Tough Danville foe tomorrow

Plymouth meets Danville for the third time here tomorrow, favored to win over the Blue Devils, who defeated Rosecrans of Zanesville in Mid-Duckeye conference play last week.

The score was 27 to 0. The shutout was the second produced by the Danville defense this season.

Just how good is Danville? Rosecrans is 1-1 and its offense was held to just 22 yards, three rushing and 19 passing. The Blue Devils, meanwhile, ran up 193 yards, 101 in the air and 92 on the ground. They're proud of their defense, studded with nine lettermen. Five of them are returning starters.

Nevertheless, in pre-season ratings, Danville was considered inferior to Lucas in the Mid-Buckeye. The Cubs were picked to win the conference, with Danville second and East Knox third, ahead of Rosecrans.

Offensively, the Danville eleven depends heavily on Lyle Lyons, a big fullback who rushed for 74 yards in 19 carries last week, and on Jeff Durbin, a strong and accurate passer, whose main targets are Ron Summers, a tight end, and Steve Boeshart. Danville's passing game is considered by all scouts to be its strongest suit and the Plymouth secondary had better be alert for Durbin's pinpoint tosses.

Utility bills that will be in the mail next week will be for a three month period.

During a special meeting Monday night, Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach's suggestion of only a three month billing prevailed despite the opposition of Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock and Councilman Duane V. Keene, who said it should be for the four month's readings in the meter book and get it over with.

The September bill, which should be the one in the mail as of Oct. 1, will be mailed Nov. 1, thus still keeping the billings a month behind where it should be.

Councilman Edward O. Ramsey said he spoke to a number of people who objected to the multiple billing. He is afraid there would be too many objections. He said doubling up on the billings would be "the biggest mess you ever saw."

Home Street claim, a Sandusky street resident, who has been questioning the council why the bills are so behind, said he, too, has talked with a number of people, and they are anxious to pay up.

Brumbach wanted to extend the payment of the three month bill to Dec. 29 and said he believes that 93 per cent would be paid by that date.

Councilman James L.

Jacobs, Sr., said this is too long a period and he settled on Nov. 26, which Ramsey conceded.

Meanwhile, the September bill will be mailed Nov. 1 and will be subject to the 10 per cent penalty if not paid by Nov. 20. Keene stood staunchly by his guns for the four month billing with a March, 1978, date as final payment and voted ray on each motion. Councilman John Ray was in favor of the three month billing. Councilman Toy Patron was absent.

Brumbach argued that billings have to be two months behind because of receiving the fuel company adjustment from Ohio Power Co. The mayor said other municipalities simply use the previous one as an outdated fuel bill which has already been received, and is known, instead of holding up their own billings waiting for the current one. Keene said there is no excuse to be two months behind.

Brumbach complained the utility clerk is still using an outdated fuel clause, which he last figured in October, 1976. This is .0003675 below Ohio Power's figure for September.

It was agreed that an audit be done in July, August and September Ohio Power figures will be averaged and used for the next bills.

The figure is $,009,025. This will be charged for each kilowatt-hour consumed, which is the way the power companies charge. Brumbach, however, when he was computing it for the village for several months last year, divided the usage up so that low electrical users paid less fuel clause than medium users and the medium users paid less than the large users. He said his thinking at the time was that it helped those whose incomes were low and needed the help.

He also suggested Monday night that hardship cases, which would include those such as payments be given an extension of payment until Jan. 31. This was nullified when the council agreed on a date of Nov. 26 as the final payment date.

At the Sept. 6 meeting, the council refused to sign an agreement with the Richland county welfare department, by which it will help pay utility bills of those in need, but required in writing an extension to process such payments as necessary.

Brumbach would like to have a councilman committee of three or a group of citizens decide which cases are worthy of extending credit on their utility bills.

BEFORE THE SPECIAL meeting was called to order Monday night, the candidate that Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach had chosen to be the next administrator told him that his health and age do not permit him to undertake the position.

He is Keith Gooding, son-in-law of the Clarence O. Crammers.

Brumbach wanted the hiring of a village administrator included on the agenda and told the mayor this Friday.

The mayor reminded him that under the Ohio Revised code, she and only she can present the name of a prospective administrator to the council, which in turn votes on hiring. Brumbach did not agree with her nor with the Code and said there are ways to evade it.

Four councilmen, Brumbach, James L. Jacobs, Sr., John Ray and Duane Keene, violated the sunshine law when they met at 57 Sandusky street with Brumbach's candidate the morning of Sept. 18, in that none of the media was notified that the meeting was to occur. Under Ohio law, personnel problems are exempt from open meetings, but the media must be notified of the reason for an executive meeting. Each participating councilman is subject to litigation, which The Advertiser is contemplating.

Stamper buys Hall property

Kelly Stamper bought 2.08 acres in Plymouth township, from Donald R. Hall Richland county recorder reports.

Two more sewer taps authorized by council

Village council on Sept. 20 dealt with a myriad of requests.

It approved one sewer connection in Park avenue and it came to grips with the request of another resident for the same privilege. It granted both whom the council has previously locked horns in a nuisance abatement case that resulted in a lawsuit against the mayor and the then village administrator.

James Wolf, Trux street, was also granted permission to connect. Councilmen said his problem was similar to those of Terry Fenner and James Refett, his neighbors on either side, who asked permission several months ago, which was granted, but so far they have made no effort to tie in.

It is thought they are on a common line now going to the river, which is disrupted and causing sewage to come up in a neighboring field.

Acting Police Chief W. Robert Seel reported the department answered 22 complaints, assisted the State Highway patrol once, made 15 traffic arrests and filed one collision report from Sept. 1 through Sept. 15.

A total of 2,654 miles was driven, using 430 gallons of gasoline and five quarts of oil.

The mayor told the council regular patrolman qualifies as a veteran to attend a police training school conducted by the Ohio Department of Education, for which most of his salary will be reimbursed.

Application to the program to enroll Ronald Humphrey has been accepted. Thomas Brown's bid of $150 was the highest received by the village for the 1970 Ford cruiser and was accepted. There were seven bids. The lowest was $50.01.

Councilman James L. Jacobs, Sr., reported a new mower is needed and he had prices ranging from $2,071 to $4,000. The matter was tabled until it can be determined how much money will be in the street fund to pay for it. The present mower is over 10 years old and not worth repairing.

The village will advertise for the purchase of a new pick-up truck, which will be paid for from Revenue Sharing funds.

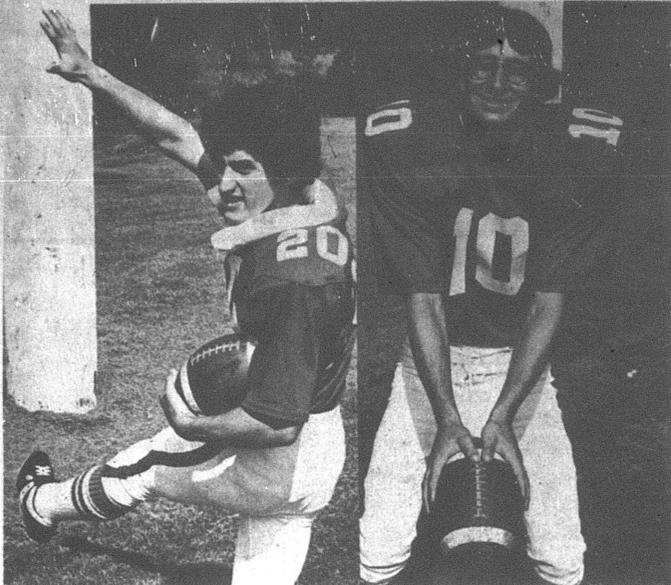

Approval was given to an ordinance to join the fire departments of Richland county in a mutual aid agreement for a three year period as of Tuesday.

Several councilmen received complaints from a Trux street resident, whose home is half in the village and half outside, about water coming up in her yard because of the varied sizes of tiles involved. They agreed that the problem belongs to Plymouth township, since it starts outside the village limits.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir: During the past four months, students at Kent State have been bombarded by the media and the May 4th Coalition with information concerning the proposed gym annex. It is difficult, if not impossible, to cross campus or attend a campus event without being confronted by signs, posters, or solicitations promoting the Coalition's move-the-gym campaign. This letter is written as a plea to the Plymouth area community to please be open minded when reading and listening to Coalition preachings. In a word—consider the source.

First off, the coalition is not a student organization. Although small minority of its members are students, the vast majority are outsiders and such as are not truly concerned nor truly empathetic with the wants, needs, and feelings of the student body.

Furthermore, do not be persuaded nor convinced by the Coalition's claims to peaceful and lawful protest. In the course of their protest they have been guilty of such crimes as criminal trespass, contempt of court, and vandalism, to name a few. The penalties they have paid have been minimal. Their spokesmen are masters of persuasion—professional antagonists. People must realize the hypocrisy of such Coalition statements as "at every point we've stood for getting out the truth" and "we (the Coalition) are not the ones forcing the confrontation".

Although the Coalition claims to represent the student body of Kent, they are actually causing us a serious setback. They have been responsible for page after page of publicity which has further stained Kent State's already tarnished reputation. Enrollment here will most likely drop and consequently tuition may likely rise. My degree, as well as fellow students' may perhaps carry a bit less weight than one from a university with a respected reputation.

One cannot condone the tactics of the Coalition, but at the same time one must realize the importance and significance of free speech and peaceful assembly—rights guaranteed to us all by our Constitution. However, the Coalition has pushed their rights to a limit. They've gone much too far.

The Coalition has, in their own words, accomplished their major goal—delaying construction of the gym used Fall classes began. However, if students and state tax payers are wise enough to reject this campus menace it will eventually lose its fight. I urge everyone to write KSU President Bruce Goldberg, East Main street, Kent, Ohio 44242. Show your support favoring the site of the proposed gym annex.

Don't eat nightshades to avoid arthritis, new book says

By AUNT LIZ
A new book is being published this month by a horticulturalist of Rutgers university in New Jersey which should be of great interest to those who have aches and pains, which is just about everyone.

The main work has been with arthritis and he contends that diet is the cause. His main research has been in the nightshade toxins. These include belladonna, which all mystery readers know is one of the fastest ways to polish someone off. But it also includes white potatoes, eggplant, tomatoes, green and red peppers (which folks locally obstinately and incorrectly call "mangoes") and tobacco.

Over a two-year period data were collected from 60 persons with arthritis who stuck to a prescribed diet, which left the nightshades out completely, and only 10 to 15 percent did not lose their pains. Sticking to the strict diet for three months showed great results.

The nightshade toxins, he says, cause calcium deposits to settle in trouble spots of the body. Avoiding these foods gives relief, provided the patient is not too well advanced.

The researcher caught on to it all in 1960, when he found he had developed an ailment that his doctor thought was caused by spicy foods. Then he realized that he was drinking a certain juice all day long, starting with a large glass each morning and smaller ones during the day and finally when evening came, adding vodka to it.

You almost have to be a horticulturalist, though, to know what things nightshade exists in. I did not know that red and green peppers contained it, and since these are used as seasonings for so many prepared foods, you really have to read the labels carefully. Black pepper and salt are not included.

Some of the other things the doctor says to avoid are seasoned bread crumbs, pickled cauliflower, corn chips, mixed vegetables, glazed baked ham, hot dogs, frozen onion rings, bottled roasted peanuts, frozen pot pies, salad dressings and stuffed olives.

Actually the list is longer, and this book should be a best seller.

It is written by Dr. Norman F. Childers and his colleague, Gerard M. Russo, and is called "The Nightshades and Health".

There is also another little ailment which many people think is arthritic condition but which really is gout. Gout is the failure of the body to excrete uric acids. In days of yore it was called the "Royal Disease", because kings and dukes and princes complained of it, and it was thought that their rich diet was the cause of the affliction. It starts in the second joint of the right big toe and those who have it will tell you that it is better to be set upon by three rabid hyenas and 25 vultures, it hurts that much. Gout is controlled by administering a drug called colchicine, that many, many people around here are devotees of. Persons who have this ailment should not eat liver, sweetbreads or mushroom, but a real expert on this thinks each person finds a couple of things on his or her own to avoid. This can include citrus juices.

Years ago I thought I was developing a real problem and was headed to see the doctor when a friend said, "Try this", and handed me a narrow copper bracelet. It cured my aches and pains immediately and I would not trade it for a diamond and emerald one.

So as long as it keeps me free from aches and pain, we are eating the works. This includes those tasty little frozen pies which I love and Dr. Childers says are bad, bad and worse.

With a salad, they make a tasty quick dinner so you have time to do other things like making carrot marmalade.

For years we made peach conserve for little holiday gifts, and you know what happened to the peach crop and its prices. So then we got down to plums, using the same recipe, and finally last year we got down to cranberries. It was all good, I thought, and was getting cheaper by the year.

This carrot deal is really the same. It will make five pints or 10 half pints. It could not be simpler. Just put five large carrots and two whole lemons, skins and all, but cut them up to get the seeds out, through a grinder. Add four cups of sugar and refrigerate over night so a syrup forms.

Simmer until the carrot pieces are tender and add 1/2 cup of walnuts. Meanwhile, cook up about a half cup of raisins in water until they are tender, which takes just a few minutes, drain them, toss them with a little brandy and add it.

These conserves are meant to be eaten with meats and food, but they are also tasty on biscuits and toast.
