

Fazzini to retire after 26 years here

Resignation of a 26-year teacher was accepted Monday night by Plymouth Board of Education.

Paul Fazzini in writing told the board he wishes to retire as of April 1.

He began his teaching career here as an industrial arts instructor in the Shiloh school. His current assignment is as high school occupational work experience program instructor.

Fazzini taught five years before coming here.

At the urging of Supt. Douglas Stagg, the board agreed to join the Metropolitan Educational council, which is cooperative of about 100 school districts to buy school supplies.

Stagg said, after only checked a few items offered, he discovered the district could save about $800 each year on the purchase of disposable luncheon trays used in the high school. He also said the cafeteria staff had looked at the items and also agreed there was a savings.

Lucas, Clear Fork and Shelby schools in Richland county are already a part of it. Stagg said he thinks another district would also join it during its meeting Monday. This would bring the number of the districts in the county to the level that a representative from Richland would be part of the government.

Another aspect of the program can be the possibility of saving on heating fuel. Stagg said that this year 50 district members have worked out a program to purchase gas directly from the supplier and lease Columbia Gas of Ohio, he said.

It will cost Plymouth $455.60, figured at 40 cents a pupil, not counting those attending Pioneer Joint Vocational school.

Approval was given to the mathematical competency test to be given in the spring for third, sixth and ninth graders.

The test was developed by Mrs. Charles Briggs, Mrs. William Albright, Jerry Julian, and Mark Sheely. Stagg said they put in long hours working on it.

Here's report of mayor due each year

The following report is presented in accordance with the law requiring the executive officer of the municipal corporation to present a report annually on the affairs of the Village.

INDUSTRY: Our largest industry changed ownership during 1985. The jobs and taxes provided by this industry are vital to the economic health of the Village so we should do everything in our power to cooperate with the new owners to ensure their continued successful operation in Plymouth.

We found no new industry for the industrial park during 1985. We need more effort toward finding new industry and Council should consider such things as making the site more financially attractive by creating an enterprise zone in the industrial park and finding a volunteer within the community to spearhead our efforts in obtaining new industry.

COMMERCE: We have many empty stores in the downtown area, which, while typical of most small villages in Ohio, need not be that way, as evidenced by some small villages which have thriving downtown areas. Through the continued effort of our Planning and Zoning Commission, the Chamber of Commerce, the building owners, and the Village Administration, progress can be made. I believe that as we improve the appearance of the Village, new commercial enterprises will be attracted to our downtown area.

FINANCE: The continued good and timely information provided by the Clerk-Treasurer along with a lot of smart hard work by the Finance Committee and the Tax Director enabled the Village to maintain a good financial condition throughout 1985 and projected through 1986.

With certain levies to expire in 1986, the Finance committee has a well thought out plan to handle these levies by replacing and adding where needed and dropping those not needed. It is important that all changes be adequately explained to the voters to ensure passage of the needed levies.

SAFETY — FIRE DEPARTMENT: 1985 saw the long awaited arrival of the new fire pumper truck. I am sure that this unit is the finest of its type in our area. I must commend the taxpayers for providing the original funding and the combined efforts of the Fire Department personnel, ex-mayor Dean Cline, the Village Council and the Clerk-Treasurer for the prudent investment of the original funds and the innovative financing that will perpetuate the pumper fund to provide for future purchases of fire department equipment.

Expert examination of the back-up squad unit has determined that the unit is overloaded, which may contribute, along with the design of the unit, to unstable driving characteristics. This unit is out of service now and careful consideration must be given to potential liability problems prior to sale or other use of this unit.

SAFETY — POLICE: 1985 was a very difficult year both personnel and finance wise. We had three different chiefs and the unexpected loss of one cruiser. Spending was approximately $500 over appropriation. The main reason that spending was even close to the appropriations was that during the time that we

Three aim for seat of Westerhold on commission

A Hartland township trustee in his second term in that office aspires to be Huron county commissioner.

William Focht, Clarksfield township, will seek the GOP nomination to run for the post to which James Westerhold, only independent commissioner in Ohio, seeks reelection.

The 43-year-old Focht ran once before, in 1984, and lost to Roy Palmer in the party primary.

WILLIAM FOCHT

Focht will be opposed for his party's nomination by Marian Moyer, Bellevue, a 49-year-old member of the GOP central committee who sought to unseat Rep. Richard Rench in the party primary in 1982. Mrs. Moyer is a member of the Huron County Airport authority.

So far no Democrats have come forward to declare for the commissioner's seat.

A 43-year-old New Londoner, Glen Shepherd, will also seek the GOP nomination to be commissioner.

He has operated a real estate agency for 24 years. Married to a New London school teacher, he has two sons.

Nominating petitions must be filed by Feb. 20.

Stober reelected as GOP member of election board

Leroy Stober, chairman of the Huron county board of elections, will serve another term as member of that board.

The Republican party executive and central committee voted to support his candidacy, despite the fact the county chairman, former sheriff John Borgia, wanted the

The name of the 44-year-old Stober will be sent to Secretary of State Sherrod Brown for appointment. Stober is an insurance agent in Wakeman.

Shiloh to retain Hostetler parcel

Mayor's vote negates effort to release site to township

The vote of Mayor Delmar Nesbitt at Shiloh Jan. 9 defeated a move to release four acres of land acquired by Harley Hostetler that was annexed earlier.

Councilman Robert Barker moved that the village retain the site, on which Hostetler ostensibly wishes to graze horses. In October the council approved an ordinance that prohibits the keeping of livestock such as horses within the village and Hostetler hired Neil A. McKown, a Shelby lawyer, to represent him. McKown advised the council to revoke its action or release the site to the township, as it was before the annexation.

Councilman Charles R. Reeder seconded Barker's motion.

Discussion ensued and when the roll was called, Councilman Charles Strickland also voted yeas. Councilmen Richard Tallman, Gloria Powers and Barbara Music voted nays.

Village to seek renewal of two levies in primary

Two levies will be sent to the primary ballot, village council Tuesday night.

Actually four levies expire at the end of this year, but only the levies for the general fund and cemetery will be voted upon. The 45/100 mills for both the park and fire department will be allowed to expire.

The park picked up a new one mill levy in November, and the park board agreed to drop the 45/100 mills.

The fire department has a continuing three mill levy for operation and maintenance, which the council thinks is sufficient and agreed not to ask the voters to renew the expiring one.

This will result in a savings to the taxpayer, but there will be a small increase owing to reappraisals in the five years since the

The council agreed that a new two mill levy for the general fund is necessary rather than renewal of the existing 1.8 mill tax.

Mills for the cemetery was not determined, pending a decision by the trustees of what they feel is necessary. A one mill levy is expiring, and the trustees may opt for a new levy at a higher rate rather than a renewal.

Nine choristers to sing in fete at Delaware

Nine Plymouth High school choristers will participate Jan. 25 in the 36th annual high school music festival of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware.

They are among a select group of 106 singers who will appear with the Honour Choir, directed by Robert Nims, Ohio Wesleyan associated professor of music.

Choristers are Sherry Feltz, Krista Castle and Rhonda Neely, soprano; Becky Lewis, Tammy Isaac and Jamie Moyer, contralto; David McDonald, tenor, and Jamie Beck and Tony Bolen, basses.

So it was up to Mayor Nesbitt to break the tie. He did so by voting yeas.

What Hostetler will do now remains to be seen. The village's position is that the site has long since been annexed, it is a part of the village, the harboring of livestock law is in force.

Strickland was sworn to a two year term left by Barber, who resigned to accept the term to which he was elected.

Roy Taylor, a Plymouth policeman, represented a plan to organize a village police force. The proposal was handed to the police committee.

Hospitalization coverage for two employees, Wayne Baker and John Shepherd, with $400 deductible, at a cost of $248 a month, was approved. Contract with Blue Cross of Northern Ohio was terminated and a new one with Blue Cross of Central Ohio entered into.

The village plans to change its liability insurance to the National Sheriff's Association from their Sheriff's Association.

Police Chief Stephen Caillard had one quotation of $6,362 for $1 million coverage. The cost last year was $2,551.56. However, if the village opts for half of that coverage, it will be considerably less.

This will cover 19 members of the police department and possibly village officials.

The current policy expires Feb. 25.

Caillard said the arrangement of the county sheriff's office answer telephone calls while the village does not have a dispatcher on duty is working out well even though two calls must be made, the first to the local number then to an 800 number in Mansfield. He said the time lag is small, and that the village has set up the system during "slow" periods of the year.

Councilmen decided not to sell a small piece of village property adjoining the swimming pool. Two freeholders who share an interest in purchasing it, but it is decided that it would simply cost more to have the land surveyed and the legal work involved would be more expensive than what the land would bring.

Councilman E. Adrian Cole said he had a request for the installation of a street light at the curve in North street.

The council turned thumbs down on it when James C. Root, village administrator said it would cost the village $60 to $70 a year. There are no houses in the area, he added.

Don G. Echelbarger, here four generations, dies at home at 89

For four generations a figure in and near Plymouth, where he worked as carpenter and farmer and raised his family, Don G. Echelbarger, 89, Baseline road, the last house in New Haven township, died there Jan. 6.

He was in poor health for some time.

He was the son of the Reuben Echelbarger, born in Wood county May 30, 1896. His father was among those who perished in the infamous fire at Fitchville in 1963, on the date President Kennedy was assassinated.

He was widower in 1940 and raised his family of seven daughters and a son.

They survive. So do two sisters, Mrs. Ila Atteo, New Haven, and Mrs. Lena Shirey, Willard; 24 grandchildren and 45 great-grandchildren.

His children are twins, Donna, now Mrs. Orva Dawson, New Haven, and Dorothy, now Mrs. Duane Arnold, Plymouth route 1; Lucille, now Mrs. William B. Ross, Plymouth; Jeannette, now Mrs. Isaac Beatty, Greenfield; Elsie Jane, now Mrs. Gordon Albert, Greenwich, and Betty, now Mrs. John Gilger, Shiloh, and a son, Don M., who lives with his family in the homestead.

Two sisters, Mrs. Pearl Fink and Mrs. John Gilger, Shiloh; a grandchild and a great-grandchild also died earlier.

The Rev. Preston Van Deursen, minister of First Evangelical Lutheran church, conducted services from McQuate-Score Funeral home Jan. 8 at 2 p.m. Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Cass township.

New tax for schools likely?

It may be time for Plymouth Local School district to seek additional tax support.

A budget calling for expenditures of $3,020,570 from the general fund, against anticipated revenues of only $2,982,612, which includes a carryover balance, was approved without dissent Monday night. Neither was there objection raised during the budget hearing.

The projected deficit is $37,958, which amounts to about 1.25 percent of anticipated spending from the general fund, is neither large nor unusual, according to the school board. It probably will be eliminated by some economies as the year grows on.

But the signs are there. Costs please see page 2

Two 12th graders pupils-of-month in high school

Two 12th graders are pupils-of-the-month for January in Plymouth High School and will be recognized by Plymouth Lions Club.

They are Ronald Arnett, son of Mrs. Sharon Arnett, 90 West Main street, Shiloh, and of Ronald Arnett, Mansfield, and Karmel Edler, daughter of the Roy Edlers, 160 Nichols street.

Arnett, grandson of the late Woodrow Arnett, Plymouth, is enrolled in the talented and gifted program. He works on the Hawamal, the yearbook, and is a member of the Art club. As a ninth and 10th grader he participated in the annual spelling bee. As an 11th grader he belonged to the Foreign language club. An honor and a member of the choir, he won the English award sponsored by NCTE for achievement in writing.

He aims to matriculate in art at Cleveland Institute of Art or Columbus College of Art and Design. Enamored of oysters foreign, he seeks to be involved in European affairs while college aims for a baccalaureate degree in illustration and eventually wants to own his own business.

Miss Edler, granddaughter of Mrs. Alice Chandler and the late Mr. Chandler, competes with the cross country team, is a cheerleader, runs on the track team, plays in the bands, belongs to FFA, the pep club and the senior activities committee. A Buckeye Girls' State delegate, she is enrolled in talented and gifted pupil program in English. The cross country and cheerleading squads chose her to be captain.

She aims to attend Ohio Wesleyan university to major in elementary art, biology or music.

Red throttles Eagles, 77 to 64; Keene hot shooter

Monroeville chose a bad time to tackle Plymouth in Firelands conference basketball Saturday night.

The Big Red was spilling after a one point deficit, its first in league play, at the hands of Crestview the night before. It was at home and ready to take on bears with a smile.

And what transpired was a lesson in shooting by Prof. Troy Keene, the 12th grade who is co-captain of the Plymouth team, a three sport athlete and a formidable marksmen.

What did he do?

He succeeded with his first 10 shots at the basket, scored 20 points in the first half, 24 points for the night, and let Plymouth to a 20-point lead at halftime.

Monroeville did not play poorly. It scored 14 in the first period, with seven successes in 19 tries, and it managed 13 in the second quarter, with six conversions in 14 tries, not so bad by Class A standards these days.

But there was no contesting with the red-hot Keene and his teammates.

Plymouth garnered 25 in the first eight minutes, with 12 conversions in 19 tries, and 22 in the second period, with 10 of 18.

It is all but impossible to overcome shooting of this type.

What's more, the Big Red was conducting itself in the ideal manner: no mistakes on offense. Or almost none. Plymouth was charged with only one turnover in the first 16 minutes.

The Eagles made only four. They missed seven of eight free throws, whereas Plymouth was awarded just three and scored with each.

Classically a team that does not do so well in the third quarter, Plymouth once again lived up to that label. It got off only 13 shots in the final 12 minutes of the second half and scored with just four. It added four free throws in seven efforts.

Monroeville outpointed Plymouth by two in the third quarter and by two in the last one. But Plymouth's first half lead was too much for the Eagles to overcome.

Monroeville shot for field goal 68 times and converted 29 of them. It failed with 11 of 17 free throws. Ron Stang was the leader with 21. Jeff Winslow and Brett Colahan contributed 11 apiece.

The Eagles took down 36 rebounds, eight of them by the burly Colahan, and a guilty of 15 mistakes on offense.

Against this, Plymouth got off 64 shots at the basket and scored with 33, just over 50 per cent. It failed with eight of 19 free throws.

The Big Red rebounded 32 times, nine of them by Keene, and committed only 12 errors on offense.

Steve Hall, the scoring leader of the Big Red was a point behind Keene. And Bryan Christoff scored 14.

Plymouth did not get strong scoring from its big men, both of whom were in foul trouble with three personals by the middle of the third quarter.

Both benches complained about the referees. Coach Jim Dillard urged his charges not to be dismayed by the calls. Nevertheless, neither team profited by what the zebras did.

Cougarettes brutal: 51-27

Cougarettes took it to Plymouth early at Olivesburg Jan. 7 and 27, and whipped the Big Red, 51 to 27.

Coach Mike Badertscher, whose team went down to its fourth defeat of the season, blamed the long layoff, in part, for his outfit's poor performance.

"But we didn't shoot all that well," he said.

All that well, indeed.

Plymouth first for field goal 64 times and was successful with just 12, less than 20 per cent. It missed two-thirds of its free throws.

Crestview shot 45 times and converted 21 of them, a splendid showing. It missed 40 per cent of its free throws, six of 15.

Kids are smart at parlor games! Try chili recipe

By AUNT LIZ

Never underestimate a third grade teacher.

Credit also has to go to the preschool, kindergarten, first and second grade ones, too.

When a third grader can take a mother, a father and a grandmother, who have six college degrees among them, to the cleaners, someone has to be given credit.

It all happened playing Monopoly.

The game is plain fun, but knowing how to add and multiply sure helps. Another aspect of it is the planning ahead. Even adults don't do that.

That game has been around since I was a kid, and I wonder how many of our very successful people of today ever played it and remembered a few of the quirks of how to acquire and clean out their competitors.

The night we played it, our third grader knew just what she was doing. She managed to own a couple streets, then got into houses, and then into what she called "motels" but the game is so old it calls them hotels."

Because she was playing with relatives and felt sorry for us, she lowered her rates, which she carefully figured out while taking a potty break. She sailed back and announced since the three of us were just about broke, rates were 50 percent less. And she had it right down to a dollar.

Learning can be fun a lot of educators say. Kids may not agree when they have to sit through a class day, but it can be.

There are all sorts of spelling games like Scrabble, and there is a new one where you build up top of each letter. Next time you need a present for a little one, look for these.

Then there is one about parts of the body. It is jokey, but at least shows where some of the essential things are, which any child probably up to the third grade will remember until he really has to study it.

Then there are all the other things that are fun, but are plain expensive, like the Barbie dolls and those ponies. Probably they Elmer (Bill) Kennard, 65, Shiloh, died at Cleveland.

Jeffrey Holt was appointed as a cadet in the U. S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Mrs. Catherine D. Pennell, 60, sister of Mrs. Henry Van Loo and of Wallace H. Reid, died at her home here.

Police charged harassment by Carlene D. D. Brumback.

Patrick David Coover will marry Theresa Yetzer here.

Red upset Fredricktown, 59 to 51, Mike Carter scoring 20.

Clear Fork 70, Red 49.

Girls won their first game, defeating Crestline, 23 to 10.

Mother of Mrs. Thomas F. Baker and a village native, Mrs. Robert A. Remmy, 58, died yesterday.

Kenneth G. Salisbury, former mayor of Monroeville, will seek, subject to the GOP primary, to succeed Arthur F. Hermer, Monroeville, as Huron county commissioner.

Five years ago, 1981

Mrs. C. David Rish will retire as treasurer of Plymouth Local School district after 25 years in its employ.

Mrs. Sidney Ream became the 11th village clerk in 10 years.

Robert I. Bachrach, 46, prominent local businessman, died suddenly.

COLD WEATHER...THE BIGGEST REASON YOUR NATURAL GAS BILL IS HIGHER.

At times this winter, arctic blasts have plunged temperatures to bitterly cold levels below the normal winter weather standards. And as the temperatures went down, the amount of energy needed to keep your home warm went up. Those low temperatures of a few weeks ago are the main reason the gas bills you're paying now are higher than before.

Columbia has done everything possible to control the cost of natural gas service to your home -- but the weather is a factor that's out of our hands.

If you're having trouble paying seasonal high bills, contact your Columbia Gas office. If your gas bill is too high to pay all at once, we could help by arranging to even out monthly payments through an extended payment plan. We can also provide information on assistance programs.

And if there are other ways we can help make this tough heating season easier for you, we'll find them.

COLUMBIA GAS

Now that there are lower "off-peak" rates, the heat is on for Electric Thermal Storage.

Ohio Power Company's request for lower "off-peak" electric rates was recently approved by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

The new, lower rates are in effect now and you can take advantage of them by installing an economical Electric Thermal Storage heating system in your home.

The Electric Thermal Storage (ETS) furnace uses "off-peak" electricity at night to heat you on your heating bills all day long. "Off-peak" rates are in effect from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. With this special equipment you can take advantage of the lower rate. In addition, the lower rate applies to all weekend usage too!

ETS works like a thermos. It stores enough heat at night to heat your home for the rest of the day. Heating coils inside the ETS furnace heat special bricks throughout the night. The bricks then store heat which the furnace draws from at night, and the rest of the day.

Water heating can also be done at this low rate. And individual room heaters are available, which let you comfort control any room.

Find out more about the energy and money-saving advantages of ETS. Send us this coupon and we'll send you complete information about Electric Thermal Storage, the furnace that pays for itself.

Electricity. It's the power of choice.

Millard Fillmore would be 186 years old —

Local doctor's brother-in-law was 13th president of U. S.

History does not record that Plymouth benefited in any way from a close relationship with the 13th president of the United States.

Not while he was in office, nor while he was vice-president, nor during the 21 years of his life as a senior statesman and former president.

The whole business is an agate line in a Trivia game produced by Plymouth Jay-Ceas.

Millard Fillmore was born 186 years ago Jan. 7, in Locke, now Summerhill, Cayuga county, N. Y.

He was married to Abigail Powers Fillmore, daughter of Lemuel Powers, a Baptist clergyman at Stillwater, N. Y.

It was her brother, Lemuel Powers, Jr., a medical doctor and distiller, who settled in Plymouth and became an important figure here in the 1850s.

Mrs. Fillmore was in poor health, perhaps brought on by difficult pregnancies (she had two daughters, Mary Abigail, born in 1832, died in 1834, shortly after her mother left the White House) defeated for election in his own right after the party of his youth, the Whigs, turned its back on him because he took it as his duty to enforce the Fugitive Slave Act, and Mildred Powers Fillmore, born in 1828, died in 1889). The younger daughter substituted for her ailing mother as official hostess at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N. W.

Fillmore acceded to the presidency upon the death of Zachary Taylor on July 9, 1850. He had previously been nominated by the Whigs to be governor of New York in 1844. He was defeated. In 1847 he was elected comptroller of the Empire State and in 1848 was nominated to run for vice-president with General Taylor. Fillmore surrounded himself with an extremely capable cabinet and sailed a middle course. It was his skill as a negotiator, that historians say, led to the Compromise of 1850, which put off the War of Northern Rebellion for a good 10 years.

That party was a sorrow to him, but he held to his principles and subsequently ran as a third party candidate. The party, officially called the American party, commonly known as the Know Nothings, did not command broad support and Fillmore was defeated.

He returned to his home at Buffalo, N. Y., where he died Mar. 8, 1874.

His brother-in-law, Dr. Powers, conducted a flourishing homeopathic practice here and, so long as he could survive with the taxing laws, he conducted a whiskey business.

The ball came close, or so some Plymouth fans believed, but not close enough. Close counts only in horseshoes and hand grenades.

The bright spot of this performance by Plymouth was the contribution of the feisty Jason Conley. He played splendidly on defense and scored 13 important points to the Red team. He missed five of 10 shots from the field and two of five free throws.

Twice in the fourth period, he saved Plymouth's bacon by stopping a Cougar advance with a steal.

In the last minute and 40 seconds of the game, the zebras robbed Plymouth of two field goals by calls of violations that, even to the most unbiased reporters with no stake in the outcome, seemed questionable.

Crestview entered the fourth quarter with a distinct advantage. It had three fouls to give up. Plymouth had just one.

And the Cougars made something of it.

And they also applied strategy: outrebound Plymouth.

The visitors controlled the board in the first half, Crestview in the second. When the smoke cleared, Crestview had won the game, Plymouth out 41. The Cougars made 17 mistakes on offense, Plymouth 13.

He who paid his way in to see this one got his money's worth and more. This is what schoolboy basketball and friendly rivalry is all about. That Dave Dunn, a Crestview alumus, was denied a victory over his home school is sad, perhaps, but he will be back again. And his team will win. But not if it forgets what it's about for any part of the game.

For as Crestview proved Friday night, it can never be beaten. The fat lady began to sing little more than three minutes left. Her aria was long and replete with thrills and thrills. When her last breath was taken, the Cougars were in front.
