Riggles unhurt, car crash kills infants

A former Plymouth man and his two sons narrowly escaped injury or death Saturday in a two-car collision in Route 4 near Sandusky that took the lives of two children.

Clarence E. Riggles, 42, formerly of Route 178 east, now living at 3615 Hayes avenue, Sandusky, and his sons, Malcolm and Gerald, were riding in the Riggles sedan when it collided with another driven by Jerry Lee Corkins, 25, Toledo.

Corkins' two children, Debra, five, and Christopher, seven months, were thrown from the vehicle to the pavement. They died of the injuries.

State highway patrolmen said Riggles told them he saw the Corkins car stop at the Bogard road intersection and then proceed into Route 4 in front of him.

Corkins was summoned for failure to yield the right of way.

He is also survived by his wife, two daughters, three sons, two sisters; an other brother, 11 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Funeral services are today in Defiance.

Special board meeting Friday to deal with school site petition, Markley says

Whether to approve a $750,000 high school bond issue is the question voters of Plymouth school district will decide Tuesday in a tension-charged election.

It's the only question on the ballot.

The bond issue as it's presented on the ballot calls for sale of bonds totalling $330,000. State aid in the amount of $220,800 has been promised. The district would pay it back at the rate of half a mill a year for 23 years.

A 13-room facility would be constructed on land belonging to Leo Barnes at the southeast edge of Plymouth, in Richland county.

As voters tried to make up their minds, in the final few days before the balloting were these efforts to change them:

1. A stinging reprimand of the Plymouth Board of Education by its immediate superior, the Richland county board, charging bad faith in the selection of the school site.

2. Petitions in circulation seeking 630 signatures prior to tomorrow, requesting the Board of Education to change the site location to the Kessler site in Route 178.

3. Option on the Marvin Kessler site by Arlo W. Firestone, veteran Shiloh banker-realtor, to buy at $6,000 (he said he paid $50 for the option).

4. Opponents of the issue circulating a letter to all districts urging them to call it "pittfalls of state aid" and shortcomings of the current issue.

5. A vocal if not strong numerically segment plumping for resumption of the Huron Valley consolidation, in view of two crucial developments there. The Huron Valley board of education turned down a referendum petition seeking annexation with Willard because of insufficient valid signatures. A petition to transfer less than 130 acres from the Huron Valley district, Huron county, to Crawford county, apparently was received a few days before and will take precedence on the ballot.

"IT WOULD INVOLVE, probably, a transfer by Huron Valley to Richland county, which would then give this area the balance of power and we could vote to go right back in Huron county in a year," one of this group said.

The rebuke, written by Dale B. Kinney, county superintendent, who is also clerk of the county board, incensed three members of the Plymouth board who live in the western end of the district — Judson A. Morrison, Donald P. Mark-ley and Haldon Cheesman.

They said they acknowledge the right of the county board to "reprimand, praise or do anything they darned well please to us" but they charged the county board with an effort to "influence the election by coercion".

It was difficult for impartial bystanders to see how this was so: the county board did not publicize its letter. It leaked out only when the irate Plymouth board members revealed it.

Nevertheless, as an example of how the county board has sought — and President Donald P. Markley revealed a file of letters addressed to him over the past year or so by Kinney, strongly suggesting how the Plymouth board ought to act to please the county board — to influence the local board, (and the board says high-handedly) the letter was a prime exhibit.

There was no question of the legality of the county board's action. Not this time, anyway. But the Plymouth board members and their supporters strongly questioned the ethic of the county board.

The petitions calling for the local board to reconsider the site location would, President Donald P. Markley said, require 630 valid signatures to compel the board to call a special meeting.

Do You Want This ?

or this ?

Most of us hope that our children could have better opportunities in education than we had, even as we were given privileges that our parents did not enjoy.

This is the story of American progress.

We continually provide more for young people in the material sense. But what kind of educational heritage and environment are we providing on the basis of the Golden Rule? Difference of opinion is healthy. But blind hatreds deriving from prejudices serve us nothing.

The best way is not always the cheapest, the quickest, or the most convenient.

A new high school will provide the patrons of the Plymouth district a common ground for mutual understanding and the best educational plant that we can afford.

We can continue to live in a Satanic atmosphere or we can strive for Christian charity.

On the Sidelines

By THE OLD TIMER

This must certainly be reckoned as the best year in athletics ever recorded in Plymouth.

The dismal football season aside, it is worth recording again that the basketball squad won the Richland county league, even if it did choke up in the county tourney, and the baseball squad, after a poor start, won the county tournament in first class style.

Another wide and widely read scriener remarked Sunday that high school sports in his town, has taken a downward turn because of lack of desire to excel.

And this may come as a blow to the athletes whose records we praise herein, but the O. T. isn't impressed with any desire to excel locally, either.

We don't see boys practicing long after the coach has gone home. We don't see players hoofing it home at a trot to build wind and limb; rather, they ride in cars.

Athletics has become big business in Plymouth High school. Its expenditures exceed those of any program save teacher salaries. Its revenues are larger than any program save the cafeteria.

Only this season steps were taken to insure that it will grow to even bigger business. The gymnasium was prepared so that more money can be taken in.

And if the bond issue is approved Tuesday, a new gymnasium will be constructed. It won't have any bleachers in it — the hat'll doubtless be passed for that — but it'll be bigger and grander than anything in the county.

Despite the general notion hereabouts that by growing big a businessman deserves to be hated, there is no objection here to the growth of sports in the high school.

But speaking as one who supports the program (he pays his way into every game he attends, spends good money to give the contests adequate — adequate, hell, best in the county — coverage and digs in his jeans to help out when the need is apparent) the O. T. thinks he has a right to demand desire to excel.

When he doesn't see it, he blames the player, the coach, the administration, and the parent.

Lack of desire to excel is what led us to Pearl Harbor, to Panmunjon, to the gates of Berlin.

Need we say more?

VOTE AGAINST THE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE TUESDAY, MAY 5TH

The bait is State Aid ($220,000 worth if it ever materializes), step No. 1 of 38 steps is the May 5th bond issue. We are asked to bond ourselves to the limit of our valuation to qualify for this State Aid and the strings that go with it. Other schools have been struggling through the 38 steps for the past four years, only two are approaching the construction stage. The result will be, they say, a complete new High School just adequate for our needs today, overcrowding will begin the following year with no more funds available.

Approximately $300,000 will be spent in duplicating facilities which we already have, land, water, gas, sewage, gymnasium, etc. The amount of money which must be wasted under State Aid is more than the State provides, and which is definitely not a gift. We will repay the State, over the next 23 years, at least $96,600 and probably more. This is one gift horse that must be looked in the mouth.

Why argue over a school site? We have the ideal school sites already, both in Plymouth and Shiloh. The logical High School site is at the present Plymouth High School, the need is only for additional class rooms that can be built there at a minimum cost. Extra land is available there if needed, at but a fraction of the cost of the proposed new site. There would be funds enough for a new grade school in Shiloh which is sorely needed, and the tax bill would be less than the State Aid bond issue would cost.

We urge you to read carefully the letter (unsigned) from the Richland County School Board to the members of the Plymouth Board of Education. This latest example of high-handedness from the County Board should stir every citizen of the Plymouth School District to vote AGAINST the May 5th bond issue so that we may implement, in the fall, alternate plan A. We strongly suspect that the main interest of the Richland County Board is to have a new High School constructed in Richland County instead of at the present Huron County site. Such a move, it must feel, would forestall any future likelihood of a bigger consolidation with adjoining Huron County school districts.

This is the same County Board that once cooperated with Plymouth in establishing the Huron Valley consoli-ation, one of the smoothest working consolidations that had ever been created. Through a legal technicality, this County Board had a chance to second-guess its action, and refused the second time to give us a chance to reestablish the Huron Valley consolidation. It then chose to annex (not merge) the Shiloh district to the Plymouth district. Instead of solving any problems, it created more.

We now have the prospect of a special interest group petitioning the Plymouth Board to change the site to an even more improbable location, well beyond reach of water, gas and sewer facilities, with no fire protection. We oppose any site other than the present, existing school sites. Under Alternate Plan A, Shiloh would gain a new grade school equal in value to the added class rooms in Plymouth. This is the community pride issue touched or in the County Board letter. How can three-quarters of a million dollars spent midway between Shiloh and Plymouth add or detract from either town? We can do a better job investing roughly a fourth of a million in each town, where value is definitely added to each, and save the other fourth of a million, which need not be spent at all.

We also have the prospect of the architects electioneering for the May 5th bond issue. Their concern with Plymouth schools is wholly monetary—the bigger the expenditure, the bigger their fee. We question their ethics in this case since the May 5th bond issue is only the first, and least desirable, of several plans to be offered to voters of Plymouth School district.

Don't yield to County Board pressure and special interest groups. Be practical and consider the waste of money involved in a completely new High School. Consider the maintenance and operating costs. An operating levy will surely follow the construction of a complete new school. Let us conserve our money and spend it wisely on physical facilities, build what we need and use what we have. What's left will go toward expanded educational programs and better salaries for our teachers, who, after all, with the courses they teach, make the school. Not the physical plant.

Plymouth Local Board of Education
Plymouth, Ohio

Gentlemen:

At the April 20th meeting of the Richland County Board of Education, the motion was made by Mrs. Willson and seconded by Mr. Blaney that copies of the following letter be sent to the Plymouth Local Board of Education. Vote: Yeas; Willson, Lantz, Blaney, and Cashell. Absent: Culler.

The recent decision of the Plymouth Local Board of Education in selecting the Barnes property as the proposed site for a high school building, has caused grave concern on the part of many district residents. The Richland County Board shares that concern inasmuch as the educational future of the children of the district is being jeopardized by being subordinated to community pride. And to what purpose? Without the children, there is no need for a building! A persistent refusal to objectively consider the school needs of the district, to treat as equally as possible the convenience and desires of the district residents as a whole can lead to but one end -- a defeat, not only of the proposal to be voted upon May 5, but to subsequent and less worthy proposals at later elections. Meanwhile the number of school-age children keeps increasing, and the bitterness and frustration intensifies.

We are continually observing, in nearby communities, the fruits of the battle for supremacy of wills -- makeshift organizational arrangements, continuing substandard housing, and a rapidly declining interest in, or concern for, the institution that has made this country strong -- the public school system! Is this to be the fate of the Plymouth School District?

In justification of the above comments, the following statements are submitted:

1. The sole purpose in combining the two districts was to form a single district that -- by state minimum standards, (240 H.S. pupils, $5,000,000 valuation) could more ably provide an adequate educational program in standard facilities. (Combined Plymouth district -- 300 H.S. pupils, $7,823,000.)
2. The statement has been made a number of times during the past year by members of your board that the district valuation is insufficient to provide adequate school building. Yet, when the opportunity presents itself for securing state funds to provide a complete high school unit, a tentative site is picked that is more expensive, less adaptable, and too controversial to have much chance of success.
3. The site selected was not seriously considered by the board's appointed site committee. This action leads to one of two conclusions: a. Your board lacked faith in the judgment of the committee it appointed, or b. In view of the stated opposition of the majority of board members, this site was chosen with the probable defeat of the bond issue in mind.
4. The purpose of Dr. Gee's survey was to obtain an objective view of the educational needs of the enlarged district and to recommend a solution to the problem. The objective was not to build up one community and tear down another, and his recommendation to build a new senior high school center in 'the general vicinity of the center of the population somewhere between the Shiloh and Plymouth communities' gave due consideration to such factors as the density of population, distances, and community acceptance.
5. It is granted that the education of the children depends almost entirely upon the facilities and quality of instruction provided, and only slightly upon the location of the facilities. However, the fact that the location may well determine whether or not the two important factors will be provided, makes a wise selection of site vitally important.
6. The individual board member's responsibility both as a representative of the electors of the entire district, and in view of the oath of office taken is to "faithfully and impartially discharge my (his) duties to the best of my (his) ability." This, the board member should do as long as he continues to serve. Any other course of action will not provide the unity necessary for a strong and efficient local school district, but only widen the chasm created by mistrust and unrelenting prejudice. Any other position is untenable and indefensible.

Sincerely,

Helen Willson

Big Red overcomes Bellville to win county diamond crown

The easy way to do it, says Coach West Virginia Bill Fleherly, is to take an early lead and improve it.

Which was what his Big Red baseballers did under the lights of Liberty park, Mansfield, Apr. 22 in winning the 1959 Richland county spring diamond crown.

Behind six-hit, effective hurling by Steve Patterson, Plymouth romped to a 6 to 2 decision over the Jays.

THE WINNERS GOT ONE in the first, a trio in the second and another in the third.

Bellville stormed back in the sixth, loading the sacks with one out, but couldn't score.

And the Jays repeated this effort in the final frame, with the same results.

Patterson passed six and fanned eight. His opponent, Dick Gehrisch, did as well, almost, but lacked sound support.

PLYMOUTH WAS TO have played Thro. Crawford county champs, in the sectional round at North Robinson yesterday afternoon.

Attica speedway to open Sunday with eight events

Many of northern Ohio's leading drivers are expected to be on hand when the Attica Speedway opens its 1959 straight stock auto racing season Sunday afternoon.

Opening event on the eight or nine-race program will start at 2:30 p.m., following time trials at 1 p.m.

Among drivers expected to compete on the fast three-eighths mile dirt track this season are such standouts as Mansfield's Doug Amstutz, Jack Morris, Paul Baumhauer, and E. L. Finley; Millersburg's Gene Mizier and Ashland's George Huzzard.

Promoter Bob Otto said weekly straight stock events will be held each Sunday afternoon at the Attica track until weather permits a switch to regular Friday night racing.

Racing at the Attica track will be run under the same rules and regulations as Ashland Ash-Fair Speedway that attracted 80-car fields and record-breaking attendances last year.

Purses will be based upon 40 percent of gate receipts.

Attica Speedway is located near the junction of Route 4 and US 224, on the Attica fair grounds.

By THE OLD TIMER

Those of us who enjoy a brew with our shoes off while we watch a bout of pugilism have another opportunity tomorrow.

It's billed as the world's heavyweight championship. Which is what it may be. But the defender, Floyd Patterson, never impressed us, and his opposition since he belted old Archie Moore out of contention has been of the set-up variety.

Tommy Jackson was a humpty-dumpty, now, so bately he isn't responsible. Pete Rademacher never had fought a professional fight, yet he put Patterson down a couple of times. Roy Harris made a lot of newspaper copy, since he came from Cut-and-Shoot, Tex., where they don't wear shoes, but he couldn't sock his way out of a wet paper sack.

Brian London is of the same stripe. Matter of fact, save for Tommy Farr, the wallowing Welshman, who even as London came here under suspension by the British Boxing association to fight Joe "Loo-ey" (and nearly won it), no British heavyweight has been worth a darn for two generations.

Remember Phlounderer Phil Scott, who yelled "phoul!" against Jack Sharkey? It'll be a foregone conclusion tomorrow that Patterson will win it. Probably cut the man (?) down in six heats.

So take two cans to the tee-vee room, and don't pop out for a refill. You're apt to miss all the excitement.

Mrs. Shepherd dies

Mrs. Nell B. Shepherd, 74, was found dead in her bed at her home, 71 Trux street, early Saturday.

Born Isabel Burch at Greenwich, she was the widow of Rudy Rader before her marriage to Mr. Shepherd.

She lived here 19 years. For much of the time, she operated Rader's Peppermint, a small household business specializing in the preparation and marketing of a stomachic.

Three sons, Paul and Rudy Rader, Shiloh, and Walter Rader, Columbus, and a daughter, Mrs. Elden Kaylor, Saginaw, Mich., also survive.

A service was conducted in McQuate Funeral home Monday at 2 p.m. by the Rev. W. L. Margard, pastor of Crestline's Calvary Reformed church.

Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Shiloh.

Glenn Bloom dies in Shelby hospital

Brother of Frank and cousin of Chester Bloom of Shiloh, Glenn C. Bloom, 53, died in Shelby Memorial hospital Thursday after a brief illness.

He owned and operated a typewriter and office supply store there. Until the recent political change, he was deputy registrar of motor vehicles in Shelby, having been an active Republican most of his life.

For 15 years he was a representative in Toronto, Canada, of an American typewriter manufacturer.

His parents, the S. Jay Blooms, Shelby, and another brother, John, Shelby, and a sister, Mrs. Thurlow Miller, Shelby, survive.

Last rites were conducted Saturday by the Rev. Maynard G. Oesterle, with burial in Oakland cemetery.

His parents, the Elmer Champions, Shelby, three brothers, William, James and Rodney; three sisters, Ida, Mary and Linda, and his paternal grandparents, the Floyd Champions, Shelby route 3, also survive.

Graveside services were conducted Friday in Hannah cemetery near Tiro.

George Cole found dead by own hand

Found Apr. 22 in his car by neighbors summoned by his ailing wife, George W. Cole, 70, Skinner road, New Haven township, was adjudged to have taken his own life by Huron County Coroner Dr. Charles Edel. Death was caused by carbon monoxide gas poisoning.

His wife, Bessie, a son, Robert, New Haven township, two daughters, Mrs. Mark Keller, Shelby, and Lenora, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Lois Moore, Willard, survive.

The Rev. James Magnaw, pastor of New Haven Methodist church, conducted last rites Saturday at 2 p.m. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven.

A farmer of wide repute, Mr. Cole had lately been hospitalized at Shelby.

Mrs. Cole noted he was tardy for lunch and summoned her daughter-in-law and a neighbor, Joe Rosenberry, who found the body. A hose had been led from the exhaust pipe of the family sedan into its interior, where Mr. Cole was sitting.

POP SAYS HE IS A PERFECT EXAMPLE of what this world is coming to.
 He says he wears an expensive wrist watch, his desk and his office are covered with calendars, and he owns probably 15 pens. But he never knows what time it is, nor hardly ever has the day and month. And he has to scurry around more than half the time to find something to write with. Or no.
A MAN I KNOW TOLD HIS wife to expect a package by mail. What would be in it, she wanted to know. A new sport coat, he said, that he bought in the city. Where and when would he ever wear a new sport coat, she asked.
 He said he intended to wear it to please himself. Maybe he would wear it around the living room and maybe into the john, where nobody would ever see it on him. But he was — he pleased. He said he going to wear it to suit himself washes his face, shaves his beard and changes socks and underwear not to suit anybody but himself.
 So Pop isn't so different after all. Man has to practically beat him on the head to change his clothes.
 And Pop says this just shows that man is superior to woman. Women wear clothes, outside and inside, for others to see. Even if they can only see it in their minds' eyes.
ONCE A MONTH THERE is a magazine that comes in and Pop latches on to it first. Then he makes me and Chip sit down and answer the word definitions in the vocabulary test. Use a word three times, Pop says, and it is yours. It works, too, because we just took the Iowa achievement tests and did better on vocabulary.
 Well, to get excellent in this magazine's test, you have to get all 20 of them right. Up until this month. Now, Pop read to us, you can get excellent if only 18 are answered right.
 To settle for less than perfect, Pop says, is a sign of going to pot. But I wish he wouldn't be so sticky about being perfect. He's not.
 (Ed. Note: Too true, dear child. But trying to be that way is in a fine tradition. Look in your Bible, where it says, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as . . .")

Operetta reviewer calls for more of it

BY BROOKS WATTS
 A refreshing departure from the norm was presented in Plymouth Elementary school auditorium Friday night before a mere handful of parents and friends. The city's first attendance was so small, for the operetta was staged and sung in convincing fashion.
 Credit should go to John Arndt, the vocal music instructor who cast and directed "Mulligan's Magic" and to the sixth and fifth grade pupils who took major roles in the one-act production for unchanged voices.
 This reviewer was captivated by the presentations of Martha Carter, Sherry Deveny and Raymond L. Fidler, particularly, although there were others that were much more than passable.
THESE YOUNGSTERS showed poise and ability to project themselves. Their voices are, true, unchanged. But we are willing to wager when the change comes, it will not diminish the winsome charm of any of them. Miss Carter was a perfect ingenue. She has a way with her that the reviewer has remarked upon before, privately perhaps, but no less sincerely.
 Miss Deveny's voice and manner are those of a juvenile Ethel Merman. She belts a number convincingly.
 Young Fidler, as Pete the Detective had, it is true, lines to say and sing that were especially suitable to his personality, which proves the director knew his job. But he also sings never.
 The acoustics of the auditorium are poor. For voices of such undeveloped volume, they were particularly difficult. Which explains why a couple of duets didn't come off so well.

SLUMP, SUNG BY CHIP Paddock, and Mulligan, sung by David McQuown, would have received an "A" from this reviewer against less worthy competition.
 Such efforts as this should be more frequent and certainly supported more substantially.
 We had rather see and hear a production of this nature, whether by unchanged voices or changed ones, than the puerile farces which many high school and church groups present as money raisers.
