Oil flows from well dug to find water

That's black gold in them thin hills!
Just how much it's worth remains to be seen, but drillers for water on the old Kirkpatrick farm south of here, owned by J. Elden and Mahlon Nimmons, hit oil at 72 feet Monday.
The Nimmonses sent for an expert, who took a sample of the viscous fluid oozing from the hole and submitted it for test. His "horseback" opinion was that the oil isn't of good quality, since its color was too dark.
But results of the test will produce a definitive answer, he said, and the Nimmonses await the receipt thereof.

SICKEL AGREES TO DEAL

Better bookkeeping practices drew the attention of village council Tuesday night.
A budget of $188,300.28 to run the village for 1961 was approved.
Hereafter, the council ruled, separate departments will bear the cost of their operation. Up to now, the general fund has paid for costs of separate departments.
Under the new rule, the sewer fund will be charged not only for administrative expense but for labor and materials as well. Water department will pay for the cost of power to run its pumps.
Purchase of a grinder for $64.50 from Ekstein's Hardware was approved. Carleton Ehret proposed to do grading, leaf, rubbish and snow removal and similar work with his equipment, since the village is not able to afford its own. He was told to return with specific figures.
A letter from Albert Berberick requested the village to return the sub-division known as Knoll Crest, created in Park avenue in 1955, to "farm land" since it is too costly to develop. Mr. Berberick told the council he sees little immediate prospect for economic advancement there.
Solicitor Joseph F. Dush is to deal with the request.
On recommendation of the Board of Public Affairs, purchase of a stand-by generator unit costing $700 was approved. President of the Board, Luther R. Fetters, assured the council that overall expense of moving the equipment to Plymouth from Carey and installing it would be less than $300. The unit will provide emergency stand-by power in case of a power interruption to pump water. When transformers are installed, it can be used to assure electricity to the village should the other power source fail.

Said to be "a good buy" from Carey, which replaced its electrical system six months ago, it is in perfect running order and provides the extra power, Fetters said, at a substantially lower cost than connecting the village circuits to Ohio Power Co. lines at the north end of the village. This had been considered several weeks ago.
On inquiry by Councilman Elmer E. Markley, who was told the new traffic signal in front of the high school is not yet operative because of weather conditions and that the driveway into the school is about to be re-graded, council ruled that manual controls will be installed immediately.
Fetters submitted figures of cost of installing electric heat in all village buildings save the water plant. His estimate was $800. (The quotations did not represent solicitations from more than one firm he was directed to inquire further.)
Mayor William Fazio read a letter from the attorney of Dr. George B. Sickel, farm agent for the Bittinger property on which it is proposed to install sewer lagoons. The attorney is also Dr. Sickel's son-in-law. He said the discussion may be carried further if the village will propose consideration and terms. In face of this, it was decided to have the consulting engineers, Alden E. Shiloh and Associates, Ltd., Columbus, survey the tract to determine its size and suitability.

Fetters submitted figures of cost of installing electric heat in all village buildings save the water plant. His estimate was $800. (The quotations did not represent solicitations from more than one firm he was directed to inquire further.)
Mayor William Fazio read a letter from the attorney of Dr. George B. Sickel, farm agent for the Bittinger property on which it is proposed to install sewer lagoons. The attorney is also Dr. Sickel's son-in-law. He said the discussion may be carried further if the village will propose consideration and terms. In face of this, it was decided to have the consulting engineers, Alden E. Shiloh and Associates, Ltd., Columbus, survey the tract to determine its size and suitability.

THE VOICE OF THE ADVERTISER

"I wholly reject what you say, but I shall defend unto death your right to say it."
— Francis Marie Arquet
(Voltaire)

Have we lost skill of reading to TV?

Bran Dijkstra, a young student of journalism in Ohio State university, published in the Daily Lantern, student newspaper, the results of a reading survey of 140 university students, mostly juniors and seniors.

The average score was 28 of a possible 100. The lowest score — zero — was made by a senior in agriculture. The highest — 60 — went to a junior majoring in French literature.

Young Mr. Dijkstra found the response to the most general question to be the most shocking. It was "Give the names of three of your favorite books".

He wrote: "A sizeable number could not even name three books that they remembered reading and enjoying. In some cases only two books were listed, or one. Several knew none."

Machiavelli's "The Prince" had 36 readers among the group of 150. Fifty-eight knew that Goethe wrote "Faust". That Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote "The Scarlet Letter" was correctly answered by 85 students. Several thought H. G. Wells wrote "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and only 42 identified the correct author, Edmund Gibbon.

Only 79 identified "Moby Dick" with Herman Melville; some gave credit to Herman Wouk, Charles Dickens and Jules Verne. A total of 111 said they had read "Hamlet".

Most familiar "The Origin of Species", by Charles Darwin, correctly identified by 125 students.

Mr. Dijkstra concludes that "few students seem to feel any incentive to read good books on their own initiative."

These findings cannot by any means be applied to all college students, or to students at all institutions. But an Ohio taxpayer who supports the state university, whether he likes it or not, and the public libraries, on the same basis, ought to be chagrined.

Which brings to mind that every week is local book week. The splendid little library here has a competent staff to help you find a good book, one which amuse, divert, instruct, provoke or inspire you. It would be a good time to start a good habit: read a book a week.

Sir:

Thanks to Dr. Butler of Shiloh, I am receiving The Advertiser every week and I am surprised at the names I recognize after so many years.

I was so intrigued with the picture of old timers in last week's issue and I knew all but two of them — Christy Weber, Holtz, Sam Nimmons, either a Bachrach or a Kapenberg, and Karl Webber.

My father was Peter Lofland and several weeks ago there was a picture of the "old Square" — and there he was! I think it wonderful you print those things of the good old days. They bring back fond memories and I enjoy them.

Haven't been back for some time but when I do I shall surely call on you at your place of business.

Your paper is interesting and I enjoy some parts of each issue.

Most sincerely,
Adele Lofland Van Horn
