

On drug abuse in schools

It is customary at year's end, or as soon thereafter as data can be assembled, for researchers to state what they found about how our society conducted itself in the past year. This week the national press has been occupied with drug abuse.

It is claimed that abuse of drugs by high school pupils in 1983 was five per cent lower, from 68 per cent to 63 per cent, than in 1982. Three of every high school pupil, the survey says, have tried some drug stronger than marijuana.

It is difficult for us to fault these data, for we have no measuring stick to lay against them. High school principals, guidance counselors and teachers are loath to discuss the matter. They seem to feel it would be a breach of their rapport with their charges to discuss the facts of drug use. Parents who inquire of their children whether they use drugs are invariably told "No". And if they ask whether other pupils use drugs, they get inconclusive answers or none at all. The conspiracy of silence prevails.

One may quarrel with this attitude, and we often do. But it is inbred and the wise man will not waste his substance in seeking to change it.

But if tobacco and alcohol, notably alcohol, be considered as drugs, and let's face it, that's what they are, no matter what social acceptance may be accorded them, it's a whole new ball game.

A man who is deaf, dumb and blind can ascertain for himself that tobacco and alcohol abuse among the high school population is out of hand.

These instances are personal, local in the sense that they occurred within 25 miles of our business-office, proved by reliable eyewitnesses, and, alas, completely ignored by those who are in position to do something about them:

Wedding reception in the bridal season. Large crowd. Open bar. Bartenders are the captains of the high school athletic team. Each has a "working drink", i.e., a partially filled container of alcoholic beverage from which he is regularly partaking.

Inquiry of a high school athletic coach. Question: "Coach, what would be your response to concrete evidence furnished by the sheriff, with photographs, of some of your players drinking alcohol?" Answer: "I'd have to know how many points they're scoring per game before I could tell you."

Conversation on a street corner with a young man perplexed about finding a job. The street fights have been lit for two hours. A car stops. Its driver alights and says, "Hey, Charley, come with us for a minute." Charley turns to his friend and says, "Please, sir, talk to my girlfriend for a few minutes, I'll be right back." In five minutes he has returned. "Charley, what did you do?" Answer: "Oh, they just wanted some beer so I went to the drive through, because I'm past 19, and I bought it for them." Question: "Who are they?" Answer: "Oh, just a bunch of high school kids."

Grandfather takes young grandchildren to drive-in movie. Next car is filled with high school pupils, some of whom he recognizes. Each is drinking beer.

Reporter goes to service club. Social affair has drawn a large crowd, including notable high school girls, some of whom are sitting with their families, others with young male escorts. Most have a strong beverage, not beer, in "working drink" in front of them.

Reporter goes to locker room after a victory. He greets some players and inquires as to the whereabouts of the coach. "Probably gone out already to get a beer, which is where we're going as soon as we get dressed." Joking? Not on your life.

Would it be any good to raise the drinking age to 21?

Which came first, the children or the eggs? Nevertheless, the statistics show that in states where that age is the lower limit, abuse of alcohol is less than in other states. The schools here had their chance last November. What did they do? They sat on their hands.

And no amount of silly protestations that "They'll get it anyway" will convince us otherwise.

Who's at fault? We all are. Parents, first. The life style we persist in following encourage our youths to drink. School authorities, next. They don't want to rock the boat. Testimony that in Arkansas some pupils came to class in Arkadelphia "bombed" notwithstanding. What makes Arkansas so different?

Risner guilty on one count of disorderliness

A finding of guilty on a charge of disorderly conduct laid against Goble Risner, 38, 185 Riggs street, by Shelby Municipal Court Judge Vincent Phelan Friday when he was dismissed from the force on Jan. 30 after he was arrested for drunken driving by the highway patrol in Route 61, south of Rt. 162, on the night of Jan. 27.

Sancic said he will appeal Phelan's finding. The judge fined Risner $100 and costs.

Risner and his wife, Mary Ann, swore under oath Friday that Croxford and Hodge beat him without cause on Dec. 3, 1983.

Min. Risner said her husband was struck on the head by a club swung by Croxford inside their home. Croxford denied this.

Court attaches said Sancic appeared disappointed by the tenor of Mr. Risner's testimony. He sought to elicit

Judge throws out motions to quash charges vs. Risner

Motions that charges against Goble Risner laid by Plymouth police be dismissed, on the grounds there was no probable cause for arrest and that excessive force was used, were denied by Municipal Judge Vincent Phelan Jan. 30.

Risner's attorney, Steven F. Sancic, Akron, sought to have the charges, including four counts of assault, thrown out during pre-trial hearing Jan. 24.

Richard Wolfe, 2nd, village solicitor, argued that Plymouth police conducted themselves in accordance with accepted procedure.

The altercation on Dec. 3 put Chief Frank Hodge into Willard Area hospital for a few days and Patrolman Ronald Croxford on sick leave for a similar period. Croxford has since been dismissed from the police department for misconduct.

Richard Wolfe, 2nd, village solicitor, also alleged an assaulting Buford Sexton, Garland Sexton and Bertha Sexton, all of 170 Nichols street, on Dec. 3. Buford Sexton also alleges Risner was trespassing.

A charge of disorderly conduct laid in mayor's court here was transferred to Shelby by Mayor Dean A. Cline and a pre-trial hearing on it was conducted Friday at 11 a.m.

Three hurt in crash in Rt. 13

A 41-year-old Brooks court woman was injured Saturday at 12:10 p.m. when her car was struck by another in Route 13.

Mrs. Phyllis L. Lemaster was treated in Mansfield General hospital.

So was another driver, Mrs. Cheryl Schumcker, 21, Tiffin, and her passenger, her daughter, two.

Mrs. Lemaster's passenger, her husband, Louis, was not hurt.

A 25-year-old ex-Marine was summoned on a charge of reckless operation Feb. 1 after his vehicle struck another in Plymouth street.

Clarence E. Vermilion, North street, headed north, collided with a vehicle owned by Marcella Arthur, 209 Plymouth street, driven by David M. Lynch 17, New Washington, as it was backing from the driveway.

Vermilion's vehicle continued forward and turned around 180 degrees.

Police are seeking clues to the identity of the driver who struck a vehicle belonging to the Roy J. Johnsons, Jr., parked in front of their home at 205 West Broadway, reported Sunday at 11:34 a.m.

Raccoons stolen, pets sold

Four pet raccoons were stolen from a cage belonging to Monroe Barnett, 15 Prospect street, Shiloh, Jan. 28, slaughtered, skinned and sold.

After Barnett reported his loss to police, a search turned up the pets in the possession of John A. Turson, Plymouth East road, who buys and sells furs and pets.

Police continue the investigation.

Win. entries were used to open the pens between 6 p.m. and midnight.

Shelby authorities angry with judge

Four local men arrested in brawl in Shelby bar

Three Shilohans and a Plymouth route 1 man went to Shelby to join a celebration in a Mansfield restaurant Feb. 1 and wound up in jail and later in court, accused of and one of them convicted of assault and obstruction of police business.

The convicted man, Robert Riser, 33, Shiloh, pleaded no contest in Shelby Municipal court Thursday morning and Judge Vincent Phelan fined him $1,000 for the assault and $750 for the obstruction charge and gave him two years to settle the fine, an action that sent Pat Phelan, Jr. to Van Wagner and the Shelby law director, Lee Shepherd, beyond the boiling point.

They insist that Riser's conduct deserved a jail sentence and they are increased that Phelan did not mete it out.

Van Wagner said, "Morale in the police department has declined considerably" after Riser was dealt with.

His anger arose from the fact that three Shelby officers were injured when seeking to quell a fight in Burley's Bar, Mansfield avenue, Shelby, the night of Feb. 1-2.

Officers who were injured are Capt. Rodger Bailey and Patrolmen William Hicks and Michael Bennett, all treated in Memorial hospital there after the fight.

Others accused in the melee are David Gasparac, 24, Shiloh; Randy Gasparac, 24, Shiloh route 2, and C. David Mosley, 22, Plymouth.

Croxford fined, license revoked for two months

Driver's license of Ronald Croxford was revoked until Apr. 9 and he was fined $350 and costs on his plea of no contest to a charge of drunken driving in Norwalk Municipal court Feb. 1.

Judge Donald Derby suspended a three day jail sentence and $200 of the fine if Croxford will complete an alcohol intervention program.

Jobless training under way, Cohen says

Huron county unemployment, at over 16 per cent, is among the highest in Ohio.

According to Barry Cohen, chairman of the local Private Industry Council, that represents only half the picture. The other half concerns business itself.

A jobless rate also means business is suffering, according to Cohen, who says "business has only one obligation to the community — to run a healthy business."
Cohen, private industry supervisor, R. Donnelly & Sons Co., Willard, says the purpose of the Private Industry Council is to improve both employment and business in Huron county.
"I don't think everyone knows the opportunity is here," he says, "but the Private Industry Council pays 50 per cent of the wages of new employees in training."
"We're very interested in training and development. I can't think of anything more worthwhile than government funds spent on training and finding permanent employment for Huron county's jobless."

Cohen is one of 20 business, labor and professional representatives on the PIC, which determines how federal money is allocated through the Job Training Partnership act (JTPA).
"The money will be used with a great deal of attention toward results," says Cohen.
"The locally-controlled Private Industry Council will make a great deal of difference in the effectiveness of the program."
Cohen says he and the other three Huron county PIC members — William Conway, Charles Merlier and Ruth Stark — have an opportunity to get strong, trained personnel into the workforce. We can provide employees with training most businesses cannot afford to produce.
"This program provides a unique opportunity for individuals to get new job skills to be competitive in today's job market," asserts Cohen.
"We want to put Huron county people back to work."

Auntie passes critical age: trouble is, everybody knows it!

By AUNT LIZ
This year my birthday anniversary has been really something.
For years everyone ignored it, a few nice friends would remember it and it usually was on a real working day so I just never even baked a cake for myself.
This year is different. People I have never heard of in my life have heard of me. Every insurance company across the land has discovered me.

For weeks now I have been getting stuff in the mail about it all.
They not only know my official name, which is really only on government forms, but they know the date and the year.
Our friends merely know the date.
Over the years I have read about the Big Brother stuff, and now I am part of it.
I have not quite decided if it is flattering or plain invasion of privacy.
I am well aware of how one can get on a mailing list with catalogues and that sort of thing. Just subscribe to a magazine, and they got you. Frankly, it is fun. If a bunch of characters want to send us some beautifully illustrated booklets hoping we will order from them, let them. I have done so, but the little bit I have ever ordered hardly paid for what they sent me.
Sure, I have hit that milestone. Plain old 65. It is one way but not the other. Being 40 never bothered me. What is so nice about it is that I can look back on real history.
I can remember the Model T, the first radios, refrigerator, name it and I have lived through it all.
We were out of the country when television first started. Everyone would write and tell us how great it was. Finally we got home and one night I had the chance to see it. I swear that our friends were so proud of the set that was four inches square. I watched and thought, "This is for the birds." No way was I impressed.
They all loved it and thought it was great. Back then my idea of what to do with free moments was to read a book or knit something someone could wear.

That was when I realized it was really out of it all. We then went back to our nice mad house in Africa with the blue skies everyday and flowers growing like mad.
That was real living.
The other half of those 65 years have been lived here. We have so much, but everyone takes it for granted too much. The wonderment of a dumb thing like a microwave oven is fantastic. Just stop and think about it. We are no doubt the best country in the world, and why can't our kids and adults salute our flag as they should?

And let me lecture a little more. At Christmas one of our children needed to buy a gift. He decided on a set of knives. The American ones were simply too darn expensive, so he bought Japanese.

Portable electric heat... safe, clean and economical, too!

Most people use only one, or maybe two rooms of their home for most of their living. So it makes sense to just heat the space you use, not the whole house.

With a portable electric heater you can carry your comfort with you from room to room. That means you can turn the thermostat for your furnace down 10 degrees or more. Then set a thermostatically-controlled electric heater to the temperature that is most comfortable for you in the room you're going to be in. And close that room off by shutting doors. When you have to spend some time elsewhere in the house, take your heater with you.

Remember, your portable electric heater doesn't consume oxygen. In an enclosed space, a fuel-burning heater is competing with you for the very air you breathe. An electric heater doesn't burn anything so it doesn't produce fumes or soot. It's safe, clean and economical, too.

You'll start saving money right away when you buy a portable electric space heater because your initial investment is so low compared to other types of heaters. Naturally, since you can lower the temperature in the rest of the house, your total heating expenses will be much less, too.

Safe, clean heat for just a few cents an hour. If you are considering using portable electric heat, contact the Marketing & Customer Service Department of Ohio Power. We'll be glad to answer any of your questions.

Democrat seeking to oust Hunter as court clerk

A Bronson township trustee will seek Democratic nomination for clerk of courts of Huron county and, if successful, will oppose the incumbent Republican, Clark Hunter, Greenwich, in November.

He is James P. Stevenson, who is circulating petitions now.

Stevenson says if elected he will open branches in New London and Willard to deal with title transfers.

Thomas Dunlap, a former sheriff's deputy, will seek the Democratic nomination to succeed his old boss, John Borgia, as Huron county sheriff.

After a generation on the job, Borgia won't seek reelection.

The 28-year-old Dunlap, who lives in Norwalk, is so far the only Democrat to seek the nomination.

The only Republican is Borgia's hand-picked man,

Lloyd W. Smith, Jr., No. 2 in the department, who has filed his petition.

Former Willard Police Chief Jack Fryman, a councilman

there, has said he'll seek election as an independent but hasn't filed his petitions yet. Deadline is Feb. 25.

Mapleton edges Red, 74 to 71, despite rally

Mapleton outscored Plymouth in the third period at Polk Friday night and won a Firelands conference struggle, 74 to 71.

The three-point difference between the two teams in the third quarter held up at the game's end, when Plymouth's spirited charge fell short. The final point by Mapleton was scored after time had expired.

The Mounties outshot Plymouth by one goal from the field and by a single free throw.

It was tied at 35 at the half, owing in large part to some shoddy play by the visitors that resulted in six straight points in 11 seconds, just before the buzzer ended the first half.

Plymouth outshot the Mounties in percentage of accuracy. The Big Red fired for field goal 67 times and succeeded with 28. The Mounties sank 29 of 73 tries.

Mapleton missed 10 of 26 free throws, Plymouth 12 of 27.

Rodney Hampton was game high scorer with 24, 15 of them in the second half, nine in the last eight minutes.

Tom Baker returned after an enforced hiatus, because of an ankle injury, and played well enough to score 12. But it was evident he is not yet the Baker of old. Darren Branham scored 13, Brian Vredenburg 11.

For the Mounties, Gil Kuhr was high with 16, tied with Mike Johnson. The Mounties had two players with 13, Bob Dignin and Jim Goon.

The score was tied eight times and changed hands 13 times. Mapleton went ahead for good when Mike Wargo sank a jumper with 2:54 left in the third quarter. Plymouth's Leach stepped in for play catch-up basketball after that and it did not do so well at it.

The Mounties built a lead of five points in the final period and then increased it to eight with 29 seconds left. Vredenburg's two free throws and an heroic basket by Hampton cut the lead to two. But mistakes in mechanics by the referees, who allowed seven seconds to elapse after Plymouth's final bucket before calling time for the Mounties, froze Plymouth's chances.

Mapleton put the ball into play with four seconds left and a foul against Bob Harris resulted in the last score.

Plymouth rebounded 37 shots, 25 of them offensively. Mapleton took 46 rebounds.

The Big Red committed 16 offensive errors, the Mounties 18.

RODNEY HAMPTON — 24 points in losing cause at Mapleton.

Riders, Robinson rap Plymouth, 92 to 63

That Todd Robinson will graduate in June will delight Plymouth's basketball team.

That he's bound for Mississippi as a full-time member of the Rebels of the University of Mississippi will tickle Plymouth's team absolutely silly.

Because Robinson showed Plymouth how valuable it is on the Western Reserve floor at Collins Saturday night.

He tore the Big Red apart in the third period, and the Roughriders walked off with a 92 to 63 thumping of Plymouth in what was the visitors' worst defeat of the season. No team had before scored as many as 90 points.

After eight minutes the two outfits were closer than the air in the ninth gallery of the old Metropolitan Opera house. Just two points separated the teams. The Riders were in front by 22 to 20. Already the score had been tied three and had changed four times.

But in the second period, the Riders were to work.

Russ Logan and Robinson scored quick buckets, Rod Hampton made the second of his two free throws and the Riders then scored five unanswered points before Hampton managed a difficult conversion under the basket. The Roughriders added six more without opposition. Jeff Leach canned one from the corner, and the Riders proceeded to add three more before Darren Branham got one down. The two teams exchanged buckets until time ran out in the half and Western Reserve went to the locker room well out in front by 31 points at 46 to 33.

What befell Plymouth at the beginning of the second half could only be outdone by a compulsory visit to Molokai. The Riders scored 12 unanswered points. Plymouth shot 18 times in the entire third period and made just two of them — and it was all over.

The Constitution has a rule against cruel and inhuman punishment. It is too bad the constitutional lawyers weren't out in force at Collins, because what the Roughriders did to Plymouth certainly falls in that category.

Robinson scored 10 of his game high of 23 in the third period. Greg Mallins scored eight. And Plymouth was limited, as much by its own failures as by any action by the Riders, to just seven. Going into the final quarter, Western Reserve was 32-to-51, good shooting even in the press, and its final record was only a manifestation of the experience of second line players in shooting. During the final eight minutes, the Riders shot 28 times and made nine of them.

Plymouth outscored Western Reserve during that period, but the damage was done. Coach David Dunn sent his bench to the floor and it responded well enough. Leach had six, Chad McGinnis four, Jeff Caudill six and Kevin Taylor four in the last period.

For the night, Plymouth got off 66 shots at the basket and succeeded with 24. The Riders fired 79 times and converted 41 of them.

From the free throw line, Plymouth misses five of 20, the Riders three of 13.

Looking at the boards that Western Reserve excelled. Excelled? That's hardly a suitable word. It simply devastated Plymouth: 54 rebounds, 23 offensive and 31 defensive, as compared to 23 for the Big Red, seven offensive and 16 defensive.

Plymouth failed to score with 17 advances, Western Reserve with 17 also.

How to spend without worry. Buying the things you want makes you feel good. But spending that "little extra" you should be saving makes you feel guilty. And you worry. One answer is to buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. They'll take out that "little extra" from each paycheck for you. You're automatically saving the amount you want to save, without ever seeing it. So you can't spend it. You won't even miss it. But you can spend what's left of your pay (after bills) without feeling guilty. Without worry.

Bob Hope knows just how much Red Cross helps veterans.

"If you're a veteran, the rules and regs that affect your benefits can sometimes be baffling. Where to turn for help?" "Try Red Cross. Yes, the Red Cross." "Last year, American Red Cross helped tens of thousands of former servicemen and their families get their educational disability, insurance and medical benefits. Red Cross also helps many veterans upgrade their military discharges... and that holds the key to getting a job. Just last year, Red Cross represented more than 2100 veterans before discharge review boards.
