

Kilgore to run for judge; contest sure in primary

A Mansfield attorney who lives there, Terry Kilgore, will seek the GOP nomination to oppose David Arbaugh, incumbent Democrat, as judge of the Richland county juvenile court.

Kilgore faces party opposition by Robert Konstant, now assistant prosecutor.

Will incumbent Judge David Arbaugh run again? He hasn't said.

The Democrat will face party opposition if he does. Paul Christ, a Mansfield lawyer since 1964, who ran for prosecutor in 1980, will file a nominating petition for the judgeship.

Christ was assistant city law director at Mansfield from 1966 to 1970.

T. Michael Dornier is another Democrat who aspires to the judgeship.

Christ was assistant city law director at Mansfield from 1966 to 1970.

Stober reelected as GOP member of election board

Leroy Stober, chairman of the Huron county board of elections, will serve another term as member of that board.

The Republican party executive and central committee voted to support his candidacy, despite the fact the county chairman, former sheriff John Borgia, wanted the job.

The name of the 44-year-old Stober will be sent to Secretary of State Sherod Brown for appointment. Stober is an insurance agent in Wakeman.

Schaaf buys drive-in

Dalton Schaaf, who operates a used car and body repair business at New Haven, has bought the old Plymouth Drive In theater from Edward O. Ramsey and will perhaps use it as a display place for used cars.

Ramsey had sold the place to a Bucyrus firm, which defaulted on an estate tax. The premises were advertised for sale by the Richland county auditor but did not fetch sufficient money to satisfy creditors and the property was not sold. Ramsey said he would deal with the matter after his return to Richland county.

Once maintained in spic-and-span condition by Ramsey and his staff when he operated the theater, the place deteriorated over several years. Some young entrepreneurs were encouraged to open a farmers market on the site, but the late Bill Colling built a permanent seasonal stand across the highway from the theater site, but they found that to do so, even assuming the Bucyrus freholder would allow free use of the premises in exchange for cleaning it up, would entail an investment of money to settle outstanding utility charges that they could not afford to do so.

Ramsey built the place in 1953, with the financial backing of the late Arlo W. Firestone, Shiloh Savings bank. Ramsey was a cater manager and he prospered for several years. He earned a reputation that "you could always take the smallest child there with no fear he would be corrupted by what appeared on the screen, not instantly what appeared on the floor, because Ramsey kept the place clean."

The number of persons, male and female, you and old, who worked full or part-time for Ramsey at the drive-in theater and at the indoor theater he operated at Porter and East Main streets for a number of years until the village council passed an ordinance to collect a tax on businesses, which led him to quit business in the village, is substantial. Many of them have died.

Elyrian running to oust Rep. Pease

A 32-year-old Elyrian seeks the GOP nomination to oppose Rep. Donald J. Pease (D-Oberlin) for the 13th district Congressional seat.

He is William Nielsen, Jr., engaged in a family-owned steel business in Lorain.

He announced his candidacy Monday.

Nielsen said the big problem in the district is unemployment and he lays part of the blame upon the trade policies abroad. He said the market is not to be back into the control of the farmer and that federal waste is a problem he would deal with if elected.

State Sen. Richard Schafnath, who was appointed to the seat vacated by Lowell Steinbrenner (D-Wooster), will announce his candidacy for the seat of the fourth congressional district, including Richland county, Saturday. He is a former Ohio State and Cleveland Browns lineman who won all-American and all-pro selection. He has since retirement been involved in a cancer livery at Loudonville.

A Huron county grand jury has indicted Ronald G. Shephard, 23, of West Broadway, Plymouth, on two counts of breaking and entering.

Another juvenile, living in Shiloh, will be dealt with by the Richland county juvenile court.

The indictments are for entry on Dec. 27 into the garage of the Byron Reams, 116 Sandusky street, where a 14-lb. turkey was stolen, and the garage of Norman Burton, 42 North street.

Son of the Fred Brown, Willard, he was a graduate of Wittenberg university, Springfield, and Hamilton Divinity school. After ordination he served Lutheran churches at Lucas and Carey.

He is survived by his wife, nee Janice Ramsey, now living in Lucas, Ohio; Jeffrey, Jeffrey, Joe, Columbus, and Jan, Carey, and a daughter, Julie, now Mrs. Jeffrey David, Columbus, and two sisters, Mrs. Florence Conger and Mrs. Rose now Mrs. J. Richard Mitchell, both of near Willard.

Patton named to trustee post of cemetery

Toy C. Patton, a former councilman, has been appointed a trustee of Greenlawn cemetery by Mayor Keith A. Hebble.

He replaces Cleland Marvin, who resigned because of ill health. Patton is a retired employee of Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc.

Woman hurt in collision in Skinner road

A collision in Skinner road Jan. 14 resulted in injury to a 30-year-old Plymouth route 1 woman and summonses of two drivers.

Mrs. Janet Hawblitz received minor injuries and was treated in Willard Area hospital emergency room.

She was headed west in Skinner road and created a hill when she noted an unattended parked truck belonging to Keith Heydinger, 26, Plymouth route 1. She applied her breaks, skidded and struck the rear of an unattended van belonging to Mary Bonham, 46, Plymouth route 1, also left in the road because it was stuck over an embankment. It also struck Heydinger's car, also stuck over the embankment.

She was charged with failure to halt within an assured clear distance, Heydinger with parking in the roadway.

PPD going to dogs? No, just Tonya!

A new member has been added to the Plymouth police department.

Tonya, owned by Patrolman Roy C. Taylor, has joined the department's canine team, bringing it to two members.

$77,900 bid taken for truck for village

Approval was given by village council Jan. 14 to the purchase of a bucket truck for the electrical department.

It will be bought from the Baker Equipment Engineering Co., Richmond, Va., for $77,903.

The council agreed to purchase an optional item which added a little over $4,000 to the base bid. It is for an additional bucket capable of lifting 2,000 pounds. Terry Jump, head of the department, said this would make it easier for him to work alone and save the village the cost of additional help.

Only two bids were received for the truck. The other bid was $15,000 more and did not have the desired equipment.

It is anticipated it will take about nine months for delivery.

Roy Barber was again chosen president pro tempore of the council.

Kenneth Echeleberry, sexton of Greenlawn cemetery, and James C. Root, village administrator, have given their approval to the new storage building in the cemetery.

Redden breaks leg in fall at firehouse

Assistant Fire Chief Wallace H. Redden was treated for a fractured right leg Jan. 8 in the emergency room at Willard Area hospital.

While he was doing electrical work in the fire station, the ladder slipped and he fell.

White to run once more; Swank seeks reelection

Two veteran Richland county officials will seek reelection.

Paul White, the septuagenarian commissioner, will campaign for another term.

After service as a newspaper reporter for a Mansfield journal, he entered the civil service of Mansfield and has successively served for a generation as city and county official.

A Democrat, he is the minority member of the board of commissioners.

A fellow Democrat, Freeman Swank, Belleville, incumbent auditor, will seek reelection as well.

The 60-year-old Swank is well known here because he and his wife have entered a colorful donkey hitch in a number of parades here.

His farmer in Route 97 east of Belleville, he and his wife, Rheabell, have three sons.

Swank first got into political life as trustee of Jefferson township.

FREEMAN SWANK

Roscoe to quit auditor's post; Elmlinger to run

There'll be a new auditor in the Huron county courthouse come next year.

Culbert B. Roscoe, incumbent Republican auditor, will leave that office on Dec. 31.

The 52-year-old Roscoe says he and his family own some farms and he'll manage them — "they're my hobby, anyway" — and he will end his six years of service in the influential post.

He was appointed to the office by the party to succeed Kenneth Reed, Willard, who retired. Reed succeeded the veteran Bernard K. Keen. The Republican party has controlled the auditor's office for over 35 years.

Roscoe ran against Thomas King, a Bellevue Democrat, for the unexpired term in November of John E. Elmlinger, incumbent Democratic Huron county recorder, will seek to be auditor, succeeding C. B. Roscoe, Republican, who is retiring.

Elmlinger first came to public life when barely out of his teens he was chosen a trustee of his native Sherman township in 1973. He was elected recorder in 1976 and reelected thereafter.

His candidacy is subject to the party primary.

Elmlinger's wife is physical science teacher in Monroeville High school. They reside in Norwalk.

Contretemps

This matchup, Jason Robinson, he of the dogged defense, left, and Tim Clark, the offensive whiz of Mansfield Christian, produced some acrimony Saturday. Clark complained that Robinson was hounding him and taunting him as well. Clark, and the Flames, lost.

Photographer Scott Gano caught this glimpse of Red stands in second half Saturday as Robinson, No. 30, and three-fifths of Mansfield Christian team sought the ball.

Live it up! If not wieners, roast beets!

By AUNT LIZ
For years I laughed at all the reports about what the so called "media" were doing to us.

They have and do.
The other day I realized I knew more about Ewing Oil than any other oil company in the world. I also knew more how General Hospital is run than any general here.

What is really getting to me are all the health programs that I hear on the radio while driving.
I've had it with all of them, and if it means rock music, which kind of hurts my ears, that's it.

It has gotten to the point that there isn't a blessed thing to eat anymore that can be considered healthful, let alone safe.

A lot of us have not so silently yipped at our kids for being so fussy about what their children eat. Last summer, when some of them came to visit, I got a nice list of what to buy; they are careful about additives, and that I can understand, partly. Mostly because those things they were careful about, I considered pure luxuries, not to be eaten every day.

The real payoff came last summer when we had a little birthday wiener roast, and one of the guest, a visiting grandson of friends, was not to eat any wieners because of the red dye involved. That grandmother packed his lunch, the rest got red dyed hot dogs.

Then I heard some doctor being interviewed and she said that the very wrong thing you can eat is maras chino cherries, because of the preservatives and dye, and everyone knows how great one looks on a fudge sundae. She was then asked what was the second worst thing. Wieners!

So now what? Do we give up all these tasty little things we grew up with and continue to live to maybe 9007?
I say, live it up.

But it you are serious about red dye things, there is the real thing. Beets. They are plain beautiful, good for you, and have hardly any calories.

You either buy them in a store or pull them up out of your garden. Not in France, though.

For some reason they are sold baked. They do take a long time to boil, so this is a real boon to the shopper.

Just when you have a roast or something good in the oven. Trim them, and stick them in, a slow oven is best, about 300. If hotter, put them is some water.

They are finished when a fork goes in nicely. Take them out and peel, and you are ready to pick them or reheat with butter, sour cream, whatever.

The French do something else with them. They grate them, coarsely, put them in a skillet or even a wok with butter, lemon or orange juice, a speck of water, salt and ground pepper and some fresh onion or onion parsley.

Cock gently covered until you think they are done.
And what can look prettier next to a nicely browned piece of roast beef and snowy white mashed potatoes?

Wildcats pesky, Red prevails on stiff defense

Plymouth overcame a stubborn New London team there Friday night, 72 to 59, on the strength of a clanging defense that forced 24 Wildcat mistakes and an eight point run at the opening of the final period.

It was not an easy victory, despite the 13-point difference in the score.

The visiting team is at some disadvantage at New London, where the floor is 500 square feet smaller than regulation (10 feet in length, five in width). Almost everybody throws up a zone defense. The New London entry invariably counters with a zone press. And when the Wildcats have some height, as they do this season, they are tough. In the first half, for example, they out-rebounded Plymouth, 20 to 14. When the smoke cleared away, the figures were New London 37 and Plymouth 36.

Refusal to buckle under pressure early in the second half, when things weren't going so well — the Wildcats scored the first two buckets and built a seven point lead at 47 to 40, and an eight point run that brought Plymouth to within a point at 49 to 46 with time running out in the third quarter. Then what? Then Mr. Business did his business.

Steve Hall threw one in from the corner and as the buzzer went off Plymouth went to the sideline with a lead of 50 to 49, a lead it did not again relinquish.

The Big Red tore off the first six points of the fourth period and then got two more, from Kevin Taylor, before New London could score with a rebound by James Bracken, who wound up with 10 points. Then Eric Rath and Brian Christoff, the latter off a jumper from 14 feet out, sank shots and Plymouth was home free at 62 to 51.

The Big Red strung together six more points and New London was reeling.

Hall concluded his efforts with 23 points, well above his season average of 19 and a bit. Christoff contributed 14. He was consistent: two in the first, four in the second, six in the third, two in the fourth.

Rath kept his fouling down to just one, did some strong work on the boards and added 14 to the cause. Troy Keene got a poor start but recovered nicely to finish with 13. He was shut out in the second period, when New London's monopoly of the ball — the Wildcats got off 22 shots, making 12, and made only two mistakes on offense, while Plymouth shot only 13 times and also made two failures on attack — dominated the action and he got just one shot.

Plymouth overall went 29 for 66, and 4 of 28 at the foul line. The turnover total was 14, half of them in the final period when it was salted away and the less experienced players were holding the fort.

New London also fired 66 times and converted 28 of them. It missed seven of 10 free throws.

This was a significant as well as an important win for the Big Red, which meets a weaker Western Reserve team here tomorrow and Back River at Sullivan on Jan. 31.

A lefthander

Steve Hall opts for the left hand on many jump shots, as with this one at New London Friday night, when the defender was Clem Rudy.

Tough match-up

A match-up here Saturday was Jason Robinson, No. 30, with ball, and Greg Stake, of the Crimson Flames, with lip turned under.

Robinson's free throws snatch lead, Red overcomes Flames, 62 to 59

Jason Robinson pitched in two free throws with 2:03 remaining in the fourth period here Saturday and Plymouth went on to win a close one over a Mansfield Christian team that deserved a better fate.

The score was 62 to 59.

Robinson's free throws, on the penalty and bonus, came with the score at 53 to 52 favoring the Crimson Flames, who led most of the way after the middle of the first period, by which time the lead had changed hands eight times. Plymouth put together a run of eight points late in the first half, the visitors scored with two by Tim Clark, certainly the best visiting player to appear here so far this season, and the Big Red managed to hold the Flames to a lead of four at the half.

Trailing at 32 to 38 going into the third period, the Big Red let up.

The Al McGuire preaching that the outcome of the contest is usually determined by the conduct of the teams during the first three minutes of the second half didn't obtain in this one.

The Flames ran five straight to build their lead to 37 to 29 before Steve Hall canned a jumper and Troy Keene threw one down.

At this point, excessive seepage from the east wall of the gymnasium made the floor at that end so slippery the Flames complained bitterly and the referees halted the contest for about five minutes while Athletic Director Bryan J. Neff and his assistants sought to mop it up.

The first aid did not overcome the problem.

But when play resumed, Plymouth ran 11 points to take a lead of 40 to 37 — Robinson got two buckets, miraculously, and Hall put one in to conclude the run — and when the Flames closed to within a point by sending Clark to the line for two shots, Keene sent one up from the corner, a fantastic effort, and was fouled in the act. He converted the penalty shot and Plymouth went into the last eight minutes leading by four.

The Flames tied it at 3:17 on two free throws by Dave Stewart. Clark's foul shot broke up the tie to make it 53 to 52, whereupon Robinson's heroics sent the home team to the front again, a lead it never again gave up.

The Big Red ran four points after Robinson's free throws and after the Flames ran four, on free throws by Clark and Rick Smith, it was 60 to 59. Plymouth used a time out. When play resumed, Mike Lasch was deliberately hacked by Stewart and he survived a sink out called by the visitors to time both shots and preserve the victory.

It was the ninth win of the season for Plymouth against four defeats, certainly the best record of any Big Red team for several seasons past.

Keene collected 10 points, Hall and Robinson 12 apiece, Eric Rath 11. Clark was the game high scorer with 23. Stewart had 12.

Both teams shot exceptionally well. Plymouth got off 48 shots and made 23, the Flames 42 shots and made 21. Just 50 per cent. Enough to win in another game. The Big Red had one less success than Mansfield Christian at the free throw line, 16 to 17, in 23 tries accorded each quintet.

The visitors outrebounded Plymouth, 19 to 14.

Shot blocker

He hasn't scored much but Kevin Taylor, No. 42, has been a bulwark in Big Red's defensive play — he blocked 12 shots last weekend — and a strong rebounder, notably in the second half. He got this shot off against Mansfield Christian but it didn't go down.

End line shot

Eric Rath canned this shot from the end line at New London Friday night.

Crestview to host tourney

Sixteenth annual Firelands conference wrestling championships will be conducted at Crestview High school at Olivesburg Saturday, with 170 boys competing.

St. Paul's is the defending champion.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for pupils.

A spaghetti dinner will be served by the Crestview Booster club at 4:30 p.m.

Red alumni coaches of South Central cagers

Both of South Central's basketball teams are now coached by Plymouth alumni.

The Trojannes' bearded mentor quit in some anger during the holidays and went to Florida. He was succeeded by Ted Fox, a 1958 graduate who just might be one of the two or three most outstanding athletes ever to receive a Plymouth diploma — he excelled in football, in basketball and in baseball, which latter game he coached for many years.

He plays well into his 40s and still plays local softball — and who has been a non-certificated assistant coach for several seasons. His daughter, Amy, is a player on the team. He is married to the former Holly Carter, his schoolboy sweetheart. His parents-in-law are the Roy W. Carters. He is the son of the late Procter J. Foxes. After taking a degree in horticultural sciences from Ohio State university, he went into the nursery business.

St. Paul's coach is Jacques Daup, a 1970 alumnus here. He is the second son of the Harold E. Daups, Shiloh. His father taught and coached at Shiloh High school after he was graduated by Mansfield county where he is now an interim professor of education, and assumed the reins of the Big Red when Shiloh was put out of business by the Richland county board of education in 1958. He became principal of the high school, then superintendent of Crestview district and ultimately county superintendent, from which post he retired.

His son went on to Spring Arbor college, Spring Arbor, Mich., where he lettered in baseball as an outfielder, and joined the South Central district as teacher and assistant coach, in which latter apprenticeship he served several seasons until he was raised to head coach.

He likes nothing better than to defeat Plymouth, an opportunity he will have Feb. 7 when the Trojans come here for the second game of the season between the two southern division foes.

Red girls will play the Trojannes here Feb. 4.

Only four remain!

Only four school remain of the eight that started the Firelands conference in 1962.

Charter members Monroeville, South Central, Western Reserve and Mapleton have stayed with the league since it was formed.

Perkins, Hillsdale, which was a successor to Hayesville, and Berlin Hts., which merged into Edison, are the four that have changed affiliation or dropped out.

Perkins left after a year and was replaced by Back River, which is a consolidation of Homerville, Sullivan and Huntington districts in Medina and Ashland counties.

When Berlin Hts. and Milan joined to form Edison in 1968, St. Paul's replaced Milan. Meanwhile, Hillsdale succeeded to the Hayesville membership because Hayesville became a part of the Hillsdale district in 1963.

When Hillsdale resigned to join the Wayne County league in 1970, New London, which had been in the Inland conference, took its place.

Plymouth and Crestview joined the conference in 1981.

Edison has resigned and this is its last season. It will join the Sandusky Bay conference.
