

OLD BRICK MANSE was remodeled, now consists of modern, ranch-style quarters which will be formally dedicated June 6 with open house.

New $17,000 manse of First Presbyterian church will be formally dedicated in special ceremonies at the church at 2-30 p.m. June 7.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Roach, executive secretary of the Presbyterian Synod of Ohio, will speak.

The manse at 32 East High street was remodelled by volunteer, donated labor into a three-bedroom, living, dining, study, kitchen and bath on one floor. The basement has been attractively fitted into a recreation room and laundry and storage chamber.

A tour of the new manse and open house will follow the ceremonies, the pastor, the Rev. Moss Rutan, announces.

The house presently occupied by the minister and his family, formerly the home of William Wechter, was conveyed to the church by his will.

It consists of a 59x65 foot plot with modern two-bedroom house. It will be sold by the trustees as soon as clear title clears through the Richland county probate court.

Clerk of the session said this week, "In behalf of the minister and the congregation, I wish to extend public thanks to the many friends whose labor, time, effort and support made this project possible. They are too numerous to mention thus, but we want them to know we appreciate their services very much indeed."

The wife of Sunbow Hall, she is said to have muled funds totalling $3,000 from the Blue Shield insurance plan by forging the names of two Willard physicians and two Plymouth doctors to false reports of surgery performed in Willard Municipal hospital.

Mrs. Hall, according to Huron county sheriff's deputies, obtained encyclopedias so that she could study medical terms. Then she stole the application forms and prepared the claims.

Come early, says publisher, photos of kids in color to be made Monday

Color pictures to be featured in newspaper later, he asserts

Monday is the big day for children to have their pictures taken in natural color for publication in the "Kids of the Week" series, a forthcoming feature of The Advertiser.

Photographs will be taken by Richard Blosser, Findlay, in The Advertiser from 1 to 7 p. m.

No parents are under any obligation to buy pictures or to pay for having the pictures taken and published in The Advertiser. All will be given the opportunity to buy if they so desire. The prices for color portraits are low. "Since children are small for only a short while, we feel that a series of pictures as they are this week will prove interesting in the future both to them, and to those interested in the future of our community," the publisher says.

tograph will be printed in The Advertiser. Copies will be available at the office after publication in the event additional papers are wanted for friends and relatives.

"There are absolutely no strings to this offer. Everyone is invited. It's FREE! We hope everyone will participate. Remember the date and tell your friends!" the publisher concludes.

World War II chaplain to talk in Memorial day rites here

Merlin C. Probst, a World War II chaplain who is now teaching school, will present the annual Memorial day address in Greenlawn cemetery Saturday as Plymouth joins the nation in honoring those who gave up their lives in defense of the republic.

A parade — this year it will start later than usual, owing to the necessity of sharing the high school band with Shiloh — will form in West Broadway at 10:30 a.m.

Led by Police Chief Robert L. Meiser as marshal, the parade will march south in Plymouth street to the cemetery, in time for services at 11 a.m.

Usual Boy Scout, Cub Scout, Girl Scout and Brownie Scout representation will join with the American Legion and auxiliary contingent, Plymouth unit of the Ohio Civil Defense corps, and the high school band.

Invocation and benediction will be by the Rev. Robert F. Hall, pastor of First Evangelical Lutheran church.

Glenn Haas, first vice-commander of Ehret-Parrel Post, American Legion, will be master of ceremonies.

MEMBERS OF ESTHER Taylor Bricker, Tent 87, Daughters of Union Veterans, will lay wreaths at the flag pole in memory of veterans.

Taps will be sounded and a Legion firing squad will sound the volley of respect.

Richland county commissioners have approved an appropriation of $50 to the local Post of the Legion to pay for flags with which to decorate veterans' graves.

The Rev. Mr. Probst entered the military service as a chaplain from Bowling Green. He is a graduate of Greenville college in Illinois and of Bowling Green State university. He studied in Oberlin college's school of theology and holds the master of arts degree in education from Ohio State university.

For a year prior to his military service, he was assistant director of boys' work at Rebecca Williams Community house, Warren.

During World War II, assigned to combat engineers of the 26th Infantry division, he spent 22 months in the European theatre, principally assigned to the Third Army commanded by the late Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

School meeting generates heat, Plymouth made 'whipping boy'

Back in 1915, General Ferdinand Foch said of the advancing German hordes, "Is ne passeront" (They shall not pass).

His words electrified the French people — and later the Allies — and World War I was won, at least on the battlefield by those whom he exhorted.

Spokesmen for residents of the old Shiloh school district, told the Richland county school board Monday night they will pursue the same doctrine as regards efforts to pass bond issues as recommended in the Plymouth board's Plan A, or B, or C.

"They shall not pass", these spokesmen said, will be the attitude of Shiloh's balance of political power on any bond issue unless it provides for a new high school, complete with big gymnasium, in the vicinity of — or at least closer to — Shiloh.

They confessed, according to Plymouth delegates:

1. Their attitude derives more from spite than any other emotion.

2. They had laid plans to have the site of the new high school changed by the state school board if the bond if the bond issue had been voted favorably on May 5.

The meeting with the county board Monday was a stormy one.

Billed as an effort to "iron out differences" between Plymouth and Shiloh factions, the meeting was more an acrimonious exchange of views concerning school site, according to Plymouth participants.

One county school board member invited the editor of The Advertiser to "keep his nose out of affairs that aren't his business", a Plymouth consultant said.

Mrs. Helen Willson of the county board is reported to have said "Union didn't want Shiloh" when one participant inquired why Union district hadn't "taken Shiloh earlier".

To this tally, J. Benjamin Smith, principal spokesman for the Plymouth group, said, "We didn't exactly ask for Shiloh either."

He received only a glare from the county board for this accurate statement.

Mrs. Willson tended to support the position, according to The Advertiser's informants, that Shiloh and Plymouth should remain together and another bond issue calling for a new high school midway between the two communities should be put to ballot.

In this, she was joined by her colleagues.

Any suggestion that classrooms be added to the present high school was threatened with "absolute opposition" by Shiloh residents, according to the informants.

Two board members' terms to expire

Two members of Plymouth Board of Election must stand reelection in November, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown says in an opinion delivered to the Richland county school superintendent.

They are Haldon Cheesman and Donald P. Markley, Brown ruled.

In January, 1958, after the ill-fated consolidation with Huron Valley was ruled unconstitutional, five members of the board were appointed for what was thought to be four-year terms.

Not so, says Brown, who rendered the opinion at the instigation of Supt. Dale B. Kinney. Three were elected to fill expired terms which run out Dec. 31, 1961.

They were Gerald Stanley, Judson A. Morrison and David E. Cook.

This development threw new question into the strategy of anti-Plymouth elements who wish to secede from the

Tired of washing dishes, it's a plan NOW we ask

Suzie sez

Before the matter gets out of hand, we'd like to review a few facts:

1. Our policy has always been, from the first time we stated it, May 8, 19-54, that Plymouth needs a new fire house. Badly, too.

2. We believe in the principle of representative government — that councilmen are elected by the people to discharge duties laid down by the Ohio constitution in a manner deriving from their best reflection and judgment, not necessarily in accordance with what may be popular opinion at any one time.

3. We've no objection to the choice of a site for a fire house, with such reservations as appear below.

From this point, we feel it incumbent upon us to set forth a line of argument whose weight the council has not so far allowed.

Whether one agrees with the estimate of the value of the property as agreed by the council and the owner is immaterial, for the time being. No reasonable person would assert, however, that two-thirds of the agreed price should be for land and only one-third for building.

Neither the Huron county tax authorities nor three independent appraisers engaged by The Advertiser believe that such a division is proper. The weight of their opinions is more nearly the reverse — one-third for the land, two-thirds for the building.

By this rule, the building is worth $12,000.

The council presently intends to sell bonds in the amount of $85,000, to be paid for from current revenues, over a period of slightly over 20 years.

Assuming the bonds can be sold at four per cent, the monthly payments to retire principal and interest over 20 years amount to $212.09.

And that portion which is properly chargeable to the building amounts to $72.72 monthly.

Our question is this: can this village afford to spend $72.72 a month for 20 years — $17,452.80 all told — for a white elephant?

The council intends to borrow 89.7 per cent of capacity for a period of 20 years to acquire a site and to erect a fire house.

There would remain about $16,810 for building purposes, less architects' fees.

We already have two miserable buildings from which the common weal is discharged — the village hall and the jail. One questions whether either of them would bring $500 in a public sale.

Does it make sense to buy another building, obviously worth more than either one of them, but not to convert it to use at once?

"But we don't have the money!" the council exclaims.

Leaving aside for the moment the fact that development of another site would cost the council less and leave substantially more with which to erect a building, one could retort, "We can hardly get along on general revenues as it is!"

Month after month, the clerk reports a need to tighten the belt so that the general fund can be stretched to meet current needs.

Can that general fund stand $72.72 a month for 20 years for a building that will stand idle? And with no prospect that public funds would become available to develop it later?

Let nobody, above all the fire department, take the notion we're opposed to the plan to acquire a site and develop it, now!

This is not the case. We simply think that a plan to develop ALL of any site NOW is the only tenable plan and the council ought to take steps to see to it that this is what is done.

There could be funds available, if the council will but get out and get them, with which to develop the site properly.

To get them, the council would need to show:

1. A satisfactory plan of development of ALL of a site, in such manner as to be pleasing to the eye and to the heart, something we can all be proud of, that will be much less expensive to operate than what we have now, and a suitable center of activities of a public and quasi-public nature that all citizens will derive benefit from it.

2. Sell the public on the idea that this capital expenditure is equally as important as the disgracefully delayed sewer system.

Gentlemen, now is the time for leadership. There are many who will throw in with you if you will but do things boldly, with due regard for tomorrow.

We'll start things off with a pledge of $1,000 if the plan is a whole one. And we won't be finicky about detail, either. But let it include the complete job. We're tired of carving turkeys and washing dishes.

That nasty man on the county school board who said my Pop is full of beans was all wrong.

But he is full of bean recipes, and the Girl Scout troop I'm a member of will be surprised to learn that the beans the girls and their mothers raved about Monday night were done by Pop.

Already I have had some mothers ask me how to make them. So I asked Pop and he wouldn't play ball.

He said, "You already published the recipe in your column, folks won't want to see it again."

So I went into cahoots with Al and Jacque the butchers and Mr. Mack and Mom, and this is THE CORRECT recipe (if it isn't, Pop will change it in the copy before it gets to the linotype).

Soak two pounds of tiny navy beans in enough water to cover them overnight. Make sure there is always enough water to cover.

Then put three tablespoons of salt and six chopped-up cloves of garlic in five quarts of water. Add the beans and one fourth pound of salt pork and one fourth pound of bacon.

Simmer (DO NOT BOIL, as that will burst the beans) for 90 minutes.

Broil one pound of sausage until crisp. Cut into small pieces.

Place one layer of beans, then one layer of sausage, then another layer of beans, and so on, in a bean pot until it is full.

Add the "pot-licker". Bake for eight hours in a slow oven (ours reads low, which is below 250 degrees). These beans taste peachy.

MOM SAYS SHE ISN'T worried that all this praise will go to Pop's head so that he will insist on doing all the cooking.

But she says she wouldn't mind it much.

Pop, Mom, says is what she calls an "upper 400 cook" — he likes to work in a kitchen as big as Madison Square Garden with five "robbers" to clean up after him.

Mom says that means Chip, Mom, the two cats and me.

In a woodpecker's eyeball, I say.

district because they are unhappy about site location.

With the balance of political power in the old Shiloh village will those electors choose to remain in the district and seek to elect their own proponents to the school board, thus giving them a four-to-one majority and control?

Old Timer finds new excuse: Bombers must also whip math

It begins to look like the Yankees cannot possibly win the pennant.

For in addition to the Chicago White Sox, the Washington Senators, the Boston Red Sox, the Baltimore Orioles, the Kansas City Athletics, the Cleveland Indians and the Detroit Tigers, the Yankees are smack up against mathematics and the laws of chance.

After Sunday's double header, the New York Bombers had 119 games remaining in their schedule. As Joe Reichler, the AP's sage, points out, it usually takes 95 wins to cop the pennant. The Bombers as of Sunday night had 14, leaving 81 to get. And 81 wins in 119 contests is pretty fair ball.

Reichler adds that in modern history only two teams, both of them in the early years of the century, have played 735 baseball OVER THE SEASON. There's the catch. Many teams have played at a hot clip for less than the season.

We think this week may tell the tale. If, after the 2 to 1 loss at the hands of young Jerry Walker at Baltimore Sunday, the Bombers can come back and hit the ball for the big inning the way they did Saturday and Sunday's first game, they can win the pennant. It won't be easy, but they can win.

Particularly since neither Chicago nor Cleveland has shown that it wants the flag.

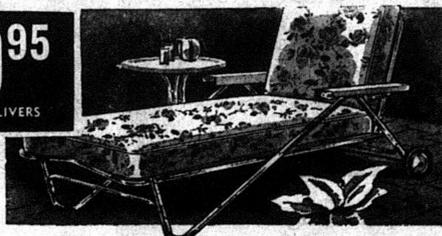

TIP OF THE WEEK: LOOK for the Injuns to cut Mike Garcia and call up Jake Striker, the Sulphur Springs southpaw, perhaps about July 1. Garcia can't win for losing, although he's pitched well twice. But he's kind of old for the grind in the hot months. The Tribe lacks left-handed starters, and the way Striker's going with San Diego's Padres — he's 3-and-0 — he's a likely prospect. More so than Larry Locke, who's got a 2.13 ERA.

Bixbys' grandson, still a sailor, marries Shelbian in church rites

Robert Lee Poth, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bixby, took Miss Karen Lea Fox, as his bride May 16 in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Walter Adams in Shelby's United Church of Christ.

Her hat was a small petal-shaped white nylon. She wore a corsage of white carnations. Matron of honor was a cousin of the bridegroom, Mrs. Ben Sherwood of New London, who wore a blue street-length dress with matching accessories. Sandra Poth, the bridegroom's sister, junior bridesmaid, wore pink with a matching headpiece. Both wore white carnation corsages. Mr. Poth's best man was Clendon Poth. Ben Sherwood also attended the bridegroom. Ushers were Roger Barker and Buddy Mott, both of Shelby. The bride's mother wore navy blue. The bridegroom's mother chose a black and white costume. Both wore carnation corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Bixby were hosts at a reception afterwards at their home, 42 Sandusky street. They were assisted by Mrs. Clyde Lasch, Mrs. Edward O. Ramsey and Mrs. Richard Fackler. The new Mrs. Poth is the daughter of Mrs. Warren Martin of Youngstown. Mr. Poth is the son of Mrs. Mildred Poth of Shelby. He is now serving in the U. S. Navy. Mrs. Poth will make her home in Shelby until he is discharged.
