

General Assembly's work cut out now

Ohio's General Assembly is in session with some important issues facing it.

Governor Rhodes asks for authority to submit a $500 million bond issue to finance new highway construction to the electorate in May. The issue would be paid by extending the present one cent a gallon tax on gasoline. There would be no new taxation. This makes sense to us.

Whether Ohio should participate in a federal program by which aid to dependent children of unemployed parents has been under debate for some time. It is due for investigation by the Assembly.

One legislator was courteous enough to ask our views on the question.

This is what we told him:

Federal funds don't come from Washington, they come Ohio and the 49 other states. It's always more expensive to spend federal funds because the federal bookkeepers and accountants and disbursing officers cost money. Where possible, federal funds should be avoided. But unless each of the states is ready and willing to avoid them simultaneously, Ohio is entitled to its share.

If payments of aid to dependent children of unemployed parents are applied wholly to the needs of the children, and only to their needs, perhaps the program would be good for Ohio. Due care should be exercised at the point of payment that chronic slackers and others of that stripe who profligate the relief rolls cannot divert the funds to less wholesome purposes. In any event, there must be no legislation that would tend to encourage the able-bodied to reject employment, of whatever nature, in favor of a dole.

Governor Rhodes hasn't many defenders these days. Many legislators of his own party have privately told him that unless something is done in the field of education quickly, neither they nor he can run again.

A Rhodes proposal is that notes in anticipation of profits of the state liquor monopoly be issued to furnish funds for a system of technical schools and branch universities. If all bills of the liquor monopoly have been and are being paid, we see no reason to object to this procedure, even if it should result in a slight increase in the cost of Sneaky Pete.

To resolve the problems of public schools in Ohio — and we agree something must be done, NOW — requires action on a broad front. It is our opinion that tampering with the present state sales tax should be indulged in gingerly. Taxes which were initially advanced as panaceas for educational ailments have too often been diverted to other uses. An amendment to the constitution making mandatory the application of some or all sales tax revenues to state support of public schools, and a revision of the present formula for distributing them — BUT NOT SO THAT THE SMALLER DISTRICTS WHICH ARE INEFFICIENT CAN CONTINUE TO SURVIVE — seems called for.

Portrait of a MAN

Susquehanna university is a small Lutheran school at Selingsgrove, Pa. It fields a football team that meets competition more or less in its class.

Over the past several seasons, that football team has done pretty well by itself.

Its first opponent in 1962 was Upsala college, East Orange, N. J., which defeated Susquehanna, 34 to 12. Since then Susquehanna has won seven straight games and — but for the loss to Upsala — would have an unbroken skein of victories totalling 30.

Three weeks after the defeat by Upsala, Coach James Garrett received notice from authorities that inadvertently an ineligible player was used by the winning coach. A forfeit was offered.

"We're not interested in a forfeit," said Coach Garrett. "They could have used Y. A. Tittle in disguise, but we're not accepting anything like that to maintain our streak. We lost that game fair and square. Our boys ere whipped and it wouldn't have been any different if they had Alex Webster in the lineup.

"If they award us the win officially, there's nothing we can do as far as the record goes, but the boys and I know we were outplayed and beaten and it will always be a defeat as far as we are concerned."

Wouldn't you love to have your boy playing for Coach Garrett? This is really what the game is all about.

Council hands Stover's pay request to Board of Public Affairs for answer

Richard Stover, former village employee who claims he is due overtime pay during a three-month period, October through December, 1959 produced visual and verbal testimony Tuesday night.

Stover showed his own record of hours worked plus a village pay card on which there were apparent erasures or extra hours.

He completed the regularly but in overtime on service calls and weekend work at the water plant, as directed by his supervisors.

Robert L. McIntire, president of board of public affairs at the time, notified him no overtime would be paid. He began Jan. 1, 1960, he was on a salary of $5,000 yearly to avoid the extra pay.

When asked why he continued to work the extra hours, Stover said the other two board members told him to do so.

Asked why he had not earlier pressed his claim for the pay, he replied he sought legal advice and was told he should drop the matter rather than risk losing the job completely.

On advice of Solicitor Joseph F. Dush, the council agreed the matter was the Board of Public Affairs's responsibility. The problem is being turned back for its consideration.

The present board had referred it to the council, because two members were not serving at the time in question.

A request by the board to make a change in the contract for construction of the new water tower was granted.

The change involves deleting the purchase of a valve for the old tower, estimated at $2,700. That sum will cover the additional cost of preparing the site for the new tower.

Mayor-elect Luther R. Fetters, now president of the board, told the council he thinks the old tower won't last long enough to warrant installing the valve.

John Feuerbacher, representative of the bonding company which holds the sewer bonds, inquired about progress of the sewer system.

He said he would need a complete breakdown from the engineers of project costs so that a sewer rate may be determined. He recommended the village apply for the 30 per cent federal grant as soon as possible.

James Roose, engineer, will be notified immediately the village now holds the deed to all the property of the sewer site and he can now get on the land to complete surveys.

Purchase of 750 feet of fire hose for $994 was approved.

Fire Chief J. A. Morrison said after the first of the year, more hose will have to be purchased.

Approval was given to the purchase of overhauling door for the building which houses village vehicles. On recommendations of Councilman Donald H. Levering, the council agreed to buy 8 x 16 doors at $260, completely installed.

The party, to which all Plymouth children through 12 years are invited, will begin at 1:30 p. m. with cartoons. Afterwards a Santa Claus will appear to greet the guests and leave gifts.

C. C. Reed, 37, dies in hospital

Christopher C. Reed, 37, 66 West Main street, Shiloh, died Tuesday night in Willard Municipal hospital after a long illness.

He is survived by his wife, Elva, two children, Beverly and Christopher, two sisters, Mrs. Pauline Whitt and Mrs. Hazel Robinson, Chicago, Ill., four brothers, Rondal, Frank and Dale, Chicago, Ill., and the Rev. Charles Reed, Yakima, Wash.; and three half-sisters, Mrs. Emmitt, Baldridge, Shelby; Mrs. Andy Prater, Willard, and Mrs. Mae Prater, in Kentucky.

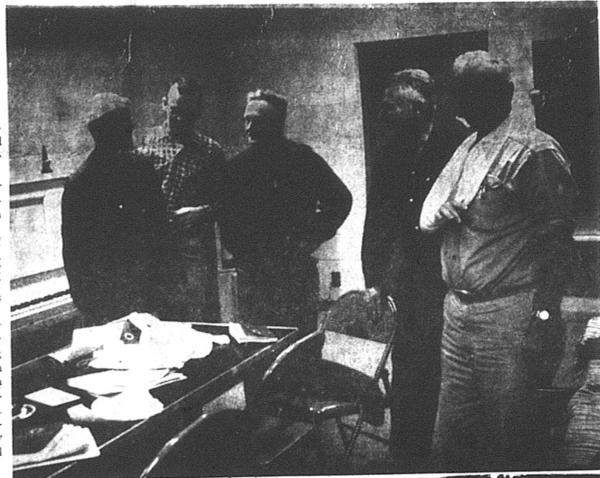

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow from McQuate Funeral home at 1:30 p. m. by the Rev. Mr. Daniels, pastor of the Free Will Baptist church, Mansfield.

Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven township.

Puh-leeze!

Uncle Mike ailment prevalent: Aunt Liz

BY AUNT LIZ

What is happening to us? twenty-one bodies unclaimed from the Fitchville Fire!

What will happen to all of us when we live past our usefulness?

This has been slowly happening to our society since the end of World War II. And I wonder why.

I can remember a great-uncle who lived when I was a small child. He was considered the family "disgrace". My grandmother's comment was he "drank". So did Grandma. There was nothing she liked better than her aunt's homemade wine. And all through high school she would be waiting for me to come home. The kitchen table was set with two small glasses and a plate of sugar cookies.

Uncle Mike was my grandfather's brother. Grandpa took care of him financially. The family was more or less forced to invite him at holiday meals, which they did not like. But they did it out of a sense of duty. I vaguely remember him as rather round and cheerful.

Today's Uncle Mikes, are forgotten. Put them on some kind of government handout and forget them. That is what happened at Fitchville. It is a shame.

Something has happened to us. We should realize it before it is too late.

WHEN OUR SOCIETY allows the very young to talk back, to dictate, that is going too far.

We ourselves are guilty. We have bent over backward trying to be "fair" and it is ridiculous.

I am speaking of the school issues which have failed here and there in the last election. The scare tactics dreamed up by the various boards of education are stupid. They are not realistic.

The worst part is that everyone is pitching in. There is no doubt in my mind that a certain amount of propaganda is going on in the classroom. Teachers who should be teaching, which they apparently find very dull are politicking. They seem to be telling the little, impressive minds that their parents are mean, nasty ogres who will not vote for this or that. No big gyms, no swimming pools. I have yet to hear any mention of a big fat library filled with reference books, which I think are needed.

WHERE ARE OUR VALUES? Somewhere there has been a failure.

Our great western heritage has gone down the drain. Most people don't even know what it is. What we need most of all is great expanses or floor space! Who cares who can read and write his own language properly?

The thing that really shocked me last week along with all the other things which happened, was a letter written to another paper by a 13-year-old, stoutly blaming parents for not voting for a school levy. Let us face facts. No 13-year-old that I know is really capable of such a letter to the editor. Who was the power behind the pen? Parents, perhaps, or the school? How low can one stoop?

During the last few weeks, I have come to the conclusion which my own parents reached many, many years ago. I was brought up on the theory, children should be seen and not heard.

I didn't like it at all, and certainly objected, behind the closed door of our own home. But I knew better than to voice my opinions outside. It was simply not done.

It was plain fear, but it kept us in check. There were many things which we did not do because we were too afraid of the consequences — from our own homes and the community. That day seems to be past.

Parents are afraid today to condone acts of their neighbors' children, because they are scared stiff they may be next.

That thinking is for the well-known birds.

Maybe we have too many parents in our midst. Let us face facts. Not everyone is capable of being a parent.

HAVING BEEN ACCUSED of sorting out hints that favor those with green thumbs, I take real pride in passing on a hint that makes everyone's thumb green. With this one there is no longer an excuse for failure of a plant or seed to flourish.

This recipe makes one peck:

- 4 qts. No. 2 grade vermiculite
- 4 qts. shredded peat moss
- 1 tbsp. 20 per cent superphosphate
- 5 tbsp. ground limestone
- 1 tbsp. 33 per cent ammonium nitrate or
- 4 tbsp. 5-10-5 fertilizer

Mix ingredients carefully, soak with water and store. Moisten again before planting house plants or seed. If you use the mixture for house plants, supplement the feedings with any commercial house plant fertilizer that is soluble in water.

Telephone calls as to where and how to obtain these ingredients may be made to our house number any Thursday night — when I am out! The man will answer them!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir:
This morning we heard of the assassination of President Kennedy. When the radio first made the statement, I myself, and all the other people in the shop were shocked immensely. For a good fifteen minutes no one said a word. We just sat in a sort of daze and looked at each other with thoughts that seldom pass through a man's mind. It was as if each one of us had lost a member of his family, or a dear friend. After a short while, a PFC in the shop who had majored in religion for five years said a prayer, and there were tears in our eyes when he finished. In the club, where it's usually cheerful, they listened to the Voice of America play hymns for the late president, and again men cried.

For myself, and others of my generation, President Kennedy was the first president who had affected us directly. His death is more than a loss to the world, it is a personal loss to most of us.

It shouldn't be, that a man such as President John Fitzgerald Kennedy, a man who has done so much and loved life as he did, should have it

Young Marine moved by Dallas event tells how he, comrades reacted taken from him so savagely. I know that each man, Democrat or Republican, black or white, atheist or religious, prayed for JFK, and maybe even a few for his assassin.

Men with the leadership qualities and the foresight that the late JFK possessed are rare and they come along seldom. We, as a nation, and as individuals, can only hope and pray that our new president, Lyndon B. Johnson, can set our nation along with others, on the road to world peace. May God be with you, President Johnson.

Very truly yours,

More on prom story

Sir:

I read last week's issue of The Advertiser very carefully. When I had done so, I re-read the issue of Nov. 21, particularly the story about the junior-senior prom meeting.

It appears the executive head of Plymouth schools is angry because of the last two paragraphs of that story, which I quote.

"The meeting solved nothing.

"It was apparent, however, school officials would prefer not to have the prom in the school buildings."

Whether you call this "editorializing" depends on your viewpoint, on "whose ox is gored." A reader expects a sports reporter to tell whether the pitcher was trying to get the batter out or whether he wasn't, if there is any reason to think he may not have been trying. This reader also expects your reporter to tell what was the result of a nifty meeting — school board, village council, board of public affairs, or any other.

It could hardly be called "editorializing" if it was the truth, which it was, because the board (referring to the report in the Nov. 28 issue) approved the recommendations of the school principal and the executive head without dissent.

What a pity it is that our school managers are not wise enough to realize that in the home town newspaper they have a valuable ally if they will treat it decently! This is not the first instance, and I have personal knowledge of others. Please do not publish my name, for obvious reasons.

Very truly yours,
A Teacher

Red wins first contest at Loudonville, 39-38

Plymouth's Big Red all but blew a 13-point lead in the fourth period at Loudonville Friday night but managed to hang on for a 39 to 38 victory. It was the first game of the season for both teams, and a Johnny Applesseed conference battle to boot.

Plymouth deserved to win this one and but for some silly shenanigans with three minutes left would have had a 12 or 13-point win for its pains.

THE BIG RED WAS AHEAD by 32 to 23 when the final eight minutes of play began. Bob Young canned a feed from Greg Cashman and Chuck Kaylor banged home a set shot and Plymouth had the 13-point lead.

With 4:18 on the clock, Young fouled Rich Kline, whose penalty throw cut the lead to eight at 36 to 28.

Kaylor bagged another free throw but the Redbirds then began to come on.

Defensive, they applied a full court press, relying on a 2-1-2 zone after Plymouth had advanced beyond midcourt. Plymouth did not cope with it well.

Zody hit a push shot from the side, Kline stole a Plymouth pass for a lay-up and Zody repeated his earlier accuracy.

The lead was by now cut to three. Greg Cashman canned the rebound off one of Young's many attempts and the lead stretched to five.

But Bill Shank netted his seventh and eighth points by rebounding a free throw at-in from the side. tempt and Weidner threw one WITH 38 SECONDS LEFT, a mental lapse by Young resulted in a held ball. Loudonville called time with 32 seconds left.

Young intercepted a pass and was fouled by Mercier. The bonus light was aglow. But Young failed on the first shot and a chance to put it on ice went aglimmering.

Shank was steaming toward the bucket as the last seconds ticked off. He fired int up there with one second left but it rolled across the rim and Plymouth's victory was secure.

Young wound up with 18 points, high for both teams. Shank had eight for Loudonville, then best of eight scorers.

Ontario, Bucyrus battles may tell story

Roundball fans will get an opportunity to appraise the Big Red's chances for a successful season in two Class AA games over the weekend here tomorrow night and goes to Bucyrus to play the Redmen Saturday.

It is difficult to draw any firm conclusions about the local team from what it showed at Loudonville.

For one thing, the Loudonville floor is even smaller than the home hardwood.

For another, it was the first game, for each team. It is particularly hard to "look good" against a poor team, and Loudonville's team is on the poor side.

For a third, some of the football players have yet to work themselves into the basketball groove. Phil Fletcher, who has been an outstanding basketball player for the Big Red for two seasons, did not perform up to his standard Friday night.

THE BIG RED SCORED only half a point each time it advanced the ball during the first eight minutes at Loudonville. The figure improved to .312 in the second period, fell back to .625 in the third and to .412 in the final quarter. None of these is sufficient to sustain a winning season.

Errors of passing and poor shooting, notably in the final 10 minutes of play, drew the points-per-advance quotient down.

Plymouth was fortunate that its backboard men were able to hold their own with Loudonville. Young and Fletcher out-rebounded the Redbirds, although both were in foul trouble and on another night might have been bumped early.

Young shows signs of being the team's gunner, although it's difficult to say if that's good or bad. He scored 18, almost half of the Plymouth total. Some of his shots were poorly advised, even though he made a few of them. During the second period, especially, his teammates did not play the rebounds well. Many times on offense Plymouth was out of position to field the ball after it hit the rim.

This is a team which must rely on ball-handling and sure shooting, because it lacks height, great speed and experience.

GREG CASHMAN DID well with his floor game and may well be the outstanding floorman on the squad. Terry Hamman fitted in well as sixth man.

Chuck Kaylor seemed to tire in the latter moments of the third period.

Nobody did well against the press.

What will happen against Ontario is anybody's guess

The home club enjoys some advantage, partly because it is at home and partly because the floor is sub-standard as to size and angle.

If the Red can defeat Ontario and hold Bucyrus, which was thumped badly by Lexington, it will do better than its fans suspected of it when the season began.

Ontario has a new coach, who last year produced a state champion in Class A at Dresden, and may be expected to employ considerable speed and fancy attack.

Strauch soil testing gives good results

Lowell Strauch's test of minimum tillage, Richland Soil and Water Conservation District, for corn illustrated several interesting principles of soil management, reports Robert H. Mills, U. S. Soil conservationist, a nonouncing results of the test.

The field study was conducted by the Richland Soil and Water Conservation district through cooperation of the agricultural extension service. The Strauch farm is northeast of Shelby in the Marsh Run watershed.

The test consisting of six plots compared the strip-processing of minimum tillage with conventional. At the same time the use of the pre-emergence herbicide Atrazine was applied, broadcast at a two-pound per acre rate was compared with various degrees of cultivation, including no cultivation.

Conventional tillage and cultivation at 107.5 bushels an acre outyielded minimum tillage and usual cultivation at 106.9 by six-tenths bushel, which is not considered a significant difference. This year the limited rainfall did not come as torrential summer storms. Excessive runoff did not occur, even under conventional methods. Other studies under normal weather conditions show increased yields of 3-5 bushels an acre for minimum tillage.

Minimum tillage and Atrazine with one cultivation at 100.7 bushels an acre outyielded conventional tillage and Atrazine with one cultivation at 98 bushels an acre by 2.7 bushels, a significant difference.

However, conventional tillage and Atrazine without cultivation at 92.7 bushels an acre outyielded minimum tillage and Atrazine with one cultivation at 76.1 by 16.6 bushels.

Mills attributed this significant difference to the extreme looseness of the soil under minimum tillage without cultivation, which permitted excessive loss of moisture during a dry year.

Other questions given consideration were whether yield increases justified tillage, cultivation, and herbicide treatment costs. Stand counts of the test plots were uniformly lower than other Strauch fields. Strauch says the test plots were the last fields planted, and the extremely dry weather that followed apparently affected the germination rate.

Mills points out the test plots produced some valuable data concerning the use of minimum tillage in a season of moisture shortage. He adds the data will be combined with other test results over the state and summarized later by university agronomists at Columbus.

Scabies in sheep due for testing

A sheep scabies eradication program on a state-wide scale, will take place in January.

Ohio Division of Animal Industry will supervise the training of technicians, the inspection of each flock, and the dipping of all flocks suspected of having scabies.

Ryerson Roe, chairman of the Huron-Richland Lamb Improvement committee, reports Huron county will have three technicians in training to qualify them to inspect flocks in Huron county. Dr. H. L. Sowers, Willard veterinarian, will supervise all dipping on farms where scabies infection may be found.

Experienced county sheep men may be employed to do the inspection work after completing the training for scabies inspection work. Any flocks these technicians find to be infected are re-checked by the state or area veterinarian. Those found free of scabies will be released from quarantine. Flocks suspected of scabies infection will remain quarantined until positive diagnosis is made.

All flocks will be quarantined beginning Jan. 6. This quarantine will remain in effect until each flock has been cleared by inspection. Special requests to market lambs will be considered by the area veterinarian where a farmer wants to market prior to inspection.

Fair to elect

Annual meeting of the Huron County Agricultural Society will be Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the court house, Norwalk. Election of directors will take place from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. in the commissioner's room. Anyone holding a 1963 membership ticket may vote.

Tax bill may be late

Time for real estate owners to pay taxes will be later than usual for the first half 1963 tax, says Harold B. Collier, Huron county treasurer. Every effort will be made to send statements by the usual target date, he said. "I have taken pride in the same dates of Jan. 1 to Jan 31 for the first half and May 20 to June 20 for the second half, for 20 years," Collier says. "Many times I admit it becomes a rat race to meet the mailing dates but by so doing the taxpayer is not caught unaware of the dates." Reason for the delay is reappraisal of all real estate in the county. The auditor's appraisal conducted by United Appraisal Co., completed and turned over to the county auditor April 28. On Nov. 22 the value was turned over to Department of Taxation which set 38 per cent of valuation for each tax assessment.

Tax rates must now be justified in proportion to increase in valuation in divisions.
