

State education office passes, refers religion question to Lutz

State department of education has passed the ball to Richland County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz to settle the irksome religious education question.

In reply to an inquiry by Plymouth Board of Education the department says requirements are five hours of school each day, within the school. Two 15-minute recesses are allowed. The Rev. Robert F. Hall, representing the North Richland County Council for Religion Education, asked that the pupils be taken out of the school buildings and taught in the various Protestant churches during school hours.

The state department's reply suggested the board refer the matter to the county prosecutor for further scrutiny because of the many other problems involved on the teaching of religion in the public schools.

No action was taken by the board. Meanwhile the classes of religious instruction are being organized and continued during the school hours in the buildings as in the past.

A lengthy discussion concerning mud and snow tires and an equally long one about a bus repair bill took up a greater part of the meeting.

School architect James Crawford suggested the board purchase better tops for science tables than had been authorized in the original bids. Saying he visited schools where the cheaper tops have been in use for several years and showed a great deal of deterioration, he thinks the additional cost will repay itself over the years. Because matching federal funds are available for science equipment, it will only cost the board about $250 extra. In the next breath, he informed the board that two changes in construction work have resulted in a substantial savings over the first bids.

He also assured Board member Donald P. Markley the area north of the high school building will be cleared and available for parking by the time the basketball season opens. Markley was greatly perturbed over the fact so little parking space was available on the school grounds and that cars have to park in Sandusky street.

What's an emergency?

Council approves $5,000 electric expansion

Is it or is it not an emergency?

On this decision hangs a $5,000 expansion program of the Board of Public Affairs and retention of an electric customer whose business means a profit to the system, village council learned Tuesday night.

Proceeding with extreme caution, council authorized preparation of a contract by which the board will engage experts to install three new wires over a distance of 5,200 feet in Plymouth street and Route 61 to accommodate K & K Lumber Co., rebuilding a sawmill destroyed by fire about a month ago. Cost of labor will approximate $2,300, of materials $2,700.

By declaring an emergency, on the grounds that a customer struck by calamity requires resumption of service, which cannot be effected without expansion of the system, the council thus avoids advertising for bids. It said its principal desire is to save time, not that it fears bids will upset such arrangements as have been made. The board will buy the materials on its own account and contract for the labor.

Approval by the state highway department for installation of a traffic signal at Sandusky street and Mary Fate park road was acknowledged. The council has 180 days in which to act. A semi-actuating signal which would respond to the pressure of cars seeking to turn into Sandusky street, was recommended. The signal may also be operated manually. Request for the signal was filed after a three-year-old boy, Gregory Glorioso, was killed there during the summer. Whether the council can find the $1,000 to pay for it is another matter. President Judson A. Morrison of Plymouth Board of Education was asked whether school funds might be contributed. He replied that "if it's legal for us to spend our money for these things I think we'd go along."

Blacktopping of 1,000 feet of eight-foot roadway in Greenlawn cemetery is all but complete, the council learned. Bids were opened Monday at noon. Mansfield Asphalt Co. was low at $881, about $500 less than the estimate. With the savings, the cemetery board will engage tree surgeons to remove large trees.

Property owners in Trux street east of the AC&Y tracks appeared again to support a petition for relief of flood waters. Mayor William Fazio was empowered to consult with the railroad and the state highway department to obtain preliminary work and the council promised to descend upon the county commissioners in a body to obtain their help.

A mutual aid contract for fire protection between the village and New Washington was renewed for three years.

Carl Montgomery, Plymouth route 1, offered to lease an exhausted gravel pit for use as a dumping ground. His offer will be pursued to a lease if the New Haven township trustees do not object.

A citizen's committee, informally organized by Donald Willet, is in Deshler today to ascertain if the lagoon system of sewage treatment is practicable for Plymouth.

Mayor Fazio told the council he wants a new system of traffic control on the Public Square. "We learned again from the state highway department that our traffic signal is illegal, even though we have a license for it," he said, recommending the road-level signal be replaced with five pole signals. "But it will be expensive and we have to go slowly," he said.

'O Danny boy!' appropriate tune in Shields house

"Today is the birthday of Daniel Fenner Shields, at 12 believed to be the youngest amateur radio operator -- "ham" to the trade -- in Ohio.

He has been approved for issuance of the general certificate after submitting to a rigid test. When the approval was issued, he was only 11.

Recently the youngster, with his father, Emerson, went to Findlay for a "hamfest." Because he was the youngest of the lot, he was tapped for photography with the oldest, an octogenarian of 63.

Big Red underdogs in clash with Tigers

Plymouth's Big Red opens its last North Central conference season in Mary Fate park tomorrow at 8 p.m., opposing Berlin Heights' Tigers.

Coch Carroll B. Sanders' crew walloped Firelands, 52 to 0, in its opener last week.

On record and form, the Tigers are favored by nine points.

It will be Parents' night, when fathers and mothers of uniformed players will be introduced with their sons.

COACH LEW PETT HOPES his once-defeated outfit can reduce the tag of "can-do-if desired" to "can do". He is not entirely downhearted about Friday's catastrophes at Vermilion. "We were simply outmaneuvered," he said. "They would have beaten us anywhere."

There are, however, some weaknesses to be overcome. Notable among them is the offensive line play. Failure of the line to charge effectively restricted the Big Red's ground game to outside plays at Vermilion, save in one or two instances. Once, on fourth down, a poor pass from center and red-dogging by Vermilion's line backers forced Phil Slone to eat the ball.

It is apparent by now that Plymouth's backfield can go when it gets the chance. Dayton Reed will improve as a passer. On defense he leaves little to be desired. With Junior Sammans, he accounted for 45 per cent of Plymouth's tackling at Vermilion.

Jim Russell and Dan Carter can go with the ball and have proved to be dependable receivers. Each has shown up well on defense.

Only at fullback has Pett shown need to be concerned. Fate Christian has been slow to round into form, although his defensive play against the Sabots was effective and timely. When he begins to hit up the middle as he did last year, and on a couple of plays at Vermilion, the Big Red's offense should go.

A word is appropriate for young Noah Sammans. Called "Junior" by his family and friends, this lad acts like a grown man on defense. A demon tackler, he has a good head for defense and his record of tackles shows it.

Berlin Heights started its season with a small squad and what Sanders said, apparently in good faith, was a weak one. Weak it may be. But its first 11 players seem to have cohesed and on performance in the preview and against Firelands, where Harold Lindeman scored thrice, the Tigers rate as favorites to win this one.

Officials for tomorrow's contest announced by Harold E. Daup, athletic director, are George Douglas, Ashland, referee; Charles Klopfenstein, Crestline, umpire; Merle McCoskey, Bellevue, head linesman; Robert Gwin, Bellevue, field judge.

The real culprit

The nasty mess at Norwalk points up nothing so clearly as that the main culprit is Ohio's juvenile court law.

What Deputy John Borgia did was certainly improper. It is not the function of the police officer to adjudicate guilt. He investigates, he develops evidence, he presents it to the proper authorities for action. He does not — he must not — decide for himself whether the offender ought to be punished. Particularly is this true in the case of juveniles.

There are too many policemen unfortunately, who've fallen into these habits because of the juvenile court law. Take the case of the 16-year-old driver who's apprehended for hot-rodging, or a lesser traffic offense.

A local magistrate cannot deal with the case. It must be referred to the juvenile court. Policemen dislike the bother of travelling 19 miles to the seat of the court, often giving up free time to testify. And they dislike the strong sentences by some courts and the weak ones by others.

While it's no business of the arresting officer whether the judge finds reason for leniency, it's unreasonable that he should expect uniform treatment for the same offenses.

This explains why in many towns juvenile drivers get away with murder.

Often police officers find evidence of a serious nature incriminating juveniles, a complaint is made, and the juvenile is taken into custody. Some judges insist the evidence against a juvenile must be twice as strong as evidence against an adult. They tend to think all juveniles who raise red are psychopaths and require expensive psychiatric examination. And it is regrettably true in many of our local cases that disturbed children receive harsh punishment on first offense but obvious bad eggs are coddled and let off without punishment on second and third offense.

Juvenile courts usually insist that delinquency results from psychoses. Most of us know there are some youngsters who do evil not because they're mixed up but because they haven't been disciplined.

We record the conversation of two boys summoned before a juvenile judge. "You lucky bum", said one, "you'll get off easy — your folks are divorced!"

Too many juvenile judges think they're God Almighty. They have enormous powers, powers which we find to be honored more in their abuse than otherwise.

We know of one case where a girl under the legal age to marry sought a license to do so. Her parents and his approved the move. The judge asked if she were pregnant. She replied negatively. Whereupon he said if she were he would approve the license, but since she was not, he would decline to do so.

We have long inveighed against the foolish rules of juvenile courts regarding disclosure of names of persons seized of its jurisdiction. We stoutly maintain that juveniles who realize their misdemeanors will be publicized will be deterred from stepping over the traces by that knowledge.

A teenager has the use of reason, else the community would not allow him to operate an automobile. He knows when he does evil. If he commits a serious offense, he knows he is as much a threat to civilized living as an adult who does the same thing.

There is no reason why an entire community should be required to bear the shame of a juvenile's offense by withholding his name. He and his family bear the shame. Evil should be ascribed only to those who do evil and the innocent freed of suspicion.

It's our view that if the legislature were to appoint a citizen's committee, with representation but not control by the do-gooder element so firmly in control of some juvenile courts, Ohio could devise a workable juvenile court law that would eliminate many evils, discharge the moral and the constitutional obligations of the state toward its minor citizens, and make the Buckeye state a safer, more wholesome and more honorable place in which to live.

Vermilion sinks Red in opener, 44-24; donnybrook averted in third quarter

Vermilion's Sailors outgained Plymouth there Friday night, 44 to 24.

The contest marked the close of formal, scheduled athletic rivalry between the two schools. It is just as well. It was a bitter engagement, resulting in 229 yards of penalties, five unsportsmanlike conduct assessments (all of them against the visitors) and one player ejection.

Coach Lew Pettit was soaked with a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty at the beginning of the second half and Vermilion kicked off from the Red 40. Pettit said the Plymouth team hadn't been notified at the end of the halftime recess. A five-yard penalty was assessed for delaying the game. When this occurred, Pettit made some allegations about the honesty of the officiating and paid dearly.

It was Vermilion's game all the way. The Sailors fumbled twice in the early moments of the game and for part of the first period, it appeared they would encounter difficulty with the Big Red.

But big Hugh Darley poked through the middle for a 23-yard score, the first of three he was to rack up, and the Sailors were never headed.

Shortly thereafter, still in the first period, Darley ripped off a 16-yarder. Tom Moes took a pass from Ken Esper for the PAT.

Denny Owen rolled the score to 20 to 0 in the second period with a 12-yard dash. Darley converted.

PLYMOUTH'S JIM RUSSELL contributed the most sparkling play of the night on the ensuing kickoff to Russell. He swept to his left, picked up a screen of blockers and sped untouched 82 yards down touchdown alley. Reed passed to Ken Van Loo who was to be ejected later, for the PAT.

Two plays later, Ken Esper contributed a 67-yard dash from scrimmage for the Sailors. En route, he lost a shoe and wound up in the end zone wearing only one.

Owen bucked over tackle for the PAT.

Moes again kicked off and the Red again stormed for a touchdown. Dayton Reed, easily the outstanding Plymouth player of the night, fielded the kick and handed off to Dan Carter. The slick little senior went down the sideline behind a solid phalanx of blockers for 78 yards. Van Loo again counted the PAT.

Al Mroski took a 37-yard toss from Darley for the final Sailor score of the half. Dick Lewis lost the receiver initially; turned to snag his jersey but couldn't hold on and Mroski wriggled loose from about 18 yards out.

The third period was scoreless, Vermilion choosing to season its second eleven, which did right well under the circumstances.

The Sailors were halted on the Plymouth four at the close of the quarter, having run out of gas and downs.

On third down, from the Red 39, Reed hit Carter in the left flat with an eyeball toss midway in the fourth quarter. Carter reversed his field cleverly and stomped 61 yards for the last Plymouth score. Reed himself rolled out for the PAT.

Darley completed the scoring with a one-yard buck toward the end of the period after two Sailor passes had split the Red defense.
