

Council hears charges against Moser; action Nov. 5

Charges laid Sept. 17 by Mayor William Fazio against Joseph J. Moser, superintendent of light, water and sewer, were read and examined in detail for the first time Tuesday night.

A special session of village council was called to accomplish the purpose, although the council was told at the outset it could not take action during a special meeting. Next opportunity to do so will be during the regular session Nov. 5.

Clerk Carl V. Ellis read from the charging letter, item by item, and Mayor Fazio amplified upon them and responded to questions from councilmen and some spectators.

THE SPECIFIC CHARGES

Mrs. Hutchinson addresses club

Mrs. Roscoe Hutchinson recalled the history of the Ohio Federation of Farm Women's clubs when it celebrated its 35th anniversary Oct. 16 at Springbrook Country club, Mansfield.

Wearing an old-fashion costume, Mrs. Hutchinson addressed the 400 present members, she also presented Mrs. Boris Clock of Seneca county, chosen as mother of the year.

Mrs. Herman Grecoius presided at the business meeting, the federation voted to contribute to Boys' Village as the early project.

Morning speaker was Miss Mercedes J. Hurst of Chicago, Ill.

Two charter members, Mrs. Barrett of Huron county and Mrs. Cora Long of Medina county, were presented with awards and spoke briefly to the members.

Mrs. Houseman dies in hospital

Mrs. Gladys M. Houseman, 63, 58 North street, died at Fisher Memorial hospital, Norwalk, late Oct. 16, at the 20th anniversary of the death of her husband.

Born in Richland county Dec. 6, 1900, she was the sister of the late L. R. (Pete) Diegler. A son, Roy, North Madison, and a sister, Mrs. R. E. Grubb, Lake Worth, Fla., survive.

The Rev. John H. Worth, pastor of First Evangelical Lutheran church, conducted a funeral service Friday at 1:30 p. m. from McQuate Funeral home. Burial was in Hannah cemetery, Route 98.

Hallowe'ning

"Nobody begrudges these youngsters the opportunity to raise a little Cain during the Hallowe'en season," the lady said. "but some of it is just plain cruel."

Think, she counsels, of the kid who soaps a window in a house where the occupant is unable to clean it after the Hallowe'en season

"You can't even hire the same kid who soaped your window to clean it off after Hallowe'en is over," the lady laments.

Soaping of windows and similar pranks seem awfully childish to us, for they accomplish no purpose whatsoever. But kids will be kids, we suppose, and barring a public window that stands in the center of town, as the old pump used to stand, where kids can vent their autumnal spirit, windows will continue to be soaped.

A good many organizations comprised of youngsters approach us at this time of year for contributions to their treasuries.

We suggest the high school athletic association might organize a few teams of window washers and volunteer their services after Hallowe'en for a nominal sum to clean those windows dirtied by others. For certainly no high school athlete would stoop so low as to soap a window!

include improper use of time during periods of duty (being on break) wasted time and frequent visits to clerk's office, "parading around town" in village vehicles; lack of cooperation in accomplishing assigned tasks (failure to move an electric meter at the premises of Russell Ross, 232 Trux street, for three weeks; failure to correct a water leak at the premises of Mrs. F. B. Stewart, 36 Plymouth street, until five days had elapsed; failure to install a water meter at the premises of S. J. Glorioso in Walnut street until six months had elapsed; failure to install a street light in Lofland street until three weeks had elapsed; failure to report at once when an emergency was reported in the school, where water pressure dropped suddenly at the lunch hour);

Also, inaccuracy in judgment (removal of dirt from water towers) without study of plans, to extent that drastic changes in plans at high cost would be necessary if the site proves usable for a water tower); lack of knowledge of his job (calling upon Ohio Power Co. to resolve difficulties he could not himself resolve) calling of street supervisor to operate backhoe and repair sewers, rightly the duty of the water department, because he did not know how to accomplish these tasks);

Also, failure to complete

Gala night set by class of 1965

Tomorrow night will be a gala night at Plymouth High school.

It begins with a chili supper sponsored by the Class of 1965. Serving will be from 5 until 7 p. m.

Toni Moore, class president, is general chairman of the supper. Committee chairman are Linda Schelberly, serving; William Phillips, clean-up; and Linda Hamman, publicity.

Three mothers, Mrs. G. Thomas Moore, Mrs. A. M. Jacobs and Mrs. Clyde Lasch, will assist with the cooking.

Band parents will be honored guests at the supper. The Big Red will meet in Fredettektown at 8 p. m. in Mary Fate park.

Junior band will march in the pre-game ceremonies. For the half-time show, the senior band, directed by Harold Hughes, will play its way through a "Trip to Mexico".

projects in extending six-inch water services in Riggs avenue, West Broadway and Trux street (Fazio acknowledged that Moser was probably only following orders in these and is probably not guilty of this charge); failure to comply with repeated requests to rectify grievances with assistant; failure to show proper respect for his superiors (he referred to the mayor as "his highness");

Beeching to quit school board post

Edward Beeching will resign his post on the Plymouth Board of Education because he is leaving the district.

He will move with his family to Shelby.

Appointment of a successor by the board will bring to two the number of appointed, as distinguished from elected, members. C. David Rish is completing the term of Mrs. Miles Christian, who resigned.

Rish is not a candidate for re-election.

John F. Swartz, Shiloh potato grower, is the only candidate.

Wilbur Shields succumbs at 57 in Shelby hospital

Wilbur Shields' long struggle against multiple sclerosis ended early Monday morning in Shelby Memorial hospital.

Mr. Shields, 57, had been a patient there 11 months. Before he was stricken with the disease, he worked as a machinist in Wilkins Air Force depot.

A native of Plymouth, he was a member of First Evangelical church.

He is survived by his wife, Madalyn; a daughter, Mrs. Junior Reeks, Galion; one son, Larry, at home; a brother, Lester, Plymouth, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday at 2 p. m. by his pastor, the Rev. John H. Worth, from John McQuate Funeral home. Burial was in Greenlawn cemetery.

Hallowe'eners to parade here Wednesday

Ghosts and men from Mars will have a night on the town Wednesday.

Beginning at 7 p. m., the annual Hallowe'en parade sponsored by the Plymouth Community club will be staged in the Square.

Prizes for the most original, funniest and "farthest out" in space costumes will be awarded in four age groups.

They are pre-schoolers, first through fourth graders, fifth through eighth graders and adults.

C. Todd Strohmenger will be the official announcer. Judges will be Mrs. Harold Ross, H. James Root and the Rev. John H. Worth.

Cider and doughnuts will be served by the community club. Tuesday night is the official trick or treat night in the village. It ends with the curfew at 10 p. m.

Youth of Methodist, First Presbyterian and First Evangelical Lutheran churches will meet at their own churches Tuesday at 7 p. m. for the annual UNICEF drive.

All proceeds of the drive are used to help needy children throughout the world.

Members will be served afterwards in the Lutheran church.

equable and peaceable temperament toward the public (Fazio admitted he has shown improvement since Aug. 1).

NO WITNESSES WERE produced, although Fazio said he could summon them. Each, he said, would respond except Mrs. Stewart.

Maurice Bachrach, a former councilman, who was a spectator, said he doubts the witnesses would appear to testify under oath.

Luther R. Fetters, president of the board of the trustees of public affairs who is Fazio's opponent for reelection, responded to several of the charges.

The tenor of these responses was that Moser was engaged in other tasks which could not be halted, was told to perform or not to perform by the board, reported promptly to the scene of difficulties only to find the responsibility for them and for correcting them did not lie within the scope of help at no cost to the village because it saved time, or is plainly innocent of the specific charge by the mayor because the mayor is not wholly informed.

Fazio denied the responses. He charged that eight citizens present at the meeting, obviously favoring Moser's retention, are "only a drop in the bucket" against 616 users of the water and electric services. This implied that 608 persons oppose Moser. Donald B. Shaver, a former member, objected to this argument. He said such implication is unwarranted. He is confident, he said, the majority of the council will not tolerate the charges against Moser.

Esther Taylor Bricker Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans, will be host to the annual district meeting Saturday in Plymouth Elementary school.

The all-day meeting will convene at 9:30 a. m. Luncheon will be served at noon at Cornell's. The afternoon session will begin at 1:15 p. m.

Mrs. Gerald W. Caywood, district president, will preside and welcome the delegates. Mayor William Fazio will deliver the village's welcome.

Highlight of the morning session, which is open to the public, will be the presentation of 18 American flags to Plymouth High school.

Representatives of the several homerooms will accept 17 of the flags for the classrooms and one flag for the outdoor pole.

The first part of the afternoon session will also be open to the public. Mrs. Thomas Rhine's dancing class will present a special program.

Guests will be registered by Mrs. Judd Keller and Mrs. L. R. Fetters and Miss Glenna Rowe of Shelby.

Plymouthites who are district officers are Mrs. Caywood, Mrs. W. C. McFadden, treasurer and Miss Florence Danner, counselor, also a past president of the state organization.

Attending the meetings will be members from Mary Mitchell Tent, Mansfield; Mrs. Peter Redding Tent, Ashland; Mary Hetter Keis Tent, Galion; Elizabeth Miller Sycos Tent, Willard; Mrs. James Mullins Tent, Wooster and Margaret Ward Houston Tent, Sandusky.

Guest of honor will be Mrs. Elizabeth Auerenian of Lancaster, the state president.

The DUV's, national in scope, were organized in Massillon in 1885. Three high school age daughters of Civil War veterans wanted to help their fathers commemorate the men who fought for the union during the Civil War.

From their activities, the national organization grew. Its main qualification for membership is that a woman be descended from a Union veteran. When the Grand Army of the Republic existed, DUV's assisted at the grand encampments. When the GAR went out of existence with the deaths of its remaining members, the women carried on the work of maintaining historical records and furthering the principles of Americanism.

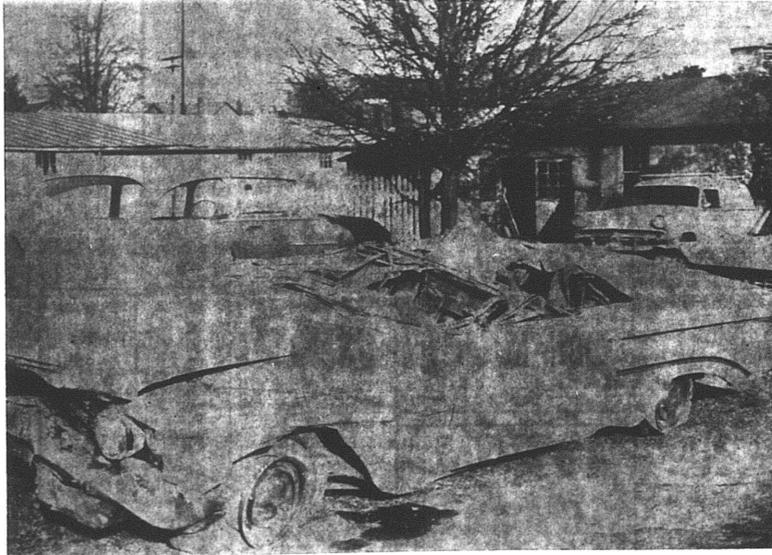

Of the 10 Plymouth members of the Shelby tent, Mrs. McFadden is the only member whose father fought in the war. He was Eugene Patterson, who enlisted in Co. H of the 64th Regiment at Attica.

Mrs. Caywood is the great granddaughter of Nathaniel Guthrie of Shiloh, who enlisted in Shelby. Mrs. Grover Bevier's grandfather, Charles Hurst, enlisted at Fredericktown and Mrs. Haldon Cheesman's great grandfather, David Hannafus, joined at Shelby.

Miss Danner and her sister, Mrs. C. O. Cramer, are the granddaughters of Jeremiah Danner, who joined the 89th Indiana Infantry at Decatur, Ind.

Mrs. L. R. Fetters' grandfather, Enoch Ruckman; Mrs. Carl Carnahan's grandfather, Henry Saviers; Mrs. Judd Keller's grandfather, Thomas England and Miss Helen Akers' grandfather, Byron R. Ross, all enlisted here.

Mrs. Roy Hatch, a member of the Willard tent, is a granddaughter of John Carr, who enlisted at Portsmouth.

What's world coming to? Machine now shuffles cards

By AUNT LIZ

A thousand years from now a super race of seventh graders will probably be studying the 20th century in their history books.

I would like to be around to see how much space it will rate, a paragraph or a whole chapter.

There is no question, though, what it will be called. The Machine Age, no doubt.

We are absolutely surrounded with them. And they are handy to have around, mostly if you have a dear friend who is a repairman on the side.

Useful as a dryer or a washer may be, or a little machine which does simple arithmetic for you, they are invading too many pastimes, it seems to me.

Electronic computers are now being used to keep score in bridge tournaments. That is too much, it takes all the fun out of keeping score.

Being able to lean over the table to see if the scorer marked down your five honors can cover up all sorts of little bridge errors. You can quickly change the conversation away from a scathing analysis of how you played the hand and missed the winning trick by saying, "Did you give me your honors?" How can you look up at a monstrous machine and say that?

That isn't all the IBM's and Honeywell's 800 computer are doing. They are even shuffling the cards and dealing them.

Those are arts in which seasoned card players take great pride. Have you ever noticed that each person has his own individual method of shuffling cards?

I THINK ONE OF THE few times in my life when I was truly impressed was on a train between Milwaukee and Chicago.

Riding trains can be fun, but eight hours or so can get dull for a 10-year-old. So hunt up other 10-year-olds. On that ride there were two sisters.

The older must have been a woman of 14, as I remember. Someone had a deck of cards so we settled down to play three-handed bridge. Then it really didn't matter how many gathered around to play bridge, because none of us knew how anyway. We were really imitating our parents.

I have no idea who those sisters were and have never seen them since, but the older one changed my life. She could do a fancy shuffle with the cards. Some how, she bent them upwards a little and they all flipped back into place. It was a rather ornate and noisy operation, but eye-catching. It took me months to master it, with sore knees to boot from scrounging around picking up all the cards I flipped hither and you trying to learn.

And it came in handy over the years. We have moved about quite a bit, but bridge is universal. A good way to make friends, too. As a newcomer, to sit down with the known sharks in a new community, that shuffle puts them on their guard and until you're first hand they almost treat you with respect.

Now a machine is going to do all that. Perhaps it is for the best.

IF YOU DON'T HAVE TO bother shuffling and dealing cards, during your life time, there should be more time for cooking.

As far as I know of this very minute, there is no package mix for this cake. No doubt, in a few months, there will be, and this will be obsolete.

You start with a mix, though, one of lemon cake. Open it, empty into a bowl and swish it around to get any outstanding lumps out. Add a package of instant lemon pudding, four eggs, just less than three-fourths cup of salad oil and the same amount of water. Beat it vigorously until you are tired, which should be four minutes.

Bake in a 13-inch cake pan at 350 for a little over a half hour.

While it's still warm from the oven, pour over it a mixture of two cups of powdered sugar mixed with a third of a cup of either orange or lemon juice. This gives it a nice glaze. It soaks into the cake, making it moist and tasty.

It cuts into squares beautifully and is an easy dessert to

It is the Wellington-Mansfield version of a recipe I had last spring which called for a lemon gelatin rather than the pudding. The first two cakes were lovely, but the third out-did itself. Apparently, I mixed the gelatin before it had cooled enough and it reacted all over the oven. This recipe is much more satisfactory.

If your oven needs a good cleaning and you want a good reason to have to do it, the other version will be furnished.

Infant ate fungi for fun!

If it looks edible, eat it! But this did not work out so well for 14-month-old Richard Bradley Prater, son of the Richard Praters, Friday afternoon.

He was with his grandmother, Mrs. Elmer Prater, as she worked in the garden at her home in Trux street.

When they went into the house, she noticed that his little mouth was stuffed and he was happily chewing away. Prompt investigation disclosed he was munching on toadstools.

He was rushed to Willard Municipal hospital by McQuate's ambulance to have his stomach pumped.

A slight rash which appeared quickly from the toxic plant has subsided and he isn't quite sure in his own mind what all the fuss was about.

David vs. Goliath set when Freddies come

The text for the meeting tomorrow night, dear friends and gentle hearts, is found in the book of 1st Samuel, in the 17th chapter, commencing with the 37th verse.

It is the story of Little David and the giant Goliath.

David will be wearing the red and white of Plymouth High school in his encounter, and he won't be carrying five small stones and a sling, as his illustrious forbear did.

Ohio High School Athletic association rules forbid it. Whether the outcome, as reported in verses 49 and 50, will be repeated is what a few curious spectators may just turn out to see.

BECAUSE THE PLYMOUTH is but a pale and pallid David this season, And Fredericktown has so many Goliaths scouts for the home squad have lost count.

Just what modifications toll little David's armor have been made this week depends less on What Coach Richard Carpenter said or tried to do than what he succeeded in doing. And he says bluntly, "We'll have to see out there on the field."

That Carpenter-cum-Saul was displeased Saturday night with what he thought would be a warmup for his Davids is the understatement of the year.

Chin deep in chest, outside the Plymouth locker room Saturday, he promised "this whole team's got to be revamped."

THE FREDDIES, HIS scouts tell him, "ought to be higher than kites — they were beaten by Dover St. Joseph last week and they don't take beatings at Fredericktown very well."

It will be Band Parents night, Little David will be exhorted by the melodies of victory far stronger than the Biblical David was able to produce from his harp.

Parents of musicians in the Big Red marching band, directed by Harold Hughes, will be honored during the band's halftime show.

Expecting a "patsy", Plymouth tore into a physical tartar at Johnsville.

"Those big hods hit us hard," said one Big Red player, "and we smacked 'em back, but apparently not hard enough."

It was difficult Saturday night to assess the damage to the Plymouth outfit, since the morale was obviously so low. But several regulars complained of severe injuries. In a contest so ridiculously officiated that one striped-shirt functionary broke out into open and vehement argument with his colleagues in one instance, penalties against the Northmor squad were heavy.

Carpenter complained, but not very much, that some illegal use of hands went undetected; he had a handful of head injuries on his squad to prove it.

Bob Forsythe was on a queer street for a time. Norman Howard took a vicious beating. Other linemen reported injuries of a similar character which they attributed to "dirty play" but probably was no more than illegal use of the hands and elbows. Nevertheless, the proscription was placed in the rules to equate opportunities between offense and defense and to protect players from heinous injury.

HARDLY ANYBODY EXPECTS little David to overcome Goliath this time out.

But then nobody thought San Francisco would take the Chicago Bears.

Nobody, that is, save Coach Jack Christiansen and a handful of Forty-Niners.

If little David can find some of that spirit, it could happen here tomorrow night.

Pitiful Plymouth play produces paralysis of passing, punting AND praying

"Call it by any other name, this was not football!" Those 10 words accurately describe the exhibition put on by Plymouth's Big Red at Johnsville Saturday night, when Northmor High won its first game of the season, 20 to 14.

Consider these facts: Seven Big Red passes were intercepted.

Three Red fumbles were lost.

The offense gained a net of 37 yards rushing and 26 yards passing in the first half.

It did even less well in the second half: one yard rushing and 14 yards passing.

PLYMOUTH TOOK THE opening kickoff and could do nothing with it. On fourth-and-six, Phil Fletcher punted 34 yards to the Northmor 25. Here a 15-yard penalty for holding reduced Northmor's chances in this series to one. On fourth down, a poor snap from center forced the punter into his end zone.

Chip Paddock, Big Red center, blocked his belated kick and Gene Crouse fell on it for the score.

Plymouth was offside on the try to PATs.

Bob Young kicked off for the Big Red. On first down from his 31, Bruce Stall ran 66 yards down the right side before Young caught him at the Red five.

Plymouth braced and thwarted this drive. Taking over at its two, the Big Red got nowhere in two shots and Fletcher executed a short quick kick on third down.

Northmor threw twice before Stall found Mike Sage in Billy Goth's zone for the equalizing TD.

The play carried 24 yards. Stall passed to Larry Ness for the PATs and Northmor smashed a lead it never relinquished.

FROM HERE ON, THE Plymouth team played so poorly that words cannot describe it accurately.

After a 15-yard penalty for holding, Plymouth sought to pass. Fletcher tried Goth and Mike Ruckman with no luck. Then Eric Akers faded to pass and his toss was picked off.

With first down at the Plymouth 15, Northmor got 10 yards on a pass from Stall to Balliett. He was hit hard as he fumbled, Young recovered and the Big Red had a chance.

But this chance slipped quickly from Red fingers, specifically those of Akers, who took a 12-yard toss from Fletcher at the Plymouth 22, only to let it slip into the hands of Ness. Northmor picked up a 15-yard penalty and on fourth down, Stall ran 24 yards to the Plymouth one, only to be short of first down.

On third down, with six to go, Fletcher's pass was grabbed by Ness at the Red 14. It took Northmor six plays to go the last 14 yards, but Stall went in from the six-inch line. His pass for the PATs went astray.

That was how it was at half time: It would have been better, perhaps, to have packed up at this point.

BECAUSE IT WAS APPARENT church was out early in the third quarter. Northmor is no great shakes either offensively or defensively. Five straight losses proved that. But Northmor drove without much trouble to the Plymouth four, after recovering a bad pitchout by Akers to Fletcher at the Red 15. Goth's interception of Stall's pass got the Red out of that hole.

Plymouth got nowhere. Fletcher's punt went 38 yards to the Northmor 34. The teams exchanged interceptions and Northmor wound up with the ball at the Plymouth 36.

It took eight plays to score, but Plymouth had possession in the meanwhile. Ruckman's fumble at the Red five gave Northmor the break it needed. On second down, Balliett went in for the third score. A run for the PATs was no good.

There were six minutes on the clock, ample time for Plymouth to pull this one out of the fire had it had the stomach to do so. But that stomach was apparently all belly.

ONLY IN THE LAST minutes, when Northmor's subs were on the field, was Plymouth — rather, Fletcher — able to move. He got one long run, a 25-yarder after his receivers had been covered, which gave Plymouth possession at the Red 48.

Here a 26-yard toss was intercepted at the Northmor

15 and with a 35-yard run-back Northmor appeared to have the threat stopped. But Ruckman stoned for at least some of his sins with a quick snatch of a pass at the Plymouth 38. He got 49 yards on the runback, to the Northmor 13, where on third down Fletcher passed to Young for the TD.

Fletcher poked through guard for the PATs.

IT IS APPARENT SOMETHING drastic must be done with the Big Red team to avoid the grandest rout in history here tomorrow.

There is violent dissension on the team among at least three players.

There is lack of confidence in leaders. A player of some intellect and talent who is neither an elected nor appointed leader is calling many of the plays; he is filling a power vacuum, as well as an intellectual one, not arrogating to himself matters not his concern.

Either the Plymouth team pulls itself together and works as a unit before tomorrow night or interscholastic football here may well be the victim of this ineptness. Because fans simply will not turn out to see a team that cannot or will not play the game with spirit.

It is not the winning that is important, although Plymouth fans certainly like to win well enough. What is important is playing the game well, fighting the good fight.

Plymouth's team plays as though the "gh" in "fight" weren't there. And what's left is what the opposition seems to inspire in Plymouth players and their backers, who are dwindling.

Versatile Natural Gas Helps Industry Stay Young

Versatility is the important quality of natural gas that helps industry in this area stay young. In steel making, for example, the development of new techniques and processes using natural gas has kept older industrial plants competitive. The versatile qualities of natural gas have helped our chemical industry develop space age plastics, wondrous fibers, and myriad "miracle" materials.

Glass, pottery and hundreds of other industries in this area are kept young with help from natural gas.
