

On taxes

It's the time of year when the county treasurers certify the tax rates applicable to the taxing sub-districts in each of Ohio's 88 counties.

The figures offer an interesting comparison.

One of them is a fact that any sensible person hereabouts has known for a long time: it's cheaper to live in Huron county than it is in Richland county.

Fact: Tax rate in Plymouth for Huron county is $49.98; in Richland county, $53.68.

For many years, there was a difference in the fashion by which properties in the two counties were appraised. One county was always behind the other in bringing its appraisals up to date. So it often developed that John Doe, who paid $25,000 for a house in the Richland county side of the village, was paying more for the privilege of living there than his brother, James Doe, who paid $25,000 for a house in the Huron county side of the village, the purchases having been simultaneous.

Where are the differences?

The village levy is the same in both counties. It amounts to $9.88 for each $1,000 of valuation.

The school levy is the same in both counties. It amounts to $33.10. The joint vocational school levy is the same. It amounts to $2.20.

Residents of Huron county living in the village pay a county tax of $3.80 and a New Haven township tax of 90 cents.

Residents of Richland county living in the village pay a county tax of $6.60 and a Plymouth township tax of $1.80.

If it's higher in one county than the other, there's nobody to blame, really, but the taxpayer. He had his chance to turn down an increase of taxation at the polls. If he thinks the additional services made available to him by the higher tax are worth the candle, it's his privilege to go along with the promoters of that tax and support it.

As a 25-year resident of Richland county, and as an entity that deals with the electoral process, we deplore the noises being made in the county seat to computerize the election process, and specifically to force us to wait until midnight or early in the morning of the day after election to see how our choices fared on the local level.

Consider what happened in Huron county, where the balloting was long ago computerized, during the last general election. Returns were available to the casual observer who chose to drive the 19 or so miles to Norwalk to hang around the county board of elections and to sort out the returns as they spewed from the computer. But to him who chose to respect time-honored practice in Plymouth by standing outside in the cold to wait for the poll watchers to post the results, it was a long wait. By our clock, the time was 12:47 a. m. on Nov. 8, when the results were posted here. And by then, unless one had a flashlight, he couldn't read them, because the proprietor of the establishment where the polling took place had long since gone home to bed.

If this is what we're paying for, in both counties, it's for the birds. Certainly there must be some way to work this thing out so that results can be posted here just as fast, or almost as fast, as they are posted in the county seat. We pay the same taxes, we put up with the same inconveniences, as those who live in Norwalk or Mansfield. Why shouldn't we have the same advantages? Are they telling us that in this benighted year of Our Lord 1979, science and technology are beyond the simple task of conveying election results over 19 miles of the prettiest countryside in the Buckeye State so that a few hundred voters can be promptly told where they stand.

Auditor seeks unpaid taxes

Richland county auditor last week sent strongly worded notices to scores of taxpayers accused of being delinquent in filing, and paying, personal property taxes.

There has been, so far, no explanation of why some residents of Huron county, who never in their lives have lived in Richland county or conducted business operations there, received the same form letter, signed by Freeman J. Swank, the new auditor.

Investigation shows that what the auditor is after is taxes on intangibles, such as stocks and bonds and bank deposits, which he implies may total many thousands of dollars. A spokesman told The Advertiser that "already a number of persons have come in and paid their delinquent personal property taxes."

How did the auditor find out who these people are? The state's computer did it. Corporations that issue and sell stock, whether preferred or common, are required to notify the federal and state governments once a year as to how much dividend was paid to each stockholder. These data are fed into the computer at Columbus and funneled to the auditors of Ohio's 88 counties.

The letter acknowledges that an addressee may have paid a personal property tax in another county, or under another name.

The auditor in the ultimate paragraph of his letter allows the miscreant taxpayer 30 days to either pay up or explain why he shouldn't, failing which the case will be turned over to the Ohio Department of Taxation in Columbus, presumably for action by it and by the attorney general, with what force or forces not yet specified.

Help?

Call IRS at Mansfield

Does the Form 1040, even though it's been revised so that "a 10th grader can understand it", bother you?

Do you have questions about how to complete it?

Call the IRS for free. Dial 160-800-563-9050 weekdays from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., says Charles Butler, Mansfield representative of the district director (whose mother-in-law is Mrs. Charley Archer).

Want more detailed information than you can get by telephone? Call at his office, 180 North Diamond street, Mansfield, during the same hours.

Two alumni make 3.5s in OSU

Two Plymouth High school alumni are among 4,579 students of Ohio State University named to its honor roll for the autumn quarter.

They are among the group that received a grade-point average of 3.5 or better on a 4.0 scale.

These graduates are Marsha Elaine Hartman, daughter of the Richard Hartmans, Plymouth route 1, and Bradley John Tarsone, Plymouth route 1.

Fenner head of trustees

Frank C. Fenner, veteran trustee of Plymouth township who lives in Route 598, was elected chairman by his colleagues during the annual organizational meeting Thursday.

Chester Jones, the newest trustee, who was appointed to complete the term of James Hawk, who moved from the township to Auburn township in Crawford county, was elected vice-chairman.

Richard Strop was named road supervisor.

McFarren resigns as head grid coach

Resignation of Michael H. McFarren as head football coach was announced and accepted by Plymouth Board of Education Monday night.

McFarren completed in November five years as head coach. In his last two seasons he won seven games and lost three.

He gave no reason for his resignation, which Supt. John Fazzini said "is personal". Neither did he say if he will continue to teach. He has two years remaining on his teaching contract.

Dalton High school, where his father, Billie J., was his teacher and coach, is an alumnus of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y. He joined the staff of Titusville, Pa. High school as teacher and assistant coach and did graduate study in Edinboro State college, Edinboro, Pa.

He and Mrs. McFarren are the parents of three boys.

Larry O. Vredenburg, member of the board, seemed indignant that "the boys and everybody else knew about this for two months and we on the board are just learning it tonight". He will be a member of a panel of five that will screen candidates for the post. Others are A. George Miller, member of the board; Fazzini, Principal; Richard L. Horton and Athletic Director William F. Flaherty. Vredenburg says he already knows "who's going to put his name in for the job" but declined to identify that person, saying "you'll have to get it the way I did, from the boys".

Mrs. Roger Pugh was re-elected president of the board. Don M. Eichelberger was chosen to replace the Rev. Arthur Hamman as vice-president.

The board will conduct its regular meeting, for which it will be paid $20 a member, on the second Monday of the month at 7:30 p. m. in administrative offices in Charles Rhine armory. Special meetings when needed will convene on the fourth Wednesday at the same hour.

Keith Johnson, vocational agriculture teacher, asked for the board's support of a trip to Oklahoma City, Okla., for him and three boys of the state champion soil judging team. Purpose of the trip is to compete with about 80 other schools for the national championship. Johnson estimated costs at about $800, plus cost of hiring a substitute during his absence. He said the boys have earned $150 in prize money to defray some of the expense of the trip.

Informal approval of the plan was accorded. Financing will be worked out later. The trip will take place May 1.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION was set for June 3. Black Fork Valley conference is the name chosen for the new athletic league involving Lucas, Crestview and Plymouth.

Tax rate down 8.1% to $49.98

Freeholders of Plymouth living in Huron county will pay real estate taxes during 1979 at the rate of $49.98 for each $1,000 of valuation, a decrease of $4.42, or 8.1 per cent.

Tax rates for the new year have been posted by the county auditor, Kenneth Reed.

Freeholders of New Haven township living in Plymouth Local School district will pay at the rate of $63, a decrease of $2.20, or 4.8 per cent.

Two hurt in collisions near here

Mrs. Xenia Simmons, 38, Shelby, was taken to Mansfield General hospital by the Plymouth ambulance service Thursday morning.

She received back injuries when the car in which she was a passenger turned over in Kuhn road.

Driver of the car, Ann Beardsley, Shelby, was not injured. She was issued a summons by the state patrol for driving too fast for road conditions.

The women were en route to work at Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., when the mishap occurred.

A 30-year-old Plymouth woman was treated in Shelby Memorial hospital Jan. 2 at 1:30 p. m. after the car she was driving in Plymouth-Springmill road north of Route 96 skidded on a patch of ice, went off the road and struck a service pole.

Vickie L. Thomas was visibly injured.

Two other schools, East Knox and Danville, have applied to join. The league will begin Aug. 1. During a meeting Jan. 18 officers will be elected.

Fazzini told the Penn Central board the default of real property tax payments may be issued in the board's name and the board may make fiscal transactions with them. Otherwise, they will be in the custody of the Richland county treasurer. Two bonds, one having a face value of 26.4 per cent of the back tax bill of $72,320 and the other having a face value of 8.8 per cent, have been paid or are in process of being paid.

The largest bond, having a face value of 56 per cent of the delinquency, does not fall due until Dec. 31, 1987.

Temporary appropriations totalling $639,900 were approved.

A blanket resolution for the treasurer to request tax advances from Crawford, Huron and Richland counties was approved.

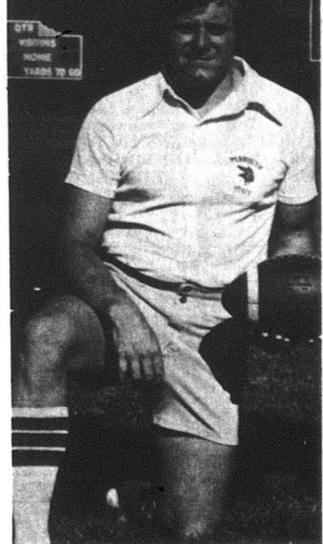

Performance bond of the treasurer, the superintendent and the president of the board was increased from $10,000 each to $20,000 each. Mrs. William Wheeler showed the board a typical wrestling uniform, newly acquired for the mat team at a cost of $447.72, of which $180 was raised by a bake sale by mothers of the competitors. The Wheelers contributed the balance. She told the board she and "some parents" would like to meet privately with the board "to discuss some things that bother us, and there is a teacher who would like to come with us". The provisions of the Sunshine law were explained to her and it was agreed she and her group will meet with Fazzini and two board members to seek to answer their problems.

No school Monday

In observance of Martin Luther King day, public schools will be closed Monday.

Classes will resume Tuesday morning.

L. L. England dead at 63

Post-holiday meals need something new, different

By AUNT LIZ

Now that there is nary a slice of ham nor turkey left from the great holiday feasting, out of pure necessity you kind of have to find something a little different to serve to hungry members of your family.

This really isn't too original so far as the ingredients go, but it does have an angle to it. It is called No Peek Stew. Once it is put together and tightly covered with foil and stashed in the oven for four hours at 325, it really steams.

It goes in a nine by 13 baking dish, and two pounds of beef stew meat should make it meaty. Then use your own judgment on how many carrots and pared potatoes you need to slice into it. Do that, then add a package of onion soup, mix it up a little, then spread a can of cream of mushroom soup over and pour a half soup can of either red or rose wine. Do not use cooking wine, which is too salty. The onion soup mix has enough in it.

It can be served on broad noodles but if you do not want to be too "starchy", serve it bare with a salad, and maybe some garlic bread.

What really goes nicely with this is a recipe for Six Week Muffins.

They are plain healthful and once you make the recipe, there will be enough for many more muffin nights. It is a large recipe.

Get out your largest mixing bowl and mix all this up a cup of melted shortening, three cups of sugar, four beaten eggs, a quart of buttermilk, two tablespoons of wheat germ or bran flakes, five cups of flour, five teaspoons of soda, two teaspoons of salt — and this is the really luxurious part of it all — a pound box of raisins, and if you are rich, two boxes.

This can be stored in the refrigerator and used as you wish, but do not make them until they have at least been refrigerated six hours.

IF EVERYONE IS STILL hungry, throw this at them. If they really do not want it right then, it will save for another day.

Melt a 12 ounce package of chocolate chips in a double boiler. Add four beaten egg yolks. Remove from the stove, then fold in four beaten whites to which you have added a teaspoon of vanilla, a pinch of salt and two tablespoons of sugar. Beat until really stiff.

Break up a fairly good size store-bought angel food cake into chunks.

Layer the cake first with the sauce, ending with sauce on top in a dish, which is just milk to make the consistency you like. Then reheat and eat.

Vikes win two games

Fifth grade Vikings won their ninth straight without defeat Saturday at Friendly House, Mansfield, downing Brinkerhoff, 26 to 2.

Sixth graders won their ninth against a single loss by whipping the Super Sonics, 34 to 22.

Last week's games with St. Joseph's at Tiffin were cancelled. They will be played next month.

Fifth graders will play Jimmy's Cafe at Friendly House Saturday at 1:25 p.m. Sixth graders will play Thursday at 6:45 p.m. in the old high school at Crestline against seventh grade B team. On Jan. 19 they will be in Fostoria to play St. Wendelin at 7 p.m. On Jan. 20 they will lock horns with AFCIO at 9:45 a.m. This will be the championship game for the first round, neither team having been beaten in league play.

Four hours a day on the practice court during the summer helped to polish some skills of Jerry Wheeler, 11th grader, a useful swing man on a Plymouth team that hasn't had much luck lately. Big Red meets Ontario here tomorrow in effort to snap seven game losing streak.

On W. W. H. and Big Red

By THE OLD TIMER
 If there is one lesson to be learned from the ghastly occurrence at Jacksonville and its aftermath, it is that those who live by the sword must expect to die by it.
 W. Woodrow Hayes may not be happy with how he has been dealt with by his superiors, his peers and his and his subordinates, or by the Fourth Estate. Richard M. Nixon isn't happy, either. But each of them perished by his own hand and if there was a Roman holiday of sorts when that demise came, neither Hayes nor Nixon really has any squawk coming. Certainly Hayes made some important and significant contributions to his work and to his employer, not to mention to his players. So did Nixon. But all the santonious sacrifice by the minister, all the faithful calling, all of the impressive sermons, all of the counseling to the young and old, doesn't count for very much when the consistory deals with a truthful report that he slept with the choirmaster's wife.

So far as our researches have extended, we can't find any evidence that young Bauman taunted Hayes in any way. The reruns of the TV camera don't show it. The young OSU player from Norwalk, the estimable Waugh, swears he didn't see or hear any such thing, and he stood next to Hayes when the episode occurred.

It's a shame that such a man should have lost control of himself to the point that he bows out in disgrace. In 42 seasons of officiating athletic events, we've followed one rule: it's natural for a partisan coach or player to be aggravated, sometimes rightly, and he should be allowed to express that aggravation, but not in violation of the rules. If we had been the referee at Jacksonville, in addition to the two 15-yard penalties, Hayes would have been run off the field. Which is what Hugh Hindman and Harold Enarson did after the fact.

AFTER SEVEN CONSECUTIVE defeats, Big Red fans are asking what's wrong. The answer is not so simple.

For one thing, and this is cardinal, the talent isn't deep. The natural skills of the

On being a grandparent: Let children raise young as they will!

By AUNT LIZ
 There is nothing like being a real live set of grandparents.
 For almost two years we have been grandparents via the postal system and Ma Bell.
 To be grandparents in your own house is really a different tale.
 For us, it was great, but our little guests really and truly wanted to be home in their own beds and with their own dogs.
 To start with, they were not too sure who Grandma and Grandpa were. And why sit on the lap of a complete stranger? And why have to give them a good smooch? They are still too little, one 21 months old whom we had not seen since last summer and the other 17 months whom we saw when she was three months old. At that age, she would beam at everyone.
 In a way they had a ball running around and picking up things, even though all heights we thought they could not reach.

 Our faithful hound dog was simply another dog to them since each has her own, but the one thing they do not have and which we have been threatening to give them is a nice soft kitty.
 One Siamese was the most popular critter in the whole house over the holidays. She held court at all hours on the bottom shelf of a bookcase.
 Tillie the cat acted the role, and New Year's eve when we came home from the airport, the dog and cat simply stretched out in the middle of the living room floor and had looks on their faces that said, "It is finally over and we are back to normal with two older characters who do not heckle us."
 The rest of us are getting back to normal, too. The clothes baskets now have dirty or clean things in them, not toys. The last Pamper is gone from a waste basket. We normally have one large green bag a week to be hauled away, and for two weeks we had six each week, which was almost embarrassing.

 The holidays were really not all disaster. One who was at her best at breakfast had learned to say, "More, please," and by the time she left, she could barely get out "thank you". That is real progress. Each was so different.
 It will be interesting to see them next year, which is about our speed because of distances. Some grandparents are plain lucky that their families are closer, but once your children are married, they must live their own lives where they choose.
 There are always airplanes to get you there and it is easier for you to go than for them to come. Next year we visit.
 One thing I must say for Christmas visits is that we have enough leftovers to eat for weeks. We are still eating a turkey casserole which we made up, and it is good. Just use left over pieces of the meat, toss in two cans of mushroom soup, some cooked-up carrot slices and a speck of left over turkey gravy. It is good. On its third heating up, toss in some soya sauce, which makes it a little Chinese. It can even be served on rice, which will stretch it even further.
 It might hurt some gourmet souls when I say that canned German potato salad is just as good as homemade. Try it. When you have a bunch of kids home who like to eat three meals a day, there must be short cuts. It makes a lovely meal with sausage, a salad and ice cream.

 One thing I discovered is that little ones love yogurt, but just try them on vanilla ice cream. At home they get honeyed graham crackers, but at Grandma's there are honest-to-Betsy real butter Christmas tree cookies. These must be sneaked to them so their mothers do not know. All young mothers seem so conscientious of sugar. They are so right, and we end up with two really healthy grandchildren.
 Grandparents can be rather silly in way. We love them all too much, which I guess is very natural. I love the story about the grandmother who went to Long Island carrying an Ohio turkey by hand, but their luggage got left in Cleveland for a day. Grandparents are odd. They simply do not think their kids can live without the goodies they brew up. I can remember a gal a couple years ago in the Dallas airport carrying a large box that, she announced, had cookies in it. It must have had dozens of them.
 Anyone can order a gift here and there, but to bring something from home is about the best you can do. Even if Long Island and California do produce their own turkeys.
 The biggest fault of all grandparents is that they are simply too filled with love and it is so hard to realize that there is an area of "hands off" our kids must bring up their own in the way which they think is right. It is hard for us, and will get harder as the years go on, because we want them to have the best there is in life
