

Drifting snows maroon village; schools shut

Sub-zero temperatures follow storm; some foodstuffs in short supply

The worst snowstorm in seven years blanketed Plymouth and environs last week, cutting the village off from the outside world for nearly 24 hours and snarling traffic for twice that long.

Result: no casualties, numerous hours of shoveling and plowing, no mail deliveries for a day, about 35 automobiles and trucks stuck in drifts in the village proper, and some loss of work time because workers couldn't get to where the work was.

One hospital patient, Mrs. Harold Crouse, loaded into an ambulance shortly after 5 a.m. Friday, was returned to her home in Trux street when the ambulance driver found drifts in Route 61 opposite the Bachrach farm too deep to negotiate.

A 12-YEAR-OLD BOY IN Plymouth public schools was missing from about 6 p.m. Thursday to 10 a.m. Friday and reported as such to the Richland county sheriff by his father at 5 a.m. Friday.

Investigation by school authorities showed the boy had gone home with a chum because the storm was so severe. There being no telephone communication between where he was staying and his own home, he could not notify his parents.

He was Harold Smedley, Jr., son of the Harold Smedleys, Sr., London East road, who went home with Francis Peiffer, a ninth grade pupil, after attending basketball practice at Shiloh.

His coach, Richard Carpenter, asked the boy if he wished to ride home. The boy declined, saying he would go with chums.

VILLAGE STREET CROWS worked around the clock Thursday night and throughout Friday, while the storm was at its height, to clear streets and alleys.

Total snowfall locally was had gone to see his son, Air-variouly measured. Consensus of estimates: eight inches.

But some drifts were up to five feet in depth, even in the village. A big one in front of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church at Hoffman and Sandusky street was hip deep on a grown man early Friday.

One-way traffic in Route 61 between here and New Haven was established early Saturday. Drifting snow in the highway opposite the Frank V. Smith residence and further south in front of the Beach farm prevented passage along that important artery. How important it is was shown by the number of employees of the B&O railroad, Pioneer Rubber Co., R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co. and Midwest Industries, all in Willard, who were marooned here.

Workers at Fisher Body division, General Motors Corp., Ontario, who set out for their employment Friday morning, reported they got as far as the village dump before drifts stopped them. Both Routes 61 and 98 were obstructed through most of Friday.

SOME PLYMOUTHITES were marooned out of town. Mrs. Robert N. MacMichael, a nurse in Willard Memorial hospital, had to stay there. Robert Lewis was forced to remain in Shelby, whence he man Richard Lewis, a patient in the hospital there, because of deep snow.

Others fought driving snow and drifts to make it home Thursday night. Among these were Robert I. Bachrach and Milton E. Mellott, who encountered great difficulty in driving from Findlay to Plymouth Thursday night. So were the A. L. Paddocks, Jr., who drove from Lodi in two cars over treacherous Route 224. Mrs. Paddock had called home to say she was marooned for the night at Lodi because of drifts and roads obstructed by stalled trucks.

Fearful she would be marooned there longer than overnight (which fears proved correct), she started home. Mr. Paddock set out from Plymouth in a smaller, foreign car to meet her and guide her through the storm. Travelling at about the same speed, she covered 14 miles, to a point two miles west of Sullivan, while he covered 26 miles.

Mail trucks resumed deliveries here Saturday morning. House-to-house delivery of mail was not halted during the storm, although volume of mail received naturally affected the service.

TO ADD INSULT TO INJURY, more snow fell Sunday night and throughout Monday, forcing schools to remain closed another two days.

How poorly a small community is prepared for such an emergency was illustrated late Saturday, when retailers reported low food supplies. Bread, milk and meat were in shortest supply. In Attica, a retailer who was without bread supplies spotted a truck operated by a door-to-door retailer loaded with bread.

He asked for delivery and offered to pay the going price. He was turned down, whereupon he called a state highway patrolman, who ordered the bread truck to unload its supplies in Attica and accept payment there.

One retailer here, habitually closed on Sundays, took compassion on a suffering public and opened for five hours. He reported a lively business with no other notification to his customers than a sign in front of his store.

Meat arrived here by truck Monday, some of it from jobbers and some of it sent for by retailers.

But bread and similar supplies, demand for which was accentuated because children were at home instead of in school, remained in short supply. Sales of flour climbed, retailers reported.

One householder suggested to his wife that she could bake bread and she frankly confessed she didn't know how. Another householder said he tasted fresh-baked bread for the first time since before he was married, some 23 years.

PLYMOUTHITES WHO work in Willard were informally warned Monday toward noon that Route 61 might not remain open later in the day. Many of them turned in time cards in advance of the quitting hour and came home.

About 40 local persons were marooned in Shelby or Willard during last week's storm. Most of them told an Advertiser reporter they were struck with "the common decency of everyone we met — they wouldn't take any money for the lodging or the food we ate."

Blue laws

We had hoped the decision of the electorate on the Lawson amendment would end, rather than re-kindle, controversy over the blue laws. It was a sort of foolish hope, perhaps, because things were going along hereabouts without much objection to what was open on Sunday and what wasn't.

Now the furore is raging and the issue is more joined now than it ever was. Why a law enforcement officer should feel he must now make arrests under a statute that he blithely ignored for so long is something we won't easily understand. To administer law and order by public pressure is no way to do business. It would be the same if the basketball referee should call a foul against the visitors because the home crowd is yelling for it.

Huron county's prosecutor has given what seems to us the soundest opinion in the blue law controversy.

He says he thinks the blue laws are a violation of an individual's privacy. We agree. And he says he doesn't plan to take any action against alleged offenders against the blue laws on his own initiative until the General Assembly approves a clarified law. This makes sense to us.

It's always better to have these things spelled out. The citizen always benefits when proscriptions against his conduct are clearly written and understood.

We believe that if unlimited Sunday openings eventually became the rule, the operators of businesses will soon wish for a change.

We think there won't be any appreciable increase of overall business. Some smaller operators will be forced to close forever. Cost of living seems bound to rise, because the grocer, for example, will need to charge more for a bag of beans if he must make his profit in seven days instead of six.

These are our notions in the matter. Others may have other ideas. What seems proper is that the General Assembly should promptly come to grips with the problem and promulgate new legislation which meets the needs of the citizenry and reflects the changes which have come over us since the blue laws were enacted.

Until this time, there should be a moratorium everywhere against enforcement of the blue laws. It simply isn't fair for one community to enforce the laws and another to ignore them.

Ex-Plymouthite dies in crash

A young Air Force officer who formerly lived here has been pronounced legally dead by a coroner seven miles north of Macwahoc, Me., victim of a crash by his F101B Voodoo fighter-interceptor aircraft.

His radar-intercept officer, Capt. Charles A. McCloud, 27, Mansfield, parachuted to safety.

The dead officer is Capt. Douglas H. Roe, 29, Phoenix, Ariz., who was found dead at the controls of his plane four days after it crashed in the northern Maine wilderness.

A veteran of 1,844 flying hours, young Roe was stationed at Dow Air Force base, Me., near Bangor, where he was assigned three years ago.

When he was younger, he lived here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Roe. His father was an employee of the Fate - Root - Heath Co. His mother was a teacher in Plymouth Elementary and New Haven Elementary schools. The Roes were members of First Presbyterian church until they moved from Plymouth about 15 years ago. They lived in West Broadway. Mrs. Roe is still teaching in Phoenix.

Her son is also survived by three brothers and sisters and his wife, living in Brewer, Me., with their son, Christopher.

License lost in manslaughter

A Shiloh woman charged with second degree manslaughter has received a suspension of driving privileges for six months in Huron county common pleas court.

Plymouth driver is defendant in three suits for damages filed by Atticans as a result of a rear-end collision at Willard. Plaintiffs seek a total of $52,550.

The Shilohan is Gladys M. READ THE ADVERTISER

Coffey, 34, who was indicted by a Huron county grand jury as a result of a collision with a light truck at Rts. 598 and 61 on a snowy morning Dec. 8, 1958, which took the life of Myrtle Gibson, Plymouth, her passenger.

Mrs. Coffey's license was suspended from Oct. 31, 1962, until Apr. 30, 1963.

Noah Sammons, Sr. and Frederick L. Nagel, Attica, Always shop at home first ! !

are co-defendants in the three damage suits filed by Anita Thompson, David Thompson, her husband, and Donald E. Thompson by his father and next friend, David Thompson. Anita Thompson is suing for $40,000. David Thompson seeks $5,050. Donald Thompson seeks $7,500.

The Thompsons — Mrs. Thompson is a daughter of Mr. Nagel — were passengers in the Nagel sedan.

DRIFTS in Shiloh-Norwalk road north of Shiloh were whipped by north wind to depths enough to bury a car, as "Mac" Echelbarger and passenger Richard (I left my dog team at home) Webber show here.

Reserve unit de-activated

De-activation of Co. A, 865th Engineer Battalion, stationed at Charles Rhine Armory here, and assignment of Troop A, 4th Reconnaissance Squadron, 9th Cavalry, from Ashland are contemplated by the Defense department.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's massive reorganization of National Guard and reserve units entails these moves.

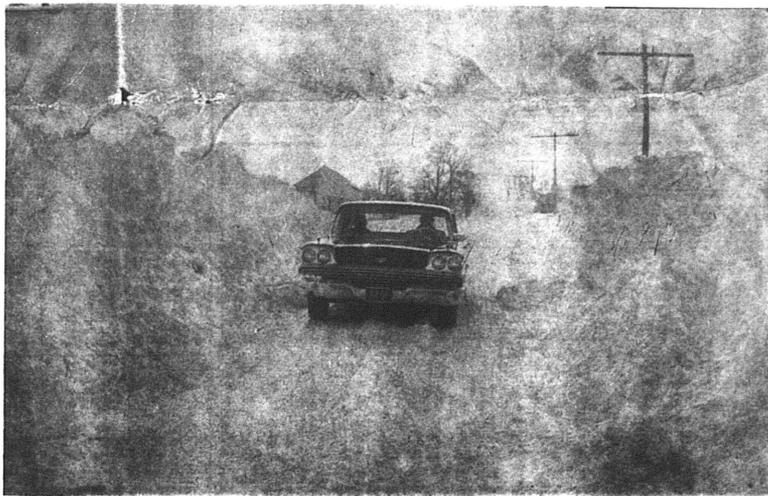

No personnel transfers would be involved in the transfer of the Ashland unit which is equipped with M-30 tanks.

This means that officers and enlisted men now assigned to the unit would continue to serve with it when its physical transfer here is effected.

Personnel of Co. A, 865th Engineer Battalion, would be re-assigned to other units in the National Guard or Reserve establishment, in accordance with military specialties. What the Defense department says in its proposal is that this unit is surplus as to mission and equipment, not as to manpower.

Whether the adjutant-general of Ohio, speaking for the governor, will interpose objection remains to be seen. Any objection would have effect on National Guard units, not reserve units. Both the 865th and the 4th Reconnaissance are reserve units.

Seven Windows

Train riding is always enjoyed by Professor and Mrs. Stumble-Bumble, never, never sky high! Nossiree! Thru-ways of faithful steel rails are the best in the land! "Watch your step, please" was heard in pleasant voices as we ambled off at Akron, a short shuttle through a depot made famous by a four-legged animal that has never been outdistanced by the buses that carry him on their broad sides. Akron's history is very interesting when you read it. An impressive edifice towers as you cross Broadway. Those looking will read an inscription that includes 1902. Test your brakes before venturing down State St. We cross Main St. to O'Neill's friendly store, where seven windows are to be viewed to your heart's delight. Dennis the Menace is the theme. A more impressive scene is atop the canopy. After Dec. 25th you may be sorry. A right arm for pictures of the seven windows to prevent erasure from the memory. Those who operate cameras: don't miss a single window. The seven wonders of the world take a back seat right now.

Those who drive will be carefree when they park at O'Neill's, in the easily-reached parking decks adjacent to the store, where you are not just another customer.

AND DON'T MISS the last window entirely devoted to seven dogs.

Police to question Massillon suspect in school burglary

A 32-year-old Massillon man was held by police there Tuesday at the request of Plymouth police, who wish to question him for complicity with the breaking and entering of Plymouth High school on Nov. 8.

He is Robert Kenny, alias Edward Leroy Zimmerman, said by Police Chief Robert L. Meiser to have nine convictions, including two for felonious burglary in Missouri, where he was twice sentenced to five years in a state institution.

Police were led to Kenny's trail because they noted an out-of-state license tag on a sedan cruising near the village dump at 2:30 a.m. on Nov. 8. Huron county sheriff's deputies noted the same car in Route 224 about three hours later. Police thought it strange the sedan covered only five miles in three hours and traced its ownership.

A John Doe warrant and a specific warrant were served and executed against Kenny by Massillon police. Plymouth police went to Massillon late Tuesday to bring Kenny here for arraignment in the court of Mayor William Fazio.

Candy maker turns sweet hand to writing of sweeter music

The champion Christmas hardtack candy maker of Plymouth also writes music. The music takes a little longer to put together than the candy and the results are a lilting, catchy little melody called "Lovable Miss".

Mrs. Marie Fetters Guthrie has worked for a year and a half before she felt that each note was at just the right pitch. Now the music is copyrighted and her fingers are crossed for the future.

There are no lyrics yet. She calls it an "organ novelty". It was composed on her organ for an organ but the music can be easily orchestrated.

"Most of the fun of writing this," she says, "has been the wonderful people we have met through it". Plans are now underway for a performance "par excellence" which will be taped and sent off for its future.

A music student since she was five years old, she began piano lessons and later the organ through the efforts of Mrs. Edward Willett, then the organist in First Evangelical Lutheran church. She has taken music lessons at Oberlin and Heidelberg colleges. For the last 10 years she has been the church organist here. Before that, for 14 years, she was the organist in First Lutheran church at Shelby.

While playing the piano for the Lutheran orchestra in Shelby, she met a young violinist. Francis C. Guthrie still brings his fiddle out occasionally to play. But he would prefer to string hooks to fish-line than to string a fiddle. The ice fishing season is on now, and there is no fiddling.

They were married 28 years ago in the house where they now live, property of her parents, the William Fetterses, in Bell street.

Both the Guthries are Fat-Root-Heath Co. employees. She is a secretary and he is a draftsman. At the end of the working day, two pets eagerly wait for the front door to open. One is a large white cat who lounges in contented comfort. The other is a five-year-old curly, slightly overweight cocker spaniel, who enjoys his television programs. Lassie is his favorite, but he will avidly watch anything with animals.

Third choice: a pretty girl, naturally.

WIND blew snow in Trux street to depths of man's waist, as "Jimmy" Strine demonstrates here. Route 178 was closed more because of drifts than by depth of snow. Road was all but bare in some places.

Weather break may result in useful break for Red quintet

Impossible roads and similar weather have contributed to an all but impossible situation in schoolboy basketball.

"But everybody's in the same boat," says Coach Ron Hostler of Plymouth's Big Red, "and we'll all have to make the best of it."

He will seek to regroup his forces after an enforced lay-off when the Plymouth quintet takes the floor against Butler here tomorrow night.

Things could hardly be better, given the circumstances of foul weather which forced postponement of two contests with Class AA opponents. THE BULLDOGS ARE down this year. Assuming the Big Red may have some difficulty in striking its proper stride after several days of relative inactivity, Butler is the right club to work back up with.

There's no more personable nor gentlemanly a coach and teacher than Gordon Shipley, the little fellow who's boss of Butler. But this year he simply doesn't have the horses and he's the first to admit it.

"We always tried to develop character," he says with a smile, "but this year I'm really developing character because that's about all I've got to work on or with."

Last season's county tournament winner, which vaulted over Plymouth in the semifinals, was decimated by graduation. Save for a Meeks — and Meekes are as common at Butler as bats on the Green Bay Packers — and a bunch of guys named Charley, Shipley has nothing new.

Nevertheless, the number of clubs defeated by teams with nothing is legion, and Hostler isn't taking the Bulldogs lightly.

Plymouth will be at full strength tomorrow. Phil Fletcher has been released from Shelby Memorial hospital and is expected to be able to play. If he starts, his teammates on the opening five will be Tommy Barnard, Dave Myers, Jimmy Hamman and Allen Arnold.

Earl Hess, Bob Young and Girard Cashman will get the first call among the bench-riders.

Lutherans . . .

"What Does It Mean to You?", a Christmas pageant, will be presented Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in First Evangelical Lutheran church.

Members of the Sunday school will take part. Mrs. Carl Wilford, Mrs. John H. Worth and Mrs. Max Smith are directors. The costumes for the pageant were made and donated by women of the church. Mrs. Charles Harrington is in charge of them.

Church organist, Mrs. F. E. Guthrie, will play the musical accompaniment. The choir will be directed by Mrs. Frederick E. Ford. Clyde Lasch and Thomas Strohmenger will be in charge of the special lighting effects. Programs are being prepared by Mrs. Harold Sloan.

Presbyterian . . .

A family supper and Christmas program will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday in First Presbyterian church.

Each family is to bring a covered dish and their own table service.

Mrs. David Sams will direct the kindergarten, nursery and primary Sunday school classes in the singing of "Hallelujahs," "Ave in a Manger" and "Silent Night". The primary class will also sing Psalm 100.

The junior choir directed by Mrs. J. Raymond Willert will sing several holiday songs.

Another group, composed of Nelson Roberts, James D. Cunningham, Sherry Vansandale, Linda Echelberry and Carol Roberts, will sing as a quartet. They will be accompanied by Diane Cunningham.

After the program, there will be a holiday treat for the young Sunday school classes.

Taking part are Nancy MacMichael, narrator; David Moore, reporter; Dorothy Stoodt, lady shopper; Ellen Smith, school teacher; Susan Smith, elderly widow; Sidney Ream, child's voice; David Williamson, Margie Enderby, Bobby and Bonnie Reed and Steve Root, carolers, Nancy Wilford, a mother;

Also, Susan Ford, Mary Jo Mack and John Gullett, toddlers; Polly Cornell, an angel; David Williamson, Isaiah; Bobby Reed, Micah; Sidney Ream, innkeeper; Jane Fidler, Mary; Gregory Burkett, Joseph; Susan Peters, another angel; Sidney Ream, Michael Adams, Michael Redden and Charles Wilford, shepherds, and Thomas Smith, Steven Williamson and Kelly Clark, wisemen.

Thomas Strohmenger and David Moore will serve as ushers.

Kiddies' party planned

Annual Yule party for elementary school children will be staged in the high school auditorium Dec. 22 at 1 p.m.

Its sponsors are Ehret-Parsell Post 447, American Legion; Plymouth Order of Mechanics and Plymouth Volunteer Fire department.

Children of the first through sixth grades will be greeted by Santa Claus with gifts. Cartoons will be projected later.

R. Harold Mack, Percy Dean and Ronald Mumea are fifteen members of the committee. Clinton C. Moore and L. Graydon Williston are Legionnaires serving on the committee. Roger Collins, Glenn Dick and Zachary Taylor represent POOM.

Children who are ill are invited to call the fire chief or Legion steward.

Columnist sorrowed by loss of old 'Bobo', star on mound and at bar

The news that Bobo Newson has died is a blow to an old friend.

He shone, and shone brightly, in a day when television couldn't publicize his color and his skill. Make no mistake about it, anybody who can win 20 games for a cellar club, as Newson did for the St. Louis Browns, has to have skill.

In his greatest years, he answered to "Buck" more than "Bobo". His right handle was Louis Norman Newson. Arch McDonald, the gravel-voiced radio announcer at Washington who doubled on the public address system in rickety Griffith Stadium when Clark owned the Washington club, used to delight in intoning, "Coming in to pitch for Washington, Louis Norman 'Bobo' Newson!" And the big oat with the shambling step would trudge to the hill to put the fire out for the Nats.

This must have been the second or third time he was on the Washington roster. Earlier he was a great star for St. Louis and for Detroit. Who remembers when he pitched, but lost, a World Series game when his beloved father lay in his coffin, because the old gentleman's dying wish was that his son would win a Series contest? And who now recalls when Newson stopped a line drive with his left knee and struggled through the rest of the game in excruciating pain? The kneecap was broken in several places. But you would not know it from "Bobo".

His death, the accounts out of Florida say, derived from cirrhosis of the liver, an affliction that befalls many who are friendly with John Barleycorn.

"Bobo" was more than a friend of Mr. Barleycorn. He was a bosom admirer and close confidant. To one who was no more than a hanger-on at the places where the underpaid Washington players convened, Newson's profligate consumption of Old Mule suggested he was afraid the knowledge of distillation of grain into alcoholic beverage might not survive the night.

He was a two-fisted drinker and a two-fisted grabber of the check, a type of bloke that endeared him to the O. T. at a time when the O. T. was a more impressive fellow than he is now. For all his faults, Newson had style. He was colorful. He swaggered and rolled with the gait of an old-time sailor. But when he sailed that hard one in there, there was no tougher competitor. Memory fades and fails to recall some of the events the O. T.'s eyes have feasted upon in days of yore, but there are some of them etched indelibly in that memory.

Hubbell's fantastic exhibition in the All-Star game of '34, when he fanned the five big sluggers. And "Bobo" Newson's summons to the mound in Griffith Stadium one hot night in August, only a day after he'd pitched 10 innings and won over Cleveland. The Yankees had two men on and none out. First base was open. Washington led by a single run, in the seventh. The Yankee Clipper was due at the plate. Newson fired no more than five warm-up pitches, then proceeded to strike out DiMaggio, force Bill Dickey to bounce to the first baseman and Charley Keller to lift a foul pop.

Thereafter the Yankee didn't get a man on base. It took the right kind of stuff to do that. One wonder if they're any more of the stuff left.

Whitelaw's

Uncle Bill and his sidekick, "The Kid", go often to 180 South Main St., Akron, a somewhat hallowed place to Merrill Whitelaw, who turned 79 Saturday, Dec. 8, friendlier than ever. Never just another customer to him! Such a respectable place can only be equalled by Otto Mosher's in Cleveland. At a certain booth you will see plaques inscribed with praises from the FOEagles. The inscription that impressed Uncle Bill reads "A life of service is the best." That was from the Grand Aerie. I suspect he is a charter member of Akron Aerie No. 555.

Sixty-two years ago he began as his dad's able assistant. His father was known as J. P. Whitelaw, who in 1885 built the building as it stands today, although there was a street alongside where Loew's Theatre is located.

Well, there is a little bit of Akron's history. Uncle greatly admires anyone with so much character. "Nice folks visit where nice folks are" makes Whitelaw's outstanding.

Good Samaritan on wild goose hunt

Next time Howard Clark, 25 Mills avenue, plays the role of Good Samaritan, he's going to find out for certain who's the proper recipient of his aid.

Shortly before dark Dec. 5 the telephone rang in Clark's house.

"This is Susie," the voice said. "I smell gas very strongly in our kitchen and I don't know what to do."

Clark rushed from his house and into his car and drove at great speed to Shiloh, where he burst into the house of his brother-in-law, A. C. Henry, whose daughter is named Susie.

There was no gas and there was no Susie. Thereupon it dawned upon Clark that another Susie had called.

It was the matter of a moment's thought and six minutes of driving to reach the actual caller, Suzanne Paddock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Paddock, Jr., who live 50 yards from Clark's house.
