

Mrs. Fox doesn't experience much pain. The affliction robs her of nutrition, primarily, and takes its toll by depriving the body of nourishment.

ACCOMPANIED BY HER mother, Mrs. Henry Workman, Celeryville, Mrs. Fox is undergoing research treatment at the celebrated Boston institution after exhausting hope at Cleveland clinic.

Mrs. Hahler loses father in Cleveland to heart seizure

Father of Mrs. Albin O. Hahler, John S. Waschura, 83, died of a heart attack in Cleveland Nov. 19.

A retired machinist for Browning Engineering Corp., he was a widower.

The son is John Paul Cleveland; Bernard, Euclid, and Lawrence, at home, and three daughters, Mrs. Marie Armbruster, Wyckliffe; Mrs. Charles Suttles, Clyde, N. C., and Mrs. Clara Jaworske, Euclid, also survive. There are 17 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

A grandson, Capt. Eugene Phillips, Laredo, Tex., flew to Cleveland to be a pallbearer. He spent the weekend here with his brothers and sisters. Funeral services were conducted in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Cleveland, Saturday. Burial ensued in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. William Lawrence, Shiloh, attended the funeral and returned to North Carolina with her parents.

Army to dedicate new reserve center; Rep. Baumhart to speak

New center named for Lieut. Rhine, killed in 1944

Rep. A. David Baumhart, Jr., veteran 13th district Congressman, will be principal speaker Saturday when the $95,000 Rhine Army Reserve center at 365 Sandusky street is formally dedicated.

Maj. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, the Army officer who stood up to the late Senator Joseph P. McCarthy and stared him down, successfully, will deliver special remarks. He is commander of the XXIII U. S. Army Corps (Reserve) with headquarters at Ft. Hayes, Columbus.

It was his headquarters which supervised construction of the engineer reserve establishment.

Maynard J. Coon, executive head of Plymouth schools, will present the dedicatory remarks.

THE CENTER WILL BE named in honor and memory of Charles W. Rhine, a first lieutenant in the Army of the United States, killed in action in the European Theatre in World War II.

Lieutenant Rhine, the son of Mrs. H. S. Rhine of Park avenue, had been awarded the Bronze Star medal with oak leaf cluster, indicating two awards of the same decoration. He was awarded the Purple Heart posthumously.

Formalities at the reserve center site will begin at 2 p. m.

A tour of the building and grounds will follow the brief ceremonies.

THE CENTER WAS CON-structed as part of the Army's plan to implement reserve training for men who have served required active duty but still owe the government stand-by-reserve obligation.

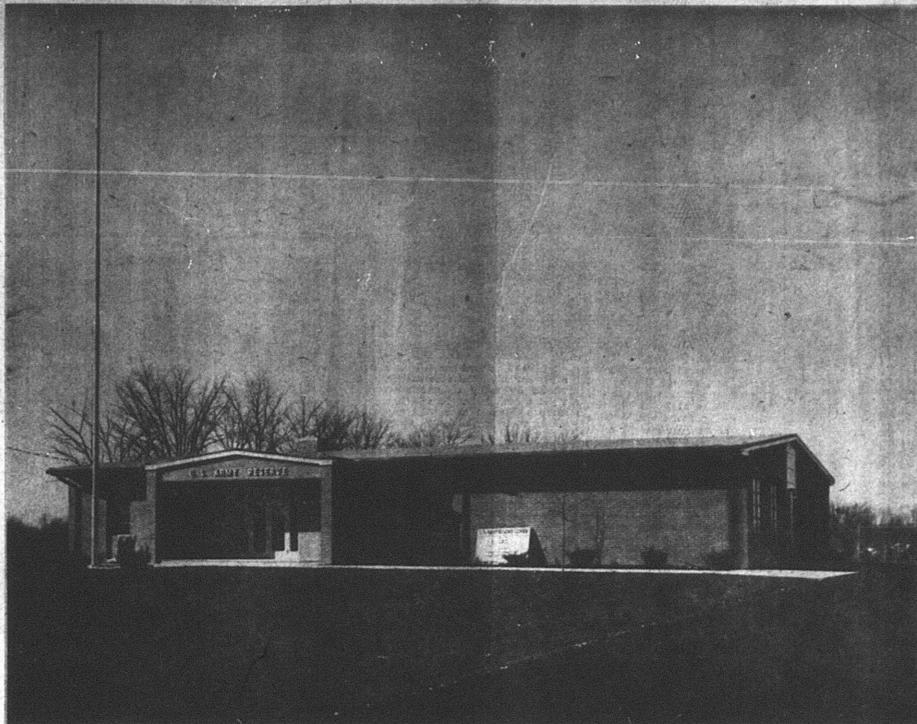

It will house engineer training units, initially those of an airborne engineer battalion which has been drilling at Willard airport.

The present unit is one of a projected group of three, to include at a later — and as yet unspecified — date a larger structure to house material.

This maintenance shop would be located 151 feet to the west of the present structure. Between the two would be an assembly hall, 71 by 57 feet.

The one storey structure, erected by Weaver Construction Co., Bryan, on contract with the U. S. Army Corps Engineers, Huntington, W. Va., contains two classrooms, a day room, office for the unit adviser, an administrative office, a heater room, two storage chambers and lavatory and locker space for officers and enlisted men.

The contract was let Feb. 18.

Shiloh sued for money for sewers

Long rumored legal action by the contractor on Shiloh's sewer construction project became a fact last week when a suit seeking $97,426 was filed in Richland county common pleas court.

United Construction Co., Youngstown, one of two firms which agreed to do work on the project, alleged in its petition the village failed to pay $97,426 as agreed in the contract.

The petition states the village's consulting engineers approved payment of the sums indicated for periods ending May 31 and Sept. 30. But by Oct. 28 the moneys had not been paid.

THE FIRM FURTHER alleges that value of work performed and materials installed, to date, is $173,277. Since the village has paid $78,850 already, the balance is due, the firm says in its petition.

To this the village's spokesman, John J. Cunningham, Mansfield, a consulting engineer on the project, takes exception.

Cunningham argues the amount of the contract binding the Youngstown firm to the village is $102,741. If, he says, $78,850 has already been paid, then the Youngstown company is entitled to have only $23,891, not the $97,426 sought.

He implied he considers the doctrine of caveat emptor — "let the buyer beware" — applies. "They contracted to do the job for so much and that's all they're entitled to, regardless of what it may have cost them," he says.

Mrs. Sarah Stout dies of leukemia

A longtime Shiloh resident, Mrs. Sarah Jane Stout, 82, died in Brooke Army hospital, San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 18.

A member of Mt. Hope Lutheran church and a charter member of Angelus Chapter No. 322, Order of Eastern Star, Shiloh, Mrs. Stout is survived by her son, John Kaylor, San Antonio, and a brother, Laurin Updike, Los Angeles, Cal.

Her family were early settlers in northern Richland county. Updike road in Plymouth township drew its name from the family.

The Rev. Charles W. Cassel, pastor of her church, conducted last rites from the McQuate Funeral home in Shiloh Sunday at 2 p. m. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

800 boost dinner net profit to $647

About 800 persons were served Saturday night at the fourth annual Mothers' club turkey dinner here.

Gross profit approximated $977 by Monday morning. Net profit will be computed when outstanding bills, estimated at $330, are paid.

A final report will be presented to the club Tuesday in the elementary school.

John Arndt, vocal music instructor, will direct a program "Jack and the Beanstalk." Two films on Ohio will also be shown.

Tea will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Bank authorized to extend loans certified by FHA

Peoples National bank has been certified as a lending institution approved by the Federal Housing Administration to make mortgage loans insured under FHA's programs.

A letter from W. O. Edwards, assistant commissioner, field operations, designating Peoples National bank an "approved mortgagee" has been sent to E. C. Cashman, cashier.

MORTGAGE LOANS insured by FHA are available for the purchase of homes and for the development of rental or cooperative housing projects.

Money for the loans that Peoples National makes under FHA programs comes from its own funds, not from any government funds.

FHA insurance enables lenders to give borrowers more favorable loan terms than might otherwise be possible.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE programs operated by the Federal Housing Administration in cooperation with private lenders have already benefited millions of borrowers. More than four million families have been helped toward home ownership and nearly 700,000 families have been provided homes in rental or cooperative housing projects.

Any person interested in obtaining a FHA-insured mortgage is invited to make application at the bank.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Care-Free Vacation

Vacation - it's one of the happiest words in the English language, and one of the happiest times in your life if you're properly prepared for it.

Cardinal rule for an enjoyable vacation is to foresee the usually unforeseen. Emergencies that catch you unprepared will quickly defile a holiday mood.

Before you leave your home, check any fire or theft hazards: correct faulty wiring, turn off gas and water, disconnect electrical appliances, double-lock windows and doors. Remember to stop deliveries so that milk and newspapers don't pile up on your doorstep - a sure tip-off to burglars and vandals.

Confirm your hotel reservations or other living accommodations en route and at your destination. Bunk up on weather conditions in the places you plan to visit and match your wardrobe to the local temperatures. No matter what your destination, it's always a good idea to take along at least one cardigan sweater and a water-repellent topcoat.

Remember to pack the things most often forgotten: transparent tape, ball point pen and small writing pad, scissors, needles, thread and safety pins. Include a motion sickness preventive such as Bonadettes in your first aid kit. A queasy feeling can strike anyone on any type of transportation. Aspirin, vaseline, iodine and adhesive bandages are standard equipment.

If you are taking a motor trip, be sure your car is in good condition. Don't wait until you're on the road to find you need a grease job, brake adjustment, or tune-up. Check your battery, radiator, tire pressure, wipers and lights, too. Get road maps and study your route before you start.

All prepared? Away you go.

LET'S EXPLORE OHIO

"Crossroad of History"

One hundred and thirty-six years ago, one of Ohio's most illustrious sons was born in this small house at Point Pleasant overlooking the majestic Ohio River about twenty-eight miles upstream from Cincinnati. This salt-box shaped house of an architectural style common to Ohio at that early day was the birthplace of General U. S. Grant, first in general after Washington and 18th President of the United States.

Today this Grant homestead is a popular historical spot that is visited by many thousands of visitors each year. It and the surrounding five acre tract are among the many historical spots maintained by the Ohio Historical Society.

In his youth, Grant's family moved to Georgetown, Ohio, where he grew up as a boy. He was appointed to the United States Military Academy from this Ohio city and went on to fame.

JUST a few years ago the cork life preserver this man is wearing cost $8.60. Today it costs $14.85. It is a simple device, and the reasons for this increase are easy to understand.

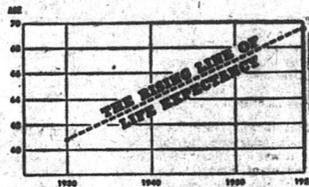

The men in Spain who gather the bark from cork oak trees have had several increases in pay in recent years, as have the crews on ships bringing the cork to America, the men who unload the ships, the transportation people who move the cork to factories, the skilled factory workers who make the life preservers. All these increases in pay added together are the principal reason for the increased cost of the life preserver.

Hospital costs have gone up for the same basic reason. As wage increases have taken place in industry in our community so have they in hospitals, but the effect on hospital costs is much more apparent.

Hospital care is a personal service, rendered according to the needs of the patient. It cannot be mechanized or put on an assembly line. On the average, there are two employees in the hospital for each bed patient. As a result nearly seventy cents of each dollar of hospital cost is for wages and salaries.

True, our hospitals are better "life preservers" than they were even a few years ago. Today they have the most modern scientific equipment, highly skilled people and facilities for health restoring care.

Your Blue Cross contract provides, in accordance with its terms, for payment of the cost of your hospital care. Today's Blue Cross rates are based on hospital costs in past years. It is perfectly apparent that if Blue Cross is to be a better and better "life preserver", its rates must be kept in step with hospital costs.

Your Rising Lifeline

Almost 10 years have been added to the average life span since 1930, because of better health care, due to advances in medical sciences—in the skill and knowledge of your physician—in more and broader hospital service brought within the reach of all the people by Blue Cross.

Consider the turtle

The dedication Saturday of the new Army Reserve center is a milestone in community relations if we are wise enough to recognize it for what it is and to do something about it.

First of all, it is appropriate the center should be named for a young man of Plymouth who gave his life for the republic. To his family, the center will be an everlasting monument to the principles he died for.

It should be that to the community, as well. A soldier hardly ever thinks — and we speak from first-hand experience — of principles and ways of life with death staring him in the face. But they are there, all the same, and we must not lose sight of that fact.

From the looks of some things, we often wonder if those who went Beyond would be happy with the kind of world they died for.

Schools in pitiful shape, the economy seized with inflation, bonded municipal debt at new highs all across the nation (and in some places the credit of the community worth nothing), and a generally widespread attitude of "I-got-mine-how-did-you-do?"

The erection of the reserve center here represents a substantial investment in this area. If the federal government can do it, others can, too.

Elsewhere today, we report how our bank is now empowered to extend loans insured by the FHA. God knows, there are many houses that need remodeling and repair. Many families occupy living quarters of average or below average quality.

The desire to be average is nothing to be proud of. The federal government has advanced in prestige and confidence locally, if we are smart enough to recognize it, because it stuck its neck out. It didn't want to be average.

Consider the turtle. It cannot advance UNLESS it sticks its neck out.

A little more sticking out of the neck hereabouts will result, we feel sure, in progress for all hands.

hand, to collect nuts.

The routine was that the broomstick should be propelled with force into the tree and against the nuts, causing them to fall.

THEN THE MAD RUSH OF HALF A DOZEN small boys for the fruits of the launching. Nuts raining down in half a dozen directions, each to be shucked of its hull before getting at the tan shell with flatiron and ballpeen hammer to extract the meat.

And in buckeye season, we used to tarry on the way to and from school, in the yard of a coal dealer, to pick up the shiny fruit of that useless tree, which the farmer dislikes because its wood is no good, its fruit a nuisance — it leaves poisonous to cattle. Why, pray tell, has Ohio chosen it for its native tree?

Buckeyes were, as John Gould points out, a dandy weapon for slingshot launcher. Many are the girls whose bottoms we have thwacked with the slingshot, which we can now confess was stashed away in Mrs. Haring's barbery bush, because our folks wouldn't tolerate it in the house.

THAT WAS THE SAME BUSH BEHIND which we secreted ourselves to roll up the long-handled underwear we had to wear under our knickers. Sometimes the wind blew off the flats toward the west so hard that we thought we were frozen. But better than to abide the chidings of schoolmates because our legs were covered with the hated long Johns.

The time came, notably in the Bulge in 1945, when we were all-fired glad to be wearing not one nor two pairs of long Johns, but three. And none of them had been washed for a month.

BUT KIDS DON'T DO THESE THINGS any more. We could hardly say, on the spur of the moment, from whence cometh the jingle "Here we go gathering nuts in May." Truth is, we never did see any nuts in May, save the two-legged kind.

And as our Old Man often pointed out, not all the nuts in November were those on trees. For they often could be seen at polls.

in inexperienced hands. Very complex and results in many unexplainable actions. Highly unpredictable — should be watched always."

I don't understand all of it, but Pop laughed like the dickens when I showed it to him.

THIS POEM CAME TO ME some time ago. I didn't use it then, but I forget why. It was written by a lady who is kind of a neighbor to me.

Grandma's Got It Grandma twirls a hula hoop Without one bit of trouble; So all this talk of "over 40" Is just a bit of "rubble". She sways and sways, The hoop goes round and round. She laughs and says it's just a trick To lose an extra pound. We know she's only kidding. So lets give dear Gram a break She's not ready for the wheel-chair,

And she's right there "on the ball"; If she can twirl the hula hoop, She's got what it takes — that's all.

now: United has walked off the job. (The final walk-out was No. 3 in a series.) So has Hannegan Construction Co., Urbana, which holds the contract to complete the sewage disposal plant. Reason: village hasn't paid its bills.

Nub of the matter: Shiloh hasn't sold mortgage revenue bonds. Queried on this point, the village's bonding consultants responded only in general terms, refusing to make for publication any specific observations.

Gist of the replies: "bond market is difficult right now . . . not necessarily any implication a community's credit is no good when mortgage revenue bonds don't sell, may mean the assessments and fees to retire the bonds aren't sound . . . yes, we are a leading house in Ohio on these matters and usually our opinions are accepted by the trade . . . it's impossible to say when the bonds can be sold . . . if you had a million dollars to invest in municipal mortgage revenue bonds, which type of risk would you take, a small town or a large one? . . ."

There was no indication in Shiloh Tuesday of a definite time when the funds would become available.

Meanwhile, with such resources — personnel and financial — as it has available, the village is trying to complete the project. It's keeping close track of its cash outlay, which it intends to collect from the contractors.

John Gould, the Lisbon Falls, Me., editor, whose whimsical commentaries on life Down East amuse and titillate us so, brings to mind in a recent piece the delight of collecting nuts in the autumn of the year.

And while, the other evening, we reflected upon another facet of our youth, when the winds began to blow around the corner of the house and we thanked our lucky stars we were in where it was warm, it struck us that young folks nowadays are missing what was genuine fun in the not-so-bygone past.

IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD, THERE WERE only a few walnuts, and most of those eaten through with worms. But we often sought hickory nuts, which the boy down the street (he is now backfield coach of the Baltimore Colts) used to call pig feet nuts or pignuts.

There stood, perhaps a quarter mile across the field from where we lived, a magnificent shagbark hickory. Just at the edge of a slough left by some long-deceased venture in brick-making, where they had excavated the clay and left this huge ditch, easily 300 yards wide and probably another 500 long.

When the westerly winds plucked the leaves from the tree, the nuts clung in clusters about 50 feet up. It was a real patriarch, one which had robbed us of several kites and hundreds of feet of kite string in summers past.

To this tree we kids would repair on cold afternoons after school, gunny sack slung over the shoulder and sawed-off broomstick in

Always the heart of our business

Why do most drugstores sell everything from breakfast to dance wax . . . ? The answer is simple. It is a matter of economic necessity. Americans, that goodness, are generally healthy and there are not enough prescriptions to keep all drugstores going. Thus, we sell a variety of merchandise. By so doing we are able to stay open and render assistance whenever and wherever it is needed. Prescription service, however, continues to be the heart of our business and we are always pleased to assist you when medication is needed.

On the Sidelines

By THE OLD TIMER

Coach of Gibsonburg's Golden Bears, who whipped the Warriors here Sept. 12 by a 30 to 8 count, Herb Redding has been named Ohio's Class A grid coach of the year. He directed the Gibsonburg entry to a 7-1 season and the championship of the Sandusky Bay conference, despite the fact Gibsonburg is the smallest school in the loop.

Which brings to mind that over the past several seasons schoolboy football in Mary Fate park has brought a number of top coaches here. Berlin Heights' Carroll B. (Snag) Sanders, for whom we've never publicly expressed any deep affection, is one such. Bellville was and is coached by a man whose abilities are widely recognized. He assisted in pre-annual Ohio school boy dream game last season.

COACHES OF THE NORTH Central conference, apparently swayed by the motif in scholastic affairs these days -- we call it "spread the honors", chose 22 players, 11 from the western division and 11 from the eastern half, on the all-loop team for 1958.

Western team: ends Bruce Burnham and Neil Leimbach, Berlin Heights - tackles: Halen Berlin Heights; Pauer, Milanburg; guards: Allen, Berlin Heights; Swartz, Plymouth - center: Keible, Berlin Heights - quarterback: Hoffman, Berlin Heights - halfbacks: Klucas, Townsend - Wakeman; Reer, Berlin Heights; - fullback: Utis, Plymouth.

Eastern team: ends: Bud Halanda, Black River; Wayne Schlauch, Westfield - tackle: Jerry Underwood, Lodi; Duceker, Westfield - guards: John Hanes, Lodi; Rohrer, Seville; center: Boedicker, Seville; - quarterback: Tom Davenport, Black River; - halfback: Noel Davis, Westfield; Armstrong, Seville - fullback: Jim Nicholas, Lodi.

For John Hanes, Lodi's watch-charm guard, it was the second year to be chosen on the all-star team.

Perhaps the most unique performance was that of Plymouth's guard choice, Duane Swartz, who never played a game of football before turning out after the season began to practice with the Plymouth team. It is regrettable this lad is a senior and won't have the opportunity to show his stuff to NCC fans in years to come.

ALL THIS HULLABALOO about coaches shaking hands in the middle of the field brings to mind one such meeting we witnessed years ago.

Fritz Crisler, now athletic director at Michigan, was master of Princeton's Tigers, in the days of Gary LeVan, Kats Kadlec, Homer Spofford and John A. C. Weller. The Tiger clawed all that came before him, including one during a ternoön, the boys from Ithaca, N. Y., coached by Gil Douje.

As he grasped the hand of the Cornell mentor, Crisler said something about "tough luck, too bad," or some such, and added he tried to keep the score down to less than 60. "That's all right, Fritz," said Gil. "You've got a good team, but we still play the students."

As time wore on, Cornell never ascended the heights it had reached in, say, Bart Viano's day. Brud Holland, the great coldest end, made all-American, but that's all. And so far as the O.T. can see, the alumni of Cornell still sing that fantastically beautiful alma mater in full voice, their diplomas still cut the same thick ice they've always cut, and young men and women are turned out of the celebrated institution each June to go into the world, welcome at the doors of industry and the professions, with practically no regard for whether Coach Lefty James has turned out a winner or a loser. You see, Cornell still plays the students.

About TB

This is a scene from the new film, "Are You Positive," designed to entertain while teaching the facts about tuberculosis. It's one of many educational activities of your TB association, financed by the Christmas Seal Sale.

RUSSELL D. BAHR of Shiloh identified the farm of Sam W. Dawson west of Willard. He can have quart of ice cream by calling on R. H. Mack at his grocery here.

Sam Dawson led way in 1928

Hundreds of Plymouth housewives remember Sam W. Dawson, who retailed eggs here for nearly a decade.

But few know where they came from, or that the seller's establishment in Richmond township is a monument to profitable farming.

SAM DAWSON IS IN THE twilight of a productive life now — on Saturday he observes the 52nd anniversary of the taking up of residence on the 84-acre place — but his neighbors can reflect on what he did to make life worth living in Richmond township.

Back in 1928, when shares were being sold in an electricity scheme that would bring electric light to the farmer west of Willard, Sam Dawson bought an extra share. The scheme was short only one share. That additional purchase — "and we couldn't really afford it, but it was my own daddy-in-law who couldn't see buying that share" — swung the deal. Farmers along Route 224 then got electricity.

"No single development in 52 years has meant as much to us in Richmond township as that," asserts the veteran farmer today.

AS A BOY SAM DAWSON was raised on the farm now occupied by the Buckinghams, immediately west of New Haven.

And he became acquainted with the mule. But he never, he insists, acquired an affection for that hybrid.

"The mule will take his own part," laughs Sam Dawson today, "and it's true he's got some sense. But I prefer the horse to the mule."

Horses, two teams of them, comprised the chief source of locomotion on the farm as late as 1927. Then the tractor took over.

"You don't have to pour oats into the manger for the tractor, and it'll go 24 hours a day," explains Mr. Dawson. "That's why the tractor took hold so."

The Dawsons helped to raise a young town boy, Corwin Funk, who did well living with them and working the farm. When he married, he went back to town, for that was how his wife chose to live.

"Not throwing any stones at anybody," observes this long-time agriculturalist, "but if a farmer's wife doesn't like farming he'd better get off the farm."

THERE IS ONE MORE maxim he urges upon farmers: "take care of the land and buildings and they'll take care of you."
