A missive in our mail was labelled "February 22nd, Girl Scout Thinking Day". Its contents: "We take this opportunity to thank The Plymouth Advertiser for the help and publicity you have so generously given the Plymouth Girl Scouts. We also congratulate you on the honors won at the recent newspaper show in Columbus. We wish you continued success."

Some may consider this a small thing, but to the Girl Scouts it's a part of the program of teaching young girls to be mature women and ladies in the bargain. To us, it's quite the nicest thing that's happened in a long time, for we don't often receive thanks from anybody for anything.

These young women wrapped up in Girl Scouting have a lesson to teach other groups more or less wrapped up in their own organizational aims: any group feeds on good will, and such enterprise as that which we salute here develops good will with a capital G and W.

For-want-of-a-shoe

The plight of our schools — and others in Ohio — because the state has been tardy in paying foundation funds is embarrassing and expensive.

It is not easy to impute correctly the blame for this situation, particularly when not everybody who is likely to be blamed is anxious to reveal all of the facts.

What the citizen is likely to get into is a good bit, we think, like the story of for-want-of-a-shoe-the-horse etc.

The foundation funds haven't been paid because there isn't any ready-cash to pay them. There isn't any ready cash because it was siphoned off for something else. It was siphoned off for something else because — well, you see what we mean!

Plymouth (of Chrysler) says 'oops' to Plymouth (of Ohio)

Sir:

We wish we could claim some defense — a map not true to scale, research men who got their towns called Plymouth mixed, detour signs on the roads around Plymouth, Ohio, which confused our drivers — anything to get off the hook. But, nothing. We haven't a wheel to roll on, so to speak.

You are perfectly justified in your published indignation of Feb. 1, over the omission of Plymouth, Ohio, in the Plymouth-To - Plymouth - To - Plymouth-To - Plymouth Economy Run of last fall. There were no strong reasons for not including you in.

However, there was certainly no intention either of minimizing the importance of Plymouth, Ohio, or reflecting on the "quality" of this fine community by our failure to include it in the project. If this were true, then we would also have been doing an injustice to the other 24 towns and cities called Plymouth or with a Plymouth in their names in California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Iowa (three in Iowa — Plymouth, Plymouth Junction and Plymouth Rock), Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania (besides Plymouth, this state has Plymouth Junction, Plymouth Meeting and Plymouth Valley), Utah, Vermont (two in Vermont — Plymouth and Plymouth Union), Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

There was a question of time. We just could not make all 24 towns. Plymouth, Ohio, was most seriously considered as a stop on the run from west to east, but with just so many days to complete the 2414-mile trip, plus stopovers for dealer promotions, press conferences and other special events along the way it did not seem at the time we were making up our schedule, that we could include more than the four locations and still make all commitments and deadlines.

Mr. Editor, would you please tell the one thousand eight hun-

There were two contestants. The first was a 1961 Plymouth Savoy "6," identical to the one that topped its class in the last Mobilgas Economy Run. The other was a 1962 Plymouth Savoy "6" that had never competed before. Champion vs. Challenger!

Route: Plymouth, Michigan, to Plymouth, Indiana, to Plymouth, Pennsylvania, to Plymouth, Massachusetts, and return. 2414 miles in all. 2414 miles of typical turnpike and downtown traffic. Rain, fog, sleet much of the way. Average speed: 50.1 miles per hour.

The drivers? Not two "pros," as you'd expect, but two teen-agers from Michigan.

Results: the 1962 Plymouth averaged 21.85 mpg. The 1961 Plymouth averaged 19.71 mpg. That figures out to 10.8% better gas mileage—40 extra miles per tankful—for the new Champ, the 1962 Plymouth. (Modest Plymouth engineers had expected only a 7% improvement.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir: Since the writer of last week's letter didn't sign her name, I ask that you do not print mine.

One reason why I do not go to the Mothers' club meetings is that the programs don't deal with children or school problems but about things for women that I can just as well read, probably better, in my women's magazines.

Also, I do not see why a few must bear the burdens of the many. The cost of education is everybody's duty to pay, and if the school needs money, then put it up for vote and get everybody to pay it. If I get involved in the Mother's club, I not only have to pay my share of the cost of education on my tax bill but also in the free labor, donations and other gifts that are asked of me in the Mother's club meetings.

Yours truly,
Another Mother

Red rally fails, Butler wins in tourney

Plymouth's Big Red lost its edge in the final three minutes on Ontario Feb. 21 and ended out of the Richmond county tourney.

It was the third consecutive year that Plymouth failed to clear the first hurdle in the county tourney. Runner-up in '59, the Big Red has been a finalist only twice since World War II — the other time in '44, when Bellville walloped Plymouth, 64 to 34 — and by seven times since the tournament began in 1925.

Butler's Bulldogs earned this one, probably by a bigger score than the final 59 to 54. But Plymouth had it, at one time, and threw it away.

BEHIND BY 16 POINTS AT the half, after a miserable a shooting exhibition as the Big Red has put on all season in the first half, Coach Ron Hoster's crew come out to play basketball in the third period.

Ron Thorne hit a quarter-court set shot to make it 36 to 18 and then Plymouth began to move. Jim Hamman banged a set shot home, Orval Oyster and Plymouth then strung together nine points before Butler broke the skein with a penalty toss.

Phil Fletcher scored on a follow-up, Thorne pushed another one in, and then Fletcher and Tom Barnard racked up free throws. Doug Walter and Thorne bagged set shots to hand the Bulldogs a 46 to 35 lead after 24 minutes.

Plymouth continued the pressure. Dave Myers, in his best game of the season for the Big Red, and Roger Van Loo dominated the defensive boards and the Big Red drew up to a four-point deficit on the strength of Barnard's efforts, aided by Van-Loo and Myers.

TWENTY SECONDS LATER Butler had only a one point lead, at 49 to 48. It was here that Plymouth had the fire initiative. Butler seemed to be on the run.

Then the egg hit the fan. Jim Hamman was knocked down by Dick Wharton, in what Plymouth fans thought was a deliberate effort to cripple the doughy Red guard. Hamman was helped from the floor and Allen Arnold tried his penalty shot. It skirted the rim, Wharton bagged a set shot and Thorne and Wharton got baskets to put the Bulldogs in the van by 59 to 48. Three Plymouth baskets at this point were merely face-savers, reducing the winning margin.

Plymouth had 14 turnovers in the whole game and 11 bad passes. Its mistakes in this phase of the game plus the heavy fouling cost the victory. Each team bagged 24 field goals, Butler with a 47 per cent ratio of accuracy, Plymouth with only 40 per cent. Butler had a 50 per cent record at the half, Plymouth only 30 per cent.

What you should know about Early American furniture:

Early American (sometimes called American Colonial) is a term applied rather loosely to all furniture types produced or used in the American colonies. Actually it embraces a wide range of designs including pieces home-crafted by frontiersmen as well as elegant styles imported from Europe of the time.

Through the years, the popularity of Early American furniture has been constant. In recent years there has been a surge of interest about the style. Furniture designers across America are translating the Early American motif into furniture that is fresh and stimulating.

The warm, informal nature of the style complements contemporary casual living and entertaining. Furniture stylists expect the trend toward Early American decor to continue for many years to come.

"Won't you take the time that I didn't?"

"I am a polio patient. Up until about a year ago, I kept pretty busy as an electrical engineer. Too busy, I might add, to take my polio shots when they were available to me. Take a good look at me. Then go out and start your polio shots fast. Polio doesn't give anyone a second chance."

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE—TAKE YOUR POLIO SHOTS!
