What's happening?

Some of the pitfalls in Governor Gilligan's tax-and-tax program are beginning to climb out of the woodwork.

His tax commissioner admitted in hearings in the General Assembly that the proposed state income tax will cost $40 million during 1971-73 to collect.

And the tax commissioner acknowledged, also, that Mr. Gilligan's proposed mandatory reduction of county property taxes would last only one year.

Some cities -- Cincinnati, the governor's home town, for one -- have said they'll enlist the support of other cities in opposing the Gilligan program because they believe it does not envisage sufficient funds to cope with the growing plight of the inner city.

If the cities band together against the governor, he's as good as had it.

It was in the cities that he found most of the support in his quest for Ohio's highest elective office. His promises were taken apparently at face value and the cities expect him to make good on them. And no amount of protestation that "the Assembly won't go along with my proposals" will suffice: let's face it, the cities want their pound of flesh and they're going to see to it that, one way or another, they get it.

Which is probably only fair. For years, in a legislature dominated by the farmer and the small towner, cities received a disproportionate share of the state fiscal cake.

We are distressed that the governor's opposition hasn't rallied behind a single program.

The Republicans, who control the Assembly, haven't introduced an alternative proposal -- and it's now too late to do so, because by law revenue measures must be introduced in the lower house, which has now cut off the introduction of new bills, 975 having already been submitted -- and they do not seem, so far, to be united on one practical approach to the problem.

Everybody, Republican and Democrat alike, believes that more money is needed. Where it will come from, and how soon, are the big questions.

Governor Gilligan and his adherents in the General Assembly say that if enough Ohioans tell their legislators they want the Gilligan program, it can be had.

Don't believe a word of it!

Organized labor doesn't want the graduated income tax. Without its support, and most especially in the face of its opposition, no personal income tax worthy of the name can be enacted.

What is likely to happen is that the Republican-dominated Assembly will pencil in the dollar amounts of such programs as it believes Ohioans will hold still for, keeping in mind the party's image, because there are other elections to come. And the name of the game is power.

This means that the wheel that squeals the loudest will get the most grease. Look for the OEA to be in there pitching. And the highly organized welfare groups, too.

It all can't be done at once. Priorities must be set, and that is what we should expect of the General Assembly. Its ideas of the priorities are unlikely to cooincide with Mr. Gilligan's. It will seek to establish priorities that, in its wisdom, seem best to suit the purposes of the people and the party and least to suit the purposes of the governor and his party.

It is not a good situation, but neither is it wholly bad.

And there is this to say of it: what other system can be followed? And with what success?

John Gilligan made one big mistake: he didn't take enough Democrats into state office with him last November.

If he had, he'd have his way. Because he didn't, he'll have to settle for what his opponents think is desirable.

If you don't like it, turn the rascals out the next time around.

Clean-up day set Saturday

Conflict of interest notwithstanding, village council formally approved Tuesday a motion to request the Bachrach Co. to furnish trucks for a clean-up day Saturday.

Village Administrator Don Malainy has arranged with Plymouth Boy Scouts to police the village.

A motion by Councilman Wayne E. Strine also stipulated that sacks in which to put rubish and debris be purchased from the company. Payment for use of the vehicles, drivers and sacks is to be shared by each of the village departments.

At the request of Councilman Robert Bachrach, Assistant Village Solicitor Franklin Eckstein inquired into the present rate at which the village could borrow money to do its own financing of Phase III of the sewer system.

His reply came by letter read by Mayor Hugh Washburn. Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland attorneys, say the village does not have adequate tax valuation to borrow the sum needed (about $800,000, which would necessitate a valuation of $30,000,000) required by state law.

He suggested the best method for Plymouth to finance the sewers is through the Farmers Home administration or possibly the Ohio Water Development authority. The latter has recently changed its policies and there is the possibility that Plymouth can now qualify for its funds.

Councilman Edward O. Ramsey, who has been in close touch with Maynard McFadden, regional FHA official said he will ascertain from McFadden what is the village's position to receive financial backing so that the sewer project may begin.

A mutual aid agreement with the Willard police department and those of Greenwich, North Fairfield, Wakeman, New London, Attica and Monroeville was renewed for three years.

Only one council member showed concern about Clerk J. Phillips Moore's monthly report, Mrs. A. L. Paddock, Jr.

She complained that expenditures from funds showing a deficit should be curtailed until the funds are in balance. Since all funds are handled in one checking account, other councilmen feel the village is merely "borrowing money without paying interest", as Councilman Robert A. McKown characterized it.

The mayor also pointed out that tax money is late in receipt. Once it comes, then the funds will again be in the "black."

The clerk's report showed the general fund in the red by $3,537.90, partly the result of high expenses during April for the police department, which included some equipment, but also high payments to the pension funds. A total of $4,360.55 was spent, whereas in the last few months the cost of running the department has hovered around $3,000 a month.

The street department is $11,599.22 in the red. The mayor pointed out that more money should be forthcoming plus license fee monies from Huron county, which are nearly $5,000.

Solicitor Joseph F. Dush commented that deficit spending could be a violation of the law, but so long as no one forces the issue, it can "all be worked out on paper."

Red squad sixth in Ontario Relays

How is it that Plymouth scores well in multi-school track and field contests but doesn't win at the dual level?

The answer is the Big Red doesn't have balance.

Plymouth's squad competed in the seventh annual Ontario Relays at Ontario Saturday night and defeated two Class AA teams and powerful Crestview, which has already whipped the Big Red in a dual meet.

Reason: individual competence.

Jim Adams won the long jump with a leap of 20 feet 1 1/2 inches. Lee Wilkins flashed home in front in the 200-yard dash in 23 seconds. John Conley won second place in the pole vault by clearing 12 feet.

Result: Plymouth wound up with 16 points, behind Ashland with 60, Malabar with 58, Madison with 46, Ontario with 24 5/6 and Shelby with 21 but ahead of Willard with 14 5/6 Crestview with 9 and Lexington with 4 1/3.

Gas bill rise to average 72¢ a month

Residents of Plymouth will begin paying 4.78 cents more per 1,000 cubic feet for natural gas on May 16, Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., announces.

The increase will amount to about 72 cents a month for the average customer who heats his home with natural gas.

The adjustment reflects increases in the cost of gas from suppliers, authorized by the Federal Power commission. They are passed on to customers by provisions of the village's contract with the gas company.

HORSE-TRADING DAYS AT JUMP'S

We are nearing the finish line!
On such merchandise -- and fixtures -- as we have in stock, we'll listen, and like as not do business, to any reasonable offer. Appraise the merchandise. Decide what you think it's worth. Make us an offer. Odds are six-two-and-even you've made a buy! (We reserve the right to dicker!)

Now what could be fairer than that?

JUMP'S

Worcestershire's birth was in a pharmacy

By AUNT LIZ

Did you know that one of the standbys in your kitchen cupboard came out of a drugstore over a century ago?

Druggist, or chemists as they were called then, had more to work with than the average kitchen had in those days. Their shelves were filled with the natural ingredients that went into the making of various medicines. They may not have cured you then like they do today, but some wonderful concoctions were the result.

One is Worcestershire sauce.

It came about quite accidentally when Lord Sandys returned from India in 1835 and went to his local drugstore, run by Mr. Lea and Mr. Perrins, with his favorite sauce recipe written on a slip of paper.

The boys tried it and ended up making several gallons because it sounded good. But when it was all put together, Lord Sandys returned from Sandys took one taste and said, "Bah, it's horrible!"

The two crestfallen would-be cooks stashed it all away in their cellar and forgot it until it was time to do some spring housecleaning. Before it was taken to the local landfill, someone tasted it. It was delicious because it had been allowed to age. Within a few years, they had a booming business. Everyone loved the biting, tasty sauce. And you must admit a dash of it can really perk up a special dish.

Because it was served on ships that came this way, its fame spread here and in the 1840's a factory to make it here was started. Its recipe is still considered a secret, although a lot of families living in Worcester, England, have it, because the good lord's butler had a going little sideline of selling it to people willing to pay his price. So it has been handed dogn for a number of generations.

What would a good barbecue sauce be without it? Just about ghastly!

With everyone getting his outdoor grill out for the season, perhaps there are some who do not have this recipe, which is quite tasty and can do a lot of perking up.

Mix togesher a teaspoon each of salt, chili powder and celery seed. Add about a fourth of a cup each of brown sugar, vinegar and Worcestershire, a cup of ordinary catsup, two cups of water and a drop or two of Tabasco -- go easy on it, though.

Simmer it for about a half hour and it is ready.

Another rather tasty recipe using the sauce can make a good, healthy luncheon dish.

Mix two beaten eggs with some strong grated cheese, salt, pepper and a tablespoon of Worcestershire. Spread this on buttered toast and put in your broiler until the cheese puffs.

40 mothers, daughters attend 4-Hers' tea

Over 40 mothers and daughters were present Saturday afternoon at Shiloh Elementary school when members of the Shilohettes 4-H club served their May day mothers' tea.

A Maypole surrounded by small dolls was the centerpiece for the refreshment tables.

After a short business meeting conducted by President Teresa Laribee, each girl introduced her mother.

Nancy Kennard, chairman of the tea, introduced the advisers, after which Vice - President Barbara Cuppy presented a gift to the head adviser, Miss Eleanor Company.

A mother - daughter creed was read by Mrs. Lawrence Laribee and her daughter, Teresa.

The Shilohettes Band played several numbers with Mrs. G. D. Seymour at the piano. Band members were Connie Fidler, Maureen Flora, Hazel Kinsel, Jennifer Kranz, Mary Beth Kranz, Teresa Laribee, Diana Nesbitt and Dianne Russell.

Jennifer Kranz gave a demonstration, "Selecting the Right Pattern".

A play, written by Adviser Mrs. Paul Kranz, was presented by Kathy Blankenship, Barbara Cuppy, Laurene Laribee, Becky and Debbie Osborne, Kathy Reynolds, Melanie Schibley and Cecile, Lonette and Lynette Stevens. A game at the end of the play engaged the mothers.

Maureen Flora gave a safety talk, followed by several flutophone numbers by the club's fourth graders, Nancy Kennard, Beth Kraft and Becky Reynolds.

Diana Nesbitt told of her experience as 4-H president last year. Safety slides were shown on "House Traps".

Junior Host and Hostess girls, Teresa Laribee, Diana Nesbitt, and Cecile Stevens, served refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cole, Chicago, Ill., spent Saturday with Mrs. C. H. McQuate, returning home Sunday morning. Mrs. Cole is the former Kristina McQuate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McQuate.

Mrs. Don Hyatt and children, Mary and Sara Adams, Columbus, spent the weekend with their father, Clyde Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. David Dick spent Thursday in Van Buren, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wagner.

Mrs. Martha Moran and daughter, Linda, were in Elyria Sunday to attend a birthday dinner at the home of Mrs. Moran's son, Robert, in whose honor it was served. They were joined in Willard by Mr. and Mrs. William Moran, who accompanied them to Elyria.

Get-Together club will meet May 20 with Mrs. Frank Dawson.

Past Matrons will meet with Mrs. Fred Dawson Friday evening May 14. Mrs. Harold Cobb will be the co-hostess.

It will be guest night Monday meeting of the Shiloh Town & Country Garden club. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Roselene Takacs, "Oak Hill". Meeting will take place at Mt. Hope Lutheran church.
