

Vandalism

Vandalism reported elsewhere today is often written off by adults as "youthful hell raising" and such.

It should not be. Damage was done, severe damage, and reimbursement is proper. This was done, if we understand correctly.

But this was not the only wrong done. A number of well-disciplined youngsters got a black eye because of a few.

Whether it was proper for juveniles to be tried outside a juvenile court is a question we'll beg, for the time being. But we wonder if the public interest would not be best served by public disclosure of the names of the vandals, since it is obvious malicious intent was involved.

Ted Davis

The death of "Ted" Davis leaves us all poorer.

The great pity is that he did not formally occupy the resplendent new post office quarters as postmaster, which was planned for Monday morning.

He was more than a postmaster and a grocer. He was a confidant to many, a friend to even more. Doubtless his books do not record all of those to whom he extended help when times were tough.

We are thankful he did not long suffer. Death apparently came to him painlessly in his sleep. It came on the eve of a great event in his life, for he had said he planned to retire from the grocery and continue only with his postmaster's job.

We can ill afford his loss. His shoes will not be easy to fill. He was a gentleman, quiet and unassuming, always helpful, always courteous, always kind, a good scout through and through.

Council to meet with Stilson once more

By 4 to 2 vote, village council Tuesday night moved to summon its consulting engineers, Alden E. Stilson & Associates, Ltd., Columbus, to "resolve conflicts in methods of sewage collection and treatment".

At the same time, Stilson will be asked to say how much it will cost the village to discontinue his services.

Councilman Donald E. Akers, who said he "knows how the citizens' committee feels about this", and Councilman Elmer E. Markley, who said he "wants the solicitor's opinion on the Stilson contract before he goes further, voted against the motion offered by Council President John T. Dick.

It came after a 94-minute hearing of Carl H. Gerken, Napoleon, summoned by the council to discuss possibilities of his engagement to replace Stilson.

What the council learned from Gerken included:

- 1. He feels he must consult his professional association, the Maumee Valley Society of Professional Engineers, to determine whether it would be proper for him to "submit a draft contract stating fee scales so long as the village is still under contract to Stilson.

2. The general proposal of two lagoons measuring 10 acres is "perfectly satisfactory for the village as it now stands — you don't need any more." Soil conditions at the site are also satisfactory.

3. It is his view there would be no lesser amount of federal participation in financing the project because of the change to lagoon oxidation technique.

4. Engineering cost estimates are useful primarily to assist a municipality in financing the plan, but bid prices filed by contractors determine actual costs and the engineering fees. Therefore, higher estimates do not necessarily mean higher costs.

John Selby, Columbus, an attorney with ex-Senator John W. Bricker, was present to represent Stilson.

Councilman Akers, himself an attorney, said he resented the presence of "counsel instead of a member of the engineering firm." Selby replied his principals were detained elsewhere and that he knew little of the details of Stilson's relationship with Plymouth. In any case, he said, Stilson feels a "natural interest in what the council does by reason of its contract relationship."

Selby laid before the council

First aid course set

Standard American Red Cross first aid class will begin in the fire house Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Robert Garrett, instructor, reports the course will be of six weeks' duration, on Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

"Anybody over the age of 14 is welcome to attend the course," he said.

Pirates favored in Homecoming struggle

Prospects for a happy Homecoming at Plymouth High school couldn't be much worse unless it rains tomorrow.

The Big Red — much more red than big these days — takes a poor record into its second North Central Conference struggle in Mary Fae park tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Black River's Pirates, coached by Jack Purtell, with an explosive offense that has scored in all three outings and a defense that held vaunted Buckeye to a 12 to 6 score, are likewise without victory. The forecast is they'll go home to Lorain, Ashland and Mansfield counties — Black River is a consolidation of Spencer, Sullivan and Homerville — with a 12-point win.

Coach Bill Ramseyer affirmed "there's going to be some changes in this team this week. I promise you that," when he met his squad Monday. He was keenly disappointed with the Red's performance at Berlin Heights.

"We could have beaten Colonel Crawford," he claimed, "and while Margaretta was too tough, the score shouldn't have been that big. We should have taken Berlin Heights by the same score they took us."

Just what changes he will make wasn't clear yesterday. There's no doubt he's keeping the more experienced players in question as to who'll start because he feels they need to show more skill.

A REDHEADED SENIOR, Karen Huston, will be Homecoming queen. Her attendants are Shirley Hall, Class of 1962; Jean Butler, Class of 1963; Natalie Faust, Class of 1964, and Linda Eichelberry, Class of 1965.

The queen and court will be attired in snappy red suits with red shoes and white gloves. They'll be presented to the crowd — such of it that's still loyal as Saturday's exhibition — before the game.

Black River has been beaten by Avon, Milan and Buckeye. Milan proved surprisingly strong in rolling up a big score against the Corsairs in the first three periods Saturday before Black River was able to get touchdowns against the Milan reserves.

A Homecoming ball will be staged in the gymnasium after the game. Graduates and friends are invited. The queen and her court will appear in white formal attire.

Trailer tax revised, set on value

All laws affecting house trailer taxes will change on Jan. 1, Huron County Auditor Bernard F. Kean announces.

Thereafter house trailers will be registered with the county auditor on or before Jan. 1, or upon entry into the county from out of state, or upon acquisition subsequent to Jan. 1.

The new tax will be computed on a formula of original cost and improvements, less an annual depreciation, multiplied by 40 per cent to determine taxable value. The rate then prevailing in the taxing district where the trailer is located will be used to determine the amount of tax. The only exception will be when the computation of the tax is less than $18. That amount becomes the minimum tax.

The tax will be assessed by the county auditor and collector by the county treasurer. The first half of the tax is due 30 days after Jan. 1 and the second half on or before Oct. 1. There will be a penalty for each day's delay in payment.

Failure to register house trailers with the county auditor will result in heavy fines. Operators of trailer camps, or owners of land where a trailer is located, will be required to keep records as to date of arrival and departure. These will be open to inspection. Forms will be available for this purpose. Failure to comply will result in fines.

Poor relief fund bankrupted, Huron county solons are told Huron county's poor relief fund is bankrupt, Welfare Director George W. Lawrence told the county commissioners Sept. 11.

A half-million levy requested by the commissioners and appearing on the November ballot will produce only the minimum requirement to meet current obligations, Lawrence said.

On Sept. 1, actual cash balance in the poor relief fund was $3,934.55. Outstanding obligations were $25,000 for hospital, medical and drug bills and chargebacks from surrounding counties for services rendered to legal residents of Huron county in the same amount.

In the last four months of 1960, Lawrence reported, the county encumbered $86,000 for poor relief. Added to the indebtedness of $50,000 and the mandatory obligation of $5,000 to the aid for the disabled program, this makes total requirement for the last third of 1961 amount to $141,000.

If we actually pay out that much money," Lawrence said, "the state will match half of it, or $70,500, and together with the balance cash on hand and other resources which will become available during that period, the amount needed from local sources is $77,000. State matching funds are available only if we have paid our bills — they are not available on outstanding obligations, Lawrence said.

For the past 20 years, Lawrence told the commissioners, the poor relief program in the county has been financed 100 per cent from state funds.

"The services we are able to render on the poor relief fund are nothing short of disgraceful," Lawrence said. "We allow an adult in an average family of four persons $12 a month for food. We allow nothing for clothing, nothing for school supplies, nothing for shelter costs, and only a minimum standard of utilities based on a budget provided by the state department of public welfare."

On Sept. 1 the poor relief program was supporting 65 families comprising 306 persons with one or more members of the family able and willing to work if work could be found. There were 11 families in which there is no employable person and eight single persons whose physical condition is so poor they cannot work.

"I HAVE NO OTHER choice than to repeat again that we are bankrupt and to recommend that we announce to the public that we are closing the poor relief department pending a decision by the voters of the county as to whether they want even a minimum of poor relief maintained in Huron county," Lawrence affirmed.

Suzie sez:

When Mom has been away a whole day, she asks one question that Pop always answers the same way. "As soon as she comes in the door, she says 'What interesting thing happened here today that I ought to know about?'" and Pop at a w y a s answers, "Nothing that you ought to know about."

This peeves Mom. Pop says she shouldn't ask the question that way. There are a lot of points in her question, he says. First, she wants to know what was interesting. And then she wants to know what she ought to know about.

"I can say nothing on three different counts," Pop says. "Nothing that was interesting, not to me at least. Nothing that she ought to know about, which is the second count. And nothing in general, which is the third count."

If she wants to know what happened, Pop says, let her ask that and no more. Then when he says "nothing" he is committing himself farther than when he gives the same answer to "what interesting thing happened?" or "What interesting thing happened that I ought to know about?"

I know a peachy story about a family that had the same problem.

A woman who lived in an apartment on the fifth floor of a building without an elevator went to a stable and asked to rent a horse for a whole day. She said she would pay a good price if they would deliver the horse. They agreed and she paid the money. Then she told them to deliver the horse to her address.

Soon the man with the horse rapped on her door and said, "Lady, here's the horse."

"Where?" asked the lady.

"Downstairs," said the man. "Bring him up here," she ordered.

The man looked at her but she finally made him believe she wanted the horse in her apartment. So he went down and with a whip he forced the horse up the stairs.

Then she told him to put the horse in the bathtub.

"But lady," said the man, "he's a pretty big horse and that's an awful little tub!"

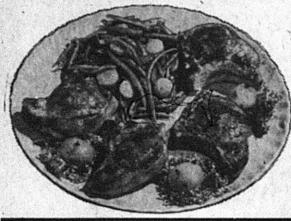

The lady said she was paying an awful big price and he had better put the horse in the tub.

After a few minutes of pushing and pulling, he got the horse in the tub.

He was sweating like a pirate when he came out of the bathroom. "Lady, tell me why you want that horse in the bathtub."

"Well," she answered, "I'll tell you. Every night for 20 years my husband has come home and flopped into his chair with his shoes off and said, 'What's new?' before he goes to sleep. Well, tonight I've got an answer for him!"

I think it's very funny.

Twelve basketball cheerleaders were chosen Monday afternoon at Plymouth High school.

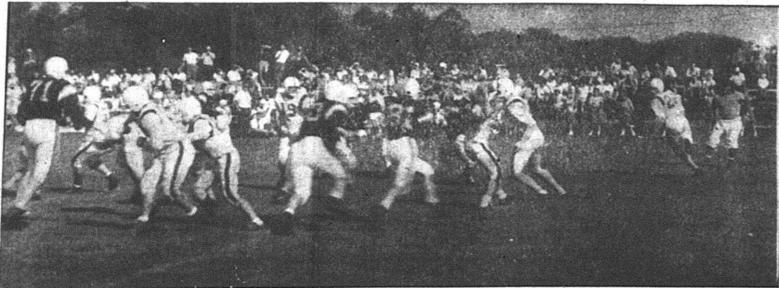

Marcia MacMichael is the cheerleader of the varsity quartet, which also includes Marianne Akers, Barbara Barnhouse and Natalie Faust.

Judith Lewis is cheerleader of the junior varsity yell leaders, who also include Patricia Hughes, Peggy Need and Marcia Russell.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir: We enjoy the old home town paper very much. In its columns we find old friends and places we used to know.

I ran (also ran) for mayor twice. In 1939 I ran on the ticket for a WPA sewer project which would have cost the village about $45,000 including new sidewalks but the voters turned me down. I see by The Advertiser that we will now have to pay 10 times that amount, and in addition we have been paying for all the other WPA projects for the past 20 years.

Sincerely,

Vandals punished by curfew

BY INA BRUMBACH

A number of Shiloh youths have recently been found guilty of vandalism in various parts of Shiloh and are now under curfew.

Two large windows in the new school building were broken, for which they have received orders from the mayor to pay $60 damages. Others have been ordered to clean eggs from six cars, for which dirt they were responsible.

Young men from other localities come here and misbehave.

Several Shiloh women were stung Friday evening when a young man who claimed to be from Mansfield walked through the doors of their homes without invitation and created scenes when not successful in selling magazines.

In a few instances he was asked to leave but refused to go until he was ready.

Mrs. Florence Jones, Indianapolis, Ind., who has been with Mrs. E. J. Stevenson the past few weeks, left Sunday for her home. Her son Paul, and his wife came for her and spent the weekend here.

The Kirby Nesbitt family spent Sunday at McGuffey where they attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Mrs. Nesbitt's parents Mr. and Mrs. Mack Rolston.

Mrs. A. C. Henry and Grover Hamman were in Shelby

Pity the coach who's got 'slow learners' on squad

AN INTERESTING — AND believe valid — observation about high school football was made to the O. T. over the weekend by a longtime fan and teacher. And a woman at that.

"Do you realize," she said, that in many instances the boys big enough to play high school football, at least in smaller high schools, are what we now call 'slow learners'?"

Having had the opportunity to verify the statement by talking with six scouts (all of whom are assistant coaches) and four other coaches during the weekend, the O. T. accepts the observation as valid.

Just how important the fact is, or may be, can be illustrated by these supplemental facts.

Plymouth Coach Bill Ramsey, whose methods continue to impress, hands his players on the Monday preceding a game a four-sheet report of the week's opposition. Each regular opposition player on offense and defense is named by class, size and position. There is a report as to his strong and weak points, perhaps a dozen words of each. There is a detailed diagram of the opposition's offense, perhaps 10 or 15 plays, and of its defense, perhaps five or six formations. What he does on punts, kickoffs and kickoff receptions appears on the sheets.

The player is required to study the sheets and memorize them. Some do well, others less well.

AFTER SEEING ONE SUCH report on Sept. 18, the O. T. remarked, "Anybody who can't make out after he's read one of these simply doesn't have it." To which Billy Young, the little lineman, responded, "You said it, that's absolutely right."

The coach who can see to it that fast learners acquire size and speed before they're juniors will have consistently good teams. The coach who has to cope with slow learners who acquire some size and speed early in their high school careers but not the ability to absorb his teaching swiftly has a rough time of it.

High school football is becoming every year a more intricate endeavor. In the Bowling Green pressbox Friday night, while the Bobcats were downing Cloverleaf, 28 to 14, there were six scouts. At Norwalk, where Shelby whipped the Truickers, there were 10.

If high schools would scout the curricula of their neighbors as well they scout the football teams, perhaps education would advance with greater strides.

Information furnished the O. T. last week was incorrect. Dayton Reed is not the first PHS grad to play varsity football as a college freshman. Larry Schreck served useful time in the Bowling Green backfield as a "freshman 10 years ago."

Tigers trounce Red at Berlin Heights

Berlin Heights Tigers closed out a long relationship with Plymouth there Saturday afternoon by winning a Homecoming contest, 16 to 0.

For Plymouth it was as sad an exhibition of football as a Big Red team has ever put on.

After a scoreless first period, the Tigers punched 73 yards in 12 plays for their first score. Bill Wood broke into the end zone from five yards out, having carried from the 17 in three plays.

Jerry Schulz passed to Wood in the right flat for the PAT. A Plymouth fumble in the next series led to the second touchdown. Consecutive off-side penalties set the Tigers back to their 35 at the kickoff. Gary Utiss fielded the final boot on his 13, where he was thrust out of bounds. After one first down, the only one Plymouth was able to record in the first half, Jimmy Hamman was hit while seeking to pass and Berlin Heights recovered the fumble.

This occurred on the Plymouth 24. Wood was in for the TD in six plays. Schulz rolled out for the PAT.

PLYMOUTH RECEIVED the second half kickoff and showed some signs of life. Nine plays took the Red from its own 29 to the Tiger 44, but Hamman sought to pass on fourth down and was smeared for a five-yard loss.

Plymouth was never again in the ball game. It put the ball into play only 14 times after that, in both periods, fumbled and lost the ball twice and showed a net gain of 13 yards on the ground and 10 in the air.

The Tigers, meanwhile, seemed able to move at will, notably on third down, and save for a magnificent goal line stand by the Red in the fourth period, when the Tigers had first down inside the two, had it all to themselves.

Coach Bill Ramsey showed his disappointment with the squad during the intermission. He said a word or two, caustically, and left the team.
