Schrimers break ground for $750,000 project

Ground was broken Tuesday at 10 a. m. for the $750,000 development of the Schriener tract in the east side of Route 61 at Morse hill.

The Voice of The Advertiser — At last?

It is to be hoped that the penultimate step in finishing the sanitary sewer project has been taken.

Village council Tuesday night authorized measures to borrow $60,000 from First National Bank of Mansfield to fund the repair contract issued to Needles & Associates, Sycamore.

It's something of a gamble. The village believes it will win the law suit filed against it by American Finance Insurance Co., Watertown, N. Y. If and when it does so, the plaintiff will be compelled to pay the costs of the present contract, those of the contract with McDaniel Construction Co., Amherst, amounting to about $82,000, and liquidated damages of $150 a day for failure to complete the contract within a specified time.

This leads us to some observations that we think to be sound and worthy of attention:

1. We're going to be torn up, in some streets more than others, but not in all streets, from time to time over the next 150 days.
2. There won't be any wholesale tapping into the sanitary sewer service this season. Most of it can't get started, for one reason or another, until the end of April, 1979, by which time the whole sanitary sewer project will be a few days short of 33 years old.
3. This contract won't touch the little, persnickety matters of damage such as "They broke my sidewalk" or "The contractors destroyed my shrubs" and the like. That'll come later. Any sensible person knows it's an impossible task, to satisfy everybody.
4. We aren't home free by a long shot. We're under orders to make repairs to the sewer lagoons. An earlier council refused to heed the time-honored adage of "Penny wise, pound foolish". It wouldn't appropriate enough money to riprap the lagoons. Now they are eroding to the point that we need $75,000 or so to do the job. When we tried to obtain federal funds provided for just such work, we were told "that's just cosmetic, and besides, the size of the request is too small". What to expect? Probably an increase in sewer rates, albeit small to fund the expense.

High wind, rain pelt Plymouth

High winds and heavy rains that struck Plymouth and environs early Monday afternoon caused some damage, none of which was serious.

Electric current to some establishments in the north side of the Public Square was interrupted for a time.

A large tree was blown down in front of Plymouth High school, obstructing traffic for a period until village crews could remove it. Another tree, not quite so large, was blown down in Trux street, where it also obstructed traffic.

Some basements filled with storm water that was too much for storm drains.

Winds were estimated "in excess of 50 miles an hour" and sheets of rain swept across the village when the storm struck shortly after noon.

Cops cop pot patch in village

Police "raided" a marijuana patch in a wooded area west of Plymouth Villa apartments June 21 and came away with 45 plants of the noxious weed.

Most of the plants, reported Chief W. Robert Seel, who was assisted by Capt. Ronald Humphrey, were in a wooden box that was filled with "rich, black soil". The other plants appeared, Seel said, to have been transplanted. And, what's more "the area around the plants had been carefully weeded."

Board's deadline July 11

Will school impasse end?

Is the impasse declared between Plymouth Board of Education and Plymouth Education association to end, or will there be a teacher strike?

PEA voted June 19 to accept the majority report of the arbitration board, details of which have not been disclosed. PEA notified the board by letter on Thursday of its acceptance of the findings of the board, which presumably are favorable to the teachers.

The board has 15 days from the date of filing the letter to accept or reject

Legislation was passed by the village council during a special meeting Tuesday night to enable the wheels to start turning to finance the sanitary sewer repairs.

The village will borrow $60,000 from First National Bank of Mansfield at an annual interest rate of five and three-quarters per cent. The note will be written in full and will be renewable for a five-year period with the annual payment of interest.

Of that sum, $52,643 is earmarked for the actual repair work based on the low bid of Needles & Associates, Sycamore, which the council accepted June 6.

The remainder will be needed for additional engineering and inspection fees and legal charges.

The ordinance allowing the village to issue notes and other required forms was prepared by Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland bonding attorneys, at the request of the bank.

Repairs are to be made in sections of Brooks Court, West Broadway and Walnut, Railroad, Mulberry, Trux, Mills and East Main streets.

The contractor is allowed 150 days to do the work.

Once it is done, the system will be inspected by Eugene C. Gerken, the village's engineer, and engineers of the Farmers Home Administration, which loaned the village $968,000 to install the system. If it is approved, householders may connect to it, at their own expense and within a time limit set by the council.

Village officials hope that the courts rule in their favor in the pending lawsuit with the bonding company of the original contractor, who defaulted, and that the money now being borrowed will be paid by the bonding company.

If this does not happen, it has been suggested that the minimum sewer rate be increased 50 cents a month to offset the loan.

the majority report.

The board met Friday in special session to discuss the arbitration report, which it did behind closed doors.

Yra, Margaret Sloan, spokesman for PEA, said teachers want more salary money, especially for inexperienced teachers, than what the board offers and they want full funding by the board of hospitalization.

A beginning teacher holding a baccalaureate degree with no experience is paid $8,750 annually. Top teacher pay for the holder of a master's degree with 15 years of experience is $15,488 annually.

Preliminary calculations of budget expenditures for 1979 show that Supt. John Fazzini and the clerk-treasurer, Mrs. C. David Rish, have based their own $9,100 a year base teacher salary. Mrs. Sloan said this isn't enough.

Fazzini said Friday the budget as drawn calls for a deficit of $46,000 by Dec. 31, 1979.

If the proposal before the Ohio General Assembly to fund school costs with appropriations from the surplus is approved, Plymouth district would draw $133,035.46 more infiscal year 1979 than during 1978.

Fazzini pointed out "we've submitted deficit budgets before" and that the county budget committee comprised of the auditor, treasurer and prosecutor, will return the budget with amendments to reflect absolute anticipated revenues for fiscal year 1979, within which the appropriations must by law be kept.

Visiting with tot? Take this cake!

By AUNT LIZ
So far the revolution has not hit our house. It will one day.

You simply cannot have grandparents who have been plain out of it for too many years giving advice. It is neither right nor nice, but it sure is fun. For years I ignored the columns in the various things we read about bringing up kids, since ours were already brought up and we didn't have the problems. Now I am back reading them like mad.

The other day I read a column on hints to young mothers and it was great. Have you ever heard of a "Tear Jar"? Find an ex-container, something like a wide mouth jar, put a label on it and when the tears start, dash for it so it can catch them all. The theory behind this is that it becomes a big game and the dumb tears stop with laughter.

I mentioned this to a friend, who said she had heard of a "crying chair". Soon as the tears start, place the character on the chair and let him or her wail. I would assume that once the little person catches on that the chair is reserved for such a purpose, just climbing up on it would abolish any crying. It would take all their energy to get on.

We just never had such ideas way back when. There were legitimate tears and the fake ones. The latter got a small smack and soon ended. Bringing up kids is nothing but common, good sense. What kind of gets me is that most are very good about it, but there are that handful who feel their own lives come first.

Anyone who produces a child has a great responsibility to the child and the rest of us. Kids are fun and everyone should see it. There is nothing like watching one learning.

Once I decided ours needed to know what great art was and we were in Washington, so I whisked them off to the National Museum. Let me say now, do not take yours until they are at least 14. Up the stairs we went to the lovely rotunda, where there is a beautiful fountain with a priceless Greek statue in the middle.

Our older took one look at the water, rushed over, sat down and started to take his shoes and socks off to go wading. I reached him just in time. Had he made it, it would have been a real "first" in the museum's history.

My advice to all grandmothers is to simply stick to showing off your prizes to relatives until they know what the world is really about.

Just drop in and say, "Here we are, I brought you so-and-so to see and this for tomorrow." They will love you and the kids. Start with either an angel food pan or a bundt pan. Grease it and sprinkle a cup of either chopped walnuts or pecans on the bottom.

In a bowl mix a package of yellow cake mix, a package of instant vanilla pudding mix, four eggs, a half cup each of cold water, cooking oil and dark rum.

Pour this over the nuts and bake an hour at 325. When it is finished, invert it on a platter. Pull off the pan, pink and pour over a glaze which is made of a quarter pound of butter, a fourth of a cup of water, a cup of sugar and a half cup of rum. Boil this without the rum for five minutes, then add it. The cake can really be decorated with cherries and a border of whipped cream, but it is just as good without it all. You have enough invested in it. It is not a cheap recipe, but when you are showing off grandchildren, it is worth the attention getting.
