Mrs. Jump in running for mayor, but Hebble?

Mrs. Terry Jump, now a councilman, is circulating her petitions to run for mayor in the November election.

Mayor Keith A. Hebble, who took office last month when Mayor Dean A. Cline resigned, must seek reelection this year to continue in the office since Cline had not served at least two years of his term. Hebble will announce his decision next week.

Should Mrs. Jump lose the election, she still has two years remaining of her council term. Councilmen Roy Barber and E. Adrian Cole have filed their petitions to run for their council seats, which expire at the end of the year.

Councilman Terry Hopkins has said he does not plan to seek reelection. He was appointed to fill a vacancy and later elected to a four year term, which expires Dec. 31.

Mrs. Lutz, 79, kin of villager, dies at Ashland

Mother of Mrs. Warren Hollenbaugh, 124 Franklin street, Mrs. Celia Estella Lutz, 79, Ashland, died in Good Shepherd home there Friday morning.

Born in Cleveland Oct. 3, 1905, she was formerly a member of Sullivan Christian church.

She was married Sept. 21, 1940, to Wilton Lutz. He also survives.

So do a daughter, June, now Mrs. Wesley Gardner, Willard; a son, Clifford C. Lowe, Ashland; 10 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Juan Acuna conducted services at Ashland Monday at 2 p.m. Interment was in Jeromesville cemetery.

Memorial contributions to the Ashland county unit for the Cancer Society are suggested.

Youth injured; car struck tree south of here

A 20-year-old Plymouth driver was severely injured Thursday afternoon when his car left Springmill road near the Henry road intersection and struck a tree.

Barnis Kemstager, 24 East High street, en route to Plymouth from Mansfield, where he attends classes, to meet his newspaper route obligations, was lifted by helicopter to Mansfield General hospital, where he was placed in the intensive care unit in "stable" condition.

His car went off the left side of the road and struck a tree with great impact.

After release from the intensive care unit, he was found to have no broken bones but several deep lacerations and bruises.

Police said, "If he hadn't been wearing his seat belt, he'd be dead."

A 34-year-old Plymouth woman was involved in a minor collision at Shelby Thursday at 6:05 p.m. Paula J. Sturgill, 33 West High street, collided with a vehicle driven by David Roush, 21, Shelby, also southbound, in North Gambie street.

The Sturgis car struck the Roush vehicle when she sought to change from the left lane to the right lane.

By unanimous vote—

Spognardi named chief of police

Bill N. Spognardi is the new police chief.

He was appointed by village council Monday night.

With regret, noting that Hodge had 10 years of service with the village police department, the council, apparently upon the advice of the village solicitor, Richard Wolfe, 2nd, did not feel that the village could afford to continue his employment, since it is not known when he will be able to return to work because of a back ailment.

Councilmen were in agreement that Spognardi during his temporary position with the department has performed in a satisfactory manner.

Under state law he must serve a six month probationary period.

The announcement of the council actions came after an hour long executive session during Monday's special meeting.

Ordinance 660.10 was revised to allow displays on the sidewalks during special village events, paving the way for merchants to legally conduct the annual sidewalk sales this weekend during the Firemen's festival.

The ordinance which evidently was not reviewed at the time of its passage, states explicitly nothing can be on the sidewalks more than one hour.

The matter came to a head when

Shilohan guilty in pot charge

A 22-year-old Shilohan was found guilty of possessing less than 100 grams of marijuana in Shelby Municipal court July 22 after he pleaded no contest.

Richard L. Laney, Euclid street, was fined $100 and costs.

Rape claim investigated by police

A 14-year-old Willard girl's statement implicates a 19-year-old Plymouth youth in a case of rape with consent.

Complaint is reported to have occurred Sunday at 9:34 p.m.

Willard police are dealing with the accusation.

Civil suit vs. Berberick, PLW settled

Out-of-court settlement, with costs assessed against the defendants, has occurred in Huron county common pleas court in the $145,000 damage suit lodged by David Burlockoff and Sandy, Utah, against Robert M. Berberick, Plymouth and his then employers, Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc. and Banner Industries, Inc. Bell and Pine streets, and the Doe Corp. address unknown.

Complaint was dismissed with prejudice, which means plaintiff may not again in this jurisdiction lodge a suit laid on the same issues against defendants.

The suit arose from a dispute between Burlockoff and Berberick, resulting in physical violence. As a result, Berberick was dismissed. Burlockoff was engaged in trucking.

He was a member of Plymouth plants being made for the sidewalk sales because last year several merchants who always displayed their merchandise outside their buildings were told they could not do so, as it was prohibited by the ordinance.

Mayor Keith A. Hebble was authorized by ordinance to enter into a contract with Ohio Power Co. by which the company will furnish cheaper power through amp-Ohio.

Village Administrator James C. Root estimates the village will save about a half a cent per kilowatt for three fourths of the year when the cheaper power is available.

The power is generated in New York and transmitted through the lines of Ohio Power.

Councilman Roy Barber asked if this could mean lower electric rates for village users.

Root's answer: "No, but they will not be raised." He said the additional savings in the electric fund are needed for the legal expenses of the village joining into this power grouping. The village has not paid its share for several years, and must make payments to catch up.

John T. Dick, a Plymouth native who lives at 127 West Broadway, was appointed cemetery trustee to succeed his old friend and neighbor, Carl V. Ellis, resigned. Dick served several terms as village councilman. He is a 1932 alumnus of Plymouth High school who worked for two generations for the Fate-Root-Heath Co. before he retired from the engineering department. His service there was interrupted by World War II duty in the Army.

Question of whether Ordinance 258.12, relating to place of residence of village employees, was not discussed. Solicitor Wolfe is studying the matter.

Whether in executive session the fact that a petition is circulating

Will USPS remove post office at New Haven?

Closing of New Haven's post office is recommended by the Grace Commission, a study group appointed by President Reagan to recommend cost-cutting steps for the federal government.

Closing of North Fairfield's post office is also recommended.

Presumably postal service to New Haven would be divided between Willard and Plymouth post offices, those of North Fairfield between Greenwich and Norwalk post offices.

The Grace Commission in its recommendation: More than one-third or 12,469, of all post offices serve 100 or fewer customers. Replacing slightly more than half of these post offices with equal but cheaper alternative services would save taxpayers $272 million over three years."

One post office pattern in New Haven, one of 40 years' standing, said July 24, "People won't be happy about that, they prefer the safety of getting their social security checks at the post office rather than run the risk of having them stolen from the rural mail box."

Couldn't they have the checks sent directly to their banks? "For myself, I want to feel my money between my fingers," was the reply.

Lions Club and of Shelby Aerie, PO Eagles. He was a social member of George R. Broderick Post, VFW, and of the AmVets at Shelby.

Vernon; and 14 grandchildren.

His former wife, nee Patricia Ann Barnd, also survives.

A brother, Gerald, and a sister, Betty, also died earlier.

The Rev. Daniel Hurnrichouser, Forrest D. John, John Wolfe, Rainbow Valley chapel, conducted services Saturday at 1 p.m. from McQuate-Secor Funeral home. Interment was in Maple Grove cemetery. Pallbearers were Judge Ralph E. Johns, John Wolfe, James Adams, Bill Spognardi, Jack Shay and A. L. Paddock, Jr.

Parade Saturday to highlight 9th PFD festival

Annual Firemen's Festival, on again, off again and on again, will be staged tomorrow and Saturday.

Climax of the two day event, proceeds of which will be applied by Plymouth Fire department to purchase and service of items not provided for in the village budget, is a parade that will march, over the traditional route, Saturday at 3 p.m.

Mrs. Wayne E. Strine, wife of the fire chief, is chairman of the parade.

As of Monday we had about 110 different units signed up to march in our parade. I expect more between now and the time the parade starts, which will be right on the button at 3 p.m.," she said.

Plymouth High school marching band, directed by J. Jeffrey Conklin, will lead the units of the parade, marching behind the color guard of Ebert-Parrel Post 447, American Legion, commanded by Theodore A. Ross.

Whether the parade would indeed march was clouded by a request of Acting Police Chief Bill Spognardi for clarification of a long-standing but seldom thought of injunction against the village obtained by the late Ray and Olga Dinninger in 1942 and upheld by an appeals court after the village sought to overturn the decision in common pleas court at Norwalk.

Spognardi told the village council he would accede to its wishes if the council would assure him he would not be prosecuted if he issued a permit to parade in defiance of the injunction.

The council sought the opinion of the solicitor, Richard P. Wolfe, 2nd, Ashland, who said that if an alternate route of travel is clearly marked and afforded to through traffic during the 90 minutes or so that the parade will occupy Route 61, he believes the sense of the injunction will be respected.

So this is what will be done. Northbound traffic in Routes 61 and 98 will be routed west through to Route 598 and thence north to New Haven. Southbound traffic will be routed in the same fashion, beginning at the Route 598 intersection south of New Haven, and alternately via Plymouth East road to Townline road 111, thence south to Base Line road, thence west to Willard road, thence south to Opydke road, thence west to Route 61.

Local traffic seeking to avoid the line of march may use Plymouth East road, North street, Partner street, Mulberry street and Birchfield street, opting either for Springmill road or Route 61 to proceed south.

A chicken barbecue on the firehouse grounds will be the order of the day tomorrow and on Saturday. Firemen will prepare the cooking and conduct the barbecue. Members of the auxiliary have organized the preparation of beans, potato salad, cakes, pies and other refreshments.

A tug-of-war competition will begin Friday evening. Finals will take place Saturday.

Weighing in of entries will take place tomorrow at 6 p.m.

First pull is at 7 p.m. Richard Roll, member of the department and high school football coach, is director of the tug of war competition.

Plymouth Lions club will organize a flea market in the west side of the square Friday and Saturday from 10 a. m. to 4 p.m.

Mud volleyball competition will follow the tug-of-war pulls both days.

Bingo will be played, for prizes, in the firehouse both days.

Antique auto show, organized once again by the Carl M. McPhersons, will begin Saturday at 9 a.m. and conclude at noon.

A free street dance will be conducted Saturday from 9 to 12 p.m.

Drawing for the prizes assembled to the firemen will take place Saturday at 8 p.m. One need not be present to win.

He was born in Shelby June 26, 1907, and lived there all his life. He retired in 1972 after 38 years in the employ of Ohio Seamless Tube Co.

He was a member of First Lutheran church.

He is also survived by his wife, Leone; a son, Stanley, Shelby; two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Adams, Shelby, and Mrs. Valma Long, Norwalk; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

PFD organized in '23, has had six chiefs

Will the new pump be here for the Firemen's Festival? Probably not, firemen said Tuesday.

"But it'll be here soon!" they promised.

To one member of the department, Wallace H. Redden, the acquisition of the new apparatus marks a real milestone.

He joined the department in June, 1947, and has completed 38 years as a fireman. He holds the rank of assistant chief. Only twice before has the village acquired a new pump engine.

Eckelberry, also an assistant chief, with primary responsibility for the ambulance service, is next senior member of the department. He joined in June, 1956. The incumbent chief, Wayne H. Strine, a graduate of Plymouth High school, where he excelled in football and track and field, and a Navy veteran, signed up in April, 1964. There are 10 women certified to perform rescue services.

A Prayer for Firemen

*When they are called to duty, God
Whenever flames may rage
Give them the strength to save some life,
Whatever be its age.
Help them embrace a little child before its too late.
Or save an older person from the horror of that fate
Enable them to be alert and hear the weakest shout
And quickly and efficiently to put the fire out
And if according to Your will they have to lose their lives
Please bless with your hand their children and their wives.*

PFD founded 63 years ago

Luther R. Fetters. There have been five subsequent chiefs: Bert S. Marvin, Dalton F. McDougal, Ray Bright, Judson A. Morrison and Strine.

The present firehouse, since expanded, was dedicated Dec. 4, 1960, after almost a decade of debate over where it should be located and how it should be funded. Funding was by issuance of councilmanic bonds, because the village council was certain the electorate would not vote to tax itself to fund a new firehouse.

The ambulance service dates from 1972, when R. Earl McQuate gave up his private service.

The first leaders were the late Robert O. Garrett and Donald Vanderpool. The first ambulance was a gift of Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., to which it was returned when it was replaced by a new one.

—Advice to horsemen—

Get good stallion, breed 100 a year!

"I hear," the voice on the telephone said, "that you're interested in the nitty-gritty of the cost of maintaining a stallion and whether a man can make out of it."

"You got it, sir. What's your name?"

"Before I tell you that, I'll make a deal with you. Are you willing?"

"What sort of deal did you have in mind?"

"I'll tell you all—and I mean all—you want to know but—"

"That figures. What's the deal?"

"You can use the data any way you want, but not so my name can be traced to it or the name or location of my stallion."

"What's the reason for that?"

"My business is my business. I tell the IRS what it needs to know and I tell 'em the truth. But if the truth gets more publicity than the lying of my return, they're likely to come to audit me or go over my report closer than what they would otherwise and I want no part of that. If in the normal course of things they pick my return out for audit, that's okay with me. But I'm not going to tempt 'em."

"Seems like that's going a bit far. If you've got nothing to hide, why not make the whole deal ring true by spelling it all out?"

"No way, pal. Do you want to or don't you?"

"Can I come to see you?"

"Only if you promise not to print who I am or the name of my stallion."

"I'm not sure I want to participate on those terms."

"That's okay, too. But I was told you are serious and sincere and you want to know and that you'll treat me fair. I've told you the ground rules. Do you want to come or don't you?"

After some thought, he was told this: "Very well, I'll come, but I'm taking you at your word, I can see everything."

"There was no hesitation. 'You got it, pal. Now here's how you get to my place.'"

And a whole day at Belly Acres produced these conclusions:

1. A one's place is paid for, he can indeed make out with a good stallion.
2. It is a fact that promotion of the stallion, by word of mouth, by print, by film, by whatever ingenious method, is the lifeblood of the enterprise, but

3. It don't mean a thing, as the song goes, if the foals don't win.
4. There is no substitute for careful study of the genetic lineage of each stallion and mare with special notation to performance of each and of its get, and an equally careful surveillance of the competition.
5. It is helpful to be able to afford to be choosy about what mares you'll breed.
6. Opportunities to buy stallions at prices the small man can afford don't often occur and seldom seek him out. The small breeder's aim must be to go to the tracks, to spend time on the backstretch, to talk to the groom, the drivers and trainers, the owners to know what's apt to become available.

Which is what Harry Newell did when he bought J. D. Redmond, a proven pacer at age seven, with a record of 1:55.3 for the mile on a half mile track. He is the son of a multiple stakes winner and the grandson of one that was the best in the business in his time. J. D. Redmond looked 'em all in the eye and beat 'em.

Why was he available? Injust. Couldn't it be that? Probably, but he was through with racing. Why wouldn't the owner put him into stud? The owner's not geared up for that, doesn't own a farm, wants to race, not breed.

So Harry dickered and he got the price down to $67,500. He had $22,500 from an inheritance. He talked his banker into a loan of $45,000 for five years at five percent.

And he loaded J. D. Redmond into his trailer and brought him to Belly Acres.

Harry was green as grass about promoting. But he made some telephone calls and he ordered some advertising and he had some flyers printed that he distributed at assemblages of the faithful, those who buy, train, race and sell standardbreds. His first efforts succeeded only in part. He was told to redouble them. This he did. And the statement that appeared below is the result of two years of diligent effort.

J. D. Redmond will be 11 years old come Jan. 1.

The figures below represent 1984 income: 57 mares serviced during 1983. 44 paid during 1984. $8 per $1,500 = $66,000

4 @ $1,250 = 5,000
 Expenses: $71,000
 Feed and maintenance $2,000
 Veterinary fees 150
 Breeding expenses 250
 Registration, administrative costs, telephone, etc. 450

Third in a series about what's happening in Ohio's oldest competitive sport.

Insurance on animal 3,038
 Advertising and promotion 7,500

Payment on principal and interest ($45,000 @ 12% over five years) 12,012.12
 Interest on initial investment (money that would have been earned by the owner if he had invested his $22,500) 2,700
 Total $28,099.62
 Net profit $42,900.38

J. D. Redmond was acquired in 1982, when he was seven. He had amortized the animal on a five year write-off.

For 1984, he deducted $15,500, as he did in 1983. Purchase of the stallion in November of 1982 did not warrant any amortization for that year.

So he paid federal income tax on net adjusted income of $27,400.38.

If he figures this amount to $10 an hour for his time.

If his farm weren't paid for (he charged against the stallion account a fair market price for hay, straw, oats and home-grown items fed to the animal, and credited to his farm account), he'd be hard put to make a good living from the breeding business alone.

That he also engaged in general grain farming and raises a few head of cattle, which in 1984 returned a modest profit, enables Harry Newell and his family to live in some style. They want for little, but he doesn't buy Brooks Brothers suits, either.

Want? "All we want for is more quality mares," observes Newell. "The opportunity to enlarge my net profit with damn little increase in costs is clear. And if the foals start to win, I'm set. J. D. has probably 10 years, maybe 12, left as a serviceable stallion in high demand. He'll educate my kids and keep Marge and me in our old age, because we're putting the profit away in an IRA. D'you know of anybody who ever rounded up some good foals by offering a commission?"

Nope. But we'll keep you in mind, Harry.

All Seasons scored six in the fifth and seven in the sixth on the Riggs street oval July 23 to win a senior division contest over Voisard.

obviously with the knowledge of Councilman Terry Hopkins, who is strongly opposed to changing the ordinance to permit any village employee to reside beyond the Plymouth telephone exchange, urging the council to insist upon its enforcement is not known. To enforce the ordinance to compel Spognardi to move to the village or to give up the appointment. Supporters of Hopkins's position, who include almost all of the fire department and all of the police employees save one, thus direct their stance against Spognardi, whom they obviously dislike.

"Shiloh's all but bent out of shape by this ox roast and parade," observed a man from Monroeville Saturday, "but those ducks there"—pointing—"only want their corn, for it's supper time!"

A pioneer in support of fire prevention and fire-fighting in Plymouth . . .

Our employees were part and parcel of the first fire department. And they still are. For many years, firemen summoned to a call during working hours were paid for their time, even though they were coupling hose, climbing ladders, or whatever.

We're proud of our community service.

We're proud of the community service of our employees.

Food costs dropping? Not so, she says; even worms higher

By AUNT LIZ
Every month our government and a bunch of economists put out all sorts of figures about the cost of living.

Any dumb housewife can tell you they are wrong. Things are not going down one cent. More likely they are going up ten.

Maybe these great brains are looking at the wrong things. Not once have they mentioned earthworms.

Over the years I have watched these little fellows advance about 10 cents a year. Once they were about 10 cents, now they are up to 90. A dozen, that is. Maybe they are becoming an extinct beast and need protection. Or could it be that the soil they inhabit has gone in a price? Still, those worms are getting right up there with caviar.

It used to be that little kids had a ball digging them out. I will never forget the night I looked out a window and saw flashlight beams all over our backyard. It turned out that our neighbor was going fishing, so he had his kids, and ours, and others digging. They had a lot of worms, but now, labor gets paid. No matter what age it is.

It is really sad that all of sudden people do not do anything out of kindness. Very fortunately, we still have friends who do. They give us stuff, and it is hard to keep up with a little repaying, so I get tangled up with recipes of stuff I don't think they will think about.

I tried something the other day with great hopes that I could give some to a friend. No way, it was horrible. Think twice when you cut something that sounds delicious out of a newspaper.

We had the apples. They are a rotten thing. They are growing on land for sale and no one was bothering with them, so I started picking. It is plain stealing, but they were going to waste, and they are too good for that. Anyway, I tried this great recipe. It actually is more like a pudding than a cake and should be done in layers. This I did not do. I just used a large baking pan. It should be put together with scads of whipping cream or the like.

What was wrong was the flavoring? I followed that recipe down to the last teaspoon.

Try it.

Slice thinly enough apples for two and half cups.
Beat three eggs and mix with two and a half cups of sugar. Add the apples. Have ready a cup and a half of flour with three teaspoons of baking powder and a dash of salt, if you feel you need it. You don't, really. And throw in some cinnamon and nutmeg, which the original recipe did not have. Mix it all up, then add at least a good person of almond extract. The recipe said only a half, and it turned out blah. Any flavoring could be used, since anything goes with apples. Frankly, I think two teaspoons of brandy or rum flavoring would be great and that I will try the next time around.

It can be baked in a large dish or in two layers, but grease them well so the stuff will come out.

Also, throw in some raisins, which can perk anything up and are apparently a real glut on the market today, although the price has not gone down. So they are still sitting out there in California waiting to be eaten.

Forgot, bake it at 350 degrees until you think it is done. Remember the apples are cooking in it, so it is kind of hard to tell just when, but when the crust is done, that is it.

I have been accused of coming out with really outie recipes. What is this then? All you have to do is find a nice apple tree.

Dog owner criticizes police

Sir: When my husband and I married and were looking for a home to raise our children, we never considered looking anywhere but Plymouth. We were both raised in or around the village, and believed the advantages enjoyed in a smaller town far outweighed any disadvantages we might encounter.

Where have those advantages gone? We recently, inadvertently, lost our dog. I did not however become concerned but called the police department and left my name, phone number and description of our pet, with the assurance they would phone "if the dog turns up". I also ran classified advertisements in the paper and began calling the dog warden daily.

Upon returning from vacation, I again called the dog warden, only to find that yes, he had had our dog. The Plymouth Police department contacted him to pick the dog up the day before our vacation, and the dog had subsequently been adopted out.

While I was at least consoled that our beloved pet was not dead, but had found a home, I was also furious!

I immediately drove to the police station to inquire as to why we had not been notified our dog had been found. I was told the dogs are never taken to the station itself, but to a kennel kept by the village, and often no report at all is made concerning the description of the animal picked up or whether it may have been reported lost or stolen.

When I was growing up, someone would have checked.

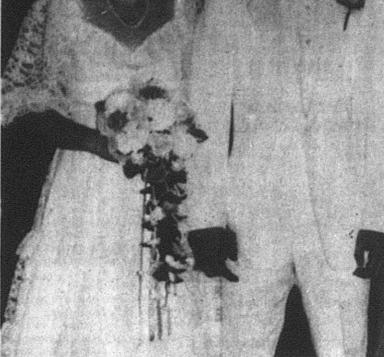

Has Plymouth grown so in size, or is indeed crime running so rampant in the village, that our (stress on our, as we pay them) policemen have no time to check a report? A report on a dog that was, no less, clipped, groomed, and wearing a collar? Obviously this dog was someone's pet, but did anyone take the time to care?

I entertain no doubts that were I to speed through the Square, park in a "no parking" zone, or have a noisy party, they would take the time to "care". Unfortunately, returning missing pets to children is a non-profit activity.

I find great sadness that so little remains of the advantages I remember of living in Plymouth. The people remain much the same, however, our "big city" law enforcement seems unable to tailor their policy to the needs of those people.

Perhaps a little more time devoted to public relations and a little less to writing citations would earn our police department more of the respect they all insist they deserve. I know their image has certainly dimmed in my eyes... and the eyes of my four-year-old son.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Elaine Enderby
(Mrs. James Enderby)
