

Board gets recommendation to build at Shiloh

A recommendation by its building committee to construct a new junior high school on the present Shiloh site was accepted by Plymouth Board of Education in special session May 26.

The committee, the Rev. Arthur Hamman and Frank R. Garber, also recommended the board purchase 7.67 acres in the northwest section of Plymouth from the Van-alsade family for $23,000 as a site for expansion of the high school athletic programs.

The vote was 3 to 2, David Howard and R. Harold Mack dissenting.

What the board did, after lengthy discussion and an executive session of about an hour, was to bend to pressure from the village council of Shiloh, the American Legion, post there and about 75 persons living in the Shiloh area, all of whom insisted that a new junior high school must be built on the Shiloh site.

The plans of the architect, D. James Crawford, call for removal of existing buildings, some of which were constructed in 1876, and gradually constructing over a period of two years, a new building to house about 300 seventh and eighth grade pupils.

No decision was taken on the purchase of the land in Plymouth. The option to purchase expires Aug. 15.

Principal argument of those supporting construction in Shiloh was that it is nearly the geographic center of the district. To transport pupils to the extreme northwest corner of the district, and in Huron county, would prove to be expensive to parents of junior high school pupils, they said.

The state department of education has said the facilities at Shiloh for junior high school pupils are not adequate, chiefly because they are not constructed to meet the needs of a modern curriculum.

However, the state's warning fell short of condemnation of the buildings.

After the meeting, Garber characterized the vote as "a vote to accept, not necessarily to approve, the report of the committee, and it doesn't mean that we're going to build in Shiloh or anywhere."

The board president, Mrs. Roger Fugh, echoed these sentiments. During the meeting, she said the board's vote was merely to accept the report of the committee, not to commit, the board to any action."

Resignation of William J. Roll, industrial arts teacher and head wrestling coach, was accepted. He will join the Versailles system.

His brother, Thomas, North Star, a graduate of Urbana college, was hired as an elementary teacher and may be assigned as head wrestling coach to succeed his brother, David Boor, Shelby, a graduate of Ohio State university with a master's degree from Bowling Green State university, was hired for one year as junior high guidance counselor, succeeding Mrs. Ruth Wallen, who was compelled to retire because of illness.

John C. Leonard, a graduate student in Michigan State university, East Lansing, Mich., was hired as an elementary teacher.

Caryl Miller, Ashland, an Ashland college graduate, was hired to teach elementary art.

The board met yesterday afternoon to finalize plans to seek approval in the Nov. 2 general election of a bond issue and a levy to support it. Likelihood is that the levy will amount to four mills.

If such a levy is approved, the new school tax would amount to $37.60, the highest figure among any Richland county school district.

Primary set Tuesday

Ohioans will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on eight amendments to the state constitution and for delegates to the national party convention.

They also will choose party candidates for U.S. senate and congress.

The Voice of The Advertiser -

On Tuesday

How should the intelligent voter conduct himself next Tuesday?

He should vote for experience where that experience in that office has proved to be beneficial to the electorate.

He should vote for experience in other offices which is offered to sustain a candidacy for another position if that experience has been satisfactory.

For legislative offices, he should support legislative experience over government management experience; that is, a councilman, a trustee of public affairs, a county commissioner, a representative to the General Assembly or the Senate, over, say, a mayor, a court clerk, a recorder or a police chief.

For government management offices, such as prosecuting attorney, recorder, treasurer and the like, he should support candidates whose service, whether public or private, has manifested skill in management.

He should support incumbents where they have served efficiently and where their opponents have submitted no convincing reason for a change.

Finally, if none of these considerations can be applied to a candidate, ask this of him: did he come here to see you? Or anybody else in town?

Not in many years have we noted that candidates simply don't care about what they regard as a handful of votes. To our knowledge, fewer than seven candidates have appeared here. And if they don't call on the newspaper, where should they call?

By these lights, Richland county voters will wish to support William F. McKee for prosecutor, Harold E. Williams for recorder, John W. Them for treasurer, Paul Pfeifer for state senator, Mrs. Douglass for 61st district representative.

Huron county voters don't have so many contested offices, Republicans have the choice between Otto H. Bauerle, a former councilman, and Kenneth G. Salisbury, a former trustee of public affairs and mayor, for a commissionership, and between Frank V. Smith, an incumbent township trustee, and Dale V. Stearns, for many years a township clerk, for the other. Each of the four would serve suitably, we think.

Democratic voters may prefer Clayton P. Bick and James E. Seitz, Sr.

Republicans will have noted that one of the candidates for 72nd district representative didn't show up here at all. Of the others, Richard Rench has been here more often, although it must be said some of those appearances have been in connection with other candidacies.

Democratic voters haven't met either of their candidates and may conceivably, more's the pity, simply pull the lever for the first name on the ballot. Or not pull the lever at all.

Senator, member of the Congress, justice of the state supreme court, state senator, representative to the General Assembly, county commissioner, prosecuting attorney, clerk of the court.

All Ohio voters will vote in the preferential presidential primary for Senator and for the amendments to the constitution.

President Gerald R. Ford and Richard M. Nixon are GOP candidates. Jimmy Carter, Frank Church, Gertrude W. Donahay, Henry M. Jackson, Morris K. Udall and George C. Wallace are Democratic candidates.

Robert Taft, Jr., incumbent senator, is the GOP nominee. Richard B. Kay, former Sen., Howard M. Metzbaum, James D. Nolan and Rep. James V. Stanton are the Democratic nominees.

Incumbent Rep. John M. Ashrook is opposed on the Republican ticket by Donald C. Wickam of Loudonville. John C. McDonald Newark is the only Democratic nominee.

TWO SEATS ON THE highest bench in Ohio are contested.

Don P. Brown and John W. Potter, Republicans, seek nomination for the term starting Jan. 1. Robert E. Cook and John F. Corrigan and A. William Sweeney are the Democratic nominees.

Incumbent Sen. starting Jan. 2, J. Gareth Hitchcock, Sara J. Harper and William J. Morrissey, Jr., are the GOP nominees. E. Pfeifer, Bucyrus, the winner, will face the incumbent, Gene Slagle, Gallon, in November.

Richland county voters will choose nominees for representative.

General Assembly from the 61st district. Incumbent Sherrod Brown is opposed on the Democratic ticket and will face the winner of a race between Mrs. M. Joan Douglass, Mansfield, and Kenneth L. Ross, a Shelby lawyer, in November.

Republican voters in Richland county will choose nominees for one term as county commissioner (either Malcolm C. Day or Jimmie A. Boubary), for prosecuting attorney (incumbent William F. McKee or Norman R. Marton), for recorder (either L. Gayle Hopkins, Jarle M. Spurgeon or Harold F. Williams), and treasurer (either Herbert Chevrolet or John W. Them). Democratic incumbents are unopposed. Nor is there a race for any Democratic office.

Huron county voters, save for those in the 85th House district, will choose a GOP nominee to succeed Ethel Swanbeck. Candidates are Richard E. Rench, Marie Tansey, William J. Krantz and Andrew Orner, Jr. Democratic nominees are James L. Kimbler and Charles M. Traband.

Those in the 85th district will choose between Gene Damschroder, incumbent, and his Republican opponent, David W. Koehl, and between Albert J. Altman, Jr., and Francis C. Stalb, Democrat.

Businesses Higher electric costs send appropriations up

Two businesses hit the dust June 1.

Hopery's Card & Gift Shop, which was opened by the Roy Smiths in 1974, closed its doors forever. The premises at 1 East Main street were occupied over the weekend by Plymouth Pharmacy, which has leased them.

The Smiths will continue to live upstairs at 112 1/2 East Main street. They operate a similar business in Jiffin.

Taylor's Texaco station, owned by the John B. Taylors and operated peripaterically by their son Larry, was to have been taken over by Sidney Ream. The contract by which young Ream was to have assumed management was also rescinded because he could not continue and since young Taylor is employed in Norwalk, the Taylors elected to close the business. Much of the equipment was sold to Fidon Kennard, operator of Plymouth Unoco service.

An appropriation ordinance calling for expenditures during 1976 of $510,700.32, an increase of $93,945.26 over 1975 appropriations, was approved on third reading by village council Tuesday night.

The increase amounts to 22.2 per cent.

Almost all of the increase derives from the higher cost of electricity. In 1975, the appropriation was $147,472.96. In 1976 the estimate is $241,418.22, an increase of $93,945.26 or more than the total rise in appropriations.

Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach objected at the beginning of the meeting that the minutes of the previous session were not accompanied by a financial report and abruptly adjourned the meeting after two hours because he did not find adequate the statement prepared by the clerk, Miss Anita L. Riedinger, for the period ending May 31. Brumbach said he will insist that the ambulance accounts be rendered separately from the general fund.

Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock said for the first time in over a year the electric fund owes no money and has a balance of $14,554.78. On Dec. 31, 1975, she said, the balance was just $106.75.

On May 31, she added, the general fund balance was $2,577.47. On Dec. 31, it was $1,165.29. The village still owes $6,000 to Peoples National bank.

By unanimous vote, the council approved a resolution calling for an additional one-half mill fire levy to be submitted to the electorate Nov. 2. It also approved a resolution requesting renewal of a one-half mill fire levy that expires Dec. 31.

Two other renewal levies will appear on the Nov. 2 ballot. One of them is for one-half mill, to benefit Mary Fate park. The other is for two mills, to benefit the general fund.

Richard L. Horton, principal of the high school completing his first year here, will present the class, other officers of which are Sue Shury, vice-president; Diana Nesbitt, secretary, and Kathy Cramer, treasurer.

Newsy notes . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Myer, Shaker Hts., were Sunday and Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Cranford. Myer's father was Dr. William Sykes, formerly of Plymouth, and her mother was Mae Brubaker, also a native of Plymouth.

Hauser certain as prosecutor

A 28-year-old Willard attorney who's first job was as assistant prosecutor in Huron county seems certain to be appointed to succeed his resigned chief.

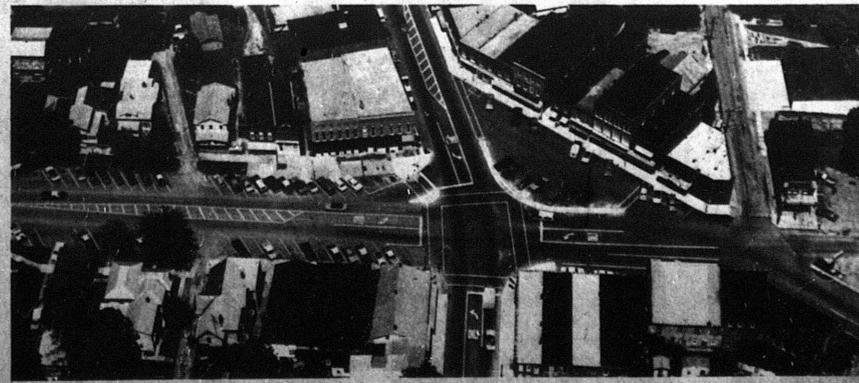

Richard B. Hauser, Democratic candidate for the office in the general election, was named interim prosecutor of the common pleas May 17 by a 2 to 1 vote of the county commissioners. Commissioner Donald Robertson, a Republican who isn't seeking reelection, said he didn't want to be regarded as having made an endorsement in the race for the prosecutors'hip. Michael J. Fegen, Norwalk, is the GOP nominee for the post.

The Democratic Central committee met in New London last night to make the final selection. Insiders said there is nobody else and Hauser has it.

No draft, higher costs said cause of drop in collegians

Only a handful of graduates plan higher education. Reason? "There's no pressure on young men to avoid military conscription by going to college," says Finn Laursen, guidance counselor. "College costs have risen so sharply that many families can't afford them, even with the assistance that's available to lower income families. And besides, there's much less conviction nowadays that a college education is necessary or desirable to a happy life in the remainder of this century." Thirteen candidates for the diploma have firm plans to attend a four year college. These are Tim Arthur, Ohio State university branch at Mansfield; Randolph A. Cole, Ohio State university branch at Mansfield; Stephen D. Cook, Muskingum college, New Concord; Guy E. Flora, Ohio State university; Jeffrey L. Holt, U. S. Air Force academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Debra L. Kelley, Bluffton college, Bluffton; Randy Kennard, Slippery Rock State college, Slippery Rock, Pa.;

Also, Sue Koppes, Ambassador college, Big Sandy, Tex.; Diane Nesbitt, Mt. Union college, Alliance; W. Todd Root, Ohio university, Athens; Sue Shuty, Ashland college, Ashland; Bradley J. Turson, Ohio Northern university, Ada; Catherine L. Whittington, Ohio State university. Prospective graduates who intend to seek additional training at less than four year schools include Kenneth M. Bisei, North Central Technical college, Mansfield; Timothy C. Branham, North Central Technical college, Mansfield; Daniel L. Edgeson, North Central Technical college, Mansfield; Also, John Gullett, North Central Technical college, Mansfield; Terri Moorman, Mid-Ohio School of Practical Nursing, Mansfield; Thomas B. Podmore, 3rd, North Central Technical college, Mansfield; Also, Philip Terry, Denver Automotive & Diesel college, Denver, Colo.; Nancy Wallace, Mid-Ohio School of Practical Nursing, Mansfield. Military service is the objective of Eduardo Gomez, who will join the Air Force next month; Kenneth E. Deskins, who will join the Navy; Ronald D.

PHS sports light 'brighter'?

Success of the 1976 Plymouth tennis team is, in the view of its coach, William K. Northrup, 2nd, a sign that "the light for Plymouth sports is starting to burn brighter gain". The record of 14 wins and three defeats, the best in history, was an improvement over the 7- and-7 last season. No member of the squad had a losing season. Bob Davis was 10-and-7 in singles and 5-and-1 in doubles. Jerry Hartman, only a ninth grader, was 10-and-2 and 9-and-1. Jay Haver was 13-and-3 and 5-and-1. Sam Fry was 7-and-1 and 7-and-2. Steve Cook, who'll graduate, was 10-and-5 and 3-and-0. Bill Sutter had a record of 5-and-1 and 5-and-4. Tom Gowitzka's doubles record was 6-and-3.

Marty McKenzie also played only doubles and wound up 7-and-7. Add Carrie Will, the only girl on the squad, finished 1-and-0.

Term Beginning Jan. 2, 1977

A City Councilman at Willard for the past 6 years, and president on retirement from Council;

A member of Willard Area Council of Governments while on City Council;

A member of Huron County Mental Health Society;

A member of Huron County Regional Planning Commission for several years.

He is presently a trustee at Holiday Lakes, president of the Huron County Builders Association and on the State Board of the Ohio Builders Association, a member of Rotary and Kiwanis and a member of Trinity Lutheran Church.

He has no ax to grind with anyone but believes he can take care of the business at hand as he has always done in the past.

There are many reasons for this, but just a few are being mentioned. He and his family of wife and four children have been in Huron County nearly all their lives, and Bauerle himself has been a resident of Huron County for 50 years.

He knows the business of farming because this was his profession for many years. He earned an American Farmer Degree while in high school and was very active in Grange, Farm Bureau and other farm organizations. He knows business in general because he has been successfully associated with the lumber and building business for the last 25 years.

He has served nearly every person in Huron County in one capacity or another during the past 30 years. Some of these include:

Frank Tubbs fought Indians, once guarded Brigham Young

In a bicentennial year when Americans remember the glorious days of the past, they recall as well some that were not so glorious.

A man who lived and died in Plymouth fought the Indians in the West as a member of Co. K, 11th Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, in 1864.

His name was Frank Tubbs, who enlisted as a 17-year-old, or so he claimed (there is a discrepancy in times, what he remembered in 1931, the year he died, was that it had been 67 years since he fought the Indians, which would have put the date at 1864, about right historically; but his grave registration date here shows he was born in 1848, which would have made him about 20). The unit was sent to Ft. Leavenworth, then as now in Kansas, and then to Ft. Laramie, then as now in Wyoming.

The following is taken from an account he gave to a correspondent of a Cleveland newspaper, which was published Jan. 17, 1931:

"I wasn't quite 18 then and weighed a scant 95 pounds. The uniforms and shoes were all too big for me," and he chuckled.

"They had to cut a suit down for me and I must have made a pretty picture."

"But they weren't so particular in those days. Anyone who could handle a gun was acceptable."

"First we went to Fort Leavenworth. From there we were sent to Fort Laramie, crossing the plains on foot in the dead of winter. We had horses, of course, and I remember it was so cold that we sometimes had to stay up all night, driving them around, to keep them from freezing to death. Some of the dogs actually did perish of the cold."

"We soon were stationed in the Sioux country, Wagon trains were continually passing through and as the Indians had a grudge against white settlers, we had some pretty lively times. The Union Pacific Railroad was being laid out at the time, too, and the Eleventh Ohio guarded the surveyors."

"On one occasion, Tubbs continued, 'we were sent to Salt Lake City to arrest Brigham Young. It was reported that the Mormons were furnishing the Indians with firearms and ammunition."

"Young was kept in the guard house for several days and then released. He never caused us any more trouble."

"In those times we had to carry dispatches by horse. Many's the time I was in the saddle fourteen hours at a stretch and more than once 24 hours."

"As a rule we had to lie low in underbrush in the day time, but as soon as night came, on we rode and rode hard. I had six horses shot out from under me in the three years I was in the west."

"Of the 1,680 men of Company K who went west, but 480 returned. It was a common thing for one of their comrades to fall victim to the Indians."

"One of Tubbs' buddies from Plymouth was found with ten arrows and three bullets in him."

"His heart had been cut out and placed on a stick."

"Tubbs, a carpenter, built the coffin and helped lay his friend away."

"Every year until her death that boy's mother served a turkey supper at Christmas to all of us fellows who helped to bury her son."

"Tubbs produced a tintype of a good looking youth in uniform."

"That is the way I looked at 20," he said proudly.

"The picture itself had a history which Tubbs related."

"An artist, his wife and two children were going by wagon to seek their fortune in a western town."

"One night the Indians came upon them, killing the father and two children, burning the tent and all their belongings, including the picture-taking paraphernalia, by which they earned their livelihood."

"The wife, who had been spared, was found a short time later by Tubbs' company. She was cared for and taken to a frontier town, where the soldiers took up a collection, presenting her with money enough to buy a new outfit for taking pictures."

"The boys, of course, all had their pictures taken to further help the good cause along and the tintype reposing in a drawer at the Tubbs home today was the first one taken with the new device."

"Col. Jim Bridger was interpreter and guide for Tubbs' company."

"Bridger could talk Indian jargon with the best of them," Tubbs recalled. It was necessary to have someone who could speak their language when he captured a lot of them."

"Tubbs can speak the tongue of the red man, too. He gave samples of his linguistic ability and explained what it was all about."

"Tubbs saw many of the noted chiefs of that day."

"Sitting Bull was a bad old fellow," he remarked. "Then there was Chief Spotted Tail, Old Man Afraid of his Horse, Standing Elk and any number of other well known Indian leaders. We had a dozen or more skirmishes on a very ground where later Custer's massacre took place."

"Tubbs said they never lacked meat while in the west."

"There were plenty of buffalo, elk and jack rabbits to be had for the shooting."

"He was past 21 when he returned to Ohio."

"They didn't have to cut down uniforms for me then. I weighed 165 pounds. Guess the hardships agreed with me, he smiled."

"Until recent years Tubbs, after he left the army, specialized in the making of railroads and other skilled inside carpentry."

"In his home are a number of elaborate pieces of furniture, typical of the period in which they were built, all his own handiwork."

OPPOSED: Regional Sewers: I am not opposed to sewers where needed. I do oppose wholesale sewerage just to cater to a Federal program (I investigated the Regional Sewer project in Marion county, and found farmers with 75 acres being assessed $67,500, based on frontage as well as total acreage. Also many small rural property owners with excessively high assessments that are confiscatory.

"Liberals" in Congress have brought us Inflation and Unemployment

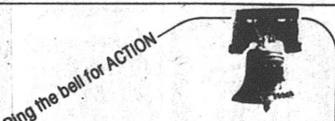

37% of our Gross National Product is required to run our total government. This is 12% TOO HIGH. We need this 12% RETAINED by wage-earners and others with income. We then can spend it for our own needs, and thereby buy the products and services of the unemployed to create Full Employment WITHOUT A WAR! The Liberals who are in the majority in Congress and Columbus, with unlimited Taxing Power have caused inflation with resulting unemployment. We must turn our economy around if we are to survive.
