

The police levy

Once again, without much fanfare, and with no sign of any vigorous support by the village council, electors of Plymouth face a three mill operating levy specifically earmarked for payment of police expenses.

The levy has been defeated before. One of the many reasons why it was defeated, we have painstakingly pointed out, is that electors can hardly be expected to cotton to a proposal that their representatives don't strongly believe in.

There are five days remaining before the primary election. The village council may get into gear and ring a lot of doorbells to promote the levy. The village fiscal planning commission has been urged by the state-appointed overseer of village funds to work for its passage.

So far there has been no stirring, not a sign that anybody cares.

Neither are the police doing much to encourage citizens to support their work.

Those who live and work in this town are carrying the burden for the police department as it is. In addition to the village operating levy of two mills that is to expire in December, and to the built-in levy within the 10-mill limitation, those who live and work here are required to pay an income tax of one per cent that, for the most part, funds police protection.

To expect these people to pay more, for no more police protection than we have now, will be more than they are willing to hold still for.

We're going to vote against the levy, for one reason: if the mayor and the village council want a levy, let them get out and electioneer for it. That's how we learned the American way!

Christie Lane seeks funds

At a time when everybody, rich and poor alike, finds it difficult to pay additional taxes, it is significant that sensible people recommend the public increase its support of some governmental responsibilities.

We do so with some reluctance, this time around, only because there are still a good many out of work in Huron county, and with darn poor chances of being called back, for the time being, at least.

Nevertheless, we believe the Christie Lane school levy, which amounts to 1.5 mills of fresh taxation, ought to be approved.

What are the facts?

They are simply stated. Rising costs have eaten into what surplus the school could accumulate and, what's more, the state has cut the amount of its support of the mental retardation program.

What the General Assembly has said, in effect is "Take care of thine own".

Christie Lane's books are open to inspection by anybody. What they show is that a total of $510,000 will be spent this year. Revenues are projected at $402,000, in round figures. The state will contribute $250,000. The present levy in force will raise another $150,000. The proposed levy will produce another $375,000.

What's the money spent for? It goes to educate, to train, to try to make self-sufficient, even adults. None has an IQ beyond 55. Costs of training these people are more than double what they are for a normal person in the public schools.

We urge all Huron countyans to support the Christie Lane levy.

Snags develop in approval of $300,000 grant

Approval of the $300,000 grant from the Housing and Urban Development administration had been expected by Mayor Eric J. Akers on May 15.

The grant interlocks with the loan of $250,000 from the Farmers Home administration, which has not yet been approved.

FmHA wants clarification of several items in the contract Plymouth has signed with Willard for the water line. The mayor also said that easements must be obtained before FmHA will approve the loan. For the most part the easements involve public property, mainly with the Department of Transportation.

The main part of the water line will border Route 598 and 61.

Even though the bids are advertised to be submitted by June 9, this will not cause a hardship because there is a 60-day period before they are either awarded or rejected and it is believed that the problem can be solved within that time limit.

Garage sales are for young!

By AUNT LIZ
Everyone has been saying for weeks there may be one more small snow. In fact a real blizzard was forecast for April by some almanac. This fortunately did not happen because most everyone had his snow tires off.
There is no danger from now on in.
The garage sales are starting. The gals who do them simply understand what the weather will do and plan it that way.

They are great and a boon to young mothers with growing kids who change sizes overnight. One gal can unload one item for another rather than just giving it away and a neighbor can grab a real bargain. They are really for young families, but I have indulged in them and got some really nice things for our grandchildren. Some people think perhaps they can pick up a good antique, but everyone is too smart today to put anything good like that out. Just look for the practical things.

It was our daughter-in-law who snagged the best bargain I have ever heard of. It was an artificial Christmas tree that must sell for about $100. It is a big bushy job and really looks great. Guess what? Fifty cents. Some family was moving to California and it was selling everything out of its house so it wouldn't have to pay for shipping. Our kids indulge in garage sales too, but not that tree, I hope.

What is really nice about most garage sales is that several families go together. No way could one family have that much to sell.
It has just occurred to me that they are kind of missing the boat. They are all in together to make something, so why not throw in a little lunch? They can all pitch in to buy the stuff, and this will really attract all sorts of people. A lot will be retired people who will be urged on with a nice lunch and perhaps buy a thing or two.
The lunch can be cheap and easy. Buy up some chicken and make it into chicken salad. Add a slice or two of tomato to the plate and a few slices of hardboiled eggs, and it is a good filling lunch.

This is what I ate a few weeks ago at a local country club, and it was more than filling. Granted, they did serve a really rich beef broth loaded with noodles before. But it is a good idea.
Somehow the nice young mothers who are doing the garage sales have got to eventually get home and do a dinner for their family. There are all sorts of easy ways out, baked beans and wieners in a crock pot, a quick steak under the broiler, they can even stoop to soup and a tasty sandwich, which is not bad at all.

But, and there is always a big but to everything, this can be a really nice and different dinner and can be made ahead.
All you have to do when you get home is heat it up. please see page 7

James C. Miller wed to ORU classmate

Ann Elizabeth Neville and James Cooper Miller were married May 9 at 7:30 p.m. in Kennedy chapel of Oral Roberts university, Tulsa, Okla., after receiving their degrees from the university earlier in the day.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Neville, Jr., Birmingham, Ala. He is the younger son of

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Miller, Plymouth East road. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert J. Stamps.

Arrangements of roses, carnations, daisies and baby's breath with ivy decorated the altar, which was lighted by large candles. Hurricane lamps marked each pew.

Ferrel Dixon played organ selections, which included the bridal march, and "All Hail the Power of Jesus's Name". He accompanied Todd Pettygrove, who sang, "As for Me and My House" and also when he was joined by Patti Fisk to sing "Woman."

Elizabeth Lomax was flautist and Claude Hazel guitarist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was designed with a high lace band around the neck that extended into a lace yoke. The long sleeves were of the same lace, ending in a wide cuff. The full skirt was styled with panels of lace down each side and the hem. The back of the gown trailed into a train.

Her veil fell down her back in lace edged tiers from a lace headband.

She carried a nosegay of pink and white roses, carnations and daisies with touches of yellow.

A sister, Susan, Birmingham, Ala., was her maid of honor.

Another sister, Nancy, also of Birmingham, the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Larry Taylor, and Tamara Skarda, Tulsa, Okla., were bridesmaids.

Their battiste gowns were pink with a print of tiny blue and white flowers.

The low round necklines were styled with wide ruffles that fell to the tops of the arms. The waistlines were marked with pink satin ribbon that also wrapped around the top of a wide ruffle at the bottom of the skirts.

They carried long stemmed pink roses.

Robert Patrick, Pison, Ala., was the best man. Dr. W. Martin Miller, the bridegroom's brother, Kenton; Larry Taylor, his brother-in-law, and Robert Petrocelli, Brooklyn, N. Y., completed the bridegroom party.

Save not, have not.

You cannot spend tomorrow what you have not saved today. So the wise save for tomorrow by joining the Payroll Savings Plan today.

Because mighty U.S. Savings Bonds from little paycheck allotments grow. And a Bond every payday could keep your doctor-to-be away. At medical school. Or take you away. On vacation. So do put off for tomorrow what you can save today. Join the Payroll Savings Plan. For, remember, a rolling Bond gathers no moss. But it does gather interest. Which is why a Bond in time saves.
