Village urged to promote police levy

Strong effort should be made by local members of the financial recovery planning commission, Mayor Eric J. Akers, William R. Miller, chairman of the commission; James C. Davis, Dean A. Cline, president pro tempore of the council, and Gregory Kibler, to assure the passage of the three mill levy on the June 2 ballot, which will provide extra funds for the police department, Ralph Roll, senior accountant, Ernst & Whinney, told the commission Friday.

If the levy is successful, it will generate about $19,000 annually. This will take part of the burden of the income tax money, which had been planned with a 25 cent split for the general fund earmarked for the police and 75 cent for capital improvement.

It has been reversed since the income tax has been collected, with the police getting 75 per cent of the money collected.

Cline said the council realizes that a three mill levy is not enough but had to be realistic about what it thought would be approved by the electorate.

Roll also said the renewal of four levies on the November ballot is imperative.

They are a half mill for the police department needs for the general fund, a half mill for the fire department and one mill for the cemetery.

A mill will bring in just over $600,000, which is planned on in the budget.

He urged that every effort be made to get these facts across to the voters, and suggested that local committees be formed to take the message to the people.

During the meeting Friday morning, James C. Root, village administrator, said the electric department needs to replace its line and bucket trucks, which will total about $20,000. Such expenditures were planned out of the income tax money.

Roll carefully reviewed each account with the commission. As of Apr. 30 the general fund was lower than had been anticipated because of late collections were lower. The fire fund was a deficit of $6,083, of which $1,500 is being reimbursed from the state with special funding from the Department of Natural Resources. Root pointed out that two payments from the township are due, which will most likely wipe out the deficit.

The only other fund in red ink is state highway repair, which is $963 down. This can be regained in future tax money from the state providing no expenditures are credited to it.

Otherwise, all the funds are above water, low but making it and keeping current.

The general fund, however, which shows a balance of $22,156 as of Apr. 30, had the sum of $22,616.63 transferred to it.

During Friday's meeting, the accountants described the manual they have prepared for the village's clerk. It is solely designed for Plymouth and is the property of the village.

Miller jokingly asked if the village could sell copies to other municipalities and the answer was it was for Plymouth and not copyrighted at the moment.

The accountants said that the village must come up with a plan to pay legal fees for Robert A. McKown, former village solicitor, and to retire, Sanders & Dempsey, Cleveland attorneys, for work done with the sewer construction lawsuit. Some $28,000 is owed McKown and $18,100 to the Cleveland attorney.

They also said the council should make a comprehensive plan of capital improvements which are needed so they can be budgeted in the future.

Once these are done, Roll said, perhaps the commission can disband but not before.

The commission approved the bill of $8,348.59 for the Cleveland accountants, which is being forwarded to the State of Ohio for payment under the house bill the mayor undertook the commission.

Five items were listed for their month's work, namely monitoring of the actual monthly financial activity of the village in comparison with the plan they had worked out for the future; training the new village clerk; preparing the ordinance; preparing the manual to assist the present clerk and future clerks as to procedures in their work; and preparing the financial history information necessary for the Farmers Home administration loan, which the village is asking to complete the necessary funding for the Willard-Plymouth water line.

During the month they spent 121 hours plus their travel time, administrative time and meals, and they lowered their estimate for meals which they take at Hartenstein's. They listed $6,450, which is less than the $7,400 they had estimated, because Plymouth does not offer much of a variety of restaurants.

Power rates to rise, council is informed

Electric users can expect a rate increase, village council learned Thursday night.

Mayor Eric J. Akers said he was informed the Ohio Power Co. has applied to the Federal Power Commission for a 10 per cent increase for this year and two per cent each year after 1981.

The council reluctantly agreed to allow the mayor to accede to Ohio Power's "letter of intent", but is asking that the effective date be changed from May 1 to July 1 to allow the council to adjust the village's rates.

Plymouth is one of 13 municipalities, including Shiloh and Greenview, which buy their electricity from Ohio Power Co.

Twice in the last 10 years the village joined the others in lawsuits to fight raises granted the power company and each time was successful, for which refunds were made to each municipality when the rate was lowered by the Commission.

The communities, Akers said, had a meeting to agree that this time around they would not protest the rate increase.

Miss McPherson bride here

The hospital beat

Miss Pamela K. McPherson was married May 16 in Plymouth United Methodist church to Edward Windmiller, Harrisonburg, Va., in a double ring ceremony performed by the minister, the Rev. William Carter.

The bride's great-aunt, Mrs. Willard Ross, Sr., Shelby, was organist.

Daughter of the Dale McPhersons, Ashland, formerly of Plymouth, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of imported Chantilly lace over bridal satin with a full skirt extending into a train. The long sleeves ended in points over the wrists. A fingertip veil of illusion fell from a matching headpiece of lace and tulle. The gown was worn by her mother, nee Marilyn Cheesman, daughter of the George W. Cheesmans, Plymouth, when she was married. She carried ivory and white carnations and roses with dogwood and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride's sister, Debra, was maid of honor. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Craig McPherson, and the Misses Cheryl Austin and Beth Kraft were bridesmaids. Her niece, Kelly McPherson, was flower girl.

The bridal party wore seafair crepe-backed satin of floor length with matching chiffon cape, styled with high waist supported by spaghetti straps. Each carried orange dahlias and apricot roses with lilies-of-the-valley. The flower girl was attired in a floor length gown of white with apricot rosebuds styled with ruffled collar. It was made by her paternal grandmother. She carried an apricot basket of ivory and white carnations and roses with dogwood and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bridegroom's brother, Roland, was best man. The bride's brother, Craig, and Douglas Watts and Mark Kollman ushered. Jason Bond, the bride's nephew, was ring bearer. Mrs. McPherson watched from the front pew in a full length knit in a maise hue with four ivory carnations and stephanotis tied with apricot ribbon.

Mrs. Windmiller chose a floor length knit of paprika color with Empire bodice and matching apple blossom cape. She wore an orchid. A reception took place in the church rooms.

After attending school here, the bride entered

Ashland High school upon the transfer of her father there. She was graduated in 1979 and is now a secretary in Eastern Mennonite college in Harrisonburg. The bridegroom, son of the Roland Windmillers, Harrisonburg, formerly of Willard, was graduated at Willard in 1979. He is studying chemistry and pre-dental preparation in James Madison university in Harrisonburg. The bride's younger brother, Steven, was acolyte. Her paternal grandparents, the Carl McPhersons, Norwalk, and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Cheesman, Shelby, were honored guests. So were the bridegroom's grandparents, the Donald Riegler, Coshocton, and Mrs. Mary I. Windmiller, Harrisonburg, and his aunt, Miss Helen Windmiller, Columbus.

Mrs. Ivan Hawk was admitted to Willard Area hospital Thursday and released Saturday.

John Lucas was taken from the hospital to his home Thursday by the Plymouth ambulance service.

Harold Shaffer was released Friday and Theresa Tash Saturday.

Mrs. Glenn Dick was admitted Sunday.

Help keep Red Cross ready.

Three movies set at library

Three children's movies will be shown in Plymouth Branch library Tuesday at 10 a. m.

"The Saga of Windwagon Smith" shows how Capt. Windwagon Smith convinced the citizens of a Kansas town that it was cheaper to ship cargo by prairie schooner than by horse-drawn wagon.

The other animals make fun of Elmer's long nose until a raging fire makes him a hero in "Elmer Elephant."

"Frederick" is an animated fable about a field mouse who neglects food-gathering to spend his time storing up sunny memories against the coming winter days.

Admission to the film program is free. The branch library is at 21 West Broadway.

Library records gift

Memorial donations honoring Mrs. Harry W. Shutt and James H. Cashman have been given to the Plymouth branch of Mansfield-Richland County Public Library by Mrs. Ray A. Dinger and Mrs. Audrey Koomar Hughes of Rocky River.

French've got another name for dandelions in salad

By AUNT LIZ
Say what you will about those pesky little yellow flowers that have popped up in your yard, I think they are pretty.

This just may be because we are so blessed with so many, but it is almost like a beautiful yellow carpet.

Those little spring flowers are very useful too.

Some have the pure ability to make tasty wine from them. I tried it once. It took a whole Saturday afternoon of crawling on my hands and knees in our back yard gathering up the blossoms. After about three weeks, the kitchen reeked from my prize mixture, and out it had to go.

Just once have I tasted dandelion wine, homemade, and it was delicious. As far as I know it is not made commercially, so if you want a nip, you have to hunt down a good winemaker.

For those who are not wine drinkers, the dandelions need not go to waste nor be dug up. The greens make a lovely, wholesome dish.

Easy, too, once you get them all picked, which is the real back-breaking job. Wash them nicely, and chop, and cook in boiling water until you think they are done. Drain them well, add crisply fried bacon with a little bit of the drippings. Then add a little grated onion and a dash of lemon juice.

That is one cheap dish because maybe three slices of bacon, which is the most costly part of it all, will do the trick.

Another good, cheap recipe that we just found involves a can or two, depending on how many you are cooking for, of kidney beans. Wait for them to be on sale, which they are very frequently.

This is for a single recipe. Start with a pound can of beans, although the best I could find was 15½ ounces and I figured a half an ounce wouldn't change the course of the world. Drain them well. In a little bowl mix up a clove of finely minced garlic, one half teaspoon of oregano, two minced green onions, three dashes of Tabasco, about one and a half table-spoons of vinegar (and can you believe we have a jug of homemade vinegar which is a real prize from a kind friend; you cannot buy anything like it for flavor), a little salt and the juice of a half of lemon (or commercial lemon juice, which you must guess at). Mix up, then add either a nugget of fresh ginger or a half teaspoon of powdered ginger and a half cup of raspberry jelly.

This makes something like a sweet and sour sauce. Add the beans, cover well and refrigerate overnight. Serve at room temperature.

This recipe, which I think is great, comes from one of our favorite cookbooks which I once borrowed from the library, then spent two years trying to buy it. By then it was out of print. It was written by two gals in San Francisco and is called "The Brunch Cookbook". They call this recipe Georgian Marinated Beans, and they mean that part of Russia called Georgia, and not our lovely southern state.

Maybe the Russians are really good for something and maybe they ought to stick to their kitchens and dream up more tasty recipes like this one.

All about Plymouth

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hanline were Sunday dinner guests of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ayers, Bellevue.

Mrs. Nevin Border and Mrs. Thomas DeWitt attended an oriental flower arranging class at Kingwood Center, Mansfield, May 13.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Miller will be hosts Sunday afternoon at a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, who were married May 3 in Tulsa, Okla., after they received their degrees from Oral Roberts university there.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cornell, Lake Worth, Fla., who came for her mother's funeral, are staying this week with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cornell.

Patricia Mack, working toward a master's degree in English at Bowling Green State university, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mack. Mr. Mack's nephew, Mark, son of the Clarence Macks, Waukesha, Wis., visited them last week.

Plymouth FFA heard the business mathematics teacher, Miss Sondra Herren, Apr. 28.

Miss Herren was in FFA for three years. She was the vice-president of her chapter for a year. She also received the state farmer and star chapter farmer awards. At that time she was the first girl in the school district to be in FFA. Miss Herren spoke about leadership and chapter enthusiasm.

Plymouth chapter recognized two chapter members, Rick Echelbarger for receiving second in the state with his treasurer's books and Jerry Miller for receiving his state degree.

You'd be surprised what you can pick up shoplifting.
