

Go to $500 a day?

That's cost to connect to sewer if beneficial occupancy is allowed

Will the surety for the defuncted Quentin Alderman Co., Inc., Flatwoods, Ky., accede to beneficial occupancy of the sewer system?

If so, then perhaps 35 per cent of the approximately 600 dwellings and business places that must connect to the new sanitary sewer may undertake to do so before a hard frost.

And when they do, they face an immediate cash outlay of an average of $500.

Why an "average" of $500?

Because the length of lateral will vary from house to house, business to business. And in some instances, the plumbing plan of the house or business must be altered, to accommodate the sewer tap location.

And the cost varies directly as the amount of excavation and the amount of approved sewer pipe that must be laid in place.

The only firm cost is $60 for each sewer connection -- $10 for an inspection fee and $50 to connect. (Village council retained the connection fee of $50 paid by approximately 85 households that connected to the north-west interceptor some years ago. Sample sewer connection fees in other towns this size: Monroeville, $500; Seville, $750.)

The rules and regulations governing the conduct of the householder are set down in Ordinance 8-735, passed Apr. 9, 1973, on the insistence of the lender, Farmers Home administration.

At least one provision of the ordinance is apt to exercise most of the householders. One excavator, familiar with conditions in Plymouth estimates that "better than three-fourths of the houses don't have sewer laterals constructed of pipe that's approved so that will have to come out of there and approved pipe will have to be put in its place. This pipe costs about $1.90 a foot."

What he is saying is that many householders may be underestimating overall costs because they think that such laterals are in place will be suitable for connection to the sewer main.

Not so, Uncle Sam says so.

And the ordinance also says that no unauthorized person may make any connection to the sewer main.

Who's an "authorized" person? One who has complied with the regulations by posting a bond guaranteeing that the village and the householder will be held harmless for five years from the date of installation of materials.

What does it mean?

It means that a householder can engage a trenching machine and perform his own excavation UP TO A SHORT DISTANCE OF THE TAP. Only an authorized person may perform the tap. And the whole business must be inspected by the village administrator before it's covered up.

Furthermore, an authorized person must cut a form and supply an 1/2 x 11-inch sketch of the plan of the sewer service and file it within a reasonable time with the administrator.

Some quotations reported last week are from $3 to $6 a linear foot for excavation, $10 an hour for labor incident to installation of pipe.

What happens if a householder refuses or can't pay to connect to the sewer?

"There is no way these costs can be certified to the tax duplicate," says a source in the county auditor's office.

THE ORDINANCE DIRECTING householders to connect to the sewer hasn't been written yet but it will have teeth in it. The lender will compel us to enact an ordinance that carries sufficient punishment for failure to connect within a reasonable time that no householder can afford to refuse to do so, says Elizabeth C. Padlock.

"The pattern in other communities is that failure to connect by a fixed date constitutes a misdemeanor punishable by law, and every additional day of failure to connect constitutes a separate offense. We certainly hope that sort of thing does not come to pass in Plymouth."

She adds, "The council will be urged by me to fix a deadline date sufficiently early of the beginning of the connections to the sewer that no single contractor or group of contractors can have the householder at his or their mercy because of the time limit. I shall urge the council to be reasonable. Nevertheless, to eliminate stream pollution is what this program is all about, we've been struggling with it for 22 and more years that I've been in Plymouth, and now the end is in sight and we must work toward it vigorously."

One citizen asks, "If I fall to mow the weeds on my lot, the village comes in, does it for me, and puts the cost on my tax bill. If I fall to repair my sidewalk, the village comes in and fixes it or lays a new one and puts the cost on my tax bill. Now if I fail to connect to the sewer, will the village come down and do it and put it on my tax bill? It'd be so much simpler for me that way."

The answer, so far, is no. There is now no legal authority to put it on the tax bill. And, the mayor says, "the village doesn't want to get into that kind of business, so far as I know."

Another citizen says, "My neighbor is on welfare. Will welfare pay for the sewer connection?" The answer to that question is no.

And the answer to the next question is "I don't know."

Persons receiving old age pensions or welfare benefits must be connected to the sewer as everyone else, says the mayor, "but I don't yet know how it will be paid for or who will pay for it."

Beneficial occupancy may not be approved.

Considering that the surety, American Finance Insurance Co., Watertown, N. Y., has a stiff law suit pending against the village and its engineer, it may decline to authorize beneficial occupancy. It may insist that the village accept the system in toto before allowing any further connections.

This would differ from its position so far, namely, that in cases of emergency, determined by the sewer engineer and the village council, connections have been authorized.

When will the word come down?

Perhaps during July.

Two cyclists to cross U.S. twice in 38 days, once by bus

Two Plymouth residents, an adult and a schoolboy, will leave here Saturday by bus for Oregon on the first leg of a 6,000-mile trip across America in their bicentennial year.

They are William F. Houser, 52 Bell street, who's taking a vacation from his employment at R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co., Willard, and Alfred Parkinson, 4th, 68 Sandusky street, eldest child of the Alfred Parkinsons, 3rd. He will be a 10th grader in Plymouth High school in the fall.

They are participating with Men in Motion, a cycling group, in a bicycle tour across the United States from Portland, Ore., to Portland, Me. They anticipate the trip will take 38 days. Motor transportation carrying provisions and replacement parts will follow the riders, expected to number about 30.

When they reach Maine, a bus will carry them back to Ohio.

Houser is an old hand at such trips, having ridden on his own and with groups on several long distance jaunts. But none of them so far as this one. For young Parkinson, it is his first trek of any distance.

Young Alfred Parkinson will depart Saturday on what will be -- for him and companion, William F. Houser -- monumental bicentennial trip across America from Portland, Ore., to Portland, Me.

Alley closing faces council

"Shall an alley long in disuse be vacated? Or shall it be opened to accommodate one neighbor?"

Two petitions were presented to the council. One signed by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert V. Akers and Mrs. George W. Chesman asked that the 84-foot wide of the 20 foot alley be vacated.

The second petition was signed by Eric Hedden and Mrs. Chesman, asking that the complete alley be vacated.

The hearing will be July 6 at 6 p. m.

At the urging of the mayor, the council approved joining the Richland county disaster program, which is now almost completely formed. She said it is the only opportunity for the village to be able to obtain needed equipment.

Approval was given for members of the fire department to repair the firehouse roof. Councilman Hubert V. Akers said the cost is estimated between $700 and $800 for materials and labor.

On June 2, the council agreed the Plymouth Shiloh Boosters would be asked to pay for the extra police protection during the annual carnival. Donald Vanderpool and Anthony Fenner, representing the Boosters, said they could not afford it.

Jacobs said the village cannot either. The mayor asked Police Chief Robert L. Meiser if the police would donate the time. Councilman Toy Patton said it would not be fair to ask them.

It was finally agreed the village will furnish one extra patrolman to work with the regularly assigned officer.

For the period of July 1 to Dec. 31, 1976, the village will receive $3,762 in revenue sharing money. It will be spent on street work.

Repair of various alleys will be investigated to determine if the Huron county permissive tax money may be used for those in that county.

More for less!

How to feed four handsomely on $3

By AUNT LIZ

"I never miss one of your columns. You're so exciting. But I would never dare try one on my family - they would never eat them."

"Let's face it, this town is a meat and potato town. The meat must be beef and 90 per cent of it is fried and the potatoes must either be boiled and mashed or fried in deep grease."

The first quotation is from an old friend whose acquaintance I made when she was a young girl, unmarried and living at home.

The second is from my favorite grocer, whose apprenticeship began in the Navy and stretched to the butcher block before he was called to management.

What you ought to write about is how an ordinary family can live like Vanderbilt and spend like Jones. Tell how to eat just as well as they do at the White House on an income from the flats. That's the name of the game -- tell the reader how to improve a lifestyle without spending more money."

That quotation comes from one of the shrewdest newspaper people in Ohio. What galls me is that I have been married to him for over 30 years.

How does one suit the market and improve it at the same time? This is what faces our nation in the cataclysmic confrontation of Nov. 2. I believe that America will make a decision on that day that will affect it until the turn of the century. And, frankly, I am scared.

I am afraid that in our overweening desire to make all things available to all people, we will make it impossible for most of us to hand on to what we have and to keep up with the decrease in purchasing power of what we earn.

Nowhere is this such a factor as at the dinner table.

The staples of our diet -- flour, sugar, coffee, shortening, meats, fruits and vegetables -- are influenced in price less and less by the market place than by labor contracts granted to those who grow, how, plant, weed, spray, pick, pluck and pack them.

Time was, in my family at least, when the decision of what to buy or not to buy for the evening meal was based on price and not preference. Today, as any grocer will tell you, and any psychologist analyzing the grocer's advertisements will confirm, it is based on preference first and price thereafter.

My favorite grocery store, for example, simply does not stock any, or not much of, at least, my favorite vegetable. Why? We have to throw most of it away.

THE POINT IS THAT TO survive in this economy, the average wage earner must influence his household in a different manner.

He must take advantage of seasonal markets more so than has been his custom. Advertisements purchasing power to lesser items that will not sacrifice dietary balance, and he must teach his family to be satisfied with food that is less sweet, less greasy, less starchy, but not less nutritious.

Okay, so now we are down to the nitty gritty. What is this wonder?

One at a time. Surely for a family of four a rice dish with a green salad is more than abundant.

A basic rice dish, that can be dressed up if one wishes to splurge.

And this one, for four, cost me exactly $3. Saute one good size onion chopped finely in margarine. When it is golden, stir in two cups of long grain rice. When it becomes golden, slowly add two cans of hot hot chick en broth) or if you have some left over from a real chick, plan on four cups). It will take about 20 minutes for the rice to absorb all this. Mean while saute a fourth of a pound of chopped mushrooms. They go on top of the rice when served. Then sprinkle some grated cheese on top of each serving.

It's plain good, but if you really want it better, add a package of saffron to the rice just as it is finishing cooking.

That is the great luxury of this recipe, but you can live without it. It is horribly expensive but really worth it. It should be mixed with a little hot broth and added to the rice at the very end.

Should you use the saffron, which does add to the cost, then you must go out and pick your salad for free, like watercress, dandelion greens and such, or raid -- with permission, of course -- your neighbor's garden.

Dress it with a mixture of salt, freshly ground black pepper, a bit of dry mustard, some thyme, some oregano, a pinch of caraway seed, and a mixture of two parts of wine vinegar to one part of salad oil. (And, darnit, I like olive oil, which runs up the price.)

Newsy notes . . .

Michael S. Beebe, a student in North Central Technical college, Mansfield, is among 156 students who earned a 3.5 or better grade point average for the spring quarter, 1976, which ended June 11.

Plymouth street, was clerk of the city council of Taft, Sloan county, as a member of the Federalist party.

Jill Arlene Von Stein, Shiloh route 2, was clerk of the city council of Catherwood, Jones county, as a member of the Nationalist party.

Working together is the only way.

Keeping electricity coming is a big job. It's more than just taking care of the day-to-day problems of supplying power. It's also making sure we have enough fuel and facilities to keep up with the increasing needs of our area.

And the needs are growing. For instance, our electric requirements are almost double what they were ten short years ago. Simply stated, electric power continues to be called upon to do more and more things in our work and in our homes.

Keeping up with this increase is tough. It requires the best of everyone. It also requires planning, new facilities, and unfortunately, a lot of money.

And frankly, we can't do it all by ourselves.

That's why we need your cooperation. You can help by using electricity wisely. And by your understanding of the joint responsibility for supplying our future electric needs. It's a critical ingredient in our power partnership.

We know that asking you to work with us is asking a lot. But when you get right down to it, working together is the only way.
