

Village buys police car

A 1978 Plymouth has been purchased by the Plymouth police department from the state highway patrol. It will need some renovations and the cost to the village is $1,488 plus the repairs.

Police Chief David Gibson strongly urged the council to appropriate another $1,500 so a second car can be purchased and more or less put on "dry ice" until needed.

He told the council Thursday that because of budget cuts by the state, the OSP cars are not being taken out of use so readily as before, and that there is not too much choice for all the communities wanting them.

It has been several years since the village has purchased the used cruisers. To date three have been purchased. One was taken out of commission and is used by the village administrator. One is completely disabled and will be sold for scrap. The present one in use is on its last legs and will be used for parts on the newest purchase is ready for the road.

The purchase of a second used cruiser is provided for in the revised appropriations of the general fund, which is in the amount of $10,000. Gibson's reasoning is that this is a good economic move for the village, rather than purchase a new cruiser, which would cost about $3,000.

Everybody knows that Penny Pritchard, daughter of the Charles E. Pritchards, 150 West Broadway, is no dummy; she has consistently ranked on the honor roll of the Class of 1981, Plymouth High school, and she made 4.0 a couple of times.

She played the Ohio Lottery on June 6. Remembering that she was graduated on May 31, she chose the numbers 531. May being the fifth month. And she boxed them.

Result: $118 richer.

Shortage found in activity fund at Shiloh school

A reconciliation of school district records with bank statements for the Shiloh school student activity funds in the Plymouth Local School district showed a $131.12 cash shortage as of Dec. 31, 1980, State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's office reports.

The Plymouth Local School district board of education requested Ferguson's office to conduct an audit of the Shiloh school student activity funds for the period June 1, 1980 through Dec. 31, 1980.

State examiners audited district records with the school district treasurer's office, which compared the school's bank account balance, as recorded on school district records, with the bank's statement of Dec. 31, 1980. In addition, state examiners compared the school's cash receipts, as recorded in the clerk-custodian's receipts ledger for June 1, 1980 through December 31, 1980, to the deposits shown on the bank statements.

The foregoing procedure disclosed several deposits shown by the bank statements were less than the cash receipts recorded in the school's accounting records," state examiners said.

A cash shortage of $131.12 existed on Dec. 31, 1980, according to examiners.

Edward Kinsel served as clerk-custodian of the Shiloh school student activity fund as part of his duties as principal, according to examiners, and Jennifer Coakley served as administrative officer for the student activity funds as part of her duties as Shiloh's secretary. Kinsel was responsible for keeping an account of all student activity funds and for the recording and depositing of receipts, and the monthly and annual bank reconciliations, examiners said.

A $131.12 finding for recovery was issued against Kinsel and Coakley, in favor of the Shiloh school student activity funds.

State examiners recommended that all pay in records should be completely filled out by the proper individual prior to the clerk-custodian receiving any moneys; a duplicate deposit slip should be attached to each pay in order; pay in orders should cover only one purpose; and that at the end of each month, the bank statement should be reconciled with the

$150,000 loan approved

A $150,000 loan by the Ohio Water Development authority has been approved, according to Eric J. Akers says.

The 20-year loan will cost 10.71 per cent in interest over the period.

Now that the village has the financing to construct the water line from Willard to Plymouth, the low bid can formally be accepted.

The mayor is not sure just when formal action will be taken by the council, either at the regular meeting Thursday or during a special meeting before then.

Greater freedom and fewer restrictions won out over cheaper financing during a special emergency session of village council June 10.

By unanimous vote, the council opted to finance the installation of an eight-inch water service from Willard with the Ohio Water Development authority at an interest rate of 10.71 per cent, as compared to five per cent interest over 20 years with Farmers Home administration.

Thomas Jedlinki, engineer representing Lester Pogonyer & Associates, consulting engineers, told the council FMHA will probably be adamant on the matter of ownership of the water line (Plymouth has contracted with Willard to surrender title to the line) and return to the Willard water plant in return for $100,000 of credit and payment of the interest thereon) and would impose other restrictions on Plymouth's freedom to maneuver. These could include, he said, installation of the water service on private land, which would complicate the obtaining of easements; an interest rate higher than five per cent (the rate will be governed by the bond market at the time of financing); a method of handling the funds that may prove to be onerous to the village; please see page 4

No action . . . on sub-division ordinance, power rate increase

No action was taken Thursday night to pass a revised sub-division ordinance which will pave the way for a local contractor to begin a six house addition to Brooks court.

Bill Collins convinced the Village Planning commission that sidewalks are not needed.

Rather than amend the lengthy ordinance, which was passed in 1970, Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach is proposing a complete new ordinance with few changes.

It was passed on its first reading Thursday night, but Brumbach said more changes are needed. These will be ready for the next council meeting.

Village Solicitor Richard Wolfe suggested that he should wait with the passage of the ordinance in view of the fact that the ordinances are being codified and it might mean passing it twice.

The history of that ordinance is interesting and has never been detailed before.

A group, some of whom were serving on the council, had entered into a real estate enterprise and wanted to stop another allotment from developing. Somehow a copy of Willard's sub-division ordinance was obtained. It spelled everything out harshly. A sub-division subsequently developed with curbs and sidewalks. The ordinance was passed as an emergency measure during one meeting.

It had one provision, that no utility services would be provided outside the corporate limits, which one member of the council had for years tried to get across.

Brumbach's one complaint about the ordinance is that the clerk at the time simply filed it in the ordinance book and failed to change the wording from "the City of Willard" to "the Village of Plymouth". Ed. note: when the ordinance was published as required by law, The Advertiser carefully changed the wording, thinking the clerk had also done so.)

No decision was reached during Thursday's council meeting as to what the electric rate increase will be.

Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach says, "Do it all in one clip." This means about a 20 per cent raise, which he maintains will take care of the Ohio Power rate increase and allow money to be channeled into the electrical fund reserve monthly.

He argued that increasing the rates in several steps will cost the village several hundred dollars to have the billing machine reprogrammed plus the time involved, which is about three weeks. This could throw off the village's billing system completely for for several months.

Councilman Dean A. Cline suggested a 13 to 14 per cent increase at the outset.

Administrator James C. Root says it should be five and a half cents a kilowatt, which would be 10 per cent at the beginning, then raised to 14 per cent.

Except for Cline, the council seemed reluctant to act, although Councilman Ervin Howard seemed to favor Root's suggestion.

The whole matter is to be given to the service committee, which includes Councilman G. Thomas Moore, who was not present. The committee is to come up with a recommendation at the June 25 meeting.

The mayor informed the council that an examination of the village records has begun and it will encompass the period of Jan. 1, 1980 through May, 1981.

The period of May, 1977, when the last audit was completed, through Dec. 31, 1979, is not to be included. He had been informed that the period was inauditable.

Meanwhile, that period of the village's bookkeeping has been completely straightened out. At the beginning of 1980, the village hired an accountant from Norwalk, who worked for several months but could not do the work apparently.

After that the mayor applied to the state for assistance, for which Plymouth was eligible under a state bill that had been designed to help Cleveland.

The state assigned the accounting firm of Ernst & Whinney, Cleveland, to work out the financial problems.

The mayor has no inkling of why the state auditor's office is starting as of Jan. 1, 1980.

The council has proposed that multiple dwellings on one water meter be corrected with the next water billing. Howard proposed it and Brumbach said he was sorry about it all, but the village does need the money.

What has been a sore spot with two property owners is that their renters agreed to pay the quarterly water and sewer charges at the minimum rate and that they agreed to pay any overages.

The William C. Enderbys, who have a four apartment complex, and W. Roger Ross, who have about 35 trailer spaces, have been paying the complete water and sewer bills, even though the minimum payments have been made monthly. The Enderbys renters have paid for 2,000 gallons of water each quarter. Ross is paying the minimum for his trailer spaces, but they have each been billed for the full amount at the quarterly billing. They maintain that each minimum payment made monthly should be deducted from the overage.

Root says there are three other property owners in the same situation who have not come forth.

The present ordinance is written in such a way that there can be two interpretations. What had been intended was a single water meter was allowed to exist where the present sewer rates went into effect was that the minimum water usage would be deducted from the property owner's bill, and that the renters would only pay what was used over the minimum.

This problem has been turned over to the service committee for further study.

Councilman James Holloway asked about changing the parking pattern in the Square. He would like it to be angle parking in the south side of the Square. This had existed until the Department of Transportation improved Route 603 to the middle of the Square. It insisted that parallel parking be instituted. At the time, the council was up in arms because of the lost parking spaces, but could not do anything about it.

Brumbach, who was a councilman at the time, said Thursday he was sure the department has completely forgotten Plymouth and it can do what it wants.

Howard suggested the west side of the Square, which would allow more room so that there could be parking in the center of that area.

Root suggested to the council that all the money in the income tax fund not tapped for the police department be used to improve Beaman street, which he estimates will cost about $18,000. The village has about $1,000 left in Norwalk from the additional $5 fee Huron county residents pay.

This will only allow for a little patching here and there, he said.

A simple misunderstanding of what the term "bi-monthly" means has caused a delay in the ordinance which Richard P. Wolfe, village solicitor, was asked to write.

The council was in agreement that water meter readings would be made every two months rather than quarterly or every three months, with the resulting sewer charges.

The solicitor misunderstood and thought the council meant that all the utilities would be billed every two months rather than monthly. The ordinance will be ready for the next council meeting.

$100,000 suit dismissed

Suit of Michael S. Hicks, Loria L. Hicks and Dianora, Tina D. Hicks, the last-named a three-month old child, 213 Plymouth street, against Randy L. Kennard, 99 Mulberry street, seeking damages of $100,000, has been dismissed with prejudice at the court of common pleas at Norwalk says.

About 30 homes reported basement flooding after Saturday's downpour.

Official records in Huron county show 1.81 inches of rain came down. Mansfield reported four inches.

Most of the flooding here was in low areas abutting the Huron river, notably in Trux street. Homeholders on both sides of the river reported water in their basements.

There was some flooding in West Broadway. Councilman D. Douglas Brumbach's residence was swash after a part of the foundation gave way.

For a time, the freshet in Plymouth Springmill road covered the bridge. High water reached the bridge level East Main street and Trux street.

There was some flooding to properties and basements in the Plymouth street-West High street-Railroad street.

Strohm asks for transfer of cafe permits

Application for transfer of D-1, D-2 and D-3 liquor permits was filed June 8 by Forrest (Pete) Strohm, doing business as Weber's Cafe, 16 East Main street. The license are in the name of David L. George. Strohm took over the ownership of the business from his brother, Orlo J., three weeks ago.

High water floods homes

Some basements in Willow drive were said to have water in them.

Weber filed was awash and PML players and parents were there Monday night said the odor of raw sewage was rife.

Fire guts vacant house in Fenner road

A fire early Thursday morning completely destroyed an uninhabited house in Fenner road.

The flames were spotted by a police patrol officer from Route 224 who alerted the Plymouth fire department.

The house was owned by the Finnegan family.

The blaze and its origin are still under investigation.

Finance picture rosier?

Plymouth's financial picture seems to get better each day.

The clerk's report for May shows only two funds in a deficit.

The street fund in the red by $207.74 and the state highway fund by $649.79.

Both should be in the black when Huron and Richland county forward the village's share of the motor vehicle tax, which the state auditor will check in the counties within the last two weeks.

Four funds received a windfall when Mayor Eric J. Akers proposed an additional appropriation order of $100,000 richer with that sum earmarked for the administrative part of the fund. With the clerk's May figures, this then brings that fund to a total of $27,533.68.

Which chicken best raised on ground or otherwise?

By AUNT LIZ
We have been having a weighty discussion in our house over the best kind of a chicken to eat.

How one can ask that happy butcher what the chicken's home upbringing is a kind of beyond me. One member of our family contends that the best tasting chicken, and it includes turkeys too (we did not get to ducks and geese, but I would guess they would be the same) is one that has been allowed the freedom of running hither and yon on good solid ground.

This is versus growing up in a wire cage. The companies that supply the large supermarkets with their chicks certainly have to raise them this way, or they would spend all their time chasing them around to catch.

Does this mean that when we buy one, it is not the best? Being rather city bred, I simply could not tell the difference. Chicken is chicken and to me little taste like chicken.

It is a versatile little animal which you can convert into the most tasty dishes, and economical too.

This whole discussion really started over an article we had read about how economical chicken wings are.

I say they are not because they are too meager of meat. He says if you have a well raised chicken, the wings are meaty.

I will stick to breasts. Over the years I found they were the most economical part to buy. Lots of meat right down to the bone so there is hardly a bunch of bones to dispose of which are not too meaty.

Maybe I am not a good housewife and I must admit that after all these years am still learning the tricks of trying to clean a house.

Still chicken dishes can be very attractive to serve and that is really part of eating. This recipe is plain colorful and easy and for the most part you should have about everything on your shelves which is needed.

For four, start with four breast halves. Dredge them in a mixture of one quarter of a cup of flour mixed with a teaspoon of salt (this can easily be left out, use pepper instead, which is better for you), a half teaspoon of thyme and a quarter of a teaspoon of paprika.

When nicely coated, brown them until they are beautiful in a third cup of oil in a skillet.

Remove the chicken, and saute a chopped medium size onion and a chopped green pepper. When the onion is softish, add a 28 oz. can of whole tomatoes, a fourth of a teaspoon of hot pepper sauce and a crumbled bay leaf.

Cover and simmer for a little less than a half hour, then add a cup of chopped parsley and the chicken. It should be ready in another half hour unless it is a really old tough bird.
It can either be served on top of rice or wide noodles.

The fire department will benefit with an additional $5,000 for its capital outlay fund. This will bring that fund up to $5,233.29.

The cemetery is receiving $1,400 and the income tax department the sum of $1,500 for capital outlay. That fund will now have $5,746.98.

The income tax department, which had a balance of $18,191.04 at the end of May, will be richer by $1,500, earmarked for capital outlay.

The park shows a balance of $375.81 and since it is the beginning of the season for reservations, that fund should be able to hold its own.

The operating and maintenance fund of the ambulance service stands at $3,016.37, with $7,833.39 in its reserve fund.

The electric fund has a balance of $16,155.37 with provision of an Ohio Power bill plus monthly operating expenses of $25,819.66 deducted from receipts of $41,975.03.

Its reserve fund stands constant at $38,991. The sewer operating and maintenance fund has $11,105.70 and $38,209 in its reserve fund.

The water fund is low with $6,428.30 in operation and maintenance and $2,908.92 in the reserve fund.

passing of extra costs, such as those of bonding counsel, on to the village; time lapse in finding, which could jeopardize the HUD grant.

All councilmen save D. Douglas Brumbach agreed that a special type of plastic pipe will be satisfactory.

Brumbach argued strongly for ductile steel pipe. Brumbach criticized the performance of FmHA in the sanitary sewer program. He said FmHA compelled the village to accept the bid of Quentin Alderman & Co., Flatwood, Ky., whereas that of R. L. Edgington, New London, would have afforded Plymouth an opportunity to work with a tried, local contractor, and that FmHA set the rate the village must charge for sewer service.
