

What should voter do on Tuesday?

For the fourth time, village council will submit on Tuesday a fresh tax levy to fund police expenses.

When the council opted to do so, it had no idea that a crisis would develop within the department that, until it is resolved, ties the council's hands and paralyzes proper administration of law and order.

Even if an indictment is not returned, there is some question whether the accused ought to be restored to duty.

One would be foolish to conclude that some voters will not go to the polls on Tuesday with thoughts of the conduct of the third police chief in village history fresh in their minds. But it is worth remembering that on two occasions when the first police chief was on the job, voters turned down a levy to fund police protection. It may fairly be argued that voters here do not discriminate against the person of the police chief but rather how he shall be paid, and by whom, and to the extent that they directly control the access to public funds, how much.

And one would be equally foolish to conclude that the economic situation locally will not prompt some voters who go to the polls Tuesday to refuse to support more taxation. Their reasoning is that "we have a tough time as it is, we can't afford more taxes."

That revenues from the village income tax will drop severely goes without saying. It's no secret that no policeman would have been paid in the last several months without allocations of income tax money.

And there are some, among whom count us, who resent that they are required to shoulder two burdens: the local real estate tax and the income tax, whereas our next door neighbor pays one tax only.

The argument is that if the police levy of five mills is approved, producing about $50,000 in fresh revenue each tax year, the capital improvement fund will benefit.

So far as we are informed, no specific requests for capital improvements have been filed with the county board of taxation. Which is not to say that, if the levy should be approved, it would take much time to construct a program involving expenditure of $50,000 in capital improvement funds.

Police costs are budgeted at about $115,000 a year. It is not suitable to compare oranges with apples and it will serve no useful purpose to compare costs of police protection here with those elsewhere. The question of quality, of availability, of area to serve, of population numbers and density of population, of presence of sources of generation of matters requiring police attention arises.

To be fair about it, one could say that Tuesday's issue is chiefly a bookkeeping issue. The quality of police protection won't improve if the levy is approved. The amount of police protection won't improve if the levy is approved. Neither will it diminish if the levy is disapproved.

So the voter needs to consider whether he trusts the council to make the proper decisions, whether in a week, a month or several months, with $50,000 in new money for capital improvements (always assuming the amount of money collected by the income tax does not further decrease, which is in itself a bald assumption) a suitable and viable proposal to spend the funds, and whether the benefits he is likely to derive from the expenditure of those capital funds are sufficient to warrant paying $25 a year more in real estate tax.

Fourth time around - Five mill levy to fund police on Tuesday ballot

A tax levy of five mills to fund police protection will again be submitted to electors of the village during the primary election Tuesday.

Signs are that a small turnout will be registered, owing to the absence of other issues on the ballot and no candidacies.

The levy would produce about $50,000 a year. If it is approved, it will free that amount now diverted from the proceeds of the village income tax for other purposes, chiefly capital improvements, none of which the council has specified nor otherwise identified in budget requests.

The levy has been defeated before, albeit in other forms.

During the incumbency of the late Robert L. Meiser as chief, a police levy was turned down twice. Its defeat on Nov. 2, 1976, by 190 favoring to 336 opposing, was its heaviest. By the time it was submitted again, on Nov. 4, 1980, opposition dwindled. Only 192 ballots were cast against the levy, opposed by 144 ballots favoring.

The present proposal is No. 4.

Whether the levy will receive support on Tuesday's election seems affected by three circumstances:

1. The generally weak situation in the local economy, with relatively high unemployment, many householders facing the prospect of unemployment benefits expiring and no immediate sign of improved turnover in Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc.
2. The fact that the incumbent chief, Robert Conley, is under suspicion of felonious conduct in connection with the beating of his estranged wife at Mansfield.
3. A residue of sentiment by taxpayers who are employed locally that they are shouldering an unfair tax load because they are compelled not only to pay real estate taxes but also village income taxes, which the villager who works out of town need not pay.

Councilmen state that if the levy fails, no reduction in police protection will occur.

"We will continue with what we have and seek to finance it as we have been doing," says Councilman G. Thomas Moore.

Campaigning in favor of the levy by village officials has been minimal.

Clyde Caldwell, 80, dies at Seville

Clyde DeVier Caldwell, 80, commander of Elmer-Parson Post 447, American Legion, in 1944-45, died Thursday in Canterbury Villa Nursing home, Seville, where he lived two weeks.

He moved to Lodi 25 years ago to work for the Lodi Advertiser, then published by A. L. Paddock, Jr. He retired in 1970 as city editor.

Born to John and Fanny G. Hatch Caldwell in Crawford county Oct. 28, 1902, he attended Plymouth schools. Ill health prevented him from completing Plymouth High school. He was graduated by Mansfield Business college and was employed by U. S. Gypsum Co. and Green-Whit Tractor Co. until he was drafted in World War II.

After World War II, he was employed by Wilkins AF station, Shelby, until it closed in 1957.

He published a number of articles and short stories and composed numerous poems. When the spirit moved him, he could recite Shakespeare, Longfellow, Whittier, Service and some lesser poets verbatim and at great length.

He was Shiloh correspondent of The Advertiser from 1951 to 1956.

He never married.

He was a member of Lodi Post, American Legion, and of Shiloh Lodge 544, F&AM.

Because waivers were paid and one case was continued until June 7, there was no mayor's court as scheduled May 24.

Village to join consortium to fight ColGas

Plymouth will join other municipalities served by Columbus Gas of Ohio, Inc., to negotiate rates as a group, village council decided May 24.

The resolution introduced by Councilman Keith Hebble was passed with hardly any comment except for Councilman G. Thomas Moore, who said that in the long run Plymouth will be better off if it is part of a larger group in obtaining better rates than trying to do it alone.

"It may be that our rate might be a little high to start with," he said, "but in the future it will pay off."

The only other business discussed at the short meeting, part of which was taken up with an executive session with Richard Wolfe, village solicitor, and John Fazzini, clerk-treasurer, was that of the possibility of hiring a person to deal only with obtaining various state and federal grants.

Hebble suggested it because it is time consuming. James C. Root, village administrator, has been attempting to do the work along with his other duties.

The rules committee, headed by Hebble, will investigate the matter further before any action is taken.

Councilman Roy Barber presided at the meeting in the absence of Mayor Dean A. Chie.

One can always rely on USG for good reading matter

By AUNT LIZ
You name it. Our government prints it. In all the goopy mail we get everyday, something really nice surfaced: a booklet from the United States Government Printing Office.

For years we were on their mailing list. I would order here and there and had some real gems. Dumb things like history, which I was interested in.

Once they put out one little deal with the history, which I deal with the history of photography, which was terrific.

The things about it all is that these publications are written by real experts, and very cheap for what they have in them.

Subjects range from anything you can think of. The historical ones are really good and should be invaluable to high school libraries.

No way can you buy a magazine with how to do things that can equal what these have.

In this last catalogue we got something really great for people trying to trace down their families. People are aware that they can write for information about marriages, births and deaths, but simply do not know where or how. This booklet does it by state.

I cannot recommend it more highly, but I do object to one title they have listed: "Putting Women in Their Place." They really didn't mean it at all, because it is a rather scholarly study of the role of women in our changing economy.

Then there is another one. Of 54 pages, I think they could have saved a little of our tax money and left them out. It is called "Where Have the Farm Lands Gone?"

Everyone knows where they became popular golf courses.

Someone in Washington will probably slaughter me for this, but this is where you write for their listing: Supt. of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Dept. 33, Washington, D. C. 20402.

They even do cookbooks. One is great for large group cooking. It's the Armed Forces Recipe Service, 18004 of them designed for at least 100 people. They also do one on cooking for two, which is more our speed.

There is something about cooking for two: you simply do not have to worry that kids aren't getting what they should have in a meal. We can have a meal of just pasta and desert or a bowl of soup and a sandwich. It just could be that we may drop from malnutrition, but it is easy and darn good.

A nice friend keeps me supplied with coupons she cuts out. Of course, I am well aware that her daughter gets first pick, but the other day she included a little recipe booklet about English muffins. I didn't realize how really handy they can be. My idea was to stash them under the brewer buttered, when golden, take them out and plain sweater jam on them.

You can create miniature pizzas with them. Put some sauce on, melt cheese and pepperoni and simply broil until it all looks right.

You can put any topping on them, and the thing is that they are much more sturdy than a slice of bread. There is substance, and that is the difference. It fills up tummys.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ahorn and their children, Akron, were guests of her mother, Mrs. Robert A. Lewis, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. James Root, who have been living in Sun City, Ariz., for the last several years, are moving to Plymouth. They have taken an apartment in Plymouth Village.

A son was born Thursday in Shelby Memorial hospital to the Richard Potts, 35 Brennerman street, Shiloh.

A son, Kyle Dorion, weighing 5 lb., 11 ozs., was born Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Duane Baker, Shelby, in Shelby Memorial hospital. Mr. and Mrs. E. Duane Baker are the paternal grandparents and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Baker the great grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greenick, North Robinson, are the maternal grandparents. The child was taken to Children's hospital, Akron.

Tools and automotive parts were reported stolen May 25 at 10:54 a. m. from the garage at 236 Riggs street. Value was placed at $1,500 to $2,000.

The property is listed as that of Rodney Hale, who recently moved into the house.

Although no forced entry was found, a framed dollar bill was reported missing from 12 East Main street.

The unoccupied building belongs to former Mayor Eric J. Akers and has been vacant since Laurel's Dress shop closed.

CHURCH NEWS

Diet advice program set
Seeking to assist families to get the most for their grocery dollar, Plymouth-Shiloh Ecumenical committee will offer a special program to provide nutritional meals that will fit into the grocery budget allowed through benefits.

Families receiving a fixed income are invited to hear Mrs. Jean Swartz, county extension agent, home economist, June 8 from 2 to 4 p. m. in First Evangelical Lutheran church, 51 West Broadway, about how the church can prepare nutritionally good meals while stretching their grocery dollar the farthest. In addition to Mrs. Swartz, Sue Stevens and Mary Carol Johantgen will discuss experience as homemakers working with a fixed income because of unemployment.

This vent will provide low-cost recipes, menu planning, buying, cooking and the versatility of various cuts of meat in menu planning.

Attendance is free.

$2,500 saved

Because they did the work themselves, Plymouth firemen saved the village about $2,500 by repairing the leak in the pumper tank.

Councilman Terry Hopkins made the announcement at last week's council meeting.

He also said plans for the addition to the firehouse should be ready soon.

199 rented houses here at census time

Renters of housing in the village numbered 199 persons in the 1980 census.

Of these households, 72 were occupied by one person, 46 by two persons, 47 by three persons, 18 by four persons, seven by five persons, 11 by six persons or more.

Total number of rooms available for occupancy in the village was 4,278, of which 942 were occupied by renters. There were 63 rooms vacant for sale only and 75 rooms vacant for rent. A total of 156 other rooms were vacant for other reasons.

Value of housing in 1980 is shown by this table:	6
Less than $10,000	21
$10,000-$14,999	38

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir:

The police chief and members of the department are asking the citizens of the Village of Plymouth to go to the polls on June 7, 1983, and vote in favor of the five mill levy. The levy money that will be generated by the levy will be used to support the police department and to relieve the capital improvement fund.

Approximately nine months ago the citizens of Plymouth showed by the petition that was signed that they were in favor of keeping their own police department. If this is true, then the police department is urging the voters on June 7 to vote Yes in favor of the five mill levy. The police department will try to insure the best protection for all village residents.

Again we urge you to vote Yes.

Capt. Frank Hodge
Plymouth Police Department
