Novelist celebrates Christmas with news her book will be published next spring

Come spring, Plymouth's troupe of writers-for-profit will be increased by one.

Dell Baker Ockerman, a wife and a belle who lives in the hills of Indiana, has written a novel, "The Girl from the Hills," for late spring publication. Come Press, New York.

"It's a genuine novel, a romance," says Mrs. Ockerman, "the story of a girl named Juliana who comes from the hills of Indiana. She has all sorts of things happen to her, and she comes into touch with loads of characters, some of whom, I think, are comical."

SAVE THAT THE NOVEL

Judge says board must pay $40,957 to South-Central

Plymouth Local School district has a moral obligation to pay $40,957 to South-Central Local School district, Richland County Common Pleas Judge, G. E. Kalbfleisch ruled Dec. 17. He specifically absolved members of the Plymouth board of education, the clerk of the board and any employees from pecuniary liability for payment of the obligation. The decision derived from a suit laid by Huron County Prosecutor Bernard Freeman at the request of the South-Central board seeking reimbursement for educational expenses of Shiloh pupils when the old Shiloh district was a part of South-Central, from July 2 to Dec. 11, 1957.

Richland County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz advised the Plymouth board not to pay the debt without a court order.

The way is now clear for the money to be paid. So, says Clerk Evan P. LaPollette in his transmittal letter to the South-Central district, there is a Santa Claus, after all.

covers about eight years of Juliana's life, and that it's set in and around Indianapolis. Mrs. Ockerman says she'll devote to the publication of more formatives.

"I won't do it, but they're putting it in green ink on the margins, and I'd just rather let them handle it from now on."

The galley proofs are expected momentarily. Meanwhile, Mrs. Ockerman and her editors exchange views by long distance telephone.

How does one go about writing a novel? "Well, I'd always read books when I was a girl at home — there are eight children in my family — and about 1949 or 1950 I simply got this notion to write a book and I started on it in '50. It worked hard at it, and I got the coffee and I got it all night, and I sat it side. In 1956 I got it up and I promised myself I'd finish it by the beginning of the year, and I've done it. It's a book me and I've sold it."

MRS. OCKERMAN DOESN'T write easily. She suffers each phrase, now seated at the typewriter striking out and recasting, now pacing the floor with cup of coffee in hand, seeking new flow of word and phrase.

"It's not easy to be a writer," she says, "and I don't know if I am one, yet. I'll tell you better when the book is out."

But, she adds, don't think it's a picnic. To write requires three crafts: the idea, or theme, the development of the theme into words, and the hard, physical job of putting those words on paper.

"Beyond the Hills" ran to over 425 typewritten pages, indicating its length carries to about 87,000 words, "some of which will probably be cut," its pretty author reports.

The Ockermans came here in 1953 because he is employed by a Norwalk construction firm. They were married in 1944, culminating a high school romance.

TO WRITE OF A WOMAN in love and life, doesn't that penetrating story of what she's done for the best? Oh, yes, you've got to study the market, know your audience, and how they will react.

Why do women dress for men, for other women or themselves?

"They certainly don't dress for men, I can tell you that. Most women dress for themselves, and I'd just rather let them handle it from now on."

What's the suggestion of the novel? "It's the completing of a novel akin to grasping a tiger by the tail? Does the novelist have to prove to himself that he can do it again?"

He's sure, but my friends think so. I'll tell you better a little later on. I find myself thinking of plot situations, new characters, new ideas. Perhaps I'll have to set them down soon."

Lionel Wells takes Barberton girl as bride

Mrs. Doris Edwards, organist, and Miss Shirley Evans, soprano, a college chum of Miss Seiberling, presented a pre-nuptial program.

THE BRIDE WORE A gown she designed herself, fashioned in a style in vogue with chapel dress train, full length sleeves, pointed at the wrists, front panel of Chantilly lace over satin floor.

Her finger ring veil of silk tulle, affixed to a pillbox hat, hid her face. Her shoes were of the same material as the top of her gown. She carried a white basket of a bride's bouquet.

The bridesmaids, Lynn Seligman, sisters of the bride, and a maid of honor, were in the same gown. They wore red shoes. The bridesmaids wore in full length, long sleeves, down the back, the sleeves to the wrists, and the skirts to the ankles. They wore red shoes.

Dear Santa Claus,
I would like a walkie-talkie, a sneaky Pete magic set, a pony pom gun, a set of china horses, a set of china skunks.
Thank you
Betsy Packler

May this Christmas Season lift your spirits, warm your heart and bring you untold joy and happiness.

ROBBY'S

Dear Santa Claus,
Bring me a Fanner 50, some caps and a little bag of candy. I help my sister with the dishes, I clean my room and I clean up the back porch.

Gary Bailey

Dear Santa,
I am eight years old. I live on a farm. We have four horses. I have been a good boy. I help my dad feed the horses. Please give me these toys: a new bike, a sled, a rifle, a Lionel train. I don't get much because my daddy bought a new pony. I will leave you some cookies.

Ervin Howard

Dear Santa,
Please bring me a doll and doll buggy, a doll bed and some books and a toy typewriter, too, a toy ice cream machine, a Schwinn bike, a toy stove and baking set and refrigerator, a watch, a make-up kit and sewing machine and play dresses. Don't forget the crippled children.

Alan Trauger

Dear Santa,
I have been very good. I want a Tiny Tears doll and her own car bed, a cowgirl set and guns, a makeup set and jewelry, and a teddy bear. It is snowing in Plymouth. There is a man on TV, he sings a song. There is a dog that barks his name. The name is Bufo. Is he your dog? The man says he is.

Sincerely,
Susan Kennedy
