

$52,643 sewer repair bid accepted by village council

Bid of $52,643.50 for repairs to the sanitary sewer system submitted by Needles & Associates, Sycamore, was accepted by village council Tuesday night.

Only two bids were received May 31 for the work. The other was from A. J. Bores Excavating, Inc., Mansfield, in the amount of $94,376.50.

Councilman G. Thomas Moore questioned Eugene C. Gerken, sanitary sewer engineer, about the disparity between the bids and Gerken replied "Circumstances under which the bid was made explains it." He said he checked with Needles's bonding company, the Cincinnati Insurance Co., which "well recommended him." So also did the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, for whom he has completed a number of projects.

Gerken's estimate for the repairs was $48,498-

50. He said Needles was within 10 per cent of it which is allowed by law.

Needles estimated the work would take about two months when he met with Gerken, Mayor Elizabeth C. Paddock and Clerk Raymond L. Brooks on the day the bids were opened.

The next stop the village must undertake is the financing. The mayor said that Squire, Sanders & Dempsey has prescribed how the village should go about borrowing money to do the work.

Action is to start immediately and will most likely require a special council meeting.

One section of the repairs in Base Line road involving property of the Bachrach Co. was bid at $16,200. Robert I. Bachrach, representative of his company, said he is "sourly unhappy" at the slowness of the village in doing the repairs which he feels are due him from the agreement he made in the early '60s in granting easements to the village.

Gerken suggested perhaps he would undertake the repairs himself, which might be cheaper for the village in the long run and would be done to his satisfaction.

Councilman Michael Taylor and the mayor asked if he would submit figures for the work, which he agreed to do.

There is no record in the Richland county courthouse of the alley running from East High street to Birchfield street being vacated and that it had been used within the magic number of 21 years, when such a thoroughfare is considered vacated if not used. Moore and Perry McKenzie both said that they used it before a fence and a grape arbor were installed by the Cunningham family.

James Channing, who occupies the house north of the McKenzies, said access could be made through his property without cutting down a large tree, which seems to be in the alley way. The mayor and several council members commented on the sad condition of Greenland cemetery for the Memorial day services.

Councilman James L. Jacobs Sr. said he heard that several mowers were broken and the mayor said she heard that the cemetery workers were "working" the cemetery from a local tavern. It was agreed the cemetery will be invited to next week's council meeting to discuss the problem.

Former Patrolman James Reffett has claimed that the former clerk, Anita L. Riedlinger, failed to pay him for two holidays and that he is paid for them he refuses to pay an ambulance bill to transport his son to Mansfield General hospital.

The mayor said he checked the village minutes and found no reference to three paid holidays. The village did pay him for two weeks vacation time at the June 7, 1977, meeting, which the collector said he had counted.

It was thereafter that he was put on permanent disability by the late Police Chief Robert L. Meiser under the Policemen's - Firemen's Pension fund. He was the only village employee who contributed to that particular fund. All others are covered by the Public Employees Retirement fund.

Kin of Shilohan succumbs at 70

Sister of Robert Book, Shiloh, Mrs. Edwin C. Davison, 70, Fairview Park, died Friday night at her home.

She was ill only briefly. Born Margaret Kathryn Book in Mansfield on Aug. 6, 1907, she lived there most of her life. She was a member of Ruth Chapter 17, OES, and of the Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Her husband died earlier. She is also survived by a son, Charles E. Round Rock, Tex.; a daughter, Marjann, now Mrs. Henry Distl, and Eleanor, now Mrs. William Laxer, both of Mansfield, and Shirley, now Mrs. Herbert Durtisch, Gallon, and seven grandchildren.

Driver confused, collision results

Confusion over the traffic pattern in Public Square resulted in a collision May 31 about 3 p. m., resulting in the hospitalization of two persons.

Mrs. Michelle Tormaschy, 18, Mansfield, approached the Square from the south on Route 61 and attempted a left turn on a green light.

She did not see the southbound car driven by David Alan Van Loop, 21, Willard, and struck his car.

Both cars were severely damaged.

Plymouth ambulance took the drivers to Shiloh Memorial hospital.

Child releases gears of car, which hits rig

A bizarre collision occurred May 31 on Sandusky street that narrowly averted the death of a five-year-old child.

Mrs. Terry Jump, who is employed by Michael's Place, parked her vehicle in front of the place to unload supplies. Her five-year-old daughter, Jennifer, manipulated the gear lever so the car rolled into Sandusky street, where it struck a semi-trailer rig operated by Ronald Blosser, 45, Akron, in the left rear, and bounced off and struck a pole.

That the car struck a pole prevented it, police said, from careening into houses in the west side of Willo drive.

School issues alumni survey

"What Ever Happened to the Class of '65?", written by two of them, became a best-selling novel.

Then it was converted into a money-making film.

Plymouth Board of Education makes no pretense about the best-seller lists and certainly doesn't intend to make a splash on the drive-in movie screens. But it did prepare a study of what happened to the Classes of 1974 and 1975 and it has issued a public document detailing its findings.

Its aims were to find out what type of further training was undertaken by graduates of these classes, to find out how many are employed, to find out what the graduates think of the education they received in Plymouth High school and, finally, to learn what changes should be considered.

Questionnaires were sent to 82 graduates of the Class of 1975 and to 104 of the graduates of 1974. Of the first group, 21 were returned completed, seven were returned "address unknown" and please see page 9

For the 25th consecutive year, The Advertiser presents its salute to the graduating class of Plymouth High school, proud of each of them, and no less proud than to be doing business in a community that thinks enough of its young people to send them off in such splendid fashion.

At graduation time, it's punch that makes a big hit!

By AUNT LIZ
It is graduation time, wedding time, anniversary time, which all adds up to punch time. Each is a darn good excuse to bring out a large bowl and fill it up with something tasty. Don't worry if you are not indulging in any of the special days. You can make a festive punch for dinner time that will certainly add to the fun of eating something economical. Just what, I can hardly suggest at the moment. Nothing is economical any more.

Your kids will love this concoction. Start with a package of unsweetened Hawaiian Punch raspberry. Add a cup of sugar to it, then a quart of cold water. Keep mixing it until the sugar is dissolved. Add a partially thawed six ounce can of lemonade concentrate, a 28 ounce bottle of club soda and ice cubes. That is the way the recipe reads from the Reynolds people, who really make more cigarettes than punches. What would really make it better is to toss in some raspberry sherbet, and not only do you have a tasty punch but also a dessert. The next interesting thing we got in our mail this week was from the Beef Industry Council. It seemed a little ironic that it would spend so much money promoting its product when every radio station is devoting hours to its rising prices. Nevertheless, it says that all fathers should have beef on Father's day and really comes up with some tasty recipes. Americans love such days. And it did my heart good when Mother-in-Law day started last year. Father's day is kind of new. It started in 1924, when President Coolidge got talked into the idea and declared it should be, but it really wasn't until Nixon said in 1972 that it should be on the third Sunday in June. Stave for the next week so you can come up with something really tasty on June 18. If you cannot quite make it on that date, another week can bring the same results. Start with a nice piece of top round steak which is almost two inches thick. You may have to speak to your friendly butcher to get the right size, and be is very friendly when it comes to good beef. He likes the stuff and wants you to also. Mix a marinade of a half of a cup of soy sauce, a fourth of a cup of oil, a fourth of a cup of lemon juice, two tablespoons of brown sugar, a half of a teaspoon of hot sauce. Sounds Chinese, yes? Sherry and soy are the real basics of any Chinese dish. Cook it all up for about 10 minutes, then pour over the meat and stash it away for 24 hours. Bring it out the next day, drain the liquid off. Broil the meat either in your broiler or in an outdoor cooker, using the marinade as necessary. What is left can be mixed with four teaspoons of cornstarch with sliced up mushrooms and green onions, to be a gravy. Every father will love it and be more than pleased with his big day. You can get by without even buying him a new shirt or tie. Since our house kind of forgot Mother's day, I think we will have a tasty meat loaf, which gives us one hot meal and a bunch of sandwiches.

ERRATUM
A fault in the Advertiser's computer resulted in an error last week. The Rev. Jay Brown and the former Janice Ramsey married in 1951, not 1941.

The Ami Jacobses and their daughter and son-in-law, the Frederick Waltons, and their child, Stephanie, attended in Wilmore, Ky., over the weekend commencement exercises of Asbury college, which conferred upon Gregory Ryan, the Jacobses' son, the degree of bachelor of arts.

The Glenn Dowds, Shelton, are parents of a 51-year old son, May 27 in Willard Area hospital.

School issues alumni survey

54 simply were not returned.

Of the second group, there were 27 returned completed, five with "address unknown" and 72 not returned at all.

The board described the response, which amounted to 25 per cent of 186 graduates, as "disappointing".

Summary of the findings:
Twenty-eight graduates, or 37 per cent of those responding, undertook further training.

Thirty-five graduates, or 74 per cent, are employed. Seven, or 13 per cent, are not employed.

Six graduates, or 13 per cent, are full-time students.

Comments are as disparate as the graduates themselves.

They range from "Public education as it is cannot possibly prepare anyone for anything to" "The math courses I took at Plymouth took me several levels above what we started in tech school."

The English courses weren't nearly as good."

And as for suggestions for improvement or change, "A complete restructuring of available courses; involving political alternatives, world food distribution, ecology and others you are probably not interested in considering."

And this one, "If everything at PHS received as much attention as sports, PHS would be great."

And another, "I felt I received an inadequate background in English. Too much emphasis was placed on grammar and not enough skills on writing and organizing thoughts in research papers."

Other than that, I felt prepared when I entered college and took courses in math, history and the sciences."

Not all the comments were complimentary.

were negative. One said, "I think that Plymouth schools are no better or no worse than any of the other schools."

Another said, "It was the best. I believe the only change they should have is to start teaching the metric system and stress the importance of it."

A third said, "Education was good, but I wish I had studied more. If any changes should be made, it should be something about kids not studying."
