

Speak NOW!

Terms of the mayor, the clerk-treasurer and two councilmen will expire Dec. 31.

A general election will be conducted Nov. 8 to choose their successors.

The word is used advisedly. He who is reelected is, in fact, his own successor.

This town has had some stout political controversies over the past 35 or 40 years. Some of them developed into rancor, dividing friend from friend and, in at least one case, brother from sister. It is to be hoped that this sort of thing can be avoided this year.

Which is not to say that we hope that vigorous and contentious discussion of what are perceived to be the issues will be stifled. Far from it. Certainly, it makes good copy, and folks are anxious to read it. Put that aside. What is important is that, as Mr. Jefferson intended, citizens must be encouraged to expose their views, to debate their differences, to capsulize the issues and to resolve them in the secrecy of the voting booth.

Time was, in slightly larger communities, when the two principal political parties organized a village caucus. Republicans chose candidates calculated by them to appeal to the majority of the voters. Democrats did likewise. In some towns, it worked well. In others, it did not, largely because there were, and there are, many voters who cannot bring themselves to vote for one of the opposite political party regardless of his qualifications.

And qualifications is the name of the game in village affairs.

It is our earnest prayer that each of the incumbents who seeks reelection will be opposed. Not because we hope he'll be defeated. Matter of fact, we can't think of any incumbent, as of now, who deserves to be defeated.

It is that we think it is time, it is long past time, that the course of the village in the remainder of the century should be discussed and debated. There occurred Monday night what may have been the first step in doing so. To attract industry here is a commendable enterprise, and we shall support it to the limits of our strength.

But there are other matters to discuss.

Among these are how shall the quality of life in this town be assured, not to say improved, by the conduct of village affairs, how shall the village's investment in an expensive commercial electric and water and sewer system be protected by insuring a profitable return on that investment, how shall the village conduct its affairs so that its best product, its young people, are encouraged to settle here when they've sown their wild oats, served their country, acquired their education, or whatever, so that we can profit by our investment in them, how shall the village render support to such industry as is in place so that it may compete favorably in the national and world marketplace and preserve the investment of time and effort put into it by so many of our fellow citizens.

It is meet that we should expect those who seek to be elected to address these matters, and others as well. For our part, we shall insist, to the point of provocation, if need be, that they be studied and discussed and presented as a platform, so that each voter may decide for himself whether that's how he wants to proceed.

These pages are open to any legitimate presentation of attitudes in respect to these concepts, or to others, by any person residing within the village. Of course, we shall naturally seek to determine if the presenter is a registered voter. Beyond that, which we will make clear, we shall leave to the voter to decide whether the proposals are worthy of support. And we shall not be backward about stating our own opinions thereon.

Ash Wednesday rites next week start of Lent

Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent, the 40 days preceding Easter, will be observed next week.

Roman Catholics are requested to fast for the whole day until after mass and blessing with ashes in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church at 7 p.m. Honey soup and home made bread will be served to the celebrant.

Methodists have no special service set for Wednesday.

Beginning Feb. 20, there will be successive Lenten services on Sunday evenings.

First service will be in the Plymouth church at 7:30 p.m.

Second service, and each alternate service, will take place in the Shiloh church, the exact to be determined later.

New patrol by sheriff praised

Efforts by Huron county's sheriff to make do with funds available without diminishing service were praised this week by Commissioner James R. Wetherhold.

"I am glad that the sheriff's department has been able to come up with not only one more night patrol for the rural areas, but at no increase in staff members," he said. "This is a great plus for Huron county. I wish to thank Sheriff Borgia and his officers for making this change to solve problem."

Physician coming

A Greenwich physician will open offices in Plymouth for the practice of pediatrics and general medicine at 10 East Main street, in premises formerly occupied by Eric J. Akers, attorney.

He is Avadut P. Dhungat, 13 Tilton street, Greenwich, who seeks accreditation by Willard Area hospital.

He is in the staff of New London hospital.

Bridge repair to close road for seven weeks

Replacement of a bridge on Fitchville River road will necessitate the closing of a little over a mile section of that road, according to Huron County Engineer Lawrence H. Heit.

Heit announced the section of Fitchville River road between Scranton road to the south and Cook road to the north will be closed for approximately seven weeks beginning Feb. 7.

The project, to be completed by county crews, entails the removal of the existing bridge structure and its replacement with an entirely new, wider and more substantial structure.

Heit cited the "continuing deterioration" of the present iron structure as the major reason for replacing the bridge. In addition, the improvement will allow the construction of a 24-ft. wide structure with a 20-ton capacity.

Since Fitchville River road is a major north-south country artery with a fair amount of truck traffic, Heit hopes the mild winter weather will allow construction efforts to proceed on schedule.

Tuttles get divorce decree

Glen L. Tuttle, Route 61, has obtained in Richland county common pleas court a decree of divorce from his wife, Sheila Tuttle, Louisville, Ky., a journal entry shows.

Parishioners of First Evangelical Lutheran church are invited to participate in holy communion Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Ronald Atkins will be celebrant.

Presbyterians will serve a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. immediately following communion immediately thereafter, probably at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Julian Taggart will conduct the service.

Methodists have no special service set for Wednesday.

Beginning Feb. 20, there will be successive Lenten services on Sunday evenings.

First service will be in the Plymouth church at 7:30 p.m.

Second service, and each alternate service, will take place in the Shiloh church, the exact to be determined later.

Plymouth's rebounding hasn't been gold star quality this season but such as it is, and sometimes it has been splendid, it's largely the contribution of Craig Thorsberry, a quiet 12th grader who also plays baseball and stretches his six feet to 6'4" in basketball for Big Red, which has now won its first Firelands conference game and seeks this weekend to win two more, against South Central there tomorrow and Monroeville here on Saturday.

TO THE EDITOR

Sir:

Last week's paper gave the account of the Cub Scouts meeting of the Pinewood Derby Race. As Jimmy Isaac's parents would like to express our opinion about this meeting.

We did not attend this meeting because of personal reasons, but usually we do. We did talk to a den mother and one of the other parents plus Jimmy to get an account of this meeting.

First of all, we would like to express that the Cub Scouts did a great job for the boys. The den mothers are all great people for giving their time to do this. This is not our complaint.

Jimmy was terribly disappointed about the race. But not because of his car being broken. It was because of the way some of the parents acted at this meeting.

These boys are taught to compete against each other and have fun in the process.

But when parents step in these meetings and start having a vote over whether or not someone else can participate, that's too much.

He was terribly embarrassed and didn't quite understand what all the commotion was about since at previous meetings they allowed cars that hadn't been on the track to be used. We understand that the Cubmaster wanted to go by the rules, which is fine. No gripe there. But what does an eight-year-old boy understand about adults voting on a race that is for the boys, not the parents? If we can make a big issue out of a small matter,

When we let Jimmy join Cub Scouts it was under the assumption that the den mothers were the ones with the authority of their dens, not the parents.

We say let the boys enjoy being Scouts, so they will want to return to these meetings instead of wanting to quit. Jimmy was not the only child that lost in these meetings, there's probably a few others. We can hardly say, though, that he doesn't want to be in another right now because of the embarrassment the parents put him through at this meeting. We just hope the parents realize from their immature way of handling this situation it was an eight-year-old boy that was hurt by this, not his parents.

Embarrassing moment? Dog dead, no harm done, but she remembers!

By AUNT LIZ

Every now and then my favorite radio station has a deal about people calling in with their most embarrassing experiences.

We all have them and wish they never had happened. Most are really dumb and readily forgotten except for the moment they happen.

I have one I will never forget.

First league victory ever!

Big Red holds on to defeat Mapleton, 71 to 69

A 12-point surge early in the third period helped Plymouth to a 44 to 36 lead over Mapleton here Friday night, and advantage that the Big Red later built to 12 points, and Plymouth hung on in the face of a strong Mountie rally to win, 71 to 69.

It was the second victory of the season for the Big Red and its first ever in Firelands conference competition.

Plymouth outshot the Mounties from the field, 31 to 24, with a percentage of almost 48 in field goal performance, but was outscored at the free throw line, 21 to 9.

The Big Red missed 13 of 22 penalty shots, Mapleton 11 of 32.

It was tied at 22 at the half. The score had changed hands six times and been tied five.

Mapleton drew first blood in the third period with two quick scores, one by Steve Bahr, the game's high scorer at 24, and one by Gil Kuhr, who wound up with 14.

Mapleton went to work. Down by four, it got a shot by Greg Polachek underneath, a missed free throw on the same shot, another basket by the doughy 12-grader, then two successive baskets by Craig Thornberry, three more shot out of scoring. With 2:23 remaining, the Mounties could shut out the Plymouth and time out.

Wargo missed a free throw for Mapleton and Plymouth continued the pressure. Thornberry scored again and at 1:54, Mapleton asked for time. It produced results, for Bahr broke the Big Red string with a basket.

The quarter ended with Plymouth in the lead by six at 42.

Both teams went at it hand-to-hand tongs in the final eight minutes. Mapleton outscored Plymouth by four, 27 to 23, and a last ditch shot by Wargo rolled over the rim, was recovered by Plymouth at 21, six of them in the third period.

Polachek came on in the final eight minutes with nine, three field goals and three free throws. He had poor luck at the foul line all night, missing six of 10.

That Plymouth was hot in the third period was reflected in the shooting statistics.

The Big Red fired for field goal 16 times and made eight. In the last period, it got off 13 shots and made nine. On this kind of shooting are champions made.

Craig Thornberry took down 21 rebounds, a major factor in the victory.

Brian Vredenburg was shut out on the scorebook but he contributed some important rebounding before fouling out at 4:27 of the fourth quarter. Indeed, Plymouth's rebounding was less than amateurish in the first half and little short of remarkable in the second half, doubtless the result of some locker room coaching.
