State library gets first Advertiser issue

Ohio Historical society's library today received the only recorded volume of the first two years' issues of The Plymouth Advertiser, co-founded in 1853 by a man who was later to go on to become the Civil War era's satirical writer under the name of Petroleum V. Nasby.

Nasby was actually David Ross Locke, who founded The Advertiser with James O. Robinson.

The first issue appeared Saturday, Oct. 22, 1853, and its salutary stated:

"Our object will be to make The Advertiser suitable to all readers, consequently, it will not espouse the cause of any party."

The last issue under the Robinson and Locke ownership, Oct. 8, 1855, carried a valedictory explaining the paper had been sold.

The volume came into possession of the Ohio Historical society's library by an exchange made with the New York Historical society.

Locke worked on other papers in Ohio, including those in Findlay, Bucyrus, Mansfield and Toledo. The last 22 years of his life were spent on the Toledo Blade, where many of his letters of satire appeared before he died in 1888.

A new publication by the Ohio Historical society describes Nasby's Civil War literary efforts. "The Civil War Letters of Petroleum V. Nasby" may be obtained from the order department, the Ohio Historical society Columbus 10, O., for 75 cents plus three per cent sales tax.

LET'S EXPLORE OHIO

"ALONG THE OLD CANALS"

Ever wonder how a mult-toned canal boat on the Ohio Canal a century ago could cross a creek or river?

The canal builders solved the problem with aqueducts that bridged the stream as this one still does at Tinker's Creek on Canal Road south of Cleveland.

This is one section of the Ohio Canal that is still used as a source of water for the steel plants in Cleveland's "Flats" along the Cuyahoga River.

With appropriate pomp and ceremony on July 4, 1827, the first canal boat on the Akron-

Cleveland section of the Ohio Canal passed this point on its way to Lake Erie. This boat launched the practical phase of the Canal Era that meant so much in opening the interior to easy and economical transportation and bringing early prosperity to the Ohio Country.

THE HIGH COST OF CARELESSNESS—83,654 MAN-CAUSED FOREST FIRES IN ONE YEAR!

Seven out of every eight forest fires were caused by man. It only takes one thoughtless moment to kindle an entire forest—scorching out campsites—and leaving thousands of wild animals without homes or food. It's up to every one of us to help stop this senseless waste. Do your part. Be careful with every fire. Follow Smokey's ABC's. Always hold matches till cold—then break them in two! Be sure you drown all fires out and then—stir the ashes and drown again! Crush all smokes dead out in an ash tray!

Please!  Only you can prevent forest fires

Two big rallies win for Red

The worm may have turned for Plymouth High school's baseball team;

After a dismal spring, during which the club won only one game, the Big Red has been both lucky and good at the same time.

Sunday night the team played under the lights at Tiffin and rallied for seven runs in the final inning to establish an 11 to 5 lead. Plymouth all but blew the lead, granting four scores, but held on.

Nero Howard hurled for Plymouth, fanning 12. Gary Ross belted a double and a pair of singles. Jim Hook knocked in three runs with a triple and a single.

On Monday night, during the weather, Plymouth defeated Lexington I in the Richland County league and displaced that club from the top position in the standings. Plymouth rallied for seven runs in the last inning. Eric Akers struck out nine in five frames and Tim DeWitt a pair in one frame as Plymouth won, 8 to 6.

Old sportman had right idea of mower

BY THE OLD TIMER

The time of year when nature's fruits ripen and man cuts them down to serve his better purposes always brings out the best in us.

The sight of the other afternoon of a farmer mowing hay in a field off Route 598 in Huron county brought to mind another afternoon long ago, when another farmer in another field innocently destroyed a real sportman.

The memory thereof is pertinent to the day, since it's clearly established in the law of the land now that farmers, and others who use machinery that is apt to injure another, have a responsibility to see to it that machinery doesn't do just that.

On this day which comes back so strongly to mind, the hay stood 15 or 16 inches high in a deep field that sloped down to a creek. The stream in turn flowed into a lake some thousand yards or so beyond.

THIS WAS BIRD COUNTRY. The experts call upland. Perhaps the adjective is correct. The official altitude is 218 feet above the level of the sea, which is considerably more up than most of the land in New Jersey.

The farmer drove a team of mules, each of which wore some flapping things that were designed to keep flies from their flanks. And his mower bar was set low as he circled the field, cutting swaths of perhaps six feet off the outer rim of the hay each time he turned a corner.

In one corner of the field, under a big tree that had not yet been blighted by the Dutch elm disease, then inching westward, stood one of the great figures of American finance. Whole empires quaked when he spoke. Wall Street quivered and shook when he gave the orders.

But here he stood with a little whistle in his hand, a day's growth of beard upon his chin, and a little smile on his face.

Because he was working in that field, well out of reach of the farmer's mower, a lemon-and-white pointer pup, whelped the previous fall in a surprise marriage in his kennel.

There stood with this man a young boy, as full of questions as young boys are (save that he apparently failed to ask the one question that would today stand him in the best stead, namely, "How do

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Gatherings of more than 5 persons for the purpose of religious worship are henceforth prohibited

If you woke up one morning to find a notice such as the above plastered around town, even those Americans who are among the "Great Indifferent" might soon react with alarm. And they would be wise to do so. Freedom of worship should be a jealously guarded privilege. But like any privilege which we don't respect by its use, it can be lost.

Restrictions of this privilege are unthinkable to every American. But failure to take advantage of this privilege is widespread. When was the last time you and your family enjoyed the right to worship?

Old Timer remembers a man you make all that loot, sir?" The conversation was all dog, and the man was explaining how young dogs need to get the feel of birds when they are young so they'll stay on birds when they're grown. A pointer who'll chase a rabbit, he said, is no pointer at all but only a farm dog.

HE BLEW THE WHISTLE and the pup looked up. The man waved his hat two or three times and the pup paid no mind. Suddenly the man began to run. The pup was frozen in point, having found nesting pheasants. And the team with the mow er was moving on him from behind.

The hay was so tall and the pup so short the farmer obviously couldn't see over the heads of the mules to avoid the dog.

And before the man could catch the dog's attention again, the mower bar swept into his left hind leg and severed it.

Even the high potentates of finance, accustomed to the drawing rooms of state, utter foul and violent curses when they are disturbed. And the man did. The boy ran faster than he did to where the pup lay, its leg streaming blood. The dog bit the boy when he took hold of the leg.

The man bent down and took up the dog, pinching the open vein ends, and strode hurriedly toward the road, where his car stood.

The boy rode beside the dog to the house of the kennel keeper, where a shotgun dispatched the poor animal painlessly.

Throughout, the man spoke no word to the boy. What ever the boy said, and he must have said something, he has forgotten now.

BUT HE HAS NOT FORGOTTEN what the man said after the report of the gun had died away in the hills.

"Son, never take a dog into a field that's being mowed. And if you're mowing make sure there're no dogs or cats or other animals in the field."

The man was the late Clarence Dillon, president of Dillon, Read & Co., Wall Street brokers and financiers, father and financier, father of the present Secretary of Treasury, C. Douglas Dillon.

Bill M. Young, seaman apprentice, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Young, 48 East High street, is serving with Fighter Squadron 91, presently deployed aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Ranger in the Far East.

Far Eastern ports of call during the cruise include Yokosuka, Japan, and Hong Kong, British Crown Colony; and points in Hawaii and the Republic of the Philippine. They spent Christmas in Yokosuka, departed for the Philippines and returned in March in time to see numerous Japanese festivities associated with spring, as well as the famous cherry blossoms of Japan.

The unit is the only Pacific Fleet fighter squadron to hold the Battle Efficiency award for two consecutive years.

The Ranger, temporarily deployed with the Seventh Fleet, normally operates from Alameda, Cal.
