

Freak garage fire kills 1, seriously burns 2

Worst blaze in Plymouth's 144-year history takes life of 'Rusty' Ross, 63

One man died and two were severely burned Friday morning in the worst fire in Plymouth's 144 year history.

Russell R. Ross, 63, co-proprietor of Ross & Myers auto and tractor repair shop, died in flames, eight feet inside the door of the building at 27 East Main street.

His partner, Haldon G. Myers, 51, and Charles G. Lookabaugh, 66, were burned, the latter the more severely. Myers has burns of the face and hands. Lookabaugh of the face, hands and chest.

The fire and two subsequent explosions erupted at 9:10 a. m. A station wagon belonging to Hugh Washburn, 199 Springmill road, had been raised on a jack to undergo re-lining of its brakes. The jack slipped and the vehicle fell.

THE JACK HANDLE punctured a tub of thinning fluid, whose contents flowed across the floor to a potbellied stove, where they ignited. The flame followed the flow to its source and erupted in a report that was heard 50 yards away. The three men rushed for the door, hung on wheels or dollies sliding on a metal race. Whether in their panic they pushed or pulled the door off its dollies or whether it jammed is unknown. But it could not be opened.

Myers and Lookabaugh made their exit through a window and Ross was trapped by flame and fume near the door. Dr. Charles H. Edel, Huron county coroner, said there is no doubt he died of burns, not a heart ailment, of which he reportedly had been subject.

Plymouth volunteer firemen and Plymouth unit of the 52nd Mobile Support Group, OGD-Corps, fought the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control.

Washburn's car was destroyed. The building was left a shambles and for safety reasons firemen pulled it down later in the day.

BY THIS TIME, LOOKABAUGH had been rushed to Willard in a car driven by Carl M. McPherson. Urged by A. L. Paddock, Jr., to report to a hospital, Myers went to Dr. D. B. Faust, whence he was also taken to Willard, this time in the McQuate ambulance.

The building, and its partner only five yards to the west, had only 10 days before the fire been offered to the village by the owner, Edward O. Ramsey, as a firehouse - municipal building.

Ramsey said the building was insured.

Ross and his partner had been in business there about two years. The dead man was born in Auburn township, Crawford county, July 6, 1895. His wife, Edith; three brothers, Victor, North Fairfield; Keith, Mansfield; and Kenneth, Willard, and two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Holmes, Steuben, and Mrs. Amy Funk, Willard, survive.

A veteran of World War I, Mr. Ross was a quiet and soft spoken man. He never alluded to his feats of bravery with the AEF in France during the 1917-18 struggle, when he participated in the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensives.

His pastor, the Rev. Thomas S. Taylor, conducted the funeral service Monday at 1:30 p. m. from the McQuate Funeral home. Burial was in Greenlawn cemetery.

This sight is what faced firemen 20 minutes after fire broke out Friday morning.

Solons wrestle with fire problems: 2 falls

Dealing almost exclusively with fire protection problems, village council Tuesday night decided to (1) approve its contract with New Haven township, even though its form wasn't what it wanted; (2) investigate whether unusual methods of finance may not be applied to purchase of the old theatre building and (3) declare the north side of North street a fire lane with no parking.

Village Solicitor Joseph F. Dush told the council its contract with New Haven township as proposed would not be legal; the township cannot contract for fire protection on a partial basis — "it's either all of the township or non", he said.

ASSURED BY WILLARD Fire Chief John Jacob that his department would honor a "gentlemen's agreement" to serve that part of the township connected to the Willard telephone exchange the council voted unanimously to authorize signature.

Striking while the iron is hot — and no pun intended — was said to be the best way to "put over" the acquisition of a new fire house.

Land contract purchase, the solicitor said, is either illegal or inadvisable or both. The village simply doesn't have the ready cash. It would need to go to the electorate for the funds to buy any building or erect a new one.

HERE THERE IS A DIVISION of opinion. Councilmen Donald E. Akers and Lowell Keith, joined by Mayor Thurman R. Ford, hold strongly to the line that "the peepul should have their say — then they can't claim we didn't put it up to them." President John T. Dick said he respects the electorate, but he doesn't trust it. "I've lived here all my life," he said, "and we are just about where we started. It's always been a matter of mere maintenance and no capital improvements. Since the water plant

Mrs. Mayme Mayer Bachrach, 74, 105 Mulberry street, died early yesterday in Sheby Memorial hospital of a heart ailment.

She had been ill about two years.

In lieu of flowers, mourners are requested to contribute to the heart fund.

Mrs. Archie Steele, 63, the former Alice Lofland of Plymouth, died in a Phoenix, Ariz. hospital Sunday morning.

The daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ned Lofland, she was born and raised here. The Steeles moved to Arizona 12 years ago because of her health. For the last several years, she had been in a failing condition.

She is survived by her husband; three daughters, Mrs. James Patterson, Rye Beach; Mrs. Warren Foss, Dayton; and Sandra, a college student; three sisters, Mrs. Charles Lookabaugh and Mrs. Carl C. Carnahan of this place and Mrs. Vincent W. Daum, Mansfield; two brothers, Roy and Fred, Ferrysville; and four grandchildren.

Funeral services and burial will be in Phoenix.

H. V. Gutchall, 63, dies suddenly

Henry V. Gutchall, 63, 41 Birchfield street, died suddenly at 1 p. m. Thursday at Wilkins Air Force depot.

In apparent good health, he died of a heart attack.

He had been employed at the depot 16 years.

Born in Cass township Oct. 29, 1895, he lived in this area 30 years, with Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Heuberger for the past 25 years.

He was a member of Veterans of World War I, USA.

Survivors include nieces, nephews, and other relatives.

Funeral services were conducted at the Barkdull Funeral home Saturday at 2 p. m. by the Rev. Thomas S. Taylor, pastor of the Methodist church. Interment was Greenlawn cemetery.

Five join church

The Rev. Moss Rutan received five members into the congregation of the Presbyterian church during the regular worship service Sunday morning. They were Mrs. David Dick, Mitchell Oney, Mr. and Mrs. D. Guy Cunningham, Jr., and Harold Davenport.

Also on Sunday a group composed of Oscar Gowitzka, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brooks, and Alice Armstrong, drove to Galion to observe the Sunday school classes of the First Presbyterian church there.

WANTED: Blood!

Wanted: 35 healthy souls to donate blood to the ARC Bloodmobile at Willard Mar. 11.

Reason: to replace the 35 pints of blood withdrawn from the Willard blood bank annually by Plymouth residents.

Remuneration: nothing save the thanks of the community.

Barton Lydy, chairman of the forthcoming visit of the Bloodmobile, which will stop at the Methodist church from 1 to 7 p. m. Wednesday, says if the bank can "merely replace what Plymouth draws out each year we'll be satisfied."

Persons who may need transportation are invited to call Plymouth 7-5516 after 6:30 p. m.

Medina county schools set up new grid league, killing NCC

Death knell for the North Central conference was sounded in Medina last week when superintendents of schools comprising the Cloverleaf consolidation met with others to organize a Medina county grid league.

It means that Seville, Lodi and Westfield, present participants in NCC, and Black River will withdraw from the league after next season.

Cloverleaf is the result of a five-district consolidation among Seville, Westfield, Lodi, Chatham and Lafayette, all in Medina county.

THE NEW HIGHT SCHOOL, to be financed from a $1.5 million bond issue approved in November, will lie northeast of Lodi. Its occupancy is planned for the beginning of the 1960-61 school year. Its enrollment will be more than sufficient for AA classification, athletically, at least, and Cloverleaf — or whatever more euphonious name may be chosen by the board of education — will be in the same class with Medina and Wadsworth High schools, the two largest in the county.

For the time being, however, the new Medina County Football league will comprise four schools — Brunswick, Highland, Black River and Cloverleaf.

North Central conference was organized in 1955. Its first season was the 1956-57 year, when Plymouth won. Last season Berlin Heights copped the title.

REGARDLESS OF A MAN'S religious affiliation, attendance at the father-son dinner to be staged by the Presbyterian church, Mar. 20 strikes us as a must.

Lou Klewer, who has been engaged as speaker, is an outstanding out-of-doors expert. He works (if you can call it work) for the Toledo Blade as out doors editor. He spends about half his time travelling in far-flung places such as Patagonia and South Africa, so that he can write about hunting and fishing and shooting dogs and such to his thousands of readers.

He knows every hook and cranny of Lake Erie and will hold still for questions of almost any nature save "Where is the best fishing hole in the lake?"

formance of Willard's Crimson Flashes, in defeating Bellevue 64 to 59 and thus wiping out any stigma that may have over-erubing its previous sudden-death win over the up-county five, none of the high school cage teams hereabouts were any shaker in tourney play this year.

Townsend-Wakeman, an in-and-outer most of the year, won the Huron county tourney by downing Monroeville in the finals. The Eagles on paper were several stripes the better. But they don't let you in-

Massively?

Reaction to the suggestion which appeared here last week cannot be accurately described by the adjective "mixed", or "favorable", or "unfavorable".

Rather, it seems to be best characterized by what one blunt, if uncouth, citizen said: "What the hell is he trying to prove? That he's got the education and the gift of gab to head up this committee."

The remark is beneath comment and beneath contempt.

The terrible experience of Friday morning, recorded elsewhere in The Advertiser today, demonstrated beyond question two significant facts:

1. The volunteer fire company is second to nobody in its courage, willingness to take risks and its devotion to duty.
2. Its equipment is so poor that a suburban boy of 14 could outdo with his own playthings what the firemen have to work with.

We saw the energetic Russell Moser attacking the fire with a hose whose nozzle threw out less liquid than the atomizer with which Doc Piller sprays our teeth.

Were it not for mere chance that a platoon of the 52nd Mobile Defense Group, Ohio Civil Defense Corps, is stationed here, much more serious damage could have resulted.

We confess that at one time during the fire we found ourselves wishing the wind would shift so that the firehouse would go up in smoke.

It was, we'll admit, a moment of weakness.

Let nobody think these comments here, now, are intended to emphasize fire protection needs above any other. We frankly do not think they are.

But the stand-patters, the do-nothingers, the sticks-in-the-mud, should n't need to read here that what occurred Friday only proved the basic truth of what we said Tuhrday.

And while we're about it, let's get a couple of facts straight:

1. The management of this newspaper has NEVER acted for itself alone. Whatever suggestions and recommendations emanated were, as anybody save a fool knows, for the purpose of improving deplorable conditions.
2. Such success as the management has achieved in making suggestions (success which it measures by the extent of their adoption, however limited that may have been) has been subverted somewhat by the arrogation of control of the projects to some whose interests are less sincere, whose skills less adequate and whose results less effective.

When all of us learn that personal pride must come behind community service, then — and only then — will we obtain some measure of the rightful goals we should long ago have set for ourselves.

The powers-that-be (and we honestly admit that, after half a generation of making a darned good living of putting our finger on who-runs-what-and-why-and-for-how-much, in half a dozen languages and on all seven continents of the world, we don't know who they are in Plymouth, nor how they operate, nor the source of their power) have got to realize that the problem can't be attacked piecemeal. We've let things go too long!

Massive attack, we submit, is what is called for. Without it, and pretty soon, Plymouth will become, for all practical purposes, a ghost town.

If you disbelieve it, ask the business community what's happened to profits the last six months.

Suzie sez

How do you get your picture printed on the front page?

That question was asked of me last week. I went to the boss and asked him. This is what he told me:

1. Do something that will cause him to put your picture there whether good or bad. Only it has to be very good but not so bad. He says this is because when somebody does something bad, even a little bit bad, people want to see what he looks like.
2. Have your picture taken so it is either full face looking straight out or turned to the right. This is so that the picture when printed on page one, which is a right hand page, won't be looking off the page. It can be displayed, which means printed, almost anywhere on the page. Finicky newspaper editors, like the boss, don't like to have a picture of a person looking off the page.
3. Supply a good black-and-white glossy two inch by three inch picture to the editor well in advance of the day when he needs it. It will be kept in the morgue, which is what the newspaper calls the place where it keeps pictures.

A HOLY GATHERING, George says, is a minister's pimple.

WHEN YOU HAVE WRITTEN a column every week for several months, sometimes you are pinched for ideas. This is where the exchange comes in. The columnist reads other papers, magazines, and such, and he "lifts" what he thinks is all right for his weekly piece.

The practice isn't bad, because some of the stuff that you see is interesting. But it doesn't make you think any more of the column you stole it from when you find out he in turn stole it.

I caught my friend Walt Shockey of Liberty Center in this last week. I read his column faithfully. I used to think he thought up all that stuff himself.

But not any more.

POP IS TEACHING CHIP and me to do something like the boys in the Coast Guard academy at New London, Conn. When they are asked, "Sir, what is a cow?" they have to stand straight, hold the chin in, and say a long, funny thing about what a cow is.

Well, Pop is pushing another thing. When he says, "Kids, how old is your Old Man?", we are supposed to answer, "Sir, my father has reached the age when noise and non-concurrence cause gastric hyperperistalsis, hyper-secretion of hydrochloric acid and rubus of the gastric mucosa, and HE BECOMES EXTREMELY UNPLEASANT!" (You are supposed to shout this last part.)

I am not sure I have spelled these hard words right, but I am sure you get what I mean.

Shirley Berberick wed in rites in New Haven church Feb. 21

New Haven Methodist church was the scene of the late-winter wedding of Shirley Berberick, daughter of the Neil Slessmans of New Haven, to Edward Heckman, son of the Cecil Smiths of that place.

The Rev. James Magaw, pastor of the church, read the vows at 5:30 p.m. Feb. 21 before the candle-lit-chancel decorated with white gladioli.

Mrs. Frank Smith, aunt of the bride, was organist. Nevin Border, Plymouth, was soloist.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE BY her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of pink lace over net, set off with pink sequined headpiece and lace mitts. A hand carved cameo belonging to the bridegroom's great-grandmother and a single strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom, were her only jewelry.

She carried her sister's white Bible, topped with a white orchid and festooned with ivy and white satin streamers.

Miss Joanne Smith, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant, in a blue lace-over-satin gown with satin trim, satin bow headpiece and lace mitts. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Ralph McKelvey, friend of the bridegroom, was best man. Raymond Slessman ushered.

Candles in the seven-branched candelabra were lighted by the bride's brother and sister, Raymond and Inez Slessman.

A 1954 GRADUATE OF New Haven High school, the bride is employed in the offices of R. R. Donnelley & Sons, Willard. Mr. Heckman is a 1952 graduate of New Haven High school. He attended Heidelberg college, Tiffin, served two years in the U.S. Navy, and is now employed by Fisher Body division of General Motors Corp., Mansfield.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Her sisters-in-law, Mrs. Cloyce Slessman and Mrs. Duane Slessman, and Mrs. Erbing Coy, a neighbor, assisted. Inez Slessman registered guests in the bridal book.

Mrs. McKelvey served the wedding cake.

Mrs. Slessman watched from the front pew during the double ring service, attired in pink lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Smith wore blue lace with matching accessories. Both wore pink carnation corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Heckman

Miss Evans elopes with Mr. Steele

Miss Carol Anne Evans, elder daughter of the Roy Evanses, Plymouth route 1, became the bride of Denton R. Steele at Angola, Ind., Feb. 21.

The bridegroom is the son of the Floyd Steeles, 77 Plymouth street.

A graduate of Plymouth High school with the Class of 1956, the bride attended Mansfield General hospital school of nursing. She is now employed by Willard Municipal hospital.

Mr. Steele, a graduate of Plymouth High school in 1951, served in the armed forces two years and is now employed by R. R. Donnelley & Sons, Willard.

The Steeles have occupied the Lindauer apartment at 108 West Broadway.

ELLEN McKown, daughter of the John T. McKowns, Plymouth route 1, will be capped as a student nurse in special ceremonies Sunday at 3 p.m. in Providence hospital Sandusky.

A 1957 graduate of Plymouth High school, Miss McKown has now completed her probationary service.

While a high school pupil, she served as a cheerleader and was Homecoming queen in 1956.

Why all the red tape?

You can understand why we don't sell narcotics without a physician's prescription. But maybe you've wondered why we're so fussy about other things... like penicillin, sleeping pills, the new tranquilizers. These potent medications are called "legend drugs" and you have to have a prescription to get them. Reason: Uncontrolled use may do more harm than good. Only your physician knows whether you should use them or not—and, if so, just how much. So we require a prescription. It's a matter of professional ethics and the law. Always it's common sense.

Jelly bean business is hurt by dentists

Times, say the retailers of jelly beans, the traditional Easter confection, have changed.

It used to be that the plebeian jelly bean, confection of sugar, corn syrup, starch, natural and artificial flavor and colors and confectioners' glaze, was a big seller during the Lenten season.

Not so nowadays, says Russell J. Crispin, who speaks from more than 30 years of experience.

"Jelly beans have encountered some resistance in the market, some of it due to suggestions by dentists that candy isn't good for children's teeth. Children see dentists a lot more often nowadays than they used to 30 years ago — every school has a dentist who comes in every so often — and dentists' recommendations carry some weight," the veteran popular-priced candy merchant says.

"Then, too, the advance in price of candies, whether jelly beans or chocolate or whatever, has pushed youngsters out of the market. A kid with a dime just can't buy a package of jelly beans any more — it costs at least 29 or 30 cents."

ANOTHER DEVELOPMENT, says Mr. Crispin, that has affected the sale of jelly beans in popular-price stores such as his own is the growth of the super market, "which sells everything, including garden tractors." Candies that used to be sold almost exclusively in stores of his type are now available in super markets, drug stores, service stations and such.

The loss by popular-price stores is, however, the gain of the world's premier manufacturer of popular-price candies, E. J. Brach & Sons, Chicago, Ill., which monopolizes the local market.

Feature of its line this season is a one-pound package of mixed jelly beans, running 148 beans to the mixture, with only 31 of them black.

It sells for 29 cents retail.

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO the black jelly bean?

"It used to be that the only time you could get them," responds Mr. Crispin, "was at Halloween. Now they're marketing them at Easter, too."

In bulk, 148 of the little licorice delicacies will cost you 30 cents, this season.

The Brach firm, built up to its eminence by Emil Brach, has joined forces with Walt Disney to promote its line this season. Bugs Bunny, personification to youngsters of 1959 of the Easter rabbit, appears on promotional material for the firm.

He's an integral part of the company's full-page multi-color advertisement in Life magazine next week.

The firm has pioneered in a change of nomenclature. What were for many years called "jelly beans" are now, officially —

Bugs Bunny has lined up — for a price — to sell.

JELLY BEANS
ally at least, called "jelly bird eggs".
WHY DID THEY ANSWER to "beans" for so long? "Well," says the Brach firm, "they were shaped like beans." And how come the change? "Well," is the answer, "they got to be used in baskets which the Easter bunny" is supposed to have left. Even little kids know bunnies don't lay eggs, and they were beginning to think of the jelly beans as something else a rabbit might leave in its nest. So the trade has devised the technique of calling them "bird eggs" -- after all look in a nest, and you'll find eggs, normally. And nests such as another trade promotes at Easter look more like birds' nests than anything else."

Sounds reasonable, observed the reporter.
But there's still no similar explanation for why kids don't like jelly beans as they did 30 years ago.
