

Car hits train at Shiloh, man escapes

A 23-year-old Plymouth man narrowly escaped death early Saturday when he drove his car into a Conrail train at the Route 603 crossing in Shiloh.

Douglas R. Hall was westbound in Route 603 from Hall's 40000 station beside the rail right of way.

He told police he saw the light flashing and applied his brakes but when he reached to get an ash tray the car continued and struck the moving train.

David Harris, a witness, said two Shilohans pulled him from the wreckage of the car, a 1974 Chevrolet Impala belonging to Charles Osborne, Plymouth, which had been repaired in the Hall station.

Harris also said some debris struck the vehicle of Brenda Reira, 12 East Main street, Shiloh, parked unattended in the highway.

The train, southbound, blocked Bowman Street road for some time because it could not halt at Shiloh.

There was no arrest, state highway patrol reported.

63 years old, Legion sets annual dinner

Ehret-Parcel Post 447, American Legion, will observe its 63rd anniversary with a dinner Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Members of the post and auxiliary will prepare the main course. Members are asked to bring a covered dish and table service.

The post was organized by 15 veterans of World War I, none of whom is living today.

The late J. Eldon Nimmons, past president of Peoples National bank and the father of Mrs. Earl Cashman, who now lives in Sarasota, Fla., was the first commander.

It was called Ehret post, in honor of Carlton Ehret, the first Plymouth casualty of World War I. He died of a respiratory ailment. The name was changed to Ehret-Parcel post in memory of Capt. Elmer Parcel, who lost his life over the Philippines.

The post originally met in rooms over Miller's Hardware. In 1946 the post purchased the upper west floor of the old Hamilton building in the northwest side of the Square, which now houses the Uptown Store.

In 1965, through a gift of land by a teenage group and a strong fund raising drive, the present building in Trux street was constructed.

Five mill levy to go on primary ballot

A five mill operating levy will be placed on the June primary ballot, village council's finance committee agreed Monday night.

Whether it will be for the general fund or labelled for police protection, will not make any difference as to its use, the members, G. Thomas Moore, Terry Hopkins and Roy Barber, said.

The five mills will bring in over $50,000 annually, which is about the sum now being taken from income tax revenue. To run the police department.

This will then free that money so it can be used for capital improvements.

The general fund in the past could not support the department and the approval of the income tax saved the day. Cost of maintaining the department at its present level has almost doubled in the last three years.

The councilmen feel the levy will be passed because voters wish to retain a local department.

James C. Root, village administrator, said the income tax money is badly needed for street repairs and urged the committee to find another source of general fund money.

It was not determined Monday how long the levy will run. The question is the change in state law allowing a levy to run continuously rather than for a stated time.

John Fazzini, clerk-treasurer, warned the committee the general fund will be "tight" because collection of income tax money has fallen off excessively.

He said that perhaps by the middle of this year, it can be better determined just where the village stands financially, even though his figures for the various funds at the end of February look promising.

Mayor Dean A. Cline said it bothers him very much that no "cushion" in any of the village funds is figured in the 1983 appropriations, as in the past, when the utility funds had reserves set aside each month for unforeseen emergencies.

Root with several council members plans to attend a computer demonstration Wednesday.

He said the council should be looking ahead to replace the 1967 model billing machine of the utility department.

Several weeks ago it went "wild", he said. First it over-billed pennies and finally got up a $10 error on a utility bill.

A part needed replacing that if the village did not have a service contract which costs $2,500 annually, would have been about $4,000.

He also said that for several months Ohio Power Co. has been overcharging the village for electrical power, which will be remedied, he hopes, on its next bill as a credit.

Members of the village planning commission learned Monday night the first building permit for a house in over a year has been issued.

Bill Collins will build in North street on the lot he acquired from the Akers family several years ago.

Bill Taubke, newly chosen chairman of the commission, suggested Douglas A. Dickson, a member of the Plymouth High school faculty, be asked to take the place of Luella Vandervort, who is resigning.

The appointment will be made formally by Mayor Cline.

Root inquired about the issuance of building permits, in view of the fact that Jack Laser has been appointed zoning inspector.

His question sent members of the commission, scurrying to their copies of the zoning ordinance. Before the ordinance was passed, all permits were issued by the mayor. Now they apparently will be issued by the inspector.

His selection is intended to increase representation by Plymouth residents on the board of management of the bank, which acquired First Buckeye Bank, N. A., here at the end of last year.

A 40-year resident of the village, Cashman has served in a number of public and private appointments here.

He was for several years a member of Plymouth Board of Education. He served four terms until he resigned 25 years ago. He was a trustee of public affairs for five years.

Who's at fault?

The director of the Class A girls' tourney at Willard lamented privately that attendance was less than expected, by him, by the OHSAA, by the teams and by their coaches.

"Not even the parents showed up," he said.

During the first night, there were 118 adults in the house when the first whistle blew.

It is unusual that Willard's gymnasium echoes to the ring of emptiness during basketball games. Why? Because Willard has a winner, in both boys' and girls' basketball.

But is that as it should be?

Not even the most violent Crimson Flash fan would argue that his prizes and joys should be deprived of family support and the cheers of friends in, say, music, or dramatics, or, God forbid, academics.

And it's true here. The basketball season just ended was almost a disaster, fiscally speaking. Attendance was poor. Some of it can be blamed on the economy. But much of it can be blamed on us, all of us, those who didn't attend and those who attended who didn't encourage others to do so.

We can correct some of this poor image by supporting the spring activities of the schools. Not only baseball, softball and track and field events, but concerts, assemblies, extra curricular affairs of a non-athletic nature. We can even visit classes! Just call the schools and ask.

'60 alumnus - Cashman files wins honor

A 1960 alumnus of Plymouth High school has been named the fifth ranking salesman of Nationwide Insurance Co.

J. Lynn Cashman, Shelby, eldest son of the J. Harold Cashmans, made sales of $354,263 in the Ohio Valley region last year.

He was graduated by Bluffton college in 1964, studied law in Claude Pettit college of law, Ohio Northern university, Ada, for a year and taught school before he entered the insurance business.

Married, he is the father of a daughter, Kristin, 14, and a son, William, 12.

Four donors received one gallon pins when ARC Bloodmobile called here Feb. 18.

These were Wayne E. Strine, Denise Cobb, Richard Roll and Richard Farmer all of Plymouth.

Postmaster to fight Reagan's aim

Plymouth's postmaster, Mrs. Ruth Ann Pittenger, is part of the group of 14 Ohio postmasters who left Tuesday to protest a proposed change in the postal retirement system to federal authorities in Washington, D.C.

The administration is proposing that newly hired federal employees be covered with social security benefits rather than under the present, which gives benefits almost double but also costs double in matching government funds.

Postal employees say the higher retirement benefits attract better qualified workers and they fear standards of good service may be lessened.

Waste dump issue dies

A resolution to support other communities in objecting to the proposed land fill for dangerous waste materials in Morrow County died Feb. 22 for lack of a second to the motion to adopt it.

Proposed by Councilman Keith Hebble, the resolution drew no second from other councilmen. G. Thomas Moore, Ronald Predier, Terry Hopkins and Roy Barber.

Neither did they make any comments.

Later Moore said he feels more information was needed before he can make a decision.

Most of the communities surrounding the Morrow County land fill have formally objected and are giving the drive against it financial support.

Jay Cees seek revival here

Fifteen years after the first JayCee organization was established here (Ray Kleman was its first president), another JayCee group may be organized.

If so, it will need more participants than turned out Feb. 24, when Shelby's chapter, organizer of the first Jaycee group here, sought to get another going.

Mayor Dean A. Cline and elementary Principal Mark Sheely turned up.

Mayor Cline said he will be too busy with business, family and municipal affairs to participate actively.

Jackson township antenna site chosen for TV

If a request to establish a television station with a Plymouth transmitter is eventually approved and the station is built, the transmitter would be installed at 40 degrees 50 minutes 20 seconds north latitude, 82 degrees 35 minutes 45 seconds west longitude, which falls in Jackson township about 200 yards southeast of Mt. Bethel cemetery, which lies in Myers road west of Springfield road. The transmitter would thus be almost due north of Sacred Heart seminary.

Electric Thermal Storage works nights so you can save on your heating bills all day long.

Electric Thermal Storage, ETS, stores enough heat at night to heat your home for the rest of the day. And because ETS stores heat, it saves on your heating bills all winter long. Heating coils inside the ETS furnace heat the special bricks throughout the night. The bricks then store heat which the furnace draws from at night, and the rest of the day.

You save because you heat with electricity at night, when the cost of electricity is less, under special rates available to ETS customers. So you pay lower electric rates for heating. And for all other electricity you use at night.

What's more, the same lower electric rates apply all weekend — for ETS heating and all other electric uses.

ETS heats your water, too. And individual room heaters are available, which let you control any room.

For complete information about the energy-saving and money-saving advantages of Electric Thermal Storage, send us this coupon. It could be one of the best investments you ever make.

Eight lettermen seek Big Red starting roles

Fair weather means Plymouth's veteran - studded baseball squad will get out on the ground sooner than anticipated.

Coach David P. Dunn has some seasoned candidates for his 1983 nine.

And he is strong in pitching, which is the name of the game.

In Jeff Jacobs and Rod Hampton, he has two of the premier left-handers here abouts. Jacobs, with a sore knee that's rounding into form, has won two letters, Hampton one.

Greg Polachek, seeking a fourth monogram in baseball, will be a fixture behind the plate.

Craig Thornberry, after a third award, will probably be the first baseman and a righthanded hurler.

Jeff Fenner, who also has two letters, has experience at the keystone sack.

Tom Baker, with one letter so far, is the chief shortstop candidate.

Brian Vredenburg, also worth one letter, has played at the hot corner.

Some reserve players from last season are certain to make it to the starting team.

Among these are Darrin Branham, Steve Brown, Matt McClain, Bill Stephens, Michael Moore and Tom Newmyer.

Chad McGinnis, a letterman, has an outfield post nailed down.

If Plymouth can get its pitching to perform on the mound as it appears on the drawing board, the Big Red will be tough.

Four candidates who won ninth grade numerals will be back. These are Larry Brooks, Jeff Lasch, Dave Burks and Scott Ryan.

'No big deal' Editor sees 1,000th game involving Big Red

"It's no big deal, a thousand today, a thousand and one tomorrow," is how a record-setter looked at it last week.

The editor of The Advertiser, by attending the Plymouth vs. St. Paul's girls' basketball game in the town at Willard Feb. 23, watched for the 1,000th time a Plymouth team in a regularly scheduled inter-scholastic athletic event.

No written record shows that any other has exceeded that total.

He said Feb. 24 he is pleased that Plymouth won and he added on Sunday that he's already taken steps to celebrate the occasion with the players and coach.

On the same day, he set another record: he became the senior in service of any editor or publisher of The Advertiser since it was founded on Oct. 23, 1853. He passed the late Peyton W. Thomas in tenure.

The week was not a total failure in other ways. He was notified on Feb. 21 that a national publication has bought a piece he wrote, "The Greening of a Young Man," for publication in June.

And, under pressure, he disclosed he has some fiction and a play "on the stove", which, in his jargon, means editors and/or producers elsewhere are considering his work now!

Balanced meal? Try cheeseburger Auntie's style!

By AUNT LIZ

This is National Nutrient month.

It all started back in the 1920's when a bunch of home ec. people got going about how badly people were eating.

From the 1980's, I would say, they certainly ate much better than we are today. Frozen foods were unknown. Heck, no one even had a refrigerator. I can remember my grandmother telephoning her grocery order every morning. The store was two blocks away, and they delivered it all.

Things were plain fresh, nothing dated like today.

Anyway, these happy characters came up with four food groups that they said should be a part of every meal.

No fault can really be found with them. They cover everything edible and if really followed, can end up as a real gourmet feast.

If you can tell the difference between a glass of milk, a head of lettuce, a pork chop and a slice of really good homemade bread, you have it made.

The four are milk products, which include cheeses, natch, meat, which is protein, and peanut butter; cereals, which brings in bread, and those tasty green things called fruits and vegetables.

Each meal should have all four to keep everyone going.

Just take a good look at them, and figure out the shortcuts. All four can be put together at one clip.

It is called a cheeseburger. Just throw in a couple of lettuce leaves and a couple of sliced tomatoes, and you have a complete meal.

And there is not one good reason why kids cannot start their day out with one.

We have all been conditioned that certain meals must have certain foods.

That is for the birds.

There is nothing so tasty on a cold night than a sturdy breakfast-like meal for dinner, pancakes with real syrup, bacon and eggs.

But there are times when you really have to eat how most people would say is normal.

Those are the times when you are asked to bring a covered dish to some rather dull, boring affair. Unfortunately, most of us are stuck with such things. It is even worse for those happy mothers who have kids in school and in this and that.

There really is some good, though. It does save you from composing a complete dinner.

For many years we would take a shrimp salad, which was plain easy to put together and something most people didn't think of. That day is now over, which I think everyone can understand if they visit a grocery store.

Now we are into chicken. Frankly, it is just as good and more practical.

Just cook a chicken, save the broth, cut it up so you have at least three cups.

Make up a batch of rice, the minute type works like a dream. You want a cup and a half of it.

Cut up two beautiful large apples.

Bring out a large bowl, combine those three things with two tablespoons of lemon juice, a tablespoon of oil, a cup of mayonnaise, half a cup of chopped walnuts, two tablespoons of chopped parsley, some chopped onion to taste and if you like it, two teaspoons of curry powder.

Seminar explains DWI law

Councilman Terry Hopkins and Police Chief Robert Conley attended a seminar Friday on the newly passed drunken driving law.

It was sponsored by the Ohio Municipal League in Columbus.

Hopkins says the existing law has not been changed by the new legislation but emphasizes the penalties, which many courts have not enforced because of the cost to a political subdivision to house violators for their penalties.
