

Coon wins plaque as 'citizen of 1960'

Maynard J. Coon, executive head of Plymouth schools since 1951, was awarded the third annual Carl M. Lofland Memorial Citizenship plaque by Plymouth Chamber of Commerce Thursday night.

J. Elden Mimmons, chairman of the board of Peoples National bank, who won the plaque last year, made the presentation during the Chamber's fifth birthday dinner.

Born on a farm near Bluffton, Mr. Coon is a product of Bluffton High school and of Bluffton college. He holds a master of arts degree in education from Ohio state university.

A veteran of service as a lieutenant (j. g.) in a mine sweeper during World War II, Mr. Coon is married to the former Irene Bogan of North Robinson. He is the father of two daughters and a son.

He was cited for continuing high service to education and community responsibilities, "making Plymouth a better place to live and bring up our children." He is superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school, a member of the church choir, immediate past C. C. of Plymouth Cub Pack No. 1, member of the Boy Scout troop committee, president of the Mansfield Area School Administrators association, and a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Former 17th district Congressman Robert W. Levering (D-Fredricksburg) delivered the principal address. Describing a two-week tour of active duty as a reserve Army officer which he completed in December, 1960, Levering said he found Greek army personnel to be making a "manful effort to make proper use of American material. There is a strong rivalry and jealousy, he charged, between Turks and Pakistanis in CENTO, the Middle East NATO, and he implied this is not good for peace. Spain's soldiers are vigorous and enthusiastic, but Spanish officer corps is over-age.

"It is not a question of winning or losing," he said, "it is a question of surviving, Charles (Malik, the Lebanese delegate to the UN, said, 'The West is too soft.' I shouldn't go so far as to say that. But I do say it is time for us to re-examine and to re-dedicate ourselves to the principles of our great republic."

About 85 attended the dinner, during which Orva Danvers sang two solos accompanied by John Arndt, and Cynthia Snodgrass and Diane Amstutz sang single solos. Jerry Bishop, high school science instructor, played two solos.

Pulpit view of religion in schools is adverse

First public statement of clerical attitude toward religion in the public schools came Sunday from the pulpit of the Rev. Moss Eustace, pastor of First Presbyterian church.

As part of his regular sermon, he said, "Why do we persist in doing that which we know to be unconstitutional and illegal in the teaching of religious instruction in our public schools?"

The Advertiser learned Monday that at least two ministers have opposed the Northern Richland County Council for Religious Education in its plans for training followed by it. Referring to an informal opinion of the Ohio attorney general rendered at the request of the Medina county board of education, the ministers say the adverse opinion applies in Richland county as well.

The lay members of the council deny this. They assert the opinion, if it exists (copies may be examined in The Advertiser office) applies only to Medina county. Religious instruction is still carried on in Plymouth schools.

21 musicians rated single 'superior', nine 'excellent'

A superior, nine excellent and two very goods were the harvest of 21 Plymouth High school musicians' Lenten-ville Saturday, taking part in the solo and ensemble contests of District VII, Ohio Music Educators' association.

New rules apply this year. None of the Plymouth participants is eligible for the state contest. A superior rating in Class A is required to enter the state contest.

Entrants are grouped according to relative difficulty of their music: A, very difficult; B, moderately difficult; C, moderate.

CLASS A ENTRANTS WERE Marcia MacMichael, baritone saxophone solo, excellent; Benjamin Root, French horn solo, excellent; Carlo Sloan, flute solo, very good.

Class B entrants were Shirley Hawk, clarinet solo, superior; clarinet quartet of Miss Hawk, Mary Blackford, Diana Belt and Sharon Dye, very good; Nancy MacMichael, oboe solo, excellent; Judith Fetters, saxophone solo, excellent; trombone trio of Kenneth Turner, Gail Amund and Louise Newmyer, excellent.

Class C entrants included the flute trio of Miss Sloan, Kay Forsythe and Dorothy Stoodt, rated excellent. Vocal participants were Denna Amstutz, class B, excellent; girls' ensemble, class B, very good; Shirley Hawk and Cynthia Snodgrass, class C, excellent.

TREE FALLS IN ROAD

A large tree fell from the south side of Route 603 at the east edge of the village Monday at 10 a. m. and blocked the highway until it could be sawn and removed.

BUCKEYE FARMERS 4-H club observed National 4-H week this week. Brass of the unit, whose adviser is John

David Trout, president; Mearl McDougal, health chairman; Loyd Sloan, secretary, Warren McDougal, news reporter.

Condemnation of lagoon site to start with search of title

Steps to acquire land of the Bittinger farm north of Plymouth were launched by village council Tuesday night.

It authorized Solicitor Joseph F. Dush to proceed with the first step in condemnation action: engaging of title search experts to prepare a description of the property desired.

Sewer lagoons will be installed on the land when condemnation is complete.

Impact of youth upon village services, not all of it bad, occupied the council for nearly an hour.

Jack E. McQuate, social studies teacher in the junior high school at Shiloh, asked permission to teach eight civic pupis to village functions for a day so they may learn more about government in action. One pupil each will "serve" as mayor, clerk, chief of police and attitudes superintendent. Three will "serve" as councilmen and an eighth as editor of The Advertiser.

To this request the council acceded with pleasure. President John T. Dick observed, "Chances are the council can't get a conclusion from these youngsters." Mr. 21 was set for youth day.

Favorable aspects of this discussion tended to override the adverse impact of the previous one, governing use of village rest rooms because they are not open. Councilman Dick reported the plate glass window in a door of the men's rest room had been kicked out, apparently by juveniles, said to be from Crestline and Willard.

"You won't find any Plymouth kids there."

"What's the source of all this?" he asked. "S. Lillo's, that's what it is. 'You won't find any Plymouth kids there.'"

We never had any of this before." He was referring to a teen-age dancing hall operated by Frank Lillo four doors south of the village hall, where the rest rooms are located.

Council's consensus was that lack of adequate rest room facilities in the dance hall is a partial cause of its difficulties with the village rest rooms, which are now locked at 5 p. m. to prevent depredations. Councilman Vanassdale was delegated to confer with Lillo to relieve this problem.

Mayor William Fazio said the police department which now has two full time officers, is trying hard to detect depredators of the rest rooms but hasn't been able to trap any so far.

A POLICY GOVERNING levels of driveways was agreed upon. Sidewalks across driveways may slope not more than 1.25 inches per running foot in each longitudinal direction and must be level laterally in the direction of the driveway. An advance on first half real estate collections was requested of Richland County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

Appraised by D. James Crawford, architect, for Peoples National bank, that a provision of the state building code insists upon a three-foot platform for outside entries to staircases, the council reversed its position on the bank's request to install the window with a 36-inch platform.

Whether remodeling of the council chamber, to include removal of the north wall and installation of a heating system for the entire building, will be undertaken now was tabled. An estimate of $600 for a heating system, exclusive of chimney, was reported by Councilman Donald H. Levering.

Cemetery board is considering acquisition of new land for expansion purposes and will coordinate its planning with the board of public affairs, which needs a site for a new standpipe.

Bacterial analysis of the village water supply was reported to be satisfactory by the state health department, which said hardness of treated water was "rather high" — 260 parts per million total hardness.

148 years of service to F-R-H

In a mass retirement ceremony at Fato-Root-Heath Co., five men got checks in lieu of watches. From the left, Oliver

Lamoureux, 27 years in tractor and lawnmower divisions; Alexander Mitchell, 38 in lawnmower division; James Alexander, 47 in foundry; John A. Root, William Oney, 16 in the foundry, Charles Cole, 20 in the foundry.

Future of Wilkins unsettled; ease out

What will become of Wilkins Air Force station, Shelby, was still up in the air this week.

Only bid to lease all or part of the buildings on the 491-acre site was received from Allied Tire & Rubber Co., Washington, D.C. It was for $500 for one year's lease of one of the 83 buildings.

U.S. District Army Engineers, Louisville, Ky., said the bid was insufficient to warrant consideration by the federal government and rejected it.

Appraisers assigned by the General Services Administration are now on the site in Shelby to ascertain what is the value of the site and buildings so that bids may be received in September to sell the whole plant.

The Advertiser was told by a usually reliable source this week that National Distillers, Inc., and an automobile firm, ostensibly Chrysler, have expressed interest in acquiring the site and buildings.

It is understood that interest of National Distillers, Inc., is not connected with alcohol distillation or the whiskey business. National Distillers has of late been broadening its risk base and is heavily invested, in some cases with controlling interest in other, non-alcohol industries.

That GSA has assigned appraisers is regarded as routine by some "old government hands". Others, on the outside of the government, speculate that appraisers wouldn't have been detailed to the job if the government does not intend to sell.

Sale of the site to private owners would be a tax duplicate windfall for Sharon township, amounting probably to $3.5 million.

Vote to prolong benefits divided

A vote for extension of unemployment benefits was cast in Washington this week by Rep. Charles A. Mosher (R-Oberlin), he said Saturday.

Oberlin, Rep. John M. Ashbrook (R-Johnstown) was one of two Republicans and 36 in the House to vote against the bill.

Innocent, say two of drunk charges

Two Plymouth residents were arrested by Huron county sheriff's department on charges of drunkenness last week.

Woodrow Arnett, 44, 121 1/2 East Main street, entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. He posted bond of $500.

Lonnie Caudill, 47, Plymouth route 1, was charged with public intoxication. He pleaded not guilty and posted bond of $250.

Nostalgic ex-pupils can buy desk for $1

Former pupils of Shiloh schools with a touch of nostalgia for the old days can satisfy that yearning for exactly $1.

Charles Guthrie and Marion Hughes, custodians of the Shiloh buildings, will sell an old desk to former pupils for that price.

Garden clubs, civic groups, patriotic organizations and private citizens are invited to consider landscaping needs of the high school addition and the new Shiloh Elementary center. Gordon Riggle, a 1926 graduate of Plymouth High school who's now a landscape architect, has prepared a plan. About $2,500 is needed to implement it. Donors can specify which site is to be improved by their gifts to the clerk of the board of education, Mrs. Kenneth Myers.

Pre-school clinic, for children whose sixth birthdays occur prior to Sept. 16, 1961, will be conducted at Shiloh May 4 and at Plymouth May 18. Parents of such children should notify principals of the schools, Harold E. Daup at Shiloh, John Fazzini at Plymouth.

In observance of Good Friday, all schools will close Mar. 31.

THE VOICE OF THE ADVERTISER

A sound way to help

Seized of hundreds of measures, some of them important ones, the Ohio Legislature probably isn't interested in taking a tiger by the tail.

But it is clear to us that some action must soon be taken to permit counties which are relatively poor in industry to finance industrial parks with which to attract industry.

Some states have already undertaken such programs, notably Tennessee. As the law stands now, most experts seem agreed, Ohio counties cannot divert public moneys to the alienation of land for installation of facilities for an industrial park. But it's done in Tennessee, and successfully, too.

The measure need not be elaborate. What's needed is authority for counties to vote a lawful tax upon their property owners to provide funds with which to buy lands and improve them for the purpose intended.

Consider the situation in Huron county, for one. By popular vote, land adjoining the Baltimore, & Ohio railroad, for example, could be purchased by a county fund and improved with water, electricity, sewer and highways so that it becomes attractive to new industry.

This will enable the county to engage experts to induce responsible industry to locate on that site. The fund need not be a net drain upon the county or its tax payers. The law should be drafted so that the county can negotiate with new industry to recover all or at least part of its cost over the long term, thus permitting industry to avail itself of tax forgiveness and advantages by leasing until it is ready and able to buy.

Location should be no problem. Let the tax valuation of the industry, as soon as it begins to pay taxes, be distributed among the political sub-divisions of the county in accordance with a reasonable formula: perhaps in direct proportion to tax valuation, perhaps a combination of both. In this fashion, if the site chosen should be distant from a large city, that fact would be no detriment to that city because it would participate in the tax revenues.

It's obvious there's not now enough industry to go around. But everybody agrees that more industry (which means more tax valuation, and spreading of the load) and more jobs are required during the 1960's. One way of encouraging new industry to organize is to make it relatively profitable for it to do so.

Industry's just as essential in Huron, or Adams, or Monroe county as in, say, Lucas, Cuyahoga, Franklin or Summit.

In fact, it would be to the advantage of citizen-taxpayers in heavily industrialized counties to see to it that new industry locates in less industrialized areas. It would mean that residents of the latter districts would begin to carry their own share of the load for schools, for example. (Note that in Huron county the state's share of public schooling slightly exceeds 45 per cent, in other counties its share is as low as 20 per cent.)

It's the fashion these days for the Legislature to be occupied, even preoccupied, with stopgap measures to cope with today's problems. But today's are as nothing compared with tomorrow's if we do not do something to:

1. Establish nearly a million new jobs in Ohio before 1970.
2. Raise the tax base in about two thirds of the 88 counties.
3. Improve the opportunities of the "coasters" — speaking of taxpayers — to become "carriers". The advantages of government and its services accrue to all. Everybody should support it nearly equally.

Be sure it comes home!

Ohioans began to purchase license tags for motor vehicles last week.

The procedure is fairly simple. Deputy registrars are invariably courteous and helpful and many of them exceed requirements by reserving familiar numbers for those who've displayed them for many years.

The desire to have certain numbers, which may not be issued by the deputy registrar at home, and membership in the county automobile clubs tend to deprive the taxing district of residence of the applicant of some valuable revenues.

So it's important for the applicant — the owner of the vehicle or his agent — to specify clearly the name of his taxing district on the application form. If he lives in Monroe township, Adams county, he should so state, even if he applies for and receives his license tags in Cleveland.

By doing this, he insures that tax revenues intended for distribution to his taxing district are in fact sent there. It costs him not one cent, save the time and effort to set down the name of his taxing district.

Failure to do so may eventually mean supplementary taxes by the duly constituted authority of the tax district to make up for revenues thus lost.

SUZIE SEZ . . .

I know a way to get rich quickly, easily and honestly.

I will gladly join up with somebody who will provide what Pop calls the "donkey work" and I will split some of the profits with him.

This is my plan. I will make a deal with every museum, every railroad station, every airport, every big restaurant, and any other place where people gather. Like sports arenas, to install a fountain with pond.

In it I will put a few goldfish that I can buy at the five-and-ten very cheaply. And I will have some signs made up that say something like 'The Wishing Fountain. Throw a coin in here and make a wish — Guaranteed to come True!'

Of course, I have no way of guaranteeing that your wish will come true. But people being what they are, they don't like to admit they ever made a real wish that didn't or couldn't come true. And besides, I won't make any promise that the wish will come true in a certain time, so when somebody claims his wish doesn't come true, I can simply tell him to wait a while.

Every fountain that I ever saw was just loaded with pennies, nickels and dimes. Some quarters, but never any half dollars. And of course, no dollar bills.

But I am sure that in a year I would have the cost of the fountain paid off. Then I could start to get rich. I would have to clean the fountains out once in awhile. Also,

I would have to see to it the fish stay alive. I read in a paper that so many coins have been thrown into the fountain at the new hotel at London airport that the goldfish suffocated.

The more I think about this, the more I think it is a peachy idea.

Only one thing bothers me. Can I sleep with myself knowing that I am making a fortune upon somebody else's miseries?

Doctors, dentists and lawyers do. Why can't I?

BY THE JOHN ASHBROOK 17th District

In my opinion, a hoax is being perpetrated on the American people. They are being told they can have free medical care at 65 and that it will only cost a few cents a day. They are also assured that it is not socialized medicine and it will be accomplished through the "time tested" social security system. As a sidelight to this conflict, proponents of socialized medicine have engaged in open warfare with the free medical profession. It seems to me some plain logic should be used on this issue rather than a resort to emotional outbursts and tirades.

In the first place, we are being told that we can have all of this for "a few cents a day." The proponents are covering up the fact that the few cents a day being paid into the fund may not even cover the costs for those who would immediately get benefits, let alone, life insurance, pay up "our own policy." I think experience would show the contribution rate would pay more than one-half the immediate cost and it would be necessary to hike the contribution rate substantially every year or two—then we would only be keeping abreast of outgo and not "paying up," as they put it. Bear in mind this will be paid by those who may not benefit for as much as 50 years.

The president has told us this will not be paid by the taxpayers—only by employers, employees and the self-employed. These three groups of people pay most of the taxes of which I am aware.

It is alleged this is not socialized medicine. Once the medical care proposal is established and the principle of government responsibility adopted for those over 65, it will only be a matter of time until those under 18 are covered, since they aren't productive as well. And then in due course we'll add between 18 and 65. Even the president said in his message this is a "modest program" and a "foundation on which to build." When we compel our citizens to go into this program and force them to pay for it whether they need it or not, I feel you have socialized medicine. The biggest departure in this bill is the theory that we take care of people regardless of need. The Kerr-Mills bill, passed in the last session, gives actual aid to the needy. We all accept the necessity of caring for those who can't care for themselves. But this program isn't based on need. The Socialist party seems to answer the question whether this is socialized medicine in its Dec. 1, 1950 paper, "New America." It says, "Once the Forand bill is passed the nation will be provided with a mechanism for socialized medicine, capable of indefinite expansion in every direction which it includes the entire population."

Above all, the champions of centralized government want it financed through the mechanism of social security because of its "simplicity" and the fact it is "time tested." I think we are "pre-paying" some sense on this point. We all want social security to be sound so that it will assist those who will retire in the future. Every signal points in a warning manner. We are already promising more than we are paying for. Disbursements exceeded income by $216 million in fiscal 1958 and by $1,271 billion in fiscal 1959, according to House Document 352 of the 86th Congress. Yet there are those who try to create the illusion we are "pre-paying" or this is "paid-up" insurance.

Ponder on these figures. At the beginning, social security payments represented 1 per cent from both employee and employer or a total of 2 per cent on the first $3,000 of taxable earnings. Now the tax stands at a total of 6.2 per cent on $4,800 and 3.75 per cent for self-employed persons.

DON'T let PLYMOUTH slip through your fingers!

31% of village revenue in 1960 was paid directly by retail business

The 56 going retail establishments in Plymouth paid — in full — 31 cents of every dollar of revenue reported by the village clerk during 1960.

Add to it the share of that revenue paid by industry — approximately 21 per cent — and it's plain that unless the retail establishment AND industry can prosper, we shall be unable to pay for the administrative, protection and utility services we enjoy every day.

Frankly, the citizen owes the retailer nothing. Certainly nothing he doesn't earn.

Retailers do earn their way. They do more than open their doors and smile once in a while.

They stand behind their merchandise.

They bring to the consumer a fair selection of items and seek to steer him toward those goods which advance and enhance his standard of living, which make life easier and happier. They utilize methods and techniques which are moral, honest and responsible. These methods are applied in the open, for all to see.

For this, they ask no more than that they be given a fair and reasonable opportunity to demonstrate these facts to the consumers whose welfare they are paying for, at a rate and in a volume disproportionate to what to what they receive in return.

Retail business certainly doesn't get 31 per cent of the police or fire protection of the village. Nor does it get 31 per cent of the street repair, to mention but three of the more expensive services.

A dynamic society such as ours is built upon goings and comings. A restless people will go hither and yon to see, to hear, to do. And when it is seeing, hearing and doing, it will spend money.

Retail businesses know this. Their proprietors and managers often do it themselves. But they have a right to expect they be allowed a fair opportunity to serve.

MAKE THEM SERVE! DEMAND SERVICE! TELL THEM WHEN YOU DON'T GET SERVICE, whether as to the quality, quantity, color, size, price or the terms. They'll thank you for telling them. BUT GIVE THEM THAT OPPORTUNITY!

Madeleine Smith weds Joseph McClure in Bucyrus; to live in Schenectady, N. Y.

Miss Madeleine H. Smith became the bride of Joseph F. McClure Friday at 3:30 p.m. in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Bucyrus.

The Rev. M. P. Patznick, former pastor of Plymouth First Evangelical Lutheran church, read the vows.

Seven branched candelabra lighted bouquets of blue carnations with daffodils and yellow gladioli.

An organ prelude was played at the guests were seated by Thomas McClure, the bridegroom's son, and H. James Root. The bride's nephew, John A. Smith, was a junior usher.

Escorted by her brother, J. Benjamin Smith, the bride wore a simply designed candlelight shade lace gown. The full short skirt fell from garters at her waist. The bodice was fashioned with a low scooped neckline and short sleeves. Her only jewelry was a pearl and diamond droplet necklace with matching earrings, the gift of the bridegroom. A lace mantilla covered her head and fell to her shoulders. Made of imported French lace, it was interspersed with a pattern of flowers. Short white gloves completed her costume. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid in its center.

Miss Jean Ann Cornell was maid of honor. She wore white organza embroidered with small yellow flowers. The ballerina length skirt was full and the bodice had a full scooped neckline and cap sleeves. A yellow sash from each side of her waist. She came to the back and fell into long wide streamers down the back of the skirt. Her hat was a small flat crown of yellow blossoms with a wide circular veil. She carried a short spray arrangement of daffodils and pussy willows.

THE BRIDE'S SISTER-IN-LAW, Mrs. J. Benjamin Smith, was her bridesmaid. Her gown was similar to that of the maid of honor with turquoise embroidered flowers. She wore a matching hat and veil and carried a spray of blue carnations with grape hyacinths and pussy willows.

Jane Smith was her aunt's flower girl. She was attired in a short full-skirted white dress. Eyelet embroidery ran in bands across the bodice and skirt. A sash tied in a large bow at the back of her waist. With a small lace edged collar, and her little sleeves were puffed. She wore a small flat crown of white flowers with a circular veil and carried a basket of daffodils and blue carnations.

A RECEPTION FOR THE immediate families and close friends of the couple was held afterward at the Elks club. Bouquets of yellow and blue decorated the rooms. The bridal table held a two tiered cake decorated in the same colors. The base of it was encircled with carnations and daffodils and a small bridal couple were on the top tier.

Mrs. W. L. Cornell assisted the guests. Mollie McClure, the bridegroom's daughter, was in charge of the guest book.

The new Mrs. McClure is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard M. Cornell and Mrs. W. L. Cornell.

A man's suit seems a simple thing—but, on the average, it requires some 7,000 square inches of material along with 8,000 square inches of inner fabric, up to 16 buttons, 565 yards of thread and 150,000 stitches. You want all this material put together properly so that your suit will give you long, good-looking wear. Here are some things to watch for when buying your next suit:

- Look for a two ply fabric, which is resilient and will hang back in shape after each wearing. (If you're in doubt, check the label or ask your salesman.)
- Turn the inside belt out. Be sure it's stiff enough to keep the waist line wrinkle free.
- Hold the suit coat out at arm's length, and check the lining. It shouldn't hang or pull.
- Look for buttonholes that are closely and evenly stitched.
- Check stitching throughout the suit for evenness and strength.
