Rep. Harry V. Jump (R-Willard) will seek re-election to the General Assembly, he announced yesterday.

The veteran legislator would enter into his third term if he is successful in November.

No opposition is anticipated in the May primaries. Whether Democrats in Huron county will nominate a candidate remained to be seen.

hafer, probate judge, are expected to run unopposed in the primary.

Republican leaders promise there'll be a full slate of GOP candidates in the primary.

Levering to run again

Rep. Robert W. Levering, (D-Fredricktown), 17th district Congressman, will seek re-election to a second term "on the basis of my record of service to all the people in the district," he said Thursday.

He referred to programs which he has started: flood control, Food for Peace, and pending legislation designed to eliminate the ceiling on earnings of persons over 65 may earn still draw Social Security benefits.

Levering has obtained approval by the Public Works committee of studies he requested for flood control in four of the counties in the district. He also obtained funds for completion of the Black Fork Channel Improvement project below Charles Mill dam in Richland and Ashland counties. Completion of this project to prevent flooding has been sought unsuccessfully for

REP. HARRY V. JUMP
 GOP beating bushes...

Filing date to qualify in the May primaries occurs Feb. 3 and Richland county GOP leaders are scouring the bushes for candidates to oppose Democratic incumbents.

Although the GOP controls the county commissioners and the prosecutorship, and one of the judicial posts, its influence as a party stops there, so far as the courthouse goes. So the Republicans are looking for a candidate of strength and campaigning power to file for these offices:

- Clerk of the court of common pleas
- Judge of the court of common pleas
- Recorder
- Engineer
- Judge of the probate court
- Treasurer
- Sheriff

It's all but certain that the veteran Richland county representative to the General Assembly, Neil S. Robinson, Mansfield realtor and auctioneer, will seek reelection. And so, probably, will Dr. D. C. Lavender, the county coroner. Robinson probably won't have any opposition in the primary. But Democrats are thick as flies in July.

THEY INCLUDE WALTER E. Rusk, incumbent county engineer, and C. W. (Bud) Remy, Bellville, plus possibly Richard M. Christiansen, Mansfield city solicitor.

Democratic incumbents Howard P. Wenning, clerk of courts; James J. Mayer, common pleas judge; D. D. Orwiler, recorder; R. B. Bliss, sheriff and Charles H. Free-20 years, he said.

Levering said "I believe I have the firm support of the great majority of the people throughout the district in my efforts to develop a sound national defense without waste or extravagance; to balance the budget and otherwise firm up a more efficient fiscal policy as an alternative to higher interest rates to cope with inflation."

A lawyer and farmer who serves on the House committee on agriculture, he stated from talking to and hearing from people in every part of the district, I find strong backing for my views that we should drastically cut foreign aid with a view to eliminating it entirely at an early date; to encourage expansion of our lagging economy by development of greater markets at home and abroad; and to promote a sensible farm program that will be fair to farmers, taxpayers and consumers alike, - a program keyed to better distribution of our agricultural abundance."

Levering is subject to the Democratic primary, in which he is not likely to be opposed. He will probably face John M. Ashbrook (R-Johnstown) in November.

Levering is a brother of Councilman Donald H. Levering.

Ashbrook endorsed

Rep. John Ashbrook, Johnstown publisher and attorney, received the unanimous endorsement to be GOP Candidate for Congress of the 14th district county central committee and executive committee chairmen in Mt. Vernon Saturday.

The move followed the announcement by Lawrence Burns, Coshocton attorney and 1958 Republican candidate who unsuccessfully sought election after the sudden death of Rep. J. Harry McGregor in October, that he would not be a candidate for the nomination.

Auditor James A. Rhodes also received a unanimous endorsement of the group in his bid for re-election.

The Licking County Representative is the only announced Republican candidate for the seat which includes Delaware, Knox, Licking, Ashland, Holmes, Coshocton and Richland counties.

In other actions, the 17th district Republican leaders selected district delegates to the national convention in Chicago, Ill. They are Wade Logsdon, Millersburg poultryman, and Ashbrook. Alternates will be selected from Ashland and Coshocton counties. Richland, most populous county in the district, was shut out.

Walter Penry, stone quarry operator of Radnor and former representative from Delaware county, was selected as state central committeeman and Mrs. Faye Wowersky, Ashland, was re-elected district committeewoman.

Red wins sixth

Plymouth blew it open in the final quarter here Tuesday night, stampeding Union, 81 to 62, for its sixth straight RCL win without a loss.

After three periods, it was 52 to 49. But the Big Red stuffed in 29 markers in the final eight minutes, almost four points a minute, and walked away with it. Jim Russell and Craig Harniy led the winners with 20 points apiece. Duane Shoup led Union with 17.

Horns' grandson dies

Grandson of the Rev. and Mrs. James Horn, 80 Plymouth street, Timothy Lee Justice died in Willard Municipal hospital Sunday, a day after birth.

He is also survived by his parents, the Arthur Justices, Steuben; three sisters at home, Cherry Lynn, Debbie Sue and Libby Joy, and his paternal grandparents, the George Justices, Willard.

The Rev. Ed Elliott, pastor of Mansfield's Church of God, conducted last rites Monday at 2 p.m. from the McQuate Funeral home. Interment was in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven.

Bond sale freed of bar by petition, council told

Initiative petition filed by opposition will be no bar to issue of $38,000 in councilmanic bonds to purchase the Ramsey theatre site, village council was told Tuesday night.

Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland bonding attorneys, told the council in writing they had studied the matter carefully and conclude "the petition will not prevent us from rendering an approval opinion of the bonds and it will not hurt the sales of the bonds."

The attorneys said they feel the ordinance submitted with the initiative petition, calling upon the council to purchase in-lot No. 31, the Charles Hubach site, is insufficient to affect the issue of bonds.

But they warned the council it might expect opposition to sale in the form of suit for injunction, a taxpayer's suit or a suit to prove abuse of discretion.

There was implied no common pleas court of local jurisdiction would be likely to hold for plaintiffs in any such action, given the widely admitted need for a fire station and that courts do not adjudicate question of business judgements.

MAYOR WILLIAM FAZIO said he has steadfastly opposed the plan to purchase the Ramsey site and he called the council's attention to the large number of signers of the petition. "It is apparent public opinion, probably nine out of 10, is against this purchase," he said.

To this he received, bristling replies, chiefly from Donald E. Akers, who said it was his opinion the public hasn't had a chance to voice an opinion.

Elmer E. Markley, who championed at the bit like an impatient schoolboy because he wanted to be released to attend a basketball game, said

Church reports big gains

A balanced budget and over-subscription of benevolent giving, amounting to more than 300 per cent of the figure in 1955, were reported to the session of First Presbyterian church in annual meeting Sunday.

Mrs. Donald E. Fetters, Francis Miller and Franklin W. McCormick were elected elders, the last named to fill the unexpired term for David Dick.

David Sams and Guy J. Cunningham were named trustees.

D. Guy Cunningham was re-elected treasurer. James D. Cunningham was elected every member canvass

"we were all too busy getting re-elected to bother with telling the people about the plan for a new firehouse."

It was the first on-the-record admission that incumbent councilmen were "running scared" last November.

John T. Dick said he understands Fazio's sentiments and hoped if the mayor can devise a better plan that it will be promptly presented to the council, which he represented "is anxious to see it."

Fringe benefits for the clerk, whose salary can't be raised while he's holding office, seem to be the only way the incumbent can be rewarded for good service, the council was told.

chairman and J. Raymond Willet delegate to the Northern Richland County Council for Christian Education.

Donald Brooks and Mitchell Oney were elected ushers.

Mrs. Brooks, chairman of the committee for Christian education, recommended a redistribution of church school classes to make better use of space and the establishment of a teacher training program. Both recommendations were approved.

A recommendation that long term planning for an addition to the church building be undertaken to provide for more Sunday school space was approved.

Inoculation compliance good, school head says

"Pupils of Plymouth schools have made exceptional progress in meeting the requirements of Ohio's new immunization law," Supt. M. J. Coon said Monday.

Of the 1,162 pupils currently enrolled, 869 pupils have completed all of the required shots and 240 pupils are progressing satisfactorily.

Some pupils, he said, did not start their immunization until after school began in September. These pupils will not complete their program until after next month. Still others, such as members of the football squad, did not start receiving shots until November. These boys cannot complete the requirements until the spring.

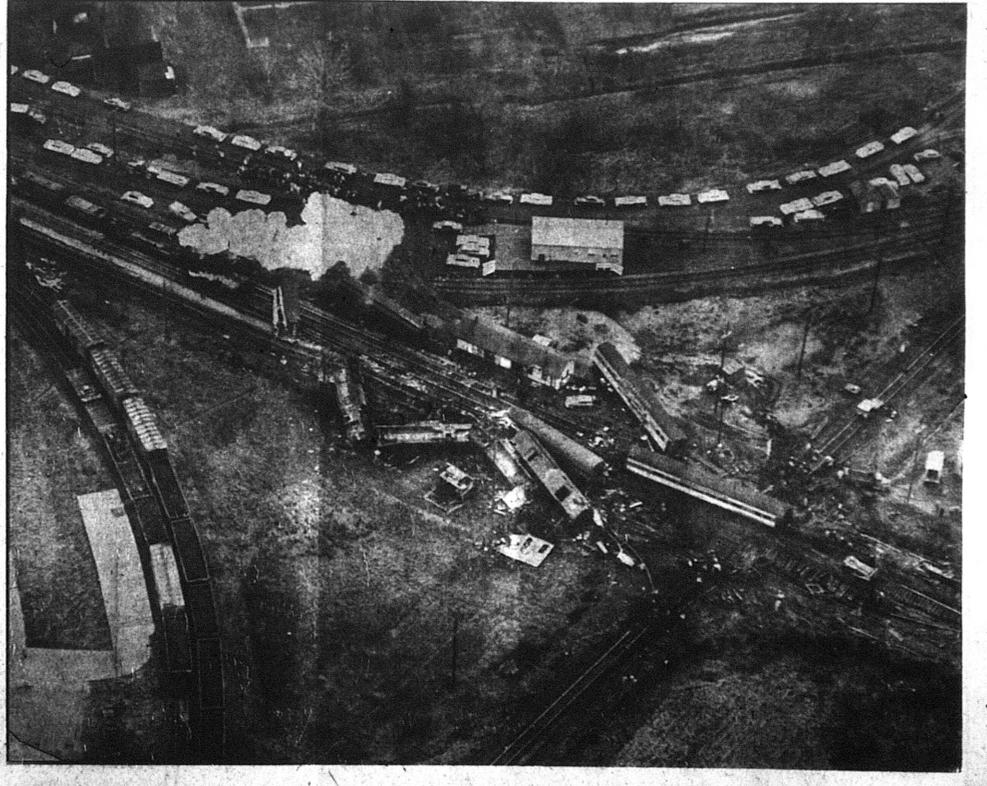

Parents of 30 boys and girls objected on religious or personal grounds to immunization. This they can do under the existing law, but parents have been warned of the dangers of falling to protect their children against polio, smallpox, diphtheria, and tetanus, Coon asserted.

Parents of three children have made no response to questionnaires, letters and appeals. Under the law these children can be suspended from school. This is being done currently providing no response or progress is reported.

"Teachers and principals have worked hard to gather and file all the necessary information. Each office has a master card including the name of every pupil. The school secretaries enter each shot as it is taken on this master list. We know exactly who needs what. The most difficult part of the program is to get the information from the families," Coon said.

Eighteen pupils were transported Thursday to the health department and received polio, diphtheria and tetanus shots and smallpox vaccination. This service is provided free by the health department.

THE VOICE OF THE ADVERTISER

Must we behave as canines also?

The recent turmoil caused by the visit of the Huron county dog warden points up, so far as we are concerned, three important facts:

1. Our stray dog ordinance is sadly out-of-date.
2. Spiteful neighbors have too much power as things are now.
3. The right way to control stray pets is by suasion and polite telephoning, rather than by force and impolite police charges.

Admittedly, the nine dogs whose owners were summoned into court, were chasing a female in season. It has been that way since the beginning of time and will certainly stay that way.

If our stray dog ordinance should be revised to place the onus upon the owner of the female, responsibility can be fixed with less bitterness and spitefulness. Why not make it mandatory for the owner of a female in season to keep the animal penned up?

Oh, yes, it'll be argued the present ordinance requires all dogs to be penned up, whether or not licensed, or to be kept on a leash.

But nobody does it. Once a year the police department asks this newspaper to publish a notice that all dogs who stray off their owner's property will be picked up. One might think the dogs can read. Maybe they can. But until one walks in here with the ten cents to pay for a copy, we'll continue to think they can't.

A citizen has every right to keep a pet and he is responsible for keeping it out of mischief. But keeping it out of mischief and keeping it on a tether are two horses, er, two dogs of different colors.

To require owners of dogs — and cats — to keep their pets away from gardens in the spring, when young plants are getting a foothold, is perfectly reasonable.

To require dogs, or other similar pets, to be kept on a tether during other seasons is somewhat unreasonable unless it can be shown the animals are a perfect nuisance.

When a neighbor's dog is such a nuisance, we're in the habit of telephoning that neighbor to say so, politely, citing the reasons why it's a nuisance. And we ask the neighbor to take steps to keep the animal from disturbing us.

To swear a warrant isn't the right way to do it. It especially isn't right for the owner of a pet to complain of somebody else's animal unless his own is without shame.

We think the police committee and the department ought to put their heads together and come up with a revised ordinance that enables us to have control when control is necessary.

Shooting of a stray pet isn't right, let alone humane. Yet that's what the present ordinance provides for. And we don't think it's sound government for the village — any village — to predicate its finances upon fines of dog owners whose pets may have strayed.

Some punishment of the willfully disobedient is necessary. Under the circumstances of Tuesday's affair, we question whether it was wise to fine those owners whose animals had chased the female. In any event, the fines could have been suspended.

Many owners were put to considerable expense to go to Norwalk to bail their dogs from the pound. Their embarrassment was, we think, punishment enough.

It's not possible to legislate against boys chasing girls, whether humans or canines. Those who must cope with such situations, such as college deans, try to do it by restricting the freedom of maneuver of the girls. The powers-that-be are invited to take note.

The whole affair last week smacks of favored treatment for one or two spiteful neighbors. It's nothing anybody should be proud of.

Patrons unhappy with mail service squawk to USPO

Nearly six weeks since a crash program to improve mail service got under way, United States postal authorities are facing up to strong complaint about deficiencies.

It is understood another radical change in mail service is due shortly.

Establishment of Tiffin as an area mail center apparently was not effected satisfactorily.

The Attica Hub leveled a second blast at the Tiffin postal authorities in last week's issue. Editor Nelson R. Olds published on the front page an apology to his readers for the delay in receiving copies of the Seneca county weekly.

"The papers were delivered as usual to the post office in Tiffin on Thursday (Dec. 31) evening, the day they were printed, and should have reached all rural subscribers by Saturday, due to Friday being New Year's day and no mail delivery.

"Instead, however, they did not leave the Tiffin post office until Tuesday morning, a matter that can only be explained by the personnel of the Tiffin post office.

"This delay has been taken up with the post office inspector in Sandusky as well as with the Hon. Jackson Betts (8th district Congressman)."

It's not the first time the Tiffin office has been reported for apparent failure to transmit mail on time. A complaint against its treatment of first class mail was lodged with the Plymouth postmaster about three weeks ago.

He keeps saying mine looks like somebody put a bucket over my head and chopped off the hair that hung down over the pail with a hand axe. And he says Mom's hair looks like she combs it with an eggbeater.

To strangers this is very funny and he gets a big laugh, which makes him feel good. But it doesn't make me feel good. And I don't think it makes Mom feel very good, either.

His hair doesn't look so very nice, either. All you can say for it is that there is a lot of it. And I will bet you if he says once more that Mom's hair looks like she combs it with an eggbeater that he won't have so much hair. Because Mom will snatch it out.

MOM HAS BEEN TALKING of dyeing her hair for a long time. Once she tried and filled the kitchen sink (Mom is sort of funny) with two bath tubs, but she wants to wash her hair in the kitchen sink) with the stuff to dye her hair. She got red clear up to her elbows until Pop asked her if she worked in a slaughterhouse. But there was nothing in her hair only what the soap manufacturers say is bad for clothes. That is tell-tale gray.

Mom has some nifty hats that she can't wear while her hair is combed the way it is now, and Pop says if she cuts her hair and dyes it she will probably wear a few new ones. He thinks she will say she ones she has now and can't wear will probably be out of style.

But Mom is bound that she will cut off her hair and be stylish and look like thirty again.

Pop says if she cuts off her hair she will be stylish but she will look like heek.

Anyway, in our house this week a hairbrush would sell for about the same price as a 1959 Christmas tree.

MY FRIEND ERIC TELLS about the sailor who claimed he was the best forecaster in the world because all he had to do was take a girl out in a boat. By looking in her eyes he could tell whether.

I am sorry, Eric. I don't get it.

GRAM SENT US A PUDDING. Rather, she sent it to Pop. It is a suet pudding and it is made in a coffee can.

Pop says it is the cat's whiskers, whatever that means.

If he means that it tastes good, I can't tell you until next week. Pop has promised to steam it up for Sunday and she says he knows a nifty sauce to put on it.

There is one sure thing about Pop: when he tells you something is good and he can cook it, you better believe it. He can make the best things from nothing that you ever tasted.

But I like for him to do it when we have company. When we don't have to do the dishes. And he can dirty dishes like nobody you ever saw or heard tell of.

I wonder what Gram has to say about that. She taught him.

Expense statement not filed, treasurer can't run until '65

Because she overlooked the requirement of filing an expense statement, Shiloh's village treasurer can't serve in that or any other office after this term.

Mrs. Maud Ruckman has been ruled off the ballot for five years commencing from the end of the present term.

Mrs. Ruckman had no expenses of any kind. But the Richland county board of elections says it isn't empowered to forgive the requirement because of that fact.

Mrs. Ruckman finally filed her statement, on Dec. 21, about two weeks late, and was given a certificate of election. She can serve the term to which she was elected.

Thirteen is a magic number for Plymouth Branch library this week.

Of 41 acquisitions of fiction and non-fiction, 13 are currently cited in best-seller lists.

Red meets Butler tomorrow, protecting win streak

Short of a major calamity, it's all over but the shouting in the Richland County league race for 1960.

Plymouth's Big Red, with an undefeated record and a 10-2 record overall, goes to Butler tomorrow and to Lucas the following Friday in what should be no more than pleasant exercise.

Having dumped Bellville, although outshot from the floor, the defending champs have it locked up for all practical purposes.

This team has come along well, although its reserve strength seems weaker than in years past.

Only Ray Lynch, Billy Strine and Jesse Hamman have seen any varsity action to speak of, and Hamman less than the other two.

Dick Bookwalter's performances have so far been the bellwether of the Big Red, both offensively and defensively. His average of 19.1 points a game is the best assembled by any Plymouth athlete.

Steve Patterson has had an in-and-out year, attributable less to a hot-and-cold spell than to his preoccupation with the duties of quarterbacking the Big Red offense.

But he can shoot, as he proved at Norwalk, and it may yet be necessary for him to unlimber his one-handed set shot.

CRAIG HARNLY HAS been the bright spot of the Plymouth offense. His point production has steadily mounted and his right corner shot is all but indefensible.

There were signs that mediocre opposition might develop bad habits among the Big Red starters. In the Norwalk contest their passing was not accurate. Nor was it crisp. Despite a fine shooting average, the Red could have taken the Truikers but for some shabby passing.

Plymouth's Big Red held on in the last half at Bellville Friday night to cop a 57 to 53 Richland County league victory and leadership in the loop standings.

Dick Bookwalter and Craig Harnly were the big guns for the winners, with 21 and 20 points, respectively. Gene Barr stuffed in 20 for the Blue Jays.

Plymouth jumped off to a two-point lead after eight minutes and built it to a 32 to 23 count at the half.

Bellville outscored the Daupmen in the 1st half, 30 to 24.

Indeed, the Jays outshot Plymouth from the field, 24 to 23, but did only half so well from the foul line.

Bookwalter brought his season scoring figure to 195, an average of 19.5 in all games and 22.2 in RCL contests.

Neighbors for 90 Years

THIS WEEK SOHIO CELEBRATES ANOTHER ANNIVERSARY. Just ninety years ago, on January 10, 1870, the State of Ohio chartered The Standard Oil Company. Through ninety years, Sohio and Ohio have been partners in progress. Through personal daily contact with friends and neighbors, Sohioans have shared mutual community responsibilities.

Today, as neighbors and good citizens, numbering more than 10,000 employees, over 4,000 dealers and distributors, and more than 37,000 stockholders, our people share with you rewarding local activities on school boards and community fund teams, in churches and clubs, in local government and on civic committees.

As Ohio's partner in progress for even better to-morrows, our pledge is to do everything possible to continue to justify the confidence of each of you — our customers, our friends and our neighbors.
