

Morrison resigns as fire chief; Bright quits amid rumors of emergency action

Fire Chief Judson A. Morrison Tuesday night quit his post, effective Sept. 1, "for reasons best known to myself."

His assistant, Ray Bright, announced at the village council meeting he has turned in his own resignation to Morrison, also effective Sept. 1.

Bright said he knows of at least eight other firemen who intend to do the same thing. Morrison's move struck the council by storm. It had not been anticipated.

In his letter of resignation, he said, "You should not allow the civil defense unit to leave Plymouth. It has kept fire loss in Plymouth and surrounding area at a minimum. . . . You have shown me much respect and consideration and have given the fire department everything which I have asked for except a new fire station, which I know you are working on."

Other firemen said Morrison's kind tone in the letter of resignation isn't a true indication of how he and firemen feel about what they regard as "a runaround."

"They feel the village council 'has dragged its feet' in getting a new fire station. One veteran fireman told The Advertiser, 'The town gets whatever it needs except a fire house, and then they go ahead and plan on something we can't pay for or use.'"

On recommendation of the fire committee, the resignation was tabled.

ACTION ON THE PROPOSED fire house, noised around town Tuesday as ready to be taken as an emergency measure, denying the right of the electorate to remonstrate by a referendum petition, surprisingly did not come off.

Clerk Carl W. Ellis said Tuesday afternoon it was his understanding that an emergency ordinance would be submitted Tuesday night. Village Solicitor Joseph F. Dush returned off vacation to appear at the meeting.

But save for a brief discussion of what requirements are needed to support the action of the bonding attorneys, the council did nothing.

Yet it seemed clear it is the council's fixed intention to buy the Ramsey site for $18,000, to finance the purchase and the construction of a fire house with councilmanic bonds, and to proceed promptly.

It was equally clear that whatever course the council takes, whether emergency action or the routine three readings, it will encounter organized opposition.

A committee of citizens opposing acquisition of the site has retained a firm of attorneys in Norwalk to seek an injunction against expenditure of public funds, if emergency procedures are used, or to prepare referendum petitions, if non-emergency procedures are used.

DONALD B. SHAVER, Adviser to Teen-Time Rendezvous, was present for the reading of a draft agreement between the village and his group covering erection, operation and maintenance of the proposed youth building in Mary Fate park.

After it was read, Shaver said he wanted time to "mull it over a little more." He said he thought the agreement should be "spelled out in detail a little more — for instance, suppose we happen to have one rowdy gathering, would one strike against us mean we're out of business?"

By mutual agreement the proposal was tabled ad left for further discussion at an unannounced time.

Sad note reflects on silver reunion

A sad note marked the 25th anniversary reunion of the Class of 1934, Plymouth High school, in Mary Fate park Sunday.

E. Lehr Bailey, who was executive head of the schools here when the class was graduated, died Aug. 1 in Wapakoneta. Last rites were conducted from the First Lutheran church there Aug. 4.

Mr. Bailey had been superintendent Sulphur Springs before he came here.

More recently, he was superintendent of St. John's Local schools south of Lima. His wife is the only immediate survivor.

Twelve members of the class appeared for the reunion. Three others sent greetings and regrets by mail.

Those who came were Sam Fazio, Paul Stoodt, H. James Root, W. Laurence Cornell, Carl Holmes, Mrs. Donald E. Akers (nee Mary Guadayrino), Mrs. Thomas DeWitt (nee Doris Hatch), Mrs. Roy Carter (nee Zella Ruckman), Mrs. Edward Lang (nee Clara Fogal), Mrs. Leo Hughes (nee Jane Bachrach), Lois Miller and Mrs. Vincent L. Taylor (nee Lois Teal).

Mrs. C. S. Ecksterowicz, Philadelphia, Pa. (nee Helen Dick) sent greetings. So did Mrs. Keith Gooding, Mansfield (nee Doris Cramer). A compositor's error transposed the names in last week's issue.

R. A. 'Bully' Clark succumbs at 67 in Lebanon, Pa.

A Plymouth native who served overseas in World War I died Saturday in Lebanon, Pa., Veterans' hospital.

He was Ralph A. Clark, 67, Reading route 4, Pa., the son of the late Frank A. and Nettie L. Clark. He retired from St. Lawrence Woolen mill two years ago.

His wife, Florence D.; four step-children, three sisters, Lila G., Fivepoints, Reading route 4, Pa.; Mrs. Dorothy Graul, China Lake, Cal., and Mrs. Effalina Ritzman, Hollywood, Fla., survive.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday by the Rev. Samuel C. Jaxheimer. Burial was in Spies cemetery.

The Clarks lived at the end of West High street, the senior Clark having been a drayman here. A classmate of Edward B. Curpen, Ralph was known as "Bully" Clark.

BeVier tapped

Raymond BeVier, who lives in Fenner road west of here, is the only Plymouth village or township citizen chosen for jury duty in Richland county common pleas court in the current venire.

Jury commission chooses jurors for grand and petit jury duty from the voting list in primary elections. Citizens who do not vote in a primary cannot qualify for jury duty.

Hard work will make you 99!

Dr. George Gallup and the Saturday Evening Post notwithstanding. Mrs. William Bittinger says it's no trick at all to live to be 99.

She'll pass the ultimate milestone on the way to the 100-year mark at her home in Route 61 north of here Wednesday.

"Early to bed and early to rise, and be good all the time" is Mrs. Bittinger's advice.

Of those who disputed that theory when she was younger none is alive today to contradict her.

Mrs. Bittinger came to the gabled farmhouse east of the Huron river as a bride 77 years ago. The house had been standing two generations when she occupied it the first time.

"My husband was always a hard worker and got to the fields at seven every single morning except Sunday," she recalls. "I had to get up early and so I went to bed early."

THE BITTINGERS CLUNG to the soil, earned a godly living from it, took care of it and found it took care of them.

"But you had to be out in the open to do it, you couldn't sit indoors and let God do it," she exclaims. "That fresh air is what helped me live this long."

God's things attract her lively interest in whatever facet He chooses. She is admittedly "green-thumb-ed — I've always gardened and got a lot of pleasure from it. Besides, I always had enough for the table."

Church on Sunday, the fair in season, and honest work on the farm were both vocation and avocation for Lida Bittinger. She doesn't intend to forsake them now.

Her grandson, Gilbert Matthews, farms the family place now. Mrs. Bittinger household also includes Gilbert's mother, Mrs. Bittinger's daughter, Mabel. Another daughter, Nellie, is the wife of a pathologist in Chester, Pa., Dr. George B. Sichel, and the mother of another, Dr. William.

Don't forget aged Archie when Uncle needs challenger

The magnificent performance of ageless Archie Moore cannot but command the admiration of everyone. At best a rickety 43, he waddled forth from his corner in Montreal last week, attired in the most ridiculous fabrication of ring tights these blood-shot eyes have ever seen, and whittled down the challenger with calculated skill.

There was no doubt, so far as we are concerned, of the outcome after Arch belted the French Canadian fisherman on the whiskers with the stiff left hand in the first canto.

We sat enthralled, even though our money rode with the younger man on the apparently mistaken theory that to reduce 30 pounds in six weeks is a tiring and strength-sapping procedure.

At the outset it was announced, first in French in deference to the Montreal crowd, that three judges were seated about the ring. The venerable and, by now, respected Jack Sharkey would referee.

The wonder is how the bout would have been scored had the contest gone the 15 scheduled heats. (The noun is used advisedly; the temperature was 85 degrees.)

What if two voted for Durrelle and two for Moore? Would there have been an international incident? Could the Joint United States-Canada Boundary and Claims commission have been brought in to adjudicate it?

Be it said for the efficient champion that he averted such an unfortunate development by his slashing assault. Not since We stormed the heights to take Montcalm has Canada seen an attack like this one.

The international character of these pugilistic wars remains. The champion in the heavyweight division — Archie's natural habitat, be it realized — is a Swede, handsome Ingemar Johansen.

Ingo has promised that he will give the defeated champion, Floyd Patterson, an opportunity to regain the title in the interests of international law and order, perhaps it is better that this should transpire.

But in the event Patterson deflects from his purpose, or is defeated, our Archie would be a good choice to cut the mustards for Uncle Sam.

After 23 years of professional boxing, and some 200-odd encounters, we owe him that.

Ron Mack, a 1958 graduate of Ashland college, has been promoted to head football coach at Black River High school, succeeding Larry Marker, who moved on.

Mack's assistant will be a recent Baldwin-Wallace graduate. Pat Gallagher.

Now if Milan can find a head coach before practice is to start today, the North Central conference will be ready to go, coaching-wise.

FIRST DRILLS SCHEDULED TODAY —

DeWitt may be lost to Big Red for year

Possibility that big Mike DeWitt may be unable to turn out for the 1959 season reflected on the first Big Red football drills of the season this morning.

Coach Lew Petit expected yesterday that "about 35 candidates" would report at the first whistle today.

DeWitt, who played at center and guard last season and began to show the results of experience as the schedule wore on, has had trouble with his wrists and hands. Broken bones two years in a row have led his physician to advise, temporarily at least, against contact work.

Meanwhile, Petit was discussing with his coaching staff plans for the coming season, an ambitious one encompassing nine games and a preview.

Twenty-two calendar days, but only 14 practice days, remain before the Plymouth entry will board its bus for Medina and the North Central conference preview.

In that time-Petit will need to install his offense, develop some form of defense, and sort out his "building players".

"We're building, sure," the rotund mentor says, "and we hope we'll have a good season. Not that we expect to win 'em all, but we sure hope to. I'm sure that with some spirit we'll show a better team than we had last season and we'll win more games."

Ron Hostler, who was Petit's best man at his wedding (and Petit repaid the favor), will be an assistant coach. With the work of Larry Root, in his second season as Petit's assistant, Big Red fans are familiar.

Signs were that a convincing showing in the preview and against Vermilion would be necessary to support any conclusion the Big Red can down Berlin Heights in the Sept. 26 encounter there.

The October slate is not so bad. Black River should be down and Milan hasn't yet come up. They'll be brothers around Seville and Lodi in successive weeks and Westfield at month's end.

To dip an oar, wet a line is a hope we entertain

Two pieces of news of such import in one week are almost more than one can stand.

But we should not look a gift horse in the mouth. And the Marsh Run project has been five years on the planning board.

Now that efforts by Congressman Baumhart have been successful so a farmer who sustained damage from hail may apply for low interest loans through FHA, the picture brightens considerably.

The Marsh Run project affects about 24,000 acres west of here. What it means to every householder in this community is not easily noticed first off.

But reflect a bit. If floods can be controlled, and land erosion halted, the area drained by Marsh run can become more productive. When it does, it will conceivably engage more hands to work it.

And those hands use commodities which are sold in our common market place. As the sellers of those commodities increase the volume of their sales, so the commodity prospers, and we can afford better schools and more municipal services.

Whether the proposed reservoir will develop into a recreational site is problematical. But it is not without the realm of possibility.

If fishing and boating, not to say swimming, can in time be obtained at the reservoir, the Marsh run project will afford its neighbors another advantage: wholesome recreation at close hand.

Indeed, it is likely to attract folks from afar, folks who need to buy bait and rods and reels and boating supplies.

Nobody should expect Christmas in August. Not this August or any August. It will be a long time in developing. When it does develop, there is no assurance that what hopes have been ventured so far will materialize.

But hope springeth eternal. And we shall be disappointed if in due and proper time the waters of Marsh run reservoir don't become available to us and our neighbors for the dipping of an oar and the wetting of a line.

Federal farm census set up for execution in November

Appointment of Oliver Kuhn, Hartsville route 2, as a field assistant for the 1959 Census of agriculture is announced by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce.

Mr. Kuhn will direct a force of 26 crew leaders and 374 census takers in 28 counties in northeastern Ohio. Counties in which Mr. Kuhn will supervise the farm census this fall include Huron and Richland but not Crawford.

Mr. Kuhn will enter on duty Sept. 16 and receive several days of training which will cover administrative procedures and other duties and responsibilities connected with the job. He will be responsible for recruiting the crew leaders who will enter on duty Oct. 19. The crew leaders will in turn recruit the census takers who will enter on duty on Nov. 11. Applicants may communicate with him at the Hartsville address.

The 1959 Census of Agriculture will collect information on the number and size of farms, acreage and harvest of crops, livestock production and inventories, selected farm facilities, selected farm expenditures, farm values, and mortgage debt. Information will be published for counties, states, and the nation.

chimney for the second house, they put a pane of glass in it. When the man went to demonstrate the house to a buyer, he started a fire in the fireplace, to show the buyer what a nifty place it was.

He got smoked out and lost his customer.

When he complained to his help, they said, "Pay us what you owe us and we'll make that chimney draw." He was so scared he paid up and they climbed a ladder and dropped a brick down the chimney. Then it drew like blazes.

Then in a few days I will send them another card, saying I have changed my mind and am not moving to Town No. 2 but to Town No.

Suzie sez

Pop was complaining the other day that the day of the practical joke has passed.

I asked him about practical jokes, because I can't see how any trick played on anybody can be practical. He told me about a man who was stingy, wouldn't pay his help for building a house until he had another one built. Then he would take the money paid to him for the first house to buy the materials for the second one.

The help got tired of this so when they were putting up the

Take it from four Plymouth area women, the postmaster at Camp Douglas, near Wisconsin Dells, Wis., is all wet.

Postmaster Ralph W. Singleton was quoted in an Associated Press dispatch as saying Ohioans of the 121st Tactical Fighter Wing, an Air National Guard unit, weren't getting their "sugar reports".

He capped his bet by saying the situation could improve as the second week of the annual 15-day encampment wears on. Not so, say the wives and girl friends of the four local men serving their summer tour at Volk field at Camp Douglas.

Mrs. LaVaughn Oswald and Mrs. Thomas Kranz have been faithful with pen and paper.

So have the objects of affection of Theodore Ross and Alfred Parkinson, 3rd, who told an Advertiser reporter in confidence they've "done their duty" several times since the training period started.

For the protection of the innocent, the reporter refusing to reveal the names of his informants in the latter instances. "These fellows might have, you know, a couple or more lady friends; if I told which one said what, the others might either be jealous or something."

Miss Ford marries R. G. Smith in church

Younger daughter of Mayor Thurman R. Ford and the late Mrs. Ford, Emily Rose, was married in a quiet family ceremony in the Methodist church Saturday at 8 p.m. to Robert Glenn Smith of Nevada.

The Rev. Lyman Smith, pastor of Greenwich Methodist church, read the double ring ceremony in the chancel set off with two beauty baskets of white gladioli and lighted by two seven-branched candelabras.

Jack E. McQuate presented a 15-minute organ prelude.

Given in marriage by her father and attended by her only sister, Mrs. Thomas Henry, Miss Ford was attired in a street-length gown of white taffeta with Sabrina neckline edged in lace. Taffeta mitts set off the short sleeves. The illusion fell from a crown of lace and pearls.

On a white Bible she carried lilies-of-the-valley and streamers centered about a white orchid.

Mrs. Henry wore blue silk organza with a matching hat and carried a cascade arrangement of white carnations with blue ribbon.

Harold Bower, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, was best man. Mr. Smith is the son of Mrs. Earle Smith and the late Mr. Smith.

Mrs. Smith watched from the front pew in a blue lace dress set off with a corsage of white carnations decorated with blue ribbon.

A graduate of Plymouth High school with the class of 1952, the bride was graduated from Bowling Green State university in 1956. She is a teacher in Nevada public schools. Mr. Smith, a graduate of Nevada High school, is engaged in farming near there.

A reception in Cornell's restaurant followed the ceremony.

COOL ME, MADAM

Old women once held curative powers—or so folks believed. Their wrinkled hands laid on feverish brows were thought to cool the fever. Now, in this golden era of modern medicine, we have more reliable methods of reducing temperatures. But, remember, a temperature is only a symptom . . . not an illness in itself. Fevers have many causes . . . some minor . . . some serious. So, be sensible. When you or a member of your family is ill, let your doctor do the diagnosing and prescribing. Then, if medication is necessary, let us fill his prescription promptly and accurately.
