

Facts and ideas seem to be where you find them

Does it take an experienced observer, one who has for three decades witnessed almost every promulgation of a budget by a local taxing authority, to note remarkable facts about them?

It may be true.

Time was when municipal budgets, whether by law or local custom, spelled out exactly what the taxing district intended to pay for goods and services in the coming year. If one wished to find out what the leedlelatz collector would be paid, he ran his finger down the column until he got to "Leedlelatz collection" and read across to the figure.

It's not that way anymore, more's the pity. And if one inquires, he doesn't get shown the door. Not at one, anyway. But that's what it amounts to.

It is difficult indeed to get the taxpayer excited about how his money is being spent when conditions for doing so are at their optimum, when appropriations are clearly spelled out and when they're collected in one batch and put down opposite the name and/or title of the intended recipient. As it is nowadays, one must look in several places, ask a dozen questions, get, maybe, five good answers and go on from there, like a drunk fumbling to find a keyhole at three o'clock in the morning.

It's not right. But what can be done about it?

During the period of submitting budgets, now in July, it ought to be de rigueur to pay tribute to those who painstakingly prepare them and the accounts that substantiate them.

The state auditor's examiners have just turned over to Plymouth Board of Education the results of an assiduous look at what's been done in the office of the treasurer since the last time an audit was performed.

This was the first audit since the incumbent took office.

It is nice to say that she came away with flying colors. She has earned every dime she has been paid. The district is better off for what she has done and she deserves the encomium of everyone, ours included. Here it is.

There is something in the examiner's report that strikes us splendidly. Every man likes to have an independent approval of what he has done or said, particularly in the face of local resistance to what he has done or said.

The examiners found some fault with how inventories are kept by the schools. They said the records should show the name of the supplier and/or vendor, his address, the date of acquisition, an accurate description of the chattel acquired and the precise cost thereof. This especially relates, they said, to fundraising activities of the schools. Inventories should more accurately, rigidly controlled, accounted for and cost verified, so that the supervising agency can see clearly if the enterprise was conducted efficiently and if it returned a profit. Amen.

They also said that each chattel should be, indeed must be, clearly marked and a record kept of its location and condition.

Anybody who's dealt with the municipality for the past several years can testify to the fact that this rule is honored more in the breach than otherwise. The taxpayer ought to be able to see, without much effort, from whatever place in the street he chooses to take, the inventory number of official equipment. It is reassuring to him that some care, perhaps not the best, but some care is being taken of items for which he paid through the nose.

A wise hand in municipal affairs said five or six years ago something that is worth remembering. "The whole secret to efficient management at the local government level for the rest of this century is to get and keep really efficient people who work all the time, who are self starters, who need only slight supervision, and who've got enough gumption to take the initiative to do what's needed."

Amen again.

Alumnus suicide at 29 at Shelby

A 1974 alumnus of Plymouth High school was ruled a suicide at Shelby Friday.

Rodney Heydinger, 34 Fine-wind Drive, Shelby, was found by his father, Kenneth, Thursday at 9:20 p.m. He was lying in his bedroom with a bolt-action rifle across his chest.

Kenneth Heydinger had notified police Thursday at 9 p.m. that his son had not reported for work at R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co., Willard, for three days. He said he found his son's car at the apartment but the boy did not appear to be at home. Police suggested he go again to the son's residence. It was then that the elder Heydinger found the body.

Shelby police reported the dead man was seen alive on the night of July 4, when he appeared to be in good spirits.

Born in Willard, he attended Hocking Valley Technical college, Nelsonville.

He was a baseball player in Plymouth High school. His parents, who live in Route 686, a highway, Keith, at home, his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Walter Heydinger, New Washington, and his maternal grandparents, the Ralph Moores, New Haven, survive.

His former pastor, the Rev. Richard G. Harper, Collins United Methodist church, conducted services at Willard Saturday. Interment was in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven township.

Village seeks $350,000 to improve 30 houses

Plymouth will seeking a Community Development Block grant of $350,000.

The first of two public hearings was conducted Monday night with five council members, G. Thomas Moore, Keith Hebble, Bill Taulbee, Terry Hopkins and Roy Barber, and Douglas Dickson, a member of the village planning commission present to hear the village's plans for the grant.

James C. Root, village administrator, outlined how the money would be used.

It will include the rehabilitations of 30 houses up to sum of $10,000 each.

Franklin and Railroad streets would be resurfaced.

A sewer line down Railroad street will be installed. This will eliminate the present four inch line that goes under buildings of Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc. This project has long been considered, but the cost, estimated at $47,000, was prohibitive.

A sum will be set aside to purchase property and tear down dilapidated buildings so the land can be reused for new structures.

Root explained the grant must be properly administered with a great deal of paper work plus knowledge of building repairs and costs. He has budgeted $27,000 for this.

He told the council Plymouth missed out last year's grant money because of two errors made by the engineering firm, Lester Fogemeyer, Inc., with which the village contracted to do the application for a grant.

To qualify for a grant, 51 percent of the population must have incomes below the set standards. In the survey made last year, Plymouth showed it was well over that percentage, but when the application was sent to the state, the engineers showed household incomes rather than individual incomes, thus disqualifying the village on that requirement.

The second error was that the grant request must have the backing of a local banking institution, which had not been obtained.

Root told the council he is preparing the grant himself this year and that it will be submitted in time for the deadline, which is Monday at noon.

He has obtained the bank backing for $100,000 at seven percent interest from First National Bank of Shelby. This money will be used under grant guidelines for rehabilitation of housing and is repayable by individuals by categories.

Schools purchase 60-A Ellis site

Purchase of the 60-acre Ellis site in the west end of the village for use as a vocational agriculture laboratory site and a future botany-biology out-of-doors laboratory as well as an expression site for athletic activities was approved by Plymouth Board of Education Monday night.

Without dissent, the board voted 4 to 0 (Martin McKenzie was absent) by the site for $69,000. The vendor's agent, All Seasons Real Estate, has a buyer for the house and slightly more than half an acre of land, which would reduce the cost to the board to $50,000.

Steps to rearrange balance in funds were taken to provide a $69,000.

Schools foresee $88,000 in red ink

A budget calling for $83,286 in red ink for 1985 was approved by Plymouth Board of Education Monday night, but nobody is worried.

For two reasons: one is that final appropriations, which is under present law must be filed by Apr. 1, 1985, must show expenditures in balance with receipts, and the other is that, if a proposed law enacted, an entirely new budget may have to be accepted early in the new year, so the deficit for the year will more or less conform to the school attendance year.

An anticipated carryover balance of $125,242 on Dec. 31 and anticipated receipts of $2,567,844, an admittedly conservative estimate, Supd. Douglas Staggs was careful to point out, will produce a working balance of $2,689,986 in the general fund from which expenditures — "and these are decidedly on the liberal side", Staggs said — would amount to $2,717,538, leaving red ink of $28,552.

The cafeteria fund is expected to produce a deficit of $2,719 and "may have to be looked at again," Staggs warned, "perhaps after the first of the year." What this means is that the price of luncheon meal may have to be raised.

Two outstanding debts face the board, one of $200,000, to be settled by 1980 and one of $650,000, to be settled by 2001. Payment on the former during 1985 will amount to $45,500, on the latter $96,750.

All other funds are in black ink. A pupil fee schedule identical to that which prevailed last year save in one instance — the driver education fee is $5 lower — was approved.

A copy of the fee schedule is available in The Advertiser office for those wishing to consult it.

Purchase of a 65-passenger bus was approved.

Of four chassis bids, that of Aber's Garage, Ashland, for a GMC chassis was low. With all deductions, it amounted to $14,755.76. The other bids were $48,500 Coach Sales, Lexington, for an International chassis, and Mateer Ford, Inc., Belleville, for a Ford chassis.

Of four body bids, that of S&S Coach Co. was low at $8,369.76, making total cost of the new vehicle $23,115.50, half of which will be reimbursed by the state department of education. Other bids were for a chassis and equipment Sales, Canton, for a Carpenter body; Myers Equipment Corp., Canfield, and Ohio Bus Sales, Canton, for a Bluebird body. The winning bid is for a Ward body.

There are 39 extra-curricular programs in the high school. Principal Jeffrey Slawson told the board, and 37 of them are funded by the board to the extent that a coach or adviser is paid to do it. The flag corps and majorette program are paid for by the participants, who number about 14. The board voted to establish a flag corps-majorette advisor's job, ostensibly to be filled by Mrs. Ann

Two levies on ballot in November

Two village tax levies will be on the November ballot.
 Both are renewals of existing levels, one mill for Greenlawn cemetery and one-half mill for the fire department.
 Village council, however, is making a change by rewording them to be continuous rather than for a stated number of years. This eliminates having to place them on the ballot periodically.
 One mill now grosses $8,500. John Fazzini, clerk-treasurer, told the council committee Monday night what is actually received after deductions at the county level is "more like $7,200." The deductions are for county administration, workman's compensation and delinquent taxes.
 Property taxes will increase very slightly by making the levies continuous rather than renewals. The latter would be the same amount as originally voted upon four and five years ago, before properties were revalued. The new levies will be based upon the current valuation. This in the long run will be to the advantage of the taxpayer, since the next evaluation will most likely be higher, but the tax will remain at the present rate.
 Village income tax also expires at the end of this year.
 The council has the choice of putting it on the ballot or voting to renew it themselves at the present one per cent rate.
 The latter course will be followed, Mayor Dean A. Cline said. "No way, it would be voted down by the people."
 Putting a police levy on the ballot again came up for discussion.
 The mayor said he was disappointed that the council did not back him in his efforts the last time it was on the ballot. He has wanted councilmen to go door-to-door to explain to the voters the necessity of passing the five mill levy, which would free general funds that support the police department for street repairing and the like.
 Councilman Keith Hebble offered the suggestion that the village should decide just what is needed to be done, such as streets, new water lines and such, figure out the cost and present it to the voters as a levy.
 No decision was reached concerning the placing of such a levy nor one for the police department.

Schools buy Ellis site for $69,000

Supt. Douglas Staggs was unanimously empowered to undertake steps intended to lead to the sale of 38.38 acres of board-owned land at the old Wilkins AF station site at Shelby, where the vocational agriculture department now has its principal laboratory work under way. One purpose in buying the Ellis site is to eliminate the need to have pupils driving private and public transportation, including farm machinery, to and from Shelby.

What is involved is a search of the title, an appraisal of the land and an arrangement for a public auction. If the land is eventually appraised as having industrial value, it will carry a substantially higher unit appraisal than the conventional $1,300-$1,400 an acre for agricultural land in the school district.

Whatever the proceeds, they will be applied to offset the purchase price of the Ellis site.

Helpful hints from yesterday and today, too!

By AUNT LIZ

Without a doubt, our churches and schools are the most valuable things we have in the world.

Perhaps I should also thank in gratitude some really interesting tidbits come from here and there.

Not long ago the Buckeye Farm News printed a page of very useful paper bags rather than those handy plastic ones we all use. This does make sense because the paper breathes and does not trap dampness.

You know how long it can take to cream butter and sugar together for baking. Rinse the bowl with boiling water first and you can whip it together in no time.

Another little hint that everyone can use is how to keep crusts of cream pie from getting soggy. Sprinkle them with a little powdered sugar.

I am sure the people who contributed these lovely tidbits probably learned a lot of them from grandmothers.

And this version of cole slaw goes back to 1902 cookbook. It is more dignified than just plain slaw and is called cabbage salad.

It's 'I' the sauce that makes the difference.

Mix one or two eggs with two tablespoons of sugar and beat until mixed. Add a half cup of vinegar and a half teaspoon of mustard seed. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens. Let it stand until cold. Add a half cup of cream and pour over the finely chopped cauliflower.

A Mrs. B. Dennis, who contributed the recipe to the book, wrote a last sentence that is lovely: "Very delicate if well made."

On the next page is a new twist to potato salad. Usually you throw in everything in sight, but you would never have considered nuts, would you? Hickories are recommended.

Not all potato salads have to be mixed with mayonnaise. Some French ones use a different approach.

For eight medium six potatoes, boiled and sliced, use this sauce: mix in one bowl a fourth of a cup of vinegar, a teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of freshly ground black pepper, two tablespoons of consommé, two tablespoons of dry white wine, a few dried tarragon leaves, a tablespoon of chopped parsley and a half cup of oil.

Pour it over the potatoes and toss it well so the sauce sinks in.

Mrs. Dawson solves puzzle, wins second

Mrs. Thomas Dawson, who is a big puzzle solver, came in second in Shelby's Sesquicentennial jig saw puzzle contest last week.

She put together a 500-piece puzzle in three hours and 12 minutes. The first place winner, Steve Peebles, Shelby, only beat her by 10 minutes. The third place winner, a Medina winner, took three hours and 33 minutes.

Umpires elect Paddock to executive staff

Norwalk Area Officials' association, which provides baseball and softball umpires for the home games of seven high schools of the area, in its annual dinner meeting, Friday evening at the American Legion home resulted in election of David M. Hincley, Norwalk, as president; Anthony S. Ajello, Norwalk, vice-president and local rules interpreter; Arthur L. Paddock, Jr., Plymouth, and Austin E. Shields, Norwalk, members of the executive committee.

Nelson V. Lonz, 60 Broad street, Monroeville, continues as secretary-treasurer, and representative to the Northwest Ohio District Officials committee.

Local rules interpretation meetings will be conducted at Norwalk High school beginning with Monday evening, Jan. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Young men and women interested in becoming a high school umpire are asked to call the secretary at 465-2459 for information concerning application procedure concerning application with the Ohio High School Athletic association.

Computer course set -

Schools foresee $88,000 in red ink

Pfaff, 3rd, who is also adviser in those activities in Buckeye Central schools. She said she would not be able to attend every activity in which the flag corps and majorette groups will participate but offered to attend all home contests and such out-of-town games as would not conflict. The superintendent and the high school principal will prepare a job description that will delineate what services the adviser will deliver for the salary paid.

An adult computer literacy course, at $15 for 16 hours of instruction over four weeks, two nights a week, two hours a night, will begin in the fall. Mrs. William Albright, Jerry Jahn and Mrs. Thomas Dawson will teach it. Half of the fee will go toward payment for a text book, the other half to reimburse the instructors. Enrollment of 20 adults if hoped for.

The district will also participate in "summer tech" course in computers, by which the district will eventually fall hit to about three Apple computers plus some hardware. Cost is $20 for 10 hours, five sessions of two hours apiece.

Renewal of the pupil insurance coverage offered last year by Sher's Insurance Co., Columbus, represented by Jack Sudam, Shelby agent, was approved. Participation is voluntary and costs as low as $1 a year for pupils in kindergarten through six and as high as $59 for varsity foot ballers.

Police get $132,000 -

Village approves higher budget

Approval was given to an increased village 1985 budget by village council's finance committee Monday night.

John Fazzini, clerk-treasurer, explained it was "mostly guess work, but a frame in which to fit the 1985 appropriations which will be passed at the end of the year."

He said that using past figures of income, which can vary for several reasons, plus known expenditures based on last year's figures and taking into consideration any pay raises and capital improvements he came up with a balanced budget.

For the most part there will be no balances from funds carried forward to 1986. He "zeroed" them out, but said that the total disbursements he put on paper would most likely not be spent.

The utility funds - water, electric and sewer - are dependent on services billed and expenditures are based on their incomes.

The park, fire department and cemetery and ambulance are funded by law levies plus charges for the services. He figured them closely, allowing for unforeseen expenditures.

The general fund, which includes the police department and the general running of the village, will have an estimated income of $216,905, with expenditures in the same amount.

The police department's share is $132,000. Broken down, it consists of $102,575 for salaries, which includes fringe benefits, $25,000 for operation and maintenance and $4,625 for capital improvement. This is an increase of about $5,000 over the 1984 budget.
