A total of 25,491 volumes circulated from Plymouth's library last year.

They were equally divided between adult and juvenile volumes.

Adults read 9,370 fiction volumes, 3,044 non-fiction and 440 magazines.

Juveniles read 8,912 fiction books and 3,273 non-fiction.

A total of 452 audio-visual materials was circulated, of which 296 were 16 mm. films.

Mrs. J. Harold Cashman, librarian, and her aide, Mrs. Ronald Lybarger, answered 5,688 reference inquiries.

The voice of The Advertiser—

'... and a little child shall lead' Are we ready?

Somewhere in the Bible it says, "and a little child shall lead them."

Would that it should be true here.

Pupils of the third grade, taught by a home-grown product (before she married a local chap, she was Vicki Wallen, Class of 1969, Plymouth High school), have undertaken a unit relating to the environment. In doing so, they came across pollution. And they seem to have fixed upon littering as a gross form of pollution.

Are they right? Of course they're right. Not that littering is the whole ball of wax, by any means. It certainly is a matter for deep concern.

The state and federal governments have allocated money to correct the evils of littering. Regrettably, the money seems to have been thrown right where the litter is, on the ground. Such as has been spent seems to have been expended chiefly for persons and darned little for devices to accommodate litter, programs to educate folks not to litter, enforcement of anti-litter laws.

One sees a sign that says "$500 fine for littering" but one seldom, almost never, hears of one having been fined that amount, or any part thereof.

The children have put their finger on the problem. It's here. It starts with us.

Thirty and more years ago, a young business man from Wisconsin, then just about having gotten his feet on the ground here, said, "I just can't understand why every business man isn't out there every morning before eight o'clock sweeping his sidewalk, when it's nice, and shoveling it when there's snow. If we don't have enough pride in how we look, how can we expect the public to patronize us?"

His rule then, and it remained his rule as long as he continued to open his doors every morning, was to keep things neat and clean. Places that are neat and clean aren't guilty of littering.

Ed Ramsey's operation south of town, when he ran it, was always tidy and free of litter. Whatever else it may have been or not been, it was free of litter. He set a good example.

Regrettably, that example, and the one set by Harold Mack, haven't worn off on the rest of us. Our dooryards are not neat or tidy. Trash and disused items are constant eyesores.

There are some of us who, for one good reason or another, can't now apply paint to our dwellings or our buildings, even if weather should permit. But there's no reason why we can't, all of us, police our premises, tidy them up, sweep our sidewalks, rid them of trash, litter, yes, even snow.

The man from Wisconsin has always said, "By God, if we've got no pride, we ought to fold our tents and get the heck out of here."

Nobody's going to do that. But we all ought to tidy up, redd up, to use an old-time word that's still effective, and when we've done it in our own dooryards and before and behind our own business houses, we ought to do it in such places as the river bottom and the railroad right-of-way.

If the JayCees and the Lions and the Boy and Cub Scouts, need a civic project, why not tackle the latter, which is certainly our worst eyesore?

R. C. Haas dies at 83 at Mansfield

A village resident 36 years, Robert C. Haas, 83, 360 West Broadway, died Thursday in Mansfield General hospital, where he was a patient briefly.

He was earlier in Willard Area hospital for treatment of a cardiac ailment, having experienced circulatory attacks for some time, including one on Nov. 8, 1984.

Born Aug. 10, 1901, in Dayton, he was a retiree of the Fats-Root-Heath Co., where he worked in the engineering department. Until 1972, he was employed by Mansfield Aircraft Products Co.

He was a philatelist of note and at one time maintained the most imposing collection in Huron county. Having lived in Shelby, where he became friends with the late Mayor Raymond Wilkinson, also an avid philatelist, he maintained a long and friendly, although sometimes heated, competition with Wilkinson.

He was a stout Republican of the Calvin Coolidge stripe, a fact he was proud of.

Mr. Haas was a member of Christian Life Outreach ministry, Willard, whose minister, the Rev. Jerry Clark, conducted services Saturday at 11 a. m. from McQuate-Tecor Funeral home. Interment was in Greenlawn cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Patricia; five daughters, Jean, now Mrs. Thomas Kyle, Mt. Rose, Colo.; Alice, now Mrs. Eugene Barton, Gahanna; Mary Lou, now Mrs. Gilbert Ortiz, Boulder, Colo.; Jennifer, at home, and Eleanor, now Mrs. Dennis Miliron, Shelby; a sister, Alice, now Mrs. Richard Freese, Plymouth; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Life resident, Mrs. Lynch dies at home at 84

A lifetime resident of Cass, Plymouth and Auburn townships, Mrs. Louis Lynch, 84, Plymouth route 1, died at her home in Scott road 50 Jan. 30.

Mrs. Lynch was ill a long time.

Born Pearl L. Swanger at Shiloh Mar. 1900, she was adopted by the Mckel family. She was widowed in 1967. A son, Eldon (Tarzan), and a daughter, Dorothy, then Mrs. William Hursh, also died earlier.

She is survived by three sons, Arthur, Robert and Louis, Jr., all of Plymouth; two daughters, Mrs. Alice Monn, Shelby, and Betty, at home; 24 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren and one great-great grandson.

The Rev. Gordon Meier conducted services Saturday at 2 p. m. from McQuate-Tecor Funeral home. Interment was in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven township.

Visiting kin here, Kentuckian dies

Visiting her daughters here, Mrs. Malcolm Vanderpool, 72, Hueysville, Ky., died Thursday in Mansfield General hospital of a brief illness.

Born Hester Prater, she was a member of Old Regular Philadelphia Baptist church, Break Creek, Ky., and of the Senior Citizens of Martin, Ky.

She is survived by three daughters, Eva, now Mrs. Arthur Edgson, and Thelma, now Mrs. Oscar Waddles, both of Plymouth, and Mrs. Lucille Reffitt, Flintwoods, Ky.; a brother, Leonard Prater, Stanton, Ky.; a sister, Mrs. Nora P. Shepherd, Hueysville, Ky.; nine grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Her husband, a son, a daughter, two sisters and five brothers died earlier.

Services were conducted from Hall Funeral home, Martin, Ky.

At Opydke road and Route 61—

Man, 51, killed in car-semi crash

A 51-year-old Townline road 12 man was killed Saturday morning when he drove his car beneath a North American semi-tractor rig that was turning around at Opydke road and Route 61 south of here.

Minnard Montgomery, en route to Shelby to visit kin, was dead on arrival in Plymouth's ambulance at Shelby Memorial hospital.

The collision occurred at 7:10 a. m.

State highway patrol reported Diane Dreibeiss, 36, Oneco, Fla., driver of the rig, accompanied by her husband as passenger, was apparently lost and sought to reverse direction. Montgomery's car was southbound. The rig blocked both lanes. Montgomery apparently applied his brakes but his vehicle slid under the semi rig.

He was born in Salyersville, Ky., and lived in or near North Fairfield, lately in Townline road 12, for 35 years. He was employed 17 years by Sheller Globe Co., Norwalk, where he was a member of Local 1379, UAW.

His wife, nee Dixie McCarty, to whom he was married May 31, 1952; four sons, Roger L., North Fairfield; Shane C., Willard, and Minnard, Jr., and Gregory S., at home; three daughters, Mrs. Beverly King, Mrs. Patty Turley and Debbie, all of Greenwich; his parents, the Price Montgomeries, Jackson, Ky.; four brothers, Marvin, Willard; Orbin, Delphi; J. C., Gauge, Ky., and Kenneth, North Fairfield, and two sisters, Louise Montgomery and Mrs. Irene Honaker, Willard, survive.

The dead man was the uncle of Mrs. Frank Hodge and Ben Montgomery. His wife is a cousin of Mrs. John Ganzhorn.

Services were conducted Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at North Fairfield with interment there.

Can businesses be induced to go to 'old style' fronts?

An effort to induce businesses in the Public Square to redecorate or remodel their fronts to resemble what was courant in turn-of-the-century decor will be made by Plymouth Historical society, it ruled Jan. 31.

Opening of the museum in April, perhaps also during evening hours, is planned. Cataloging of gifts by the Ashland system was approved.

A new form of membership, organization life, was adopted. Any civic, patriotic or fraternal organization may contribute $100 and obtain one voting membership therefor.

Founders membership at $15 will remain open until Oct. 24. Next meeting will be Mar. 28.

Ex-trustee Wood Arnold in new home

Former Shiloh resident and Cass township trustee, Woodson W. Arnold is now residing in Lincolnway home, Middle Point.

He was at Hillside Acres, Willard, but now is closer to his son, Allen, and his family, who live there.

His daughter, Mrs. John Bowman, lives in Phoenix, Ariz.

Computer replaces library's card file

The computer revolution has swept into even the quiet corners of the community.

Library users will soon seek borrowings of books on the shelves by referring to a computer. The card catalog system is out.

Jeffrey R. Krull, director of the Mansfield-Richland County Public library, of which the Plymouth library is a part, announced Friday the new system will be in force as soon as workmen can get it installed.

The new system will replace the card catalog, and all transactions will be recorded and stored in the system as soon as a book is charged out, Krull said.

In addition, the new system please see page 5

Fond of potatoes? Why not use in nut bread?

By AUNT LIZ
Do you know anyone who really doesn't "collect" something?

Sometimes he doesn't know it, like a friend who adores mystery books and reads them, then stacks them on shelves. She has hundreds.

Coins usually lead the list of the most popular little things to go after. Then there's match covers, baseball cards, slot machines and so on. Of everything man has ever made plus a few that You-Know-Who dreamed up, like seashells and rocks.

But someone has really missed the boat. You never see cookbooks on any list. Is there even one kitchen that you know of that doesn't have a couple, plus little bits of paper that have been snipped from a newspaper or a magazine?

This month the Ford magazine (you have to buy a Ford to get it and it is worth it) has an article about a chef who really has gone at it with 30-some rooms filled up and two librarians to take care of them. Maybe that is going a little too far for most of us.

We have maybe 50 and there is a big catch to it: they are not very beautiful, or at least don't seem imposing. In fact a couple are held together with rubber bands which says they have been used so much and some pages are a little splattered from getting too close to mixing bowls.

O. K., books are books, but even this famous chef does not overlook those little free ones that food people put out. In fact, some of the best recipes come from them, like mincebread. Anything you see that is free, grab it. Years ago a grocery store had little pamphlets of prize-winning chicken recipes, about six of them, and so help me, they are the best you can ever find.

The latest one we have seen has been loaned by a friend. It's put out by the Prince Edward Island potato people. Of course they want to sell theirs and have come up with some ingenious recipes that you would never dream about yourselves.

There are 60 million ways to use potatoes, even though they are best just baked and eaten with melted butter.

You can make breads and rolls, but this is the first time I have seen them in nut bread. Actually this is more of a fancy deal that works like a dream with a spicy cup of hot tea on a cold, windy day.

This makes two smallish loaves. Mix two cups of flour, a teaspoon of cocoa, two teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of soda and a dash of salt.

In another bowl mix a half cup each of milk and mashed potatoes and beat until smooth.

Then in another small bowl cream a half cup of butter with two cups of sugar and a teaspoon of vanilla.

Gradually add the dry things with the milk mixture. When mixed, in goes a cup of finely chopped walnuts.

And at the very end fold in three beaten egg whites.

Bake in greased pans at 350 degrees or until a toothpick comes out clean.

You can save the egg yolks for really good French toast. With just a little milk added, this makes a good crust.

All about town . . .

Third graders urge public not to pollute

In connection with a unit on pollution and its evils, some of them wrote letters to the editor.

"A summary of what they said: 'I am concerned about pollution of our water and the air we breathe. My classmates and I would like to live to be 100. So please, grownups, do everything you can to clean up this awful mess.' — Connie Ross.

Kellie Pratt knows how to get attention. "I like your newspaper. Pollution is bad. No one should do it. It is not nice to litter. It looks ugly in lakes."

"I would like to see the river cleaned up. Please tell me what I can do to help." — Lori Root.

"Please tell the people of our town not to litter. Please put up signs that say, 'Please do not litter.' — Andrea Rettig.

Angie Howard recognizes it's everybody's job: "We would like to help. And we hope that you can help, too, so our lakes can look clean."

"If these people litter along the banks of the river," writes Adam Taylor, "and the river flooded, it would kill the grass and other plants. And that's why I think people should not litter."

Kara Fenner observes "I have a river behind my house and it has newspaper in it and pop cans. . . Give a hoot, don't pollute!"

Curtis Handshoe recommends a trash can at every corner. But he doesn't say who could collect them, or how these things should be paid for.

Mark McClure is of the same stripe. He says "we need more trash cans."

Bret King adds his hope: "I would like for this town to be clean."

He is joined by Glenn Coulter. "I would like our town to put trash cans around the town."

The pupils are third graders.

USPO changing forwarding fee, rules therefor

A change in mail forwarding rules will eliminate most address correction fees Feb. 17, the same day the U. S. Postal Service puts new postage rate and fees into effect.

For the first time, all magazines, newspapers and other items mailed second-class will be forwarded nationwide, at no charge, for 60 days from the effective date of a change-of-address correction of a change-of-address order. At the end of the 60 days, a publication or address correction notice will be returned to the mailer with the new address or reason for nondelivery attached. At present, all second-class mail can be forwarded for 90 days but the customer must pay for the forwarding if the publication is sent beyond a local delivery area. At the present time, parcels on which first class postage has been paid (priority mail) cannot be forwarded free of charge, but the newly revised regulations provide for forwarding of priority mail at no charge. Post and postal cards that are now unreturnable will also be returned to senders with address corrections under the new regulations.

Under the old regulations, an address correction fee was charged even when it was provided incidentally to the return of a mail piece, but under the new regulations a 30-cent fee will be charged only when it is part of a separate correction notice.

Friendly persuasion.

What would it take to persuade you to join the Payroll Savings Plan and buy U.S. Savings Bonds?

We could appeal to your patriotism. Or we could point out the dangers of not preparing for the future.

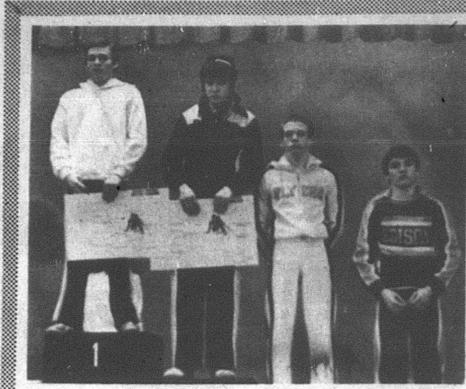

Instead, we'll just point out in a very friendly way that Bonds are one of the easiest ways to save. Even if saving has always been difficult for you. The Payroll Savings Plan sets aside a little from each paycheck toward Savings Bonds. And that's a nice way of saving, because you'll hardly miss it. But if you need it, it'll be there. Just like a friend.

Champion!

Terry Parrigan occupies top step of dais to receive plaudits as champion in 105-pound class, Firelands conference wrestling championship. Those he defeated, representing Black River, St. Paul's and Edison, occupy lesser places.

Terry Parrigan is Firelands conference wrestling champion in the 105-pound division. Scott Ryman is runner-up for the championship of the conference in the 185-pound class. Sid Rothschild placed fourth in the 155-pound group. Plymouth scored 72 points, good for seventh place in the conference standings. St. Paul's, the favorite, won it with 216½. Black River was second in the matches at Sullivan Saturday, scoring 201½. Edison was third at 125. There followed New London at 108, Western Reserve at 85 and Crestview at 83. Mapleton at 68½ and Monroeville at 25½ trailed the Big Red.

Parrigan defeated Nick Billy, Black River, 10 to 8 in the finals. Ryman lost to Scott Gercis, Western Reserve, 4 to 3. Rothschild went down before Dave Hartley, New London, who pinned him in 2:35. Jeff Staggis, 112-pounder; Jeff Echelberger, 118-pound class; Steve Helms, 132-pound group; Greg Burks, 175-pounder, and Billy Collins, heavyweight, lost in the first round. So did Steve Hawkins, 145-pounder; Craig Runkle, 138-pound class, and Larry Brooks, 167-pound class. Parrigan won his first bout 15:40 1 over Monroeville's entry, Ryman his first with a pin over Hoffman of Black River.

Red avenges Pirate loss with 70-50 home victory

Plymouth seized the lead on a basket by Kevin Taylor with 5:36 remaining in the first period of a Firelands conference game with Black River here Friday and the Big Red never looked back in stamping out a 70 to 50 revenge victory over the Pirates.

Plymouth led by seven after eight minutes and by six at the half. Its classic third quarter collapse did not occur. Plymouth outscored the Pirates by two in the crucial third canto, playing a cautious game, albeit shooting with less accuracy than is needed on a consistent basis to win the rest of the slate.

The Big Red got off 15 shots at the basket during the third quarter and made just five of them. Taylor's four points led the pack.

The Pirates, correspondingly, having shot just 31 times in the first half, unloaded only six times, making four, a rate of conversion that if maintained in a contest would certainly take them to the state championship.

Where Plymouth broke it open was in the last quarter. Absence of a shot clock, which would have forced the leader to shoot and score or run the risk of surrender of possession unless it could control the offensive rebound, compelled the visitors to foul. And foul they did, in abundance. Plymouth was afforded 22 free throws in the final eight minutes. It scored with 13 of them. Overall, Plymouth failed with 12 of 30 charity shots.

His shooting from the field was not bad. It got off 55 tries and made 27, certainly highly respectable and considerably more than what it has done in the past.

Steve Hall had a good night before he was called to the bench early in the fourth period, when Coach Dave Dunn saw he had it locked away. The doughy Hall scored 24 points, with 10 field goals, Taylor contributed 13. Nine Big Red players got onto the scoreboard, including some who never got there before. These were Jason Robinson, who contributed three free throws, and Mike Lasch, who also scored three points.

Plymouth outbounded the Pirates, 38 to 30. And it made two fewer mistakes on offense, 15 to 13. The Pirates will be strong next season. They lose only one player of the entire squad by graduation.

Jim Woods scored 19, Tim Channel 20. These two were all the offense that Black River could produce.

one's displeasure. The black river fans, certainly not numerous (the black is the fourth greatest for Pirate fans to travel to see a conference game), showed equal appreciation for effort and result to each team.

Shacking Plymouth's top scorer, Rhonda Branham, without a field goal, Western Reserve came roaring from behind in the fourth period at Collins Monday to defeat Plymouth, 66 to 42, in Firelands conference play.

The Big Red led after 24 minutes at 31 to 30, but could not hold off the Roughriders in the last eight minutes, when they outscored Plymouth by three. Kay Niedermeier with 14 was the only player of the game in double figures.

The Riders outshot Plymouth from the field, 16 to 13, but scored only 12 free throws, whereas Plymouth had 16.

Colonel Crawford in the third quarter broke open a five point game here Saturday and walked away with a 60 to 46 victory over Big Red girls.

Plymouth could not deal effectively with Kim Skoronski, who scored 23 points, nor much better with Tina Gingery and Vicki Cole, who bagged 12 and 11, respectively.

The Eaglesles shot for field goal 52 times and converted 21 of them much better than Plymouth's performance, which was 19 of 65. The visitors missed 12 of 30 free throws, Plymouth 12 of 20.

Warning issued Sports enthusiasts have been overly enthusiastic with their snow mobiles during the last few weeks in Greenlaw and Pioneer Rest cemeteries and Mary Fate park. Because of the damage that can occur, they are asked to find other areas in which to disport. They can also face prosecution for trespassing.

Pirates too much!

Black River was simply too much for Plymouth here Jan. 29. The Pirates all but blew the Big Red off the floor in girls' competition. In this jump, Lori Fidler can't quite reach the ball and Black River took possession as Tami Tackett, No. 22, looked on in frustration.

Computer invades library shelves to catalog books will allow patrons to learn whether a book is in the library's collection, where a specific book is, how many copies the library has access to, how long the book has been out, and when it is due back.

Krull said the CLSI LIBS 100 System 73 computers will earmark library offerings to ensure first-come first-serve reserve and will better enforce library rules, keeping habitual overdue-book patrons, or patrons with unpaid fines, from checking out other materials.

"The new system is a more direct public service to borrowers," Krull said, adding that libraries are not adopting the new system to cut back on staff. He said staff members will undergo computer training.

The library's assistant director, Richard E. Allwardt, is the system coordinator for the automated project.

There will be a total of 32 terminals at the main library and its branches. Thirteen computers will be installed in the main library.

Because some library patrons may be frightened by the automated system, Krull said, there will be an orientation to teach them how to use the machines.

Krull said that in the event of a power outage, there is a daily back-up system which will store transactions. In extreme cases he said the system would lose at most, one day's worth of stored information on a disk.

The system has two disk packs to store all transactions.

The cost of the automation equipment is approximately $301,000.

Krull said eventually all library patrons will have to have a bar-code sticker on their library card. Borrowers who already have a card will have to re-register, Krull said.

The library was to issue some bar-code stickers, also known as zebras, Friday to people who didn't already have cards from the main library.

Patrons who already have cards will get the bar-code stickers later this month.

Richland county residents may receive a card free of charge, and out-of-county residents may obtain a card by registering and paying an annual $10 fee.

Anyone under 18 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian when applying for a card. The parent or guardian must agree to accept responsibility for the selection, use and return of library materials selected by the minor, and for payment of any fines or charges incurred.

Patrons may apply for a card at the main library or in Plymouth. Patrons may also apply for cards at county and city bookmobiles.

The library signed a contract in October with CL Systems, Inc., West Newton, Mass., for installation of the automated system.

Sloans' smoke caused by vent in dryer

Firemen were called Jan. 30 to the residence of the John Sloans, 88 West Broadway, where smoke was coming from the dwelling. A malfunctioning vent in a clothes dryer was causing the smoke and there was no fire.

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of the dearest best friend a person could ever be blessed with while on Earth.

For the wonderful times we had growing up and sharing so many secrets (some we still share) still feeling just as deeply with and times and being there for each other.

For all the encouragement we gave each other to reach our goals and accomplishments. All the hopes and dreams - I can not think of them without thinking of you.
We always said we would sit back at 70 and look back on our lives and laugh...

And most of all in memory to all the happiness and dreams come true that we had finally reached in our lives - the kind of happiness that we had discussed so many times on your front porch swing on summer nights.

Happy Birthday, Ellen Condon
