

Income tax passes

A one per cent municipal income tax won unanimous approval of village council Tuesday night, in spite of an hour of protests against the tax.

The protests were not against the tax itself nor for the need of it, but rather that an additional one-half per cent must be paid to Plymouth through working out of town.

William Chronister said it was double taxation and that a committee will be formed to see that it is placed on the ballot.

Lee Felker echoed his sentiments and said it would be defeated, since 60 per cent of Plymouthites work outside the village.

Mrs. Ernest Burton said the tax has come 15 years too late and also objected to local people paying one and a half per cent. She said she pays the Willard tax, but lives here and shops here, which would not occur should she move to where the tax is collected.

John Fazzini, speaking as a citizen and as the school superintendent, said the tax is unfair since he as a Plymouth resident will pay one per cent but those working out of town will only pay one-half per cent. He called it discrimination.

Councilman G. Thomas Moore said he was not against taking the issue to the voters.

Why Plymouth can't honor the methods of other communities by allowing the tax to be collected where one works and not assessing any additional tax was left unanswered.

Councilman Mrs. Allan Raymond pointed out that when such a tax does reach the polls, studies show it is defeated 64 per cent of the time. She said she is a little confused about it and suggested that perhaps 100 per cent should be given as credit.

Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock said she has been urging the council to find a source of additional funds for years, and had offered two solutions, an income tax or the sale of the electric distribution system, which she favors.

She then called for a vote on the ordinance.

$145 million needed to fix counties' roads

Huron county's road system needs $91 million to repair its 718.8 miles of county and township roads and bridges, a report of the Ohio Department of Transportation says.

"At least 240 bridges in the two systems are inadequate for the load capacity, because of width, age, deterioration and poor alignment," the report states.

Annual receipts for this work amount to $1,352,422, the report says.

It further claims that 528 bridges in the state highway system in the county need repair or replacement and 85.11 miles of roadway need improvement at a cost of $65.4 million.

Richland county's road system amounts to $28.98 million of township and county roads. The report says at least 400 bridges and culverts require replacement. Current bridge needs are said to be $20,433,048. Annual receipts for this work are $500,000.

In the state system of roads in the county, 72 structures need repair or replacement and 70.55 miles of roadway need improvement at an estimated cost of $33.9 million.

30 turn out for discussion of income tax

Only 30 village residents and two reporters showed up Monday night when the village council gathered for a town meeting concerning the one per cent income tax.

LaRue Gullett disputed the legality of charging workers in the village one per cent while those who work outside where there is also a one per cent tax plus a half per cent to Plymouth.

Councilman Mrs. Allan Raymond replied the village is giving those people 50 per cent credit for what they are paying to other municipalities.

Gullett said he had been told by the state auditor's office that such an arrangement is not lawful.

Councilman David Howard pointed out there was an Ohio Supreme court ruling in 1965 that allows each community to determine how it wants to handle its taxing.

Ivan Hawk, local manager for Sohgro Service Co., said it is discriminatory to tax a resident at his home and at his place of employment.

Becher Caudill, representing Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., said the council's action in passing the tax would be a large determination in Banner Industries, Inc., maintaining the local plant.

He said Banner Industries, Inc., will carefully study the effect of the new tax on the costs of running the plant.

Councilman Michael R. Taylor, who had already said the tax is the best way for the village to survive financially, said he is certain that Banner would do just what would be most advantageous for it, tax or no tax.

Lee Welker questioned the council on the change that added the one-half per cent to the ordinance on its second reading. He was told that minor changes are permissible during such legislation.

Former Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach asked if the council had considered putting the tax on the ballot, which by letting the people decide would take the "pressure" off the council.

Councilman G. Thomas Moore replied it had been discussed, and it was agreed that the council had been elected by the people to carry on the village government and make decisions and that having the council make this one was the quickest way to get it done.

Brumbach also asked if there had been any estimate of what the tax would produce.

Taylor used New London as an example. He said it is collecting about $90,000.

The councilmen strongly pointed out to those present that the tax is necessary for the needed capital improvements that the present taxes cannot possibly pay for.

Moore said, "If we do not have an income tax, Plymouth is dying."

Miss Estella M. Easterday, instructor in English and art since 1955, fresh out of Ashland college, applied for the job.

This was accepted. Then she submitted a resignation, effective Dec. 31. This was accepted.

The board sat for less than five minutes to deal with the entire affair.

It was obvious, however, that Supt. John Fazzini, who had included on the agenda the regular meeting of July 9 "Possibility of recommending involuntary leave of absence of teacher," had conferred with the board in advance and a course of action agreed upon.
