

That none of the challengers for a seat on the board of education succeeded in ousting an incumbent is no surprise. There were no issues brought up or discussed, at least not openly.

The PTO at Shiloh invited the candidates there for some discussion and to answer some questions, and there were some lively exchanges. But no real discussion of issues.

Do we have issues?

And if so, what are they?

And if not, why not?

No system is perfect. No administrator, yea, through he may be ordained, has all the answers. The number of disapproving ballots cast by the board over the past 10 or 15 years you could stick in the eye of a half-blind gnat.

The purpose here is not to encourage dissent for its own sake. There are those who prefer to swim upstream. So be it. Let them do so. They should not, however, be permitted to monopolize public discussion of important matters and certainly not permitted to broach, solely for the sake of disputatious argument, matters that are not important.

Some patrons of the school district, knowledgeable and experienced, well know the rule of law: he who sits at the board as member thereof has privilege. Which means, what he says cannot be used against him in a slander suit, so long as he says it in open session and in connection with matters of which the board may be seized. But that privilege extends only to members of the board, not to an administrator or employee of the board and certainly not to the common citizen.

This explains why some prefer to speak their minds privately, over the coffee cups or at the pub, and to a limited audience, generally one they are assured is sympathetic to their attitudes.

But it is wrong.

We hope the new board, if that is what it is, will, come Jan. 1, take extraordinary steps to encourage electors of the school district to speak up about matters that disturb them.

It is for the individual board member to determine whether that is said, or unsaid, is germane to the business of educating boys and girls. Each member is required by law to weigh carefully what is laid before the board, by whomever, and to make a decision that derives from an honest consideration of the common good rather than from any thought of displeasing one segment or another, or the whole body, of the district's electorate.

On Saturday

In 1954, some energetic women whose children were pupils in Plymouth Elementary school undertook to raise funds by buying things that the school board had no money for so that education of their children would improve. Or at least, not be hampered by lack of comforts or equipment.

Because of a change in the basic nature of the community, and of those who people it, the annual affair was allowed to die a quick death.

Until it was revived a year or two ago by the Boosters club.

Sure, times are tough. To take a family of four or five to the dinner will destroy a $20 note. But the purpose is honest. The program needs the money. Nobody save the athletic program will make a cent. Indeed, a number of conscientious persons is donating goods and services to help the cause along.

Our advice: turn out Saturday and help the cause.

Board approves grading system in high school

A new, more sophisticated grading system for high school pupils, said to be fairer to the pupil who makes an effort to achieve, but does not always do so, was explained to Plymouth Board of Education by its architect, James Craycraft, high school principal, Monday night.

Nub of the system is that three equally weighted grades are calculated to determine the semester grade and both semester grades are figured when assessing the final grade. Further, save for the highest grade of A, nuances have been built into each letter grade so that pupils benefit from effort that may not quite reach the next grade plateau.

This is done by assigning plus and minus levels in each letter grade save A, where only the minus grade is assigned. Craycraft said the system is not wholly mandatory. "If the course is a stiff one, and the testing is difficult, the teacher may very well alter the Aristotelian levels required to obtain a grade. But the principle remains the same."

Pupils whose average in a course is 96 or above will receive an A. A minus is 94 to 95 per cent, B plus is 92 to 93 per cent, B is 89 to 91 per cent, B minus is 85 to 89 per cent, C plus is 82 to 84 per cent, C is 75 to 81 per cent, C minus is 72 to 74 per cent, D plus is 68 to 71 per cent, D is 65 to 67 per cent, F plus is 54 to 64 per cent, F is 44 to 53 per cent, F minus is below 43 per cent.

Plymouth now has full voting privilege in the Firelands conference, Supt. Douglas Stagg reported. He and Craycraft attended earlier a conference meeting, which Stagg said was especially well organized and conducted and business-like. A request by Mrs. Lonnie Pelham, South Central Local School district, to initiate her sixth grader to Plymouth district because "children at Greenwich fight my child" was turned down, on recommendation of Stagg. The vote was unanimous. Stagg said, "I think we ought to let those folks over there handle this problem."

Mrs. Paula Cronenwett, a learning disabilities teacher in Shelby, was awarded supplemental contract as assistant girls' basketball coach at the established rate of pay. Teacher-parent conference for elementary pupils will be conducted Dec. 3 and 4 for kindergartners, the evening of Dec. 3 and Dec. 4 for pupils of grades one through eight.

Monthly tuition for pupils who attend special instruction at Mansfield because of physical handicaps was set at $174.29.

Three high school pupils hurt in two crashes

Two Plymouth High school girls and the niece of one of them were injured Thursday at 3:15 p. m. when their car was struck by another at Route 603 and Franklin township road. Angela Tallman, 17, 26 West Main street, Shiloh; Heather Tallman, one, Route 224, Greenwich, her niece, and Lynn Snider, 15, Plymouth route 1, were treated and released at Mansfield General hospital.

State highway patrol reported Peter E. Moran, 19, Mansfield, northbound in Franklin township road, failed to halt at Route 603, striking Miss Tallman's car, which was eastbound in Route 603. Moran was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way.

The township trustees have told the safety committee, chaired by Councilman James Holloway, the village contract is getting out of reach.

Arrested here, driver fined at Norwalk

Accused of driving while under suspension, Garland E. Sexton, Plymouth, was convicted in Norwalk Municipal court and sentenced to three days in jail and to pay a fine of $200 plus costs. Jail sentence was suspended on condition of no repeated violation within one year.

Ex-resident indicted

A former Plymouth resident, Hancer D. Laferty, Jr., 33, Ontario, was indicted last week by a Richland county grand jury on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Bauers win BSA honors as Scouters

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bauer, Shiloh, have been honored by the 10th Appalachee Area Council 453 as Scouters of the Month. They organized Cub Scout Pack 450, which is sponsored by Mt. Hope Lutheran church, seven months ago. They have two children, Jason, who is a member of the pack and working for his Bear badge, and Jodi.

New fillip in vogue for 9th graders

A new fillip is in vogue with the 1981-82 ninth grade basketball squad. For the first time since a ninth grade team was organized, its coach is not a regularly employed member of the school's faculty. But he's an old hand at coaching, and some of it to the father of candidates for his team. He is William F. (Wild Bill) Flaherty, a native of Clarksville, W. Va., who retired from the Plymouth system a few years back after nearly 30 years in public education.

After World War II military service, he completed his education at Salem college, Salem, W. Va. and took a master's degree from West Virginia university at Morgantown.

His first teaching-coaching stint was at New Riegel. He went to Shiloh in 1957 and when the annexation of the Shiloh district was ordered by the Richland county board of education, he joined the staff of Plymouth district, where he remained until he retired.

When he quit, he was head teacher in the high school, where he was variously instructor of social studies, health and physical education.

Plymouth township drops ambulance service

Beginning Jan. 1, 1982 Plymouth ambulance will no longer serve residents of Plymouth township. The township trustees have told the safety committee, chaired by Councilman James Holloway, the village contract is getting out of reach.

When the service was set up about 10 years ago, it was agreed that Plymouth and New Haven townships would share half the cost of maintaining the vehicle and services while the village paid the other 50 per cent. For Plymouth township its quarter share has been mounting to about $2,000 annually. The council has proposed increasing it to a flat rate of $2,500 annually. This is what the trustees object to.

What is meaning of vote on municipal levies?

What is the meaning of the performance of Plymouth voters at the polling places on Nov. 3?

What significance should be attached to the fact that, for the first time in modern history, more ballots were cast in the Huron county side of the village than in the Richland side? The total was 315 to 222.

What is the meaning of the village vote on the four levies?

The fire levy renewal received 176 votes in Richland county, 188 votes in Huron county. Nay votes in Richland county numbered 48, in Huron county 31.

The park levy renewal was accorded 144 votes in Richland county, 161 votes in Huron county. Nay votes totaled 79 in Richland county, 57 in Huron county.

The cemetery levy was given 147 votes in Richland county, 161 votes in Huron county. Nay votes amounted to 78 in Richland county, 64 ballots in Huron county. It was with the general operating levy that support weakened. In Richland county the vote was 131 favoring, 92 opposing. In Huron county the comparable figures were 142 and 70. Some veteran pollwatchers surmise that voters who are forced to pay the village income tax voted their pocketbooks in the ballot booth. They tend to resent being compelled to pay for services that are either retired or work out of town, escape being required to pay for.

That Vincent Phelan was elected judge of the Shelby Municipal court surprised local voters, who accorded his opponent, Gordon Blackman, substantial majorities. Blackman outpolled Phelan in Plymouth, 113 to 56. In Shiloh the comparable figures were 76 to 34. In Cass township they were 68 and 62. In Plymouth township they were 112 and 118.

W. Robert Seel, former police chief here, ran well in Plymouth in the race for Plymouth township trustee. He polled 148 ballots, Chester Jones, incumbent, got 100 and Mark Fry, who won with Jones a seat on the board, 93.

Robert Sponawler is a child of Plymouth township, yet he did not draw strong support there in his race for school board.

Sponawler was accorded 157 votes in Plymouth, only 61, last in the field of six, in Plymouth township, 21, next to last, in Shiloh and 41, next to last, in Cass township.

The incumbents ran strongly in Plymouth, where Echelbarger drew 317 votes, Miller 286 and Hamman 203. Charles Reinhart defeated Hamman in Plymouth, where he drew 215 votes.

The incumbents defeated the challengers in each other precinct.

Incumbent Bloominggrove township trustee Ollie Wagers was turned out in Nov. 3 election.

He received only 93 votes to trail Charles Bly, who got 126, and Paul Egner, who drew 103. Bly is incumbent.

Forest Peters received 57 votes, John Lowe 54, Nancy Lewis 43 and Carl Smart 35. In Shiloh, where there was no opposition, Charles R. Reeder polled 88 ballots and Frank Cline 74. Each is an incumbent.

There was no race in Plymouth, either. G. Thomas Moore led the ticket with 333 ballots. Terry Hopkins drew 298, Billy Taubee 287 and Ervin Howard, who earlier notified the board of election he did not wish to run, 254. Mayor Dean A. Cline received a complimentary vote of 352. Mayor Francis Gowitzka at Shiloh was accorded 103 ballots.

Septic tank waste on farmland? Decision today

Approval of a plan to spread septic tank wastes on farmland will be sought today by Huron county board of health.

Chief Sanitarian Roger Dixon says he will ask the health board to amend its rules so that the procedure may take effect. And he told the county commissioners so on Monday morning.

The board of health will meet today.

EPA officers at Fremont in August sent a letter to Dixon and to the commissioners to say they won't recommend approval of the permit to dump such refuse in the county landfill because they found several violations of EPA rules during an inspection.

These deficiencies included dumping of septic tank wastes into a lagoon and failure to bury a number of discarded tires by day's end. The permit to dump liquid septic tank wastes at the landfill expired two years ago, when EPA declined to renew it.

Dixon said dumping the wastes on farmland is the only alternative, although he'd prefer to dispose of them through a sewage treatment plant. Problem is, there is none available. Requests were made of Norwalk and Willard to deal with liquid wastes. Norwalk permit blank refused and Willard said it is plagued by flood waters and cannot deal with extra waste.

Under Dixon's plan, a septic tank owner could dump the waste on his own land without a permit. But a permit would be required to dump elsewhere, whether by the owner or a firm hauling wastes from private homes or businesses.

Safety cordon rules to protect the purity of streams and ponds would be enforced against such dumping, Dixon said.

Here's chicken recipe with garlic, 40 cloves of the strong stuff!

By AUNT LIZ
This week's sage-like piece of advice is, "Be selfish." Never give anything away, no matter how badly someone may need it.

A couple of years ago I became overly generous and gave my pet cookie cutters away, thinking my fancy cookie making days were over, since they are hard to transport and everyone is dying.

Then I decided to help out one of our kids and make a

Since they are bogged down, and no cutters. No ball, no tree, no gingerbread man, plus my pet round one with the scalloped edges, which makes a beautiful cookie and decorates so nicely.

I have had them for over 30 years. They simply do not make cutters like they did then.

This is where friends come in handy. One had them all, which are nicely on loan, and life is under control again.

But I have learned a very valuable lesson. No matter how meager anything can be, someday you will be looking for it.

And never throw out a recipe you cut out years ago from someplace. We found a beauty the other day while Doing a little drawer cleaning and tried it.

It is economical and tasty. Start with a bunch of chicken legs, we had 12 thin ones, and I would recommend finding a more mature leg, which is meatier.

The recipe actually calls for eight legs with thighs or 16 legs.

Put two-thirds of a cup of oil in a casserole. Cover the bottom with four pieces of celery cut in ribs, two chopped onions, and about three tablespoons of dried parsley. You can sprinkle a half cup of dry white wine or vermouth over it all, but it is really not essential. Then sprinkle some salt and pepper over it all.

Place the legs on top. Best you get a grip on yourself for the next thing is 40 cloves of unpeeled garlic, which you tuck here and there among the legs.

Cover tightly with foil and the lid and bake for an hour and a half at 350.

Just before it is done, toast French bread or ordinary garlic bread and squeeze it on the toast and you will have the very best garlic bread you have ever tasted. It will ooze out the end like butter.

Another gem I found while housecleaning was a really old recipe for what were called Chinese Chews. This goes back to my grandmother's cousin and when I was a school girl, Annie always gave you something edible for a present, and this was better than any store could produce.

In a greased square baking pan put in a mixture of a half cup of butter mixed with a cup of flour and two tablespoons of sugar. Bake 15 minutes at 350.

When the 15 minutes is up, have this mixture ready to spread over the top; one and a half cups of brown sugar, two tablespoons of flour, two beaten eggs, a cup of walnut pieces and a half cup of coconut.

Bake another 20 minutes. The topping should be brown when done.

Has anyone ever heard of something called "Nothings"? This was another thing she made. They were deep fried and sprinkled with powdered sugar immediately.

The taste as I remember was like that of rosettes which you make from a liquidly batter and an iron to shape it. Hers must have had more flour to make them a more sturdy dough because strips of it were dropped into the oil in pretzel like shapes.

Since that part of the family was very German, it could possibly be an old one handed down.

Another increase in interest rates for U.S. Savings Bonds.

9% Growing Bigger... Faster

That's the good news about U.S. Savings Bonds.
The Series EE Bonds you buy today grow bigger, with an increased interest rate of 9%. And they do it faster, with a shortened maturity period of only 8 years. Interim rates have been improved, too. Bonds earn 6% after 1 year and 8 1/2% if held 5 years.
These changes make Bonds much more desirable. And with the Payroll Savings Plan, it's easier to save more, in a shorter time.
In fact, almost all outstanding Savings Bonds will benefit from a 1% increase to their next maturity.
So take another look at Bonds. They're still easy to buy through the Payroll Savings Plan; they're safe, guaranteed. Take a look at the tax benefits. The new interest rates. The shortened maturity.
And you'll see Bonds do make sense.
For you, and for your country.

Take stock in America.
