

Survey set to aid grant

A survey of villagers aimed toward documenting the need for a federal grant to improve the water distribution system will be undertaken by the village planning commission, it decided Feb. 3.

Chairman Kennon Osburn of the commission said the cost of improving the system is $368,000. An application will be filed for the total sum. The survey is confidential and designed to conceal the identity of the respondent. It will seek a description of the house and the income of the occupants. Osburn said the village must show that improvement of the water distribution system will benefit parts of the village where live low or moderate income persons and/or minorities.

Osburn has himself conducted a survey in connection with an application for a block grant to improve the southwest section of the village.

The new survey will seek to develop data from that part of the population not canvassed by Osburn.

He said the village should qualify for the "imminent threat" category of the grant machinery because about 30 per cent of the water supply is lost through leaks and the village cannot pay for improvements on its own.

HUD has notified the village that it has received the pre-application for the block grant to improve streets and sewers in the southwest portion of the village. Osburn said he was asked for a map pinpointing

Rural crime

We have been bombarded of late by accounts of rural crime. (The reports of crime in the village, repeated in the adjoining columns today, doubtless fit nicely, if that is the correct word, into the rural crime pattern.)

Dr. G. Howard Phillips, director of the rural Crime Prevention center on the campus of Ohio State university, says the rate of increase in rural crime from 1959 to 1979 is a startling 614 per cent for Ohio alone. The figures come from the FBI. They show that in 1959 there were 190 rural crimes and in 1979, 2,070 rural crimes.

Why?

For one thing, rural areas are much more accessible than they were 30 years ago. The rural road system has improved markedly since 1950.

For another, along with an increase in roads, there is an increase in cars. More young people have cars because they are more affluent and can afford to have them. A young person is able to drive in a matter of minutes from the city into the country and may commit a crime in an area where no one knows him.

For a third, rural residents today have a higher standard of living than ever before. Therefore, they have more equipment to meet their optional needs and more luxuries in their homes to make life more enjoyable.

Distance between homes in rural areas makes it inviting to commit a crime without being spotted by a neighbor.

The trend, and the latest census data show it, is for more and more people to move into rural areas. But their roots are still in the city and they don't really integrate themselves in the rural community. One no longer knows everyone who lives in his road.

Rural crime won't decrease until people become better watchers and reporters of crime. Report to whom? Aye, there's the rub. Reports to police herabout, of late, anyway, get no action whatsoever.

Population in 1980: 52 less than in 1970

Plymouth lost a population of 52 persons during the 1970-80 decade, census figures show. Total population of Plymouth on Apr. 1, 1980, was 1,941. Ten years earlier it was 1,993.

The census showed Richland county residents within the village diminished by 208 persons, while Huron county residents increased by 156 persons. The net loss, therefore, is 52.

As of Apr. 1, 1980, there were 973 villagers domiciled in Richland county and 968 in Huron county.

Reason? None officially stated, save that the census figures show that number of housing units in the Richland county side of the village declined by 10, or 2.6 per cent, from 381 to 371, whereas number of housing units in the Huron county side of the village increased by 156, from 288 to 374. Obviously, a large part of this accretion is represented by the construction of apartment dwellings, namely Plymouth Village and Plymouth Villa.

Elsewhere in Richland county, Shiloh showed a net increase of five per cent in population, from 817 to 858 persons. Number of housing units advanced from 224 to 255, or 4.5 per cent. Shelby showed a 2.1 per cent decrease in population, from 9,847 to 9,643 persons, but an 11.8 per cent increase in housing units, from 3,381 to 3,779.

Whereas Plymouth's loss of population was the greatest, percentage-wise, in Richland county, Lexington's was the largest, percentage-wise, in increase of population. That village grew by 28.7 per cent, from 2,972 to 3,826 persons, and housing units grew by 57.7 per cent from 879 to 1,386.

Mansfield lost population. Total residents in 1980 amounted to 53,907, compared to 55,047 in 1970. The loss figures to 2.1 per cent.

Ontario also lost population, from 4,345 in 1970 to 4,122 in 1980, or 5.1 per cent, while housing units expanded from 1,373 to 1,459, or 6.3 per cent.

Bellville gained 1.5 per cent in population, from 1,685 to 1,710. Lucas showed a 2.3 per cent loss, from 771 in 1970 to 753 in 1980.

In Huron county, losses of large proportions were recorded by Milan, only a small portion of which is in Huron county, amounting to 31.2 per cent, from 565 to 389, and Bellevue, about half of which is in Huron county, amounting to 10.1 per cent, from 4,392 to 3,949.

Monroeville's population in 1980 was 1,336, down 8.2 per cent from the 1,473 in 1970, despite a 12.8 per cent increase in number of housing units, from 468 to 523.

North Fairfield also recorded a loss of population, amounting to 3.5 per cent, from 540 to 521.

Plymouth's increase of 19.2 per cent led the county. Wadman grew by 10.2 per cent, from 822 to 906.

Norwalk expanded by 7.2 per cent, from 13,386 to 14,348.

Willard's population of 5,696 was a 2.8 per cent growth in 10 years, from 5,510.

Greenwich recorded a 1.8 per cent loss in population from 1,473 to 1,446.

In Seneca county, Attica showed a 13.7 decrease in population, from 1,005 to 867, despite a five per cent increase in number of housing units.

In Crawford county, New Washington recorded a 3.2 decrease in population, from 1,251 to 1,211, despite a 10.5 per cent increase in number of housing units. At Tiro, the loss was 9.4 per cent, from 310 to 281, despite a 1.9 per cent increase in number of housing units.

Six levies set for June 2 ballot

Six levies, five renewals and a fresh one, will appear on the primary election ballot.

Strategy of the mayor and council is to submit the levies at a time when, if they are defeated, they may be resubmitted without losing the revenue for the 1981 tax year.

The new levy, intended to fund increases in police salaries, will be either two or three mills. Each mill of taxation produces about $8,000 in revenue.

Renewals include a one-half mill tax to benefit Mary Fato park, a two mill levy to benefit the general fund, a one-half mill tax to benefit Greenlawn cemetery, a one-half mill levy to benefit the fire department, and a one-half mill levy to benefit Plymouth township fire district.

Schools revise free lunch rules

Plymouth schools announce a revised family-size income scale to determine eligibility for free and reduced price meals and free milk for children unable to pay the full price meals and milk served under the national school lunch, school breakfast and special milk programs. Public Law 96-499 passed by congress in December, 1980, makes it necessary to re-determine those children eligible for free and reduced-price benefits again this school year.

REVISED FAMILY-SIZE INCOME SCALE FOR FREE MEALS AND FREE MILK AND REDUCED-PRICE MEALS Effective Jan. 30, 1981

Family size:	Income scale for reduced-price lunches	Income scale for free lunches and free milk
1	$5,700	$8,350
2	$7,220	$10,730
3	$8,750	$13,110
4	$10,270	$15,490
5	$11,800	$17,870
6	$13,320	$20,250
7	$14,850	$22,630
8	$16,370	$25,010
Each additional family member add $1,530		add $2,380

All applications for free and reduced-price benefits now on file at the school will be re-evaluated and eligibility for free and reduced-price benefits re-determined according to the revised family-size income scale above. Parents will be notified by Mar. 6 if they are no longer eligible for the free meals and milk or reduced-price meals for which they are currently approved. If a family previously submitted an application but would like to, applications are available from the school's principal.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color or national origin.

Banner profits advance

Parent firm of Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., Banner Industries, Inc., Cleveland, showed a profit for the second fiscal quarter that ended Dec. 31, compared with a loss a year ago.

For the half year ending Dec. 31, profit was about two times that of the 1979 period.

A large extraordinary write-off of transportation operating rights resulted in a net loss for the last two quarters, compared with a net profit a year ago. The write-off results from the Motor Carrier Act of 1980, which deregulated the trucking industry.

Operating income for the six months ending Dec. 31 was $1,962,235, compared with $1,017,445 a year ago.

But, owing to the huge write-off item, net earnings per share during the six months ending Dec. 31 were minus 98 cents, compared with 35 cents a year ago.

Film set

"The Alaskan Pipeline", a film, will be shown Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in Charles Rhine armory to members of Plymouth Area Chamber of Commerce, who last month heard Miles Christian speak about the history of Plymouth.

Three free children's movies will be shown in Plymouth Branch library Tuesday.
"Changeling" is the story of a penguin shunned because of his strange coloring who becomes a hero after appearing on television.

In "Flying Mouse" a mouse earns his wings by saving a butterfly from a spider.
"Dogs, Cats and Rabbits" is a funny film in three parts. Forty-one amazing dogs utter 41 unpredictable barks, then comes a delicious study of cats, and finally, rabbits are created from such unlikely material as string and peanut butter sandwiches!

The fun begins at 10 a. m. in the library, 21 West Broadway.

Plymouth is traditionally a losing high school in the sport of basketball. In the past only 12th graders played even though better players sat on the bench. This prevented the coaches from playing the best team and from winning. This year, only two 12th graders were interested enough to play basketball. Therefore, it was declared that all boys will play regardless of talent. The results have been the same but, again, there is an excuse for losing.

The Plymouth boosters need to recognize their position as a unit needed to support the coaches and athletes, not to tell them their jobs. True boosters would recognize the talent of the freshman coach and team. This team was excellent in the Friendly House league at the age of 10 and continues to show the entire Mansfield area that they can give Plymouth the respect it has deserved for years. Let's hope that the winning coaches and players appear on the basketball court in the upcoming years because, if they do, Plymouth will finally be a winner.

Help Save Our Natural Resources

Here's How: Pre-heat your oven only when it's necessary. Set temperature at heat you intend to use. A higher setting won't make the oven pre-heat any faster. Keep opening and closing of oven door to a minimum.

Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weather-stripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers
Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well. When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat. When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

One final tip. For dozens of additional energy-saving ideas, visit or call our office and ask for our free SAVE* booklets. They'll get you in the habit of saving energy morning, noon and night.

In "Flying Mouse" a mouse earns his wings by saving a butterfly from a spider.
"Dogs, Cats and Rabbits" is a funny film in three parts. Forty-one amazing dogs utter 41 unpredictable barks, then comes a delicious study of cats, and finally, rabbits are created from such unlikely material as string and peanut butter sandwiches!

The fun begins at 10 a. m. in the library, 21 West Broadway.

Plymouth is traditionally a losing high school in the sport of basketball. In the past only 12th graders played even though better players sat on the bench. This prevented the coaches from playing the best team and from winning. This year, only two 12th graders were interested enough to play basketball. Therefore, it was declared that all boys will play regardless of talent. The results have been the same but, again, there is an excuse for losing.

The Plymouth boosters need to recognize their position as a unit needed to support the coaches and athletes, not to tell them their jobs. True boosters would recognize the talent of the freshman coach and team. This team was excellent in the Friendly House league at the age of 10 and continues to show the entire Mansfield area that they can give Plymouth the respect it has deserved for years. Let's hope that the winning coaches and players appear on the basketball court in the upcoming years because, if they do, Plymouth will finally be a winner.

Here's How: Pre-heat your oven only when it's necessary. Set temperature at heat you intend to use. A higher setting won't make the oven pre-heat any faster. Keep opening and closing of oven door to a minimum.

Psst. Save some energy tonight.

Like all Americans, you're for saving energy. Chances are, you may have already added insulation to your home. Caulked windows. Weather-stripped your doors.

Still more can be done. Little things that don't cost a cent. Things that change old habits which waste energy.

Evening Energy Savers
Starting tonight, lower your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Each degree over 68° can add 3% to the energy used for heating.

If you're entertaining, lower the thermostat a degree or two before your guests arrive. People generate heat.

Close off unused rooms. Turn off lights as well. When removing food from the refrigerator, plan your total needs and open the door no more than necessary. Repeated openings waste energy.

When the sun sets, close the draperies to hold in heat. When the fireplace is not in use, close the damper tight. An open damper allows warm air to be pulled out of a room.

Set your water heater's temperature at a moderate 140°F or as low as possible to allow for enough hot water.

Use fluorescent lamps wherever possible. They produce four times the light per watt as do incandescent bulbs.

Turn off all unneeded inside and outside lights before going to bed.

Kitchen's where it's at, Auntie says today

By AUNT LIZ

What is there about a friendly kitchen?

Frankly, it is where I spend most of my at home time, so if anyone drops in, that is where they are put. And I find myself dropping in on friends, and we sit in their kitchen. Mostly, I guess, it is because the coffee pot is so handy.

I have never forgotten the night a nice friend dropped in, and we said, "Come on in and sit in the living room," which was really neat looking. After a few minutes, he looked at me with real pain in his eyes, and said, "Liz, let's move to the kitchen, I feel more at home there."

If I really did not like him very much, I would have clunked him on his little rounded head. Being a housewife, I am plain proud when I can manage to get a room completely cleaned up, which means the carpeting does not have cracker crumbs on it and all ash trays are immaculate.

Family rooms are great and just about every new house has one now, but when we visit our children, we end up sitting in their kitchens. I bet everyone else does too.

A few years ago we were invited to something. I think it was a graduation party. It was in a lovely home with a very large living room with all sorts of nice things to perch on, and guess where about 50 people gathered? It was really not the coffee that got them there, but it was a nice friendly crowded deal.

Some budding psychiatrist should write a paper and become famous on this. People seem to like to be in little crowds. It kind of gives you a sense of belonging, to what, I do not know.

I remember one time we went eastward for a holiday and spent a day in the city. On our way back to the bus station, we just happened to see a hotel bar sign and had time to spare, so in we went.

It was absolutely festive. We managed to snag two bar stools amidst a bunch of New Yorkers celebrating Christmas two days early. It was about three in the afternoon, and I kind of wondered why they were not in their offices working. I have not forgotten that little incident. Somehow I felt this is American and we are part of it. I have also felt the same way right here in Ohio when a bunch of friendly people gather together. Maybe this is what makes us different from places like Iran.

Don't for one minute think they do not have their friendly get-togethers. They do. The difference is we know most of what is going on in the world and they do not.

If you are planning a cozy session in your kitchen for friends who just happen to drop in, be a little prepared.

Never underestimate a pound of bacon, which most refrigerators have on hand. All you need is a spare can of water chestnuts, some sugar and soy sauce, and you can make a real treat.

The good part is that none of it is frozen and is ready to deal with.

Open the can of chestnuts and dump them into a fourth of a cup of soy sauce, cut them in half so they will go further. Then cook up the bacon to the point that it is pliable and not crispy. Take the chestnuts out of the soy sauce, roll each in a little container of sugar. All you need to do is throw them in and shake up the container so they are coated. Cut the bacon up in thirds, wrap each around a chestnut and stash under the broiler.

This can all be accomplished before the second can of brew is offered. Be sure you have toothpicks on hand or your guests might have a couple of burned fingers.

Greshner's 23 lead Cougars over Red in loop play

Mike Greshner led Crestview to a 63 to 51 conquest of Plymouth here Friday night, locking up for the Cougars at least a share of the 1981 Black Fork Valley conference title.

It may be the Cougars' last year in the league. Reports are that Crestview will join another conference next month, perhaps in time to play in it during the 1981-82 cage season. Likelihood is, however, that contracts between Crestview and other schools are for two years and Crestview couldn't get started in its new league until 1982-83.

Crestview all but blew Plymouth off the floor in the opening minutes of the game. The Cougars piled up a lead of 13 to 0 before Plymouth was able to score. Then the Big Red ran off six unanswered points. Nevertheless, after eight minutes it was 21 to 9 and Crestview appeared to have it salted away.

Plymouth came alive in the second period. The Big Red scored 16 points, six of them by Steve Tackett, who already bagged seven in the first period. It wasn't Plymouth's defense that stymied Crestview in the second quarter so much as its own clumsiness on offense. The Cougars committed nine turnovers during the second period. They got off seven shots and made three of them — for the night they made 26 of 50 tries at the basket — and at halftime Crestview led by only 29 to 25.

After the break, the teams traded baskets until they reached 35 to 33, whereupon Crestview managed eight unanswered points. A basket and a free throw by Plymouth at the end of the period cut the lead to nine points at 47 to 38.

Greshner was at his best during the third quarter. For the night he had 23 points, but he bagged eight of them in the third period.

Crestview by this time had its offense together and its rebounding, while not outstanding, was keeping Plymouth from getting a third shot. While the Big Red scored with half of its tries for field goal in the third period, it fell off to just over a third in the final quarter. Overall, Plymouth fired for field goal 57 times and scored with 23.

At the foul line, the Big Red didn't have so many opportunities as Crestview. With seven tries, Plymouth had five successes. The Cougars missed eight of 19.

In rebounding, Crestview took down 34, Plymouth 23. And in turnovers, it was Crestview 20, Plymouth 19.

Here's How: The fireplace chimney draft will draw heat out of your home, so keep the damper closed when not in use. Or block the opening with a removable panel of plywood or fiberboard. Don't let dollars go up the chimney.

Know how.

Having a little know how can go a long way these days. Like knowing the ins and outs of buying a home. The do's and don'ts of saving energy. The ups and downs of investing.

So that's why the Consumer Information Center of the U.S. Government put together this helpful little catalog. The Consumer Information Catalog.

It lists more than two hundred federal publications you can send for. All of which can help you in the know. About your car, your home, your health, your finances, your plumbing, you name it.

Better yet, the catalog is free. And more than half the publications in it are free.
