

Big Red joins new league

Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow in Plymouth High school is Myra Brinson, Class of 1961.

She received the highest score in a 50-minute written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes taken by seniors girls. She will receive an award pin, manufactured by Jostens and representing the slogan, "Home is where the heart is". Her examination paper will be submitted for competition with other high school winners to name the state Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow.

Rath in running for senatorial post

Robert K. Rath, a Mansfield lawyer, has filed nominating petitions to be Democratic candidate for the four-year term of senator of the 27th-29th district, including Lorain, Ashland, Medina and Richland counties.

The 38-year-old barrister was born in Mansfield, graduated from Miami university and George Washington university college of law.

He has practiced law in the Richland county seat since 1951.

Carl V. Ellis is filing a nominating petition to continue as GOP executive committeeman for Plymouth. Elton Robertson, Democratic incumbent, says he won't file for reelection.

Republican John Borgia, who wants the Huron county sheriff's job, has named Paul Howaman, New London, and Richard D. Cunningham, Norwalk, as his campaign committee chairmen.

Only one candidate, incumbent Judge Don J. Young, Jr., has so far come out for the second best official job in Huron county.

Commencing Feb. 1, 1961, the official pay of the probate judge in Huron county will be $11,461.18.

In a county of the size of Huron, there are additional fees which attach to the judgeship.

Young is a Democrat.

Referendum set by Huron Valley

Will Huron Valley school district consolidate with South-Central? Or will it annex to Willard?

Voters in the district will decide in a special election held Saturday night.

Seized of a referendum petition containing nearly 710 signatures, which requests the board to annex Huron Valley to Willard Exempted Village district, the county board had no choice but to certify the special election.

Whichever decision prevails, it's apparent there's not much, if any, chance for the Plymouth district to enlarge by annexation, transfer or consolidation with Huron Valley.

Both Huron Valley and South-Central boards of education asked the county board to unite the two districts.

The referendum petition is regarded in New Haven and Steuben as an expression of divergence of opinion with the board.

The attitude in Huron Valley district has been topsy-turvy for some months. A pro-Willard group of candidates was soundly defeated in November. The new board is solidly anti-Willard annexation.

Plymouth's Big Red will join a new nine-school, all-port athletic conference next year, it was announced Jan. 13.

Crestline and North Robinson in Crawford county, Ontario, Lexington, Bellville and Butler in Richland county, Fredericktown in Knox county and Loudonville in Ashland county will affiliate with the local entry.

Competition in basketball will begin with the 1961-62 season. Gridiron competition will begin in September, 1962.

Maynard J. Coon, executive head of Plymouth schools, has been named first president of the league, as yet unnamed.

Harold E. Daup, Plymouth basketball coach, is secretary of the new conference.

Spring sports schedules will be organized soon. They will include baseball and track.

Plymouth will field a cross country team next fall.

Big Red to go to Lucas

Big Red resumes its assault on RCL teams at Lucas tomorrow, favored by an even dozen to down the Cubs and walk up its eighth straight league win.

The Plymouth quintet sports a 75-point average for 12 games, with a defense that's given up only 58.4 points a game. Only thrice has the Red scored less than 60 points in a game.

Its scoring leader, Dick Bookwalter, has stuffed in 238 points for the season, 151 in the league, for an average of 19.5 overall and 19.8 in the RCL.

Lucas has a poor 1-6 record in league play and dropped one to Ontario on the Warriors' floor Friday night.

That it's the 13th contest of the season for the Big Red, which should have a perfect record but for one bad night when everybody was off his game and another when the referee was off his, doesn't seem to bother either coach or players.

"We'll just play our game and let the score and the 13th jinx take care of themselves," is how one senior player put it.

Cruiser whacked

Police cruiser was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by William Ellis early Monday morning.

Mrs. Thomas Meiser, daughter-in-law of the police chief, drove the cruiser out of the driveway to obtain access to her own car.

As she did so, he was struck by Ellis, who reported slippery roadway prevented his halting. The cruiser's fuel line was severed.

School board forced to borrow, worries about 9.5 levy renewal

BULLETIN

A syndicate of five bonding houses bought the $552,000 school building bonds yesterday for 4 1/2 per cent interest, premium of $5,890.

After a four-hour session in Plymouth Elementary school Jan. 13, Plymouth Board of Education had a firmer grasp of its impending problems.

One of them is the shortage of funds. Clerk Ewan P. LaFollette was empowered to borrow $30,000 from Peoples National bank at four per cent interest to meet two payrolls and current bills.

LaFollette reported to the board that receipts of $106,000 are likely in the next five months, whereas expenses are apt to amount to $145,000.

The 9.5 mill operating levy now in force will expire this year. Just how vital it is was emphasized by President Judson A. Morrison and the clerk, and it induced a debate over the advisability of presenting it for renewal at the primary election in May.

There wasn't much talk on the negative side. Morrison and Donald P. Markley, his predecessor as president, said the schools will have to close if the 9.5 mill levy isn't renewed.

The likelihood is that the renewal will appear on the general election ballot, despite concern for its passage that seizes the board now and the

Fazzini heads Dimes

John Fazzini, principal of Plymouth Elementary school, will direct the 1960 campaign for the March of Dimes here, Mrs. Fazzini is chairman of the National Foundation announces.

Mr. Fazzini reports "each house in the village corporation has already been supplied with literature and a solicitation envelope."

Aid from two community service organizations was announced over the weekend.

For its annual community service project Plymouth Grange will stage a cake walk and dance in its hall in Route 98 Saturday, Jan. 30. Cake walk will begin at 7:30 p.m. dancing at 9 p.m. obvious fact that if it should be defeated in May, another effort to renew it could be made in November.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK of Mansfield informed the board it is dissatisfied with the decision to appoint Peoples National bank as official depository of school funds.

Peoples National was given the appointment a month ago on basis of its bid of three per cent interest for inactive funds and its convenience of access by school administrators.

First National cited portions of the Ohio Code and the Uniform Banking act which apparently require a district having two or more banking institutions doing business within its boundaries to apportion deposits in direct ratio to capital funds and surplus.

First National claims $5 million and said Peoples National has only $275,000. This would require $50 to be deposited at Shiloh for each $3 deposited in Plymouth.

Owing to conflict of legal opinion on the question, the matter was tabled for further study.

Conflict of deeds and boundaries of parcels adjoining school property in Sandusky street was reported by Architect James Crawford. He said Reed White's deed, drawn in 1894 and antedating the school title, shows he owns some land considered to be school property.

These and other conflicts will have to be negotiated if a survey shows the school board is the offending party, Crawford said.

Bonds for the building program were sold at noon yesterday.

Crawford said construction of the high school addition will be sold separately from the new Shiloh building, owing to some obstructions in obtaining land at Shiloh.

ATHLETIC COMMITTEE, represented by Harold Daup, its chairman, asked a board member's appointment to serve on the committee. Mrs. Miles Christian was named by Morrison.

Tennis will be reorganized as a varsity sport. Principal Wayne H. Strine told the board. He inquired whether the board would be willing to refurbish the old tennis court with macadam. This area is part of the disputed territory.

Two tennis courts will eventually be in use at Shiloh when the blacktopping there is completed.

Cross country will begin in September, Stine said. Plymouth High school has no running track, he pointed out, and to install one at the circumference of the football field seems impracticable. He called upon the board to give thought to how, such an installation can be achieved.

Rambling Mountain Boys orchestra is donating its services for the dancing. Friends and members of the Grange are being solicited for cakes and pastries for the cake walk.

All proceeds will be paid to the March of Dimes. Adults will be asked to donate 50 cents, teen-agers 25 cents and subteenagers 10 cents at the door.

Ehret-Parsel Post American Legion, said it will donate its proceeds during an open dance in the Legion rooms from 9 p.m. to midnight Jan. 30 to the March of Dimes.

Guests will be asked to donate 10 cents at the door.

Six sixth-grade boys, Steven Young, James Clark, Russell, Stephenick, David Harvey, Clyde Leach and James Broderick, assisted Mr. Fazzini in delivery of the campaign literature.

"Cans in which retail buyers may place coins will be placed in retail establishments this week," Fazzini said. "We hope the public will find them conveniently and give generously."

All proceeds of sale of The Advertiser from the business office at 3 East Main street next week will be given to the March of Dimes, the publisher said.

Sewer fund untouched

A budget calling for expenditures of $190,554.60, of which $77,765.22 represents proposed outlay for prime services and equipment, was approved by the village council Tuesday night.

But not until fireworks, of a policy and a parliamentary character, had exploded in a session terminated at 11 p.m.

What was at the root of it was a proposal by Clerk Carl V. Ellis to draw $1,000 from the sewer service fund to reimburse the street service fund for labor performed by the street supervisor in correcting sewer obstruction.

When the first draft was read, Councilmen John T. Dick and Donald H. Levering took exception to this technique. They said the sewer usage tax was applied on the grounds that an advance fund is needed to finance a sewer system. The public, Dick said, was told the money wouldn't be touched.

Despite arguments by Elmer E. Markley and Donald E. Akers, neither Levering nor Dick would budge and on first reading the vote was four ayes, two nays.

This was insufficient to obtain passage as an emergency, and Mayor William Fazio called for reconsideration of the issue.

Akers then said he would not support any deductions from the sewer service fund — "if it's wrong to take this money out for work done for the sewers, then it's wrong to take any money out any time" — and he steadfastly clung to that position throughout the voting that ensued.

The sewer fund will therefore be tapped for $480 clerical service and $480 in office supplies, chiefly post cards, and for no other purpose.

Richland county budget commission notified the council it can expect revenues during 1960 thus:

General fund	$28,403.86
Fire equip. fund	$3,724.83
Street const. fund	$8,036.84
State hwy. fund	$1,098.75
Waterworks fund	$40,540.21
Electric light fund	$5,748.31
Cemetery fund	$3,724.83

With the exception of the fire equipment and waterworks and electric light funds, each of them is less than last year.

The proposed councilmanic bond issue of $35,000 figures importantly in this budget. A sum of $4,577.50 is earmarked for policemen against these bonds in 1960.

Capital equipment outlays amount to nearly $46,000 — $15,000 for water extension in West Broadway, $11,343 for new fire truck and $9,500 for a new ladder extension truck for the electric department.

It boils down to this: 14.5 mills of the tax collected by the county treasurer goes for municipal purposes. Average cost of supporting village services here annually, per household $37.

Advertiser captures another award(s)

For the fourth year in a row, The Advertiser has won a prize in the annual Osmen C. Hooper Newspaper show staged by the Buckeye Press association at Columbus.

William J. Oertel, executive director of the Ohio Newspaper association and of Buckeye Press association, alerted the publisher by special memorandum received yesterday.

"It is a pleasure to advise you that The Advertiser has been judged a winner in the Osmen C. Hooper Newspaper show and will be awarded a certificate at the annual OGA convention Feb. 3 in Columbus.

"Since no details may be released in advance of the Friday morning Hooper show program, I cannot advise what class or place you won."

Last year The Advertiser won third place for best sports page in its class of communities — under 2,500 and third prize for general excellence in the same class.

Since general excellence judging will not take place until Feb. 4, it is apparent, the publisher said yesterday, "our award — or awards — is for some other phase of the contest."

By THE OLD TIMER

Organization of the as yet unnamed nine-school athletic conference should be welcomed by everybody with a genuine interest in competitive athletics as a schoolboy character builder.

The advantages inherent in this organization are, we think, apparent.

For one thing, maximum travel distance (Plymouth to Fredericktown) is only 40 miles. And with completion of a new highway in Route 73 between Mansfield and Bellville, the way is less tortuous. In the winter, the haul to Loudonville may be no picnic, but it can be managed.

For another factor, the schools are pretty much the same size. For two, each has a football program comparable to the Big Red's, especially when the latter gets a grade school program under way. Ontario has many material resources and should encounter little difficulty in organizing a team. Its equipment and a field. Lexington has fewer resources but no less enthusiasm and doubtless will do as well as Ontario when it finally takes the step.

North Robinson is a new school athletically. It's played only one football game so far but its potential seems great. Next season it'll embark on a full schedule.

Crestline is a fine school and a good sports town and ought to make a good showing in the league. Loudonville and Fredericktown have programs of several years' standing, the former with less luck than the latter.

It is also apparent that, owing to the prevailing law that athletics may not be supported from the public purse, teams in the league must make money. Costs of fielding a football squad, particularly in the beginning, are so high that unless the team catches fire and burns with high heat, support is likely to be insufficient to meet expense.

THIS THE BASKETBALL program comes under pressure. It's easy to see why.

First, basketball can be and is played more often than football.

Second, it's played indoors, generally under the closest supervision by faculty and staff, and parents have fewer qualms about letting younger children attend, from a health and a morals standpoint.

Third, cost of maintaining and depreciation of the arena aren't chargeable to the sports program.

Fourth, communities hungry with pride look upon the basketball team to bring laurels that, for good and sufficient reason, are denied the football team. A team likely to go beyond the district tournament gets early support and it stays until the team bows out.

To summarize: basketball is looked upon as a money maker and it's run for that purpose.

If you don't have the room to seat 700 or 1,000 spectators, but can seat only 400, you lose that much money.

Which accounts for the pressure upon the ordinary citizen, whether he's a fan or not, to finance larger gymnasias.

It seems likely Plymouth will have the smallest basketball facilities in the new conference. And so far as we can see, there isn't much likelihood they'll change within the foreseeable future.

ALL OF WHICH BEHOOVES the football staff to organize in the best way possible, so promptly, as to produce a series of hot teams featuring hard-nosed football that'll draw good crowds at home and abroad to pay for itself and take some of the pressure off basketball.

The football buffs, notably Elton Robertson, who's as close to being the Father of Plymouth Football as anybody living here now, have been claiming all along that what's wrong with Big Red football isn't enough hard nose.

What ensues after September will show the whole world if they're right.

Big Red stomps Butler, 95-63, for 7th straight RCL victory

Dick Bookwalter and Craig Harnly led Plymouth's Big Red to an easy 95 to 63 conquest of Butler's Bulldogs in a Richland County league game there Friday night.

It was the visitors' 10th win of the season, their seventh straight in RCL play.

Plymouth jumped off to a 10-point lead after eight minutes and built it to 16 points at the half.

Nine Big Red players broke into the scoring column as for the first time this season Coach Harold Daup enjoyed an opportunity to give some experience to lesser hands.

It was a good night all around for the Big Red, whose junior varsity scored a 48 to 34 victory.

THE VOICE OF THE ADVERTISER

Too much to hope?

Is it too much to hope that the forthcoming referendum in Huron Valley school district will settle the problem once and for all?

It probably is. Only a few are likely to be completely satisfied. And it will do no good to dredge up recriminations and mistakes, bad judgment, muddied thinking and such.

From our standpoint, we very much regret that Huron Valley district wasn't wooed sufficiently to reassociate with the Plymouth district. We are convinced that would have been the best solution for the problems which beset both districts.

Let's look at the prospects for the Mar. 22 referendum.

What will a "Yes" vote mean? On its face, it will mean that the voter wishes the Huron Valley district to be annexed to the Willard Exempted Village district.

What will a "No" vote mean? On its face, it will mean that the voter doesn't wish his district to be annexed to Willard. It doesn't necessarily mean he wishes to consolidate with South-Central.

But how many voters will be voting "yes" because they don't want to consolidate with South-Central?

Let's take notice!

Comments such as this tend to put the "whammy" on a team, and we tread lightly, as though walking on eggs, so as not to do just that.

But it seems high time that public recognition be paid to the Big Red basketball team, which has established such a remarkable record so far this season.

Opposing coaches seem to us to be the best source for informed comment: "Daup's got the horses and he's a sound coach."

Which puts it all in a nutshell, and accurately, we think.

The Big Red by all lights should be undefeated up to now. The Madison contest was a perfect nightmare. The team converted less than 20 per cent of its field goal attempts. The Norwalk contest was a rude example of the worst in the game, when a partial official ruled against the local outfit.

Doubtless, we return games to be arranged, Coach Daup's team would win handily. Or so we happen to think.

The season, or the official part of it, at least, is two thirds over. There are six games remaining, only two of them at home.

We presume the Big Red will

And how many voters will be voting "no" because they want neither unification with Willard or consolidation with South-Central?

We're sorry, for our part, that all of the choices won't be available on the special ballot on Mar. 22.

Make no mistake about it, there are other choices. Under the circumstances, though, it's unlikely they'll be developed so that the voter can opt for the best one.

One of them is for property owners whose land lies contiguous to another district to petition for transfer from the district. It's not unheard of in Huron Valley district. It was done in the last election when some families not only left the district but also left the county system.

And to be practical about it, even if annexation to Willard should be turned down and the consolidation with South-Central to be effected, it's highly likely some families in the northern portion of the district might transfer to Monroeville and others in the west to Attica.

It's too bad that some families won't have the chance to do what's best for THEM at the polls. But they can do what's best by petition thereafter. It would be criminal of the county board to deny their wishes.

wind up without another defeat, making a 16-2 record for the regular season.

This year, its tournament play will be at Sandusky, where with the exception of Norwalk the Big Red will meet teams it hasn't met before.

There are many fans who dislike this prospect. To our way of thinking, it's a fine thing. For how are our boys going to know if they're as good as we hope they are unless they meet a broad representation of other boys of their age and experience?

The purpose of the tournament is to determine which are the best teams in the state. A team that survives the early eliminations goes on to regional play and eventually to Columbus, where it certainly can't expect to meet teams it's played before.

Why not learn to cope with this early?

No sirree, we like the arrangement. We wish the Big Red well. When it does a good job, we'll tell the coach and players.

And if the Big Red can't quite make it, we won't lose any sleep about it. So long as we play to win, and play fairly, we can take the defeats with the victories.

Suzie sez

It is only 39 days until Leap Year day.

Feb. 29 is the extra day in the calendar, but a single woman can propose marriage to a single man any day during the year of 1960 without being punished.

Pop says he thinks this is kind of crazy, because he says most women asked their husbands to marry them anyway, although they may not have actually said the words, "Will you marry me?" He believes women put the words in a man's mouth.

If this is so, then why should we have a Leap Year custom? The encyclopedia says Leap Year began hundreds of years ago in Scotland, in 12-88, where women were allowed by law to propose during Leap Year.

If a man refused an offer to be married, he was fined one pound, which in those days was a lot of money. Scotsmen didn't marry much in those days (Pop says they were snooty because they knew two couldn't live so cheap as one), and this left a lot of unmarried women who had to be supported by the people.

A lady who asked a man to marry her had to show the edge of her red petticoat having or the proposal wasn't legal, and a man could refuse without paying the fine.

Pop says that if the edge of a red petticoat were the only thing a woman shows when she proposes nowadays, we would be a lot better off. I asked him what he meant by this and he said that a woman shows her weakness by proposing. Women claim they can do without men, but when they propose they prove this isn't so.

In the old days, if a man refused to accept the proposal of a woman during Leap year, he didn't get a preacher at his funeral. And he was forced to give her a silk gown if he refused to marry her.

Even then, says Pop, it was a woman's word.

Favorable reaction delights editor

"Most favorable reaction we've ever received on any editorial at any time" was how the editor of The Advertiser described comment on last week's effort.

"Only one of the 37 persons who commented to us, directly or indirectly, was an owner punished by the mayor," he added.

And only two of the comments were unfavorable. One of them was from Mayor William Fazio, who said he thought the editorial was inspired "out of spite because George (Carlier), your employee, was one of those punished."

What's it prove? "Well, maybe it proves that people were dissatisfied with how the matter was handled, and maybe it doesn't. Time will tell that. But it certainly does prove that man is dog's best friend," the editor said.

The News of Shiloh

Miss Ina Brumbach, reporter Tel. TWining 6-2731

He races train and cop and runs away and lives to race another day!

After seeing John Adkins, 20, of Mansfield speeding through Shiloh and going through a stop sign, Jan. 12, Marshall Harris chased him and pulled alongside of the Adkins car, which was headed toward Mansfield in Bowman Street road.

Going more than 80 miles an hour Adkins crashed the gates at NYCRR crossing, only seconds before an approaching train reached the crossing. One half mile beyond the crossing he wrecked his car and started off on foot.

State patrolmen, called to investigate the accident, went to the Adkins' home and urged the family to advise him to give himself up when he reached home. He did at 4:45 a.m. Jan. 13. He was taken to General hospital where he was treated for a bruised abdomen and right ankle, suffered in the accident, then lodged in jail.

Marshall Harris said Adkins will face unsafe operation charges and state patrolmen will bring a charge of leaving the scene of an accident, in regard to the railroad crossing gate damage.

'Premature' label given to prospect of power co-op

"Premature" and "hardly anything in it for us now" was how trustees of the Board of Public Affairs described talks intended to develop an inter-community electric power generating and consumption net.

Twenty municipal officials and utility heads met in Norwalk Jan. 6 to discuss how they might combine power generating and distribution facilities to preserve competition with private utilities and cut costs.

Wellington, Norwalk, Milan, Lodi, Seville, Monroeville, Shelby, Wadsworth and Willard representatives were parties to the conversations.

Carl Crawford, management consultant for the Lorain-Medina Cooperative, was chairman and principal protagonist for what he said could be a long-range plan, suitable for adoption by the nine consulting communities and others.

"A power generating exchange among Oberlin, Willard, Shelby and Norwalk ought to be the first goal, Mayor Louis Frey of Norwalk said.

When such a unit is established, neighboring communities could affiliate as purchasers of wholesale power.

"Just being united is a threat to the power companies," Crawford said.

"We must have competition to keep power companies honest and keep consumer prices down," Bronis J. Klemens, attorney and utilities director for the city of Cleveland, said.

"Private owners say our system is un-American, socialistic, but no matter what they say we're keeping them honest and, generally, if we unite, we can reduce the consumer's power rates."

PLYMOUTH'S CONTRACT with Ohio Power Co., a 10-year agreement, expires in March. Negotiations to renew will be undertaken in February. Although Ohio Power has volunteered several times to buy the distribution system outright, the Board of Public Affairs has no intention now of considering such an offer.

The pressure is on the small-town retailer. His market is diminishing because of changes in habits and tastes. The late recession isn't the only reason why his business is down.
