

Two 'firsts'...

Red to open Blackfork Valley play, opposing Lucas in Saturday night game

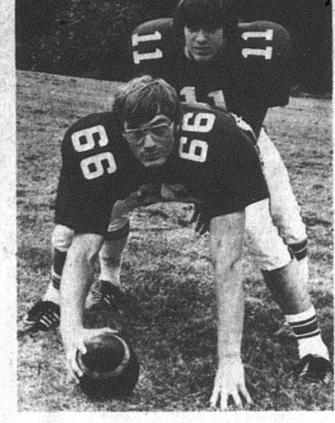

There'll be a pair of firsts in Mary Faye park Saturday. The first night football game to be played in Plymouth between interscholastic rivals on a Saturday will see Lucas and the Big Red tangle in the first Blackfork Valley conference game to be played by either team.

Lucas brings a record only slightly better than Plymouth's 6-and-3 mark to the contest. In three games, Lucas has defeated only Conotton Valley, and that by a 7 to 2 score. Defeats came at the hands of Danbury, by two scores, and Centerville, by one touchdown.

After a dismal record of success last week, Rick Hardin, the 110 pounder who's back for a second year at quarterback for the Cubs, hopes to connect with his aerial game. He's a better thrower with a strong arm. And when he Loudon gave up yardage between the 25-yard lines but gave for one foyak kept the Chiefs out of touchdown territory. The two scores came on the offense, one an interception and the other a punt ruck.

Game time is 8 p. m. It will be Band Parents' night.

Shiloh sets 6.8-mill tax

A $8.8 mill operating levy to fund police protection will be submitted to voters in Shiloh Nov. 6.

The village council voted Sept. 4 in a special session to seek the funds because CE-TA funding of sheriff's deputies has been sharply reduced.

The only police protection in Shiloh now is through a sheriff's deputy by a deputy sheriff on routine patrol or when the sheriff's office is called to deal with an emergency.

The council earlier submitted an operating levy to fund police salaries and it was defeated.

Three cases not filed at Norwalk, mayor may face criminal charge

After Councilman Michael Taylor's public census of Mayor Elizabeth Paddock was approved by the village council Tuesday night, Councilman David Howard announced he will file criminal charges against the mayor at the next meeting.

The action stems from the fact that the mayor, who she readily admitted, failed to certify three cases to the Norwalk Municipal court in time for action.

She told the council they were the first she had had during her two terms of office and the village did not even own the forms they were to be presented on, and when she did "borrow" them from another village the time limit on another village the time limit on the cases had run out.

mayor suggested that perhaps some income tax revenue could be used, seemed in favor of the village taking it over.

The Richland county auditor returned the 1980 budget to Clerk Raymond Brooks with his certified figures of the operation of the village tax revenues. After a discussion in which councilman Mrs. Allen Raymond questioned some of the figures, even though they had been previously passed by the council, the council did approve the auditor's tax rate of 9.85 mills for the operation of the village.

The breakdown is 4.80 mills for the general fund, 7.80 mills for bond retirement (the $150,000 sewer bond issue passed about 1961); 45 mills for the park, one mill for the cemetery and 3.90 for the fire department.

They were charges against Raymond Klemm, Robert Baker and Matthew Perkins. Taylor said she was hampering the work of the police department.

In other action the council is requesting that representatives of the Farmers Home Administration be invited to the next meeting to explain their proposal that $45,940.33 which remains unspent in the sewer construction fund from the original loan of $968,000 be applied to last year's payment, which was due Jan. 1. The mayor met with them last week at their request.

The village owes a total of $55,182.80 for the year's payment, and can readily make up the difference. She also explained that some bookkeeping changes were suggested in how the sewer reserve funds to repay the sewer debt should be set up.

David Howard made the suggestion of meeting with the FHA because the mayor's meeting with them could have been "over the coffee cups."

Wayne L. Lash, district director of FHA, Wooster, also suggested to the mayor that she meet with her on Sept. 11 that perhaps the village would be interested in taking over the operation of Mary Faye park swimming pool.

The pool has not been able to meet its obligations to FHA for some $60,000 borrowed to construct it.

The mayor told the council her inquiries about the pool could manage to pay its running expenses each year but not completely make its debt payment each year.

Taylor did not see any reason for the village to bail out the pool, but Councilman Ervin Howard, after the major suggested that perhaps some income tax revenue could be used, seemed in favor of the village taking it over.

The Richland county auditor returned the 1980 budget to Clerk Raymond Brooks with his certified figures of the operation of the village tax revenues. After a discussion in which councilman Mrs. Allen Raymond questioned some of the figures, even though they had been previously passed by the council, the council did approve the auditor's tax rate of 9.85 mills for the operation of the village.

The breakdown is 4.80 mills for the general fund, 7.80 mills for bond retirement (the $150,000 sewer bond issue passed about 1961); 45 mills for the park, one mill for the cemetery and 3.90 for the fire department.

Mrs. Raymond questioned the clerk about the fire reserve funds. A bookkeeping transaction will be necessary because the new Richland county auditor has not been sending the village funds broken down into two separate categories for the fire department, as had been done previously. They have been listed as operation and maintenance, which are three-fourths of the money received should have been in a separate column earmarked for new investment.

Taylor said reserve funds should be reserved to produce revenue. This is a function of the council, the clerk pointed out, to direct him to do so.

Fire Chief Wayne E. Strine said he wishes to advertise for bids to insulate the fire house and provide a heated bay for the ambulance.

William Administrator James H. Root has already made arrangements for an energy audit of village buildings through the state. It will cost $200 a building, and it was agreed that only the firehouse would be done.

Taylor said that after the audit is done and the village knows what the savings will be, the council will make a decision.

Strine estimated insulating will cost between $7,000 and $8,000.

The fire chief said the fire department will have an open house on Fire Prevention day, Oct. 9, from 7 until 9 p. m. Fire prevention week is Oct. 7-13.

Root told the council that village employees have started to repair the park pavilion. Bids were advertised in Mansfield and Shelby and none were received, so it was decided the village would do the work.

He also asked the council what action Ordinance 8-73 which approved Huron county doing tar and chipping in the village. He explained it was necessary because the village did not bid for the work when it was advertised and that the Huron county prosecutor said the work could not be done under the circumstances.

Ervin Howard asked that Police Chief W. Robert Seel be at the next meeting to explain the police overtime, which he thinks is excessive. The mayor said he was looking at time cards for the period which the village had been during which the village had experienced two tragedies and the extra time was necessary.

He also thinks the General Telephone Co. made an error on its bill to the village for the ambulance service number which is now disconnected. The clerk is to check with the company.

The mayor told the council that the Columbus Gas of Ohio is delivering a "letter of intent" to the clerk Friday. The letter will state that the company is taking the problem of Plymouth's gas service before the PUCO, which was the route the council chose to take when it refused a contract with Columbus.

Chamber sets three goals, among which a restaurant

Three major goals were set Thursday night during the third meeting of the newly formed Plymouth Area Chamber of Commerce.

President Dr. James Holloway, announced that a brochure of the village to entice business and industry to locate here was prepared by Ivan Hawk, manager of Sohlgro.

A strong Christmas promotion among the retail businesses and with support of community organizations is being headed by Mrs. Charles E. Pritchard.

She said it is hoped the village employees can erect the Christmas tree in the Square and put up the Christmas decorations so they will be ready by the Friday after Thanksgiving. She also suggested a community caroling in the Square.

The third goal is the opening of a new restaurant. Mrs. Thomas Root said there is a prospect but no decision can be reached until next month concerning his plans.

Councilman Michael Taylor said he will do everything he can to urge the village council to undertake the project of blacktopping and installing lighting in the village parking lot behind the fire house in East Main street.

He said the parking area is necessary for employees of business to park off the Square, freeing it for customers. He also pointed out that the blacktopping would provide a site for expanded activities of the annual Plymouth Firemen's Festival such as exhibits and booths, so that the skills of local residents may be shown.

Miss Louella Vandervoort suggested that a campaign for recycling cans and bottles is needed.

John Heden suggested that worthwhile activities should be planned for the youth of the community which would eliminate some of the rowdiness.

Dr. Holloway said he hopes the chamber can increase its membership. It was suggested that each person present bring two more for the next meeting, which will be

Oct. 11.

Miss Root reported the proposed radio station of the P. V. Nasby Corp. will have its application reviewed this month and that she is confident that it will be approved over a second one-seeking approval because the local corporation has minority members as officers while the other application is a single membership of an Oberlin man.

If the application is approved, the station can be in operation by spring, she said. It will be a 3,000 watt facility with a 300-foot tower located between Plymouth and Shelby. A site has already been obtained. Studios will be set up in Willard and Shelby to cover an area of 50 miles.

Somemores a tasty snack, says old Girl Scout

By AUNT LIZ
Some people really are taking the energy shortage seriously.

Perhaps there should be more like them. What one saves, another seems to waste.

A family in New York state did its bit when it took its summer vacation in the woods.

Since our daily living habits are bound to the time of the day, they simply set their watches and clocks ahead two hours which meant they were getting up at five with the local birds instead of at their regular times.

What it did was that it gave them a couple hours at night of daylight time to about 11 p. m.

If the whole country did this during the summer months, just think how much electricity would be saved.

Perhaps a little thought should be given to it by our collective geniuses in Washington.

There always seems to be a way to solve a problem if you try a little.

Most of our communities have a problem, which is not too nice to talk about. But when a rat appears in your bathroom, it is time to say something. And it needs to be solved.

There is not a community in our whole country and probably in the whole world that does not have this, and some communities are solving it by importing owls.

Owls eat the rats and do it better job than various types of poisons which more desirable animals might get into.

Morrison, N. J., has done away with all poisons because if an owl got the poisoned rat, that would end the owl.

And where do you get the owls? We once had a family of them in the tree at the side of our house, but they moved. There are various organizations which rescue injured ones, treat them back to a healthy existence and relocate them where they can do some good.

It's like martins and mosquitoes. Our Girl Scout camp once brought in a family, and it really made those nights around the campfire bearable.

Those nights were fun back then, and more fun on the nights when we had Somemores.

If you have never made them for your kids, you should. You can roast a marshmallow over a gas flame. If you have an electric stove, just plan to cook outside and when the coils are cooling, roast the things.

Then make a sandwich of two graham crackers, and two slices of a thick chocolate bar with the marshmallow in the middle.

I have no idea who ever dreamed this up, but when we were growing up, it was about the biggest treat anyone could dream of.

It was fun to roast the marshmallows and for years I always maintained I liked mine really burned and that was because I was simply too dumb to realize they had to be done over glowing coals and not right smack in the middle of a flame.

It was the difference of being an ordinary cook and becoming a real gourmet one.

And if you really want to be gourmet about it all, just open an ordinary can of mushroom soup, don't dilute it except maybe for just a small amount of water so it's not too thick. Add a third cup or so of thinly sliced green onions and a little sprinkle of curry. Cut the tops of the onions to sprinkle on top to pretty it up.

Two long runs break back of Plymouth at Bascom

Two long runs broke Plymouth's back at Bascom Friday night.

A 35-yard runback of an intercepted pass by Chris Lang in the second period on a 57-yard runback of a punt by John Craft produced two touchdowns and the Big Red's third consecutive defeat.

The score was 14 to 6.

It was a costly defeat in other ways. Two premier performers for Plymouth were taken to a Tiffin hospital by ambulance. These are Jeff Burrer and Steve Tackett.

What it boiled down to was that the Red offense couldn't produce when the chips were down.

After a lackluster first half, Plymouth's offense came alive in the third period and produced a touchdown of its own.

But with a chance to tie the game - and, considering Hopewell-Loudon's impotence offensively in the second half, perhaps a chance to win - the Big Red lost ground and was compelled to surrender possession.

The first score came with 1:48 remaining in the first half.

Jeff Jacobs was at the helm of the Big Red when, on first down, from his 29, Jacobs sought to pass. Lang stepped in front of the ball, snatched it from the air and sped down the middle for 37 yards.

A Danish exchange pupil, playing his first game of football, kicked the first of two PATs. His name is Knud Andersen.

Plymouth rebounded with the kickoff that started the second half.

From his 25, the Big Red marked 75 yards in six plays, even in the face of two damaging penalties, one of them for 15 yards for holding.

A 34-yard pass play opened the series. Jacobs threw to Steve Tackett on his left flank and Tackett unloaded to Scott Harris. This gave Plymouth its first down at the Hopewell-Loudon 41.

A procedure penalty cost Plymouth five yards. Jim Jamerson broke off right tackle for 22 yards and another 39 yards. A pass from the Chieftain 24 went incomplete. Plymouth was socked with a 15-yard holding penalty. Then, from the 39, Jamerson ripped through right tackle, reversed his field time and shot into the end zone.

A pass for PATs was short. Hopewell-Loudon wasn't through, by any means. The Chieftains drove with the kickoff to the Plymouth 14, only to lose two yards on fourth down with one to go for first down.

Plymouth was unable to gain in the ensuing series and Phil Gowitzka punted. This he did for 42 yards, whereupon Craft sped through the Big Red defense for 57 yards and the second Hopewell-Loudon touchdown.

When the Chieftains kicked off, Plymouth was unable to gain and Phil Gowitzka kicked 33 yards to the Hopewell-Loudon 30, where a Chieftain fumble gave Plymouth first down. Tackett rolled out for four on first down and eight on third down. Scott Harris on the double reverse gained 12. But on fourth down, from the four, Plymouth could not move. Indeed, it lost three yards. It was never again to get closer.

A fumble at the Chieftain 34 cost Plymouth another chance to tie.

Plymouth had one last gasp: On fourth down, Jacobs passed to Harris for 19 yards. But it was short of first down by less than a yard and Hopewell-Loudon closed out the contest with three plays into the line.

The Plymouth kicking game was worthy of admiration. Plymouth's defense performed better in the second half than during the first. The Chieftains gained only 35 yards, all of it on the ground, in the last 24 minutes. The Big Red offense did better than previously but it still leaves much to be desired. It performed better when Tackett was at quarterback, but his game leg obviously was giving him trouble even before he went down. Jacobs is a center, but he doesn't have the experience at quarterback that would be so helpful to him and to his team.
