

Is ignorance an excuse?

We do not profess to clairvoyance. But there is one statement about the big parade in Plymouth come Saturday that we do not fear will or can be contradicted.

It is that the proper and lawful respect due the flag will not, repeat not, be shown.

A veteran who participated in a color guard during the parade at the Shiloh ox roast Saturday said this: "When we marched down that street with the colors, I didn't see more than five persons who stood at attention with the right hand over the heart until the colors passed, as required by law."

Consider that attendance during the parade was somewhere over 4,000 persons, adults and children, and the crime — make no mistake about it, it is a magnified.

We made a survey of our own. We watched carefully only a segment of the throng that attended the parade. In it were some public office holders, past and present; some teachers, some civil servants and a number of honorably discharged veterans. This last lot particularly ought to know better.

Know better about what?

Know better about the obseisance due the flag.

It derives from a joint resolution of the Congress during June, 1941. The nation was in peril. Before the year was out, Japan attacked at Pearl Harbor and the United States was plunged into war.

What the resolution says, in effect, is this:

The colors of the United States shall consist of its flag bordered with gold braid. The colors may be displayed from a staff, in which case the pole must be surmounted by a golden eagle. All persons resident in the United States, whether citizen or alien, are required to rise to attention and place the right hand over the heart until the colors have passed or been retired. The rule of thumb is that the stance shall be taken when the colors approach within five paces and it shall be maintained until the colors have passed by at least five paces.

It is but a simple ritual, honored more in the breach than otherwise. This is a great pity.

And it has a corollary. When the national anthem is played, it is the duty of the resident of the United States, whether citizen or alien, to rise to attention and place the right hand over the heart.

Count the number of spectators at a high school football or basketball game that you've seen performing correctly. No even those who ought to be expected to know better — the professional educators and those who manage and direct them, including elective personnel — do it.

Whose fault is it? Is it the fault of the service organizations that they do not organize instructional classes? Not really, although some of them have certainly been lethargic.

Is ignorance an excuse?

Assuredly not, period.

What are we going to do about it? What should be done about it?

For our part, we will perform as the law requires, invariably, always, everywhere. We will take care to note who doesn't perform. If he is a public official, he won't get our vote next time around. If he's a public employee, we'll complain to his superiors, in writing. And we'll strive to educate by example.

Will state audit end in release of fiscal oversight?

An audit by the examiner of the office of Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson may result in Plymouth being released into the community under state fiscal control.

Niles and two others, Niles and Norwood, are now undergoing such audit to determine if the state can, as of June 30, release its hold on municipal finances.

No state money has been paid to Plymouth to meet its obligations, but state funds of about $155,000 have been paid to Ernst & Whitney, Cleveland accountants, to oversee the village books and establish a modern system of record-keeping.

Niles became in 1980 the first community in the state to be put under Ohio fiscal control. Cleveland was the second. Plymouth was third, in 1981. There followed Norwood, Freeport, Ashtabula, Ironton, Lincoln Hts. and East Liverpool.

Cleveland has since overcome the prescriptions of state control.

Marvin takes post of trustee of cemetery

Cleland Marvin is the new trustee of Greenlaw cemetery, succeeding Emerson Shields, who resigned as of Jan. 1 because he is no longer living in Ohio.

July 23 upon its village council to complain of:

1. Barking dogs.

2. Domestic disturbances resulting in alleged threats to rape a young girl.

To the first complaint, Mayor Francis Gowitza said, "The present village laws don't comply with the Ohio Revised Code".

In addition to their barkings, the council was told, the dogs leave offal, particularly in the Prospect street area.

The mayor said he will take action when he learns from the solicitor what action he can take.

To the second complaint, Gowitza again said he'd have to take it up with the solicitor, the complainants having reported that telling it to the deputy sheriffs resulted in no action being taken.

Ralph Hawkins was named trustee of public affairs.

An area of 6,976 acres at the east edge of the village was rezoned to industrial.

A speed bump will be placed in Noble road to deter fast driving where there are children.

Maintaining a good image important for cook, too!

By AUNT LIZ
One thing is universal in this world.

Everyone of us wants to be loved and liked by everyone.

Maintaining a good image is not a new for. Years ago screen stars of the very rich and other famous counted newspaper columnists and radio commentators to say kind words about them.

Large industries all have a public relations department which certainly could be called "The Please Love Us Department".

The first and only job I ever had was just that. When someone loudly complained that if there were two telephones in one house in the city, such things they were unhappy about would never have happened, it was my job to cool them off.

I think if I had readily agreed with them, I would have been looking for a new job.

No one has ever objected to private people nor businesses spending their money for this sort of thing, but when something really public tries it, that is for the birds.

The United States Postal System has just forked out over a half million to find out why people hate it.

I could have told them for nothing, and maybe postage rates would not have zoomed up.

It is large and has problems that really cannot be helped. We all love our local ones. The people are nice and many, many times go out of their way to do favors over and above what they should be doing.

Many of the problems most of us have had over the years with mail are not local, but in the very large centers where it goes to be sorted.

Maybe it has gotten simply too big and it is not important that something mailed to a nearby town of maybe six miles away must go about 25 miles each way before it gets delivered.

One thing can be said. Things really don't get lost just a little misplaced and will surface a week later. That has happened to me. It can be irksome, especially when you have paid extra for special handling, but then every penny counts when special surveys are paid for to make something look good.

One thing I must say. Over the years very important things have been mailed, and they get where they are going, for which everyone should be grateful.

For the most part we seem to get are good recipe that most of our kids thought we were trying to

This came from a large family picnic in Topeka, in two days, with a note, "Sorry you were not here, but try this and pretend you were."

It is simple and probably one of those recipes that has been passed over the whole country because it is national and not regional.

Grease a square baking dish.

Mix in a bowl three fourths of a cup of flour, a fourth of sugar, a fourth of a teaspoon of baking powder, a dash of salt, a half cup of cooking oil, two beaten eggs, a half teaspoon of vanilla, a cup each of chopped nuts and dates.

Mix it with a sturdy wooden spoon. Bake at 350 for a little over a half hour.

It will keep nicely if properly wrapped, and they carry to school lunches.

4,000 strong!

Part of the throng estimated at slightly over 4,000 persons sat in bleachers erected in the south side of Main street at Shiloh.

'We want beef!'

Long lines - "one veteran said, "I gave up standing in line to be fed almost 40 years ago and I'll be damned if I'll do it again!" queued up before the beef sandwich station at Shiloh Saturday afternoon. A complete sellout was recorded before dusk.

Shiloh Firebelles, a silent but productive partner in staging the ox roast, found time to prepare a float that attracted considerable notice for its handiwork.

Bill Talbert knows how to help during a disaster.

Do you?

Bill is an auto mechanic. He's also a Red Cross Disaster service volunteer.

Last year, Red Cross volunteers, like Bill, responded to over 40,000 disaster situations requiring on-the-scene assistance. More than 136,000 families were helped.

"Fortunately floods, hurricanes and tornadoes don't happen every day, but fires do," warns Bill. "And for a burned-out family that's a major disaster. We can help these people obtain the things they'll need to resume normal living."

Red Cross emergency disaster relief provides everything from food, clothing and a place to stay to first aid, counseling and communications.

Bravos for Aunt Ethel.

I was born in a tough little town where the people worked hard to eke out a living. My family lived in a small house and a trip to the theater was a real treat. But the idea of having an easy life and I'm not really interested in working for the mill?" I was trying to explain to my father why I didn't want to leave home and get some money for acting school in New York.

"Listen, Pop, it's what I want to do. I know I can be good at it and I'm more easily interested in working for the mill?" I was trying to explain to my father why I didn't want to leave home and get some money for acting school in New York.

I'd been bitten by the acting bug in high school and was determined to act and to do it well.

My father shook his head and explained in a pained voice, "Now look, son, if you wanted to be a doctor or maybe a lawyer, I could see digging up every cent I could lay my hands on to help you through school and all, but an actor?"

He was a man of simple understanding and continued, "It's not a life for a grown man. Playing male, believe me, all your life, I wish you'd think about it some more."

Aunt Ethel seemed to be the only one in the family with any interest in the theater at all. She'd been the star of all the amateur plays and was working in the local playhouse that had just closed for lack of interest.

She came to see me in every play at school and was very encouraging.

"Tell you what, Jim," she said, "I've got the perfect job for you. You work here I've got a young girl and I've got lots of Savings Bonds put aside. Now I'll make you a loan to go to New York and get some training. I know you've got more talent than almost anyone I've ever seen."

I could hardly believe such a generous offer. "Well, the people around here don't agree with that. Besides, I couldn't take all your savings on that kind of gamble."

She shook her head and said, "You won't fail. And when you're successful, you'll pay me back in full." Then she smiled. "Maybe we can give me a shout now to one of your big hits - as a bonus."

After a lot of arguing I finally agreed and spent some hard years in New York before I got lucky.

At last I really did make it. Back in the right play, in the right part at the right time, and half of a sudden I was on my way. All the hard work began to pay off. And I paid off Aunt Ethel.

But that was just money. I wanted to give her that bonus, so I had her flown into New York for a small part in my next play.

Last night we opened to rave reviews. Aunt Ethel still has the magic. She made that tiny little part stand out and took her bows to thunderous applause.

"I wish you'd think about it some more," she sobbed as we sat backstage after the final curtain.

Knowing Aunt Ethel, she probably meant it.
