Baxters to mark 50th anniversary

Willard Baxter and Kathryn Clark married at her family home on Dec. 18, 1936, in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Hubert Cibb.

There weren't many on hand for the reception, just the immediate family, and the couple went to housekeeping, as it was said to those days, in the house in which they married.

Later they resided in Walnut road and eventually in the place in the west side of Route 598.

They still live there. They raised a family there, he engaged in farming there for two generations. Now he's retired, if you can call management of the township burial grounds, Maple Grove cemetery, retirement. He is a veteran trustee of the township.

The Baxters are members of New Haven United Methodist church and of a number of peripheral and family service groups.

They will celebrate their Dec. 20 with a reception from 3 to 6 p.m. They hope no gifts will be sent. Their friends and neighbors are invited to greet them.

In Washington — Youth dies in collision of 'cycle'

Formerly of 100 Plymouth street and later of North street, Danny Jon Mumea, 23, adopted son of the Richland county courthouse and Mansfield Monday, as Assistant Prosecutor, was killed in the state's case against K. Charles Cutright, 29, 16½ East Main street, accused of aggravated murder, aggravated robbery, theft, tampering with evidence and aggravated arson.

Police said his mount failed to negotiate a curve and crashed into a guardrail.

Police at Everett said the youth's motorcycle continued for several hundred yards after striking the guardrail, colliding with a service pole, after which the rider was thrown off. He received fatal head injuries.

His family reported the dead youth had been in Washington about three years, lately employed in a restaurant.

Born in Mansfield, he passed his boyhood here. He was a member of the First United Presbyterian church.

He attended Plymouth schools and Plymouth High school, where he was a member of the wrestling team. He concluded his studies here at the end of the 10th grade and was the first graduate enrolled at Norway High school.

He is also survived by a brother, Gregory; Willard; three sisters, Mrs. Kristi Clabaugh, Plymouth; Mrs. Karen Harrison, Willard, and Sharon; Plymouth; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Thelma Vredenburg, and his paternal grandfather, Adam L. Mumea, both of Plymouth.

A tree-trimming project has been undertaken by the village shade tree commission, headed by Robert Rudd.

He has arranged with Superior Tree Service, New London, to trim branches on about 30 properties.

The brush will be removed, but larger pieces are the responsibility of the property owners.

Because the work will be done unilaterally at one time, there is considerable savings to the property owners.

The work is to begin the first of the year. Each household has been notified and it is up to them to notify Superior of their consent.

Cemetery charges to rise

For the first time in five years, cemetery fees are to be raised.

Trustees of the cemetery have forwarded to village council their recommendations for the increases.

A new ordinance will be prepared by the Village solicitor, Richard P. Wolfe, 2nd, and will be formally passed at the January commissioners' meeting, effective as of Jan. 1, 1987.

Sale of lots for those living within the corporate limits of the village who are taxed for levies for the cemetery will increase to $150 from $100. Those living without the corporate limits will be increased from $175 to $225.

Opening and closing of graves on Mondays through Fridays will go to $175 from $150. The charge for Saturdays will be $225 and on Sundays and holidays the charge will be $350.

Burial of ashes for villagers is increased to $50 from $35, for out-of-towners from $60 to $75.

A four-foot vault for a child is set at $100, over four feet at $125.

Laying of a foundation for a stone will be $7 a cubic foot, up to $5.50.

'Circumstantial' State characterizes evidence vs. Cutright in opening statement

A six-man, six-woman jury sat unpassively in Courtroom No. 2 in the Richland county courthouse in Mansfield Monday as Assistant Prosecutor, Chuck Cutright, opened the state's case against K. Charles Cutright, 29, 16½ East Main street, accused of aggravated murder, aggravated robbery, theft, tampering with evidence and aggravated arson.

Jerry Ault affects thick-necked spectacles that, on his round face, give him an owlish look. He has a marvelous shock of brown hair, a slumped waistline and an air of quiet confidence. He speaks as the unexcited, and unexciting, church school teacher.

He stood at the lectern in front of the jury and, referring to notes on a page of yellow legal paper, recounted for almost 40 minutes how the state's case will unfold. When he was through, his opponent waived an opening statement.

Ault made clear from the start that the jury need not expect testimony by an eye witness to the shooting, for there will be none. He characterized the state's case against Cutright, who sat stoically at the defense table, as "thin." Ault turned out in a tan sport jacket at the waist in white, brown slacks and chic boots, his beard well cropped and showing no signs of the drug habit that Ault said had seized him for a long time before the shooting on the night of Sept. 21 last, as circumstantial.

But, he said, the evidence will nevertheless be substantial, effective and convincing.

That evidence will be adduced by the testimony of 30 witnesses, three of whom he put into the witness box Monday afternoon. Ault said as prior to the shooting, Ault will testify. Clones gave Cutright "two eggheads of each," perhaps six or seven grams, worth about $550. There was no exchange of money, but Clones expected eventual payment.

Cutright will tell the jury, But she, he said, who broke up the cocaine for sale. She came to suspect her brother was deluting the cocaine and siphoning off the

None of them said anything that would convince anyone that Chuck Cutright in fact did in Jeffrey (Bambi) Clones.

But that will come later.

And it will come again, Ault told the jury, when he called Patti Payne, Cutright's latest live-in girlfriend, Jackie Lynn Cutright, his drug-addict sister, Patti Retting, his supervisor in Weber's Cafe, where he and his sister worked as part-time bartenders. Charles Amos, a New Haven motorcycle repairman; Donnie Buchanan, his former partner, by whom he has a son, Josh; Mark (Rocky) Phillips and a Huron county sheriff's deputy named Roger N. Musser.

The testimony will trace a trail of dope dealing, contamination by the dead man, who was described by Ault as no angel, by the accused and by his sister. He didn't say the dealing took place in Weber's Cafe, but he didn't say it didn't either.

Ault said he will adduce testimony to show that the accused took a .25 Raven semi-automatic hand gun from a shelf in his sister's closet without her knowledge or permission. It was this weapon that was used to shoot Clones to death with five bullets.

Ault said as prior to the shooting, Ault will testify. Clones gave Cutright "two eggheads of each," perhaps six or seven grams, worth about $550. There was no exchange of money, but Clones expected eventual payment.

Cutright will tell the jury, But she, he said, who broke up the cocaine for sale. She came to suspect her brother was deluting the cocaine and siphoning off the better grade for himself. Both Cutrights, Ault said, were at one time mainliners, this is they injected cocaine directly into their veins.

Jackie, to induce Clones to take some of the cocaine back in settlement of the cash debt. When she discovered that Chuck Cutright had siphoned off some of the drug, she told Clones to collect what was due him from her brother.

Bambi Clones came to Weber's Cafe on Sept. 21 at about 6 p.m. to find Chuck Cutright. He went upstairs via the fire escape at the rear and pounded on the door. He got an answer.

Patti Payne will testify, Ault said, that she and her lover were in fact in the apartment, that he told her not to answer.

Bambi Clones left the cafe, dined, went to Shelby to make partial payment for a drug supply to his supplier and returned at 11 p.m.

Patty Payne admitted him to the apartment and told him Chuck Cutright awaited him in the bar.

It was a "slow night" in the bar. Chuck Cutright closed up about 11 p.m. She will testify she saw her brother on the sidewalk in front of the place acting "erratically" and wearing a leather jacket that she thought was unnecessary for weather conditions.

Marty Carty will swear that he saw Bambi and Chuck in conversation on the sidewalk at this time.

The Castle girls, Marina and Krista, who live in Odypte road adjoining the alleged site of the murder will testify, Ault told the please see page 4

Strine quits as chief: bad press too much'

Resignation of Wayne E. (Jim) Strine after eight years as fire chief will take effect Jan. 1.

He wrote a brief letter of demissio to Mayor Keith A. Hebley under date of Nov. 30, saying "it is time for the village to find a new fire chief."

Village councilmen meeting as a committee-of-the-whole on Dec. 2, save for Mrs. Terry Jumpp, accepted the resignation.

Why has Strine resigned?

Because he's had enough of a bad press with the local news papers.

Strine is a 1982 product of Plymouth High school, where he was a track and field star and played football. He served in the Navy.

He joined the fire department in April of 1964. Mayor Elizabeth G. Paddock appointed him chief, to succeed the resigned Judson A. Morrison, on his birthday anniversary, Feb. 7, 1978. Morrison quit after 20 years because he and the others in the department had a sharp difference of opinion of his administrative techniques.

Chief Strine had written a letter to The Advertiser in editorial comment, "but certainly not in news stories," the publisher said Monday, "because it was the newspaper's view that he did not conduct his office properly in the matter of purchase of a new apparatus — he 'cooked' the specifications so as to favor the apparatus he personally preferred — and again in the matter of the back-up ambulance, which he stripped down to make it unusable when we well knew it could have overcome objections on safety grounds with minor unimportant repairs."

Chief Strine had written to the editor to resign, saying he wished to be reassigned to another station at Shiloh. But he was unable to do so. He reconsidered and he stayed on until he retired in 1980, his hand-picked successor, Douglas R. Staggs, whom he found as an administrator.

objection in writing and he would be guaranteed equal display of his views.

It would appear that Chief Strine has, at long last, taken the advice of the late President Truman: "If you can't stand the heat, stay the hell out of the kitchen."

Some firemen, who do not wish to be identified, say that, under a circular announced by the council "about two years ago" (no other identification supplied), only three firemen are eligible.

There are Assistant Chief Wallace H. Ladd, Assistant Chief Kenneth R. Echelberry and Assistant Chief Oscar Waddles.

These firemen and others say that Redden's intentions, "down the road, re-to retire and leave town to live in the South." They observe that Chief Strine and Echelberry have a thorny relationship and it is unlikely that Strine would present any candidacy by Echelberry in a favorable light.

Councilman E. Adrian Cole suggested Dec. 2 that the forthcoming vacancy be posted among the 23 volunteer firemen and the 16 ambulance personnel (some of the former are also among the latter) and ask for volunteers.

Fazzini to resign as clerk Apr. 1

After nearly five years as clerk-treasurer, John Fazzini, 312 East Main street, will step down from the post effective May 1.

He will not be a candidate for the office in the general election of 1987.

The retired superintendent of schools, he served as teacher and principal of Plymouth Elementary school after he came from Rosewood school district in Champaign county in 1960, then was assigned as junior high principal and elementary principal at Shiloh. He was advanced to the superintendent to succeed C. Todd Strommenger in 1966 and thereafter resigned, saying he wished to be reassigned to another station at Shiloh. But he was unable to do so. He reconsidered and he stayed on until he retired in 1980, his hand-picked successor, Douglas R. Staggs, whom he found as an administrator.

The Fazzinis are the parents of three daughters, all married. They have four grandchildren.

He has notified the village council of his intention to quit under date of Nov. 27 to afford it sufficient time to find a competent successor.

Second straight win —

Red wallop Cougars, 82-66

The champion took on the No. 2 challenger in the challenger's camp Saturday night and blew him out of the arena.

Underdog Plymouth got a slow start but, just as it had done 24 hours before, the Big Red put on a big second period, seized the lead at 60-55 and never looked back. Lasch had gone coast-to-coast with the shot that tied it at 20 and was not again headed in an 82 to 66 blowout of Crestview.

The game was marred by the ejection at 3:15 of the third quarter of the player who was, until then, the key to Plymouth's success. Mike Lasch showed resentment of how Dan Wolford dealt with him in front of the Red bench and a melee resulted.

Officials awarded the Cougars a technical foul, but even with two successes from the penalty line by Steve Vipperman that raised Crestview's total to 48, Plymouth still showed a strong advantage of nine points.

The Big Red won this one because it outrebounded the Cougars after the first quarter (first period, Crestview 12, Plymouth 10 caroms thereafter, Crestview 27, Plymouth 38), its shotout the home forces in the first half and first quarter. Crestview eight of 19 shots, Plymouth four of 18; thereafter, Crestview, 16 of 54, Plymouth 27 of 49; its transition game was superior to Crestview's it made fewer mistakes on offense (Crestview, 15 turnovers, Plymouth 14 turnovers).

It is axiomatic in science that one must heat tider to the kindling point before he can produce a fire. Coach David P. Dunn's task is to discover what the temperature and how long it takes to reach it. In basketball, the Big Red needed an average of 13 minutes four seconds to reach the kindling point. From that point, a useful fire prevailed.

Steve Hall led nine players in scoring with 23, 10 of 24 from the field; much below his earlier performances, and five of seven from the line.

Lasch collected 16 before his enforced departure. He was a plus 10.

Jason Robinson scored 15. Ron Stephens 10.

Plymouth got 11 points from its bench.

The Cougars were led by Vipperman with 18. Matt Bernhard added 16. Todd Strickland 13.

It was a rewarding victory for all concerned.

Plymouth was not supposed to have a chance in this game. Some of the media even said it was presumptuous of the Big Red to even show up.

Craig Dunn is a Crestview alumnus. It was particularly satisfying to him that his team defeated the Cougars who only the day before had put the favorite to win the conference championship in 1987. New London, cut to the wire.

Some of the inexperienced among the Red contingent could not have but benefitted from the upset, which is an enormous confidence builder. If these players will listen to what they are told in practice, if they will apply it in the game, and if they will recognize the importance of unselfishness, there no reason at all that this team cannot prosper.

With eight pins, Seneca East walloped Plymouth, 59 to 16, in a dual wrestling meet at Attica Monday.

Len Barnett, 155-pounder, and Robert Smith, 132-lb. class, recorded pins for the Red.

Greg Burks won the heavyweight bout, 8 to 0.

Summary: 98-lb. Brooks (S) won by forfeit; 115-lb. Bordner (S), won by forfeit; 112-lb. Ruffing (S) pinned Gobel (P); 147-lb. Sutton (S) pinned F. Burks (P); 110-lb. 119-lb. Allen, 6, H. Hale (P); 122-lb. Funk (S) pinned Seal (P); 47-lb. Siegel (S) pinned Gano (P), 507.

Red reserves built and blew four leads before outscoring the Cougars 15 to 9 in the three minute overtime for a 48 to 42 victory.

Bret McDaniel scored 17, Eric Bernhard 13, Al Haymond 12.

Jim King had 15 for the Cougars.

Up and in!

Jason Robinson went up with this layup in second half at Olivesburg Saturday, when Red blew down Cougars.

Hall, Stephens lead Plymouth over Flyers

Steve Hall and Ron Stephens led Plymouth to a 20-point blowout of St. Paul's here Friday as the Big Red opened defense of its Firelands conference championship with a come-from-behind 85 to 65 victory.

Hall scored 28 points before he fouled out in the fourth period of a contest that was rougher than the football game played between the two schools at Norwell in October. Stephens came into his own in the second period, when he scored eight, and immediately after the start of the second half, when the big 11th grader scored nine.

The Flyers took an early lead of 17 to 13 after eight minutes. They did so with eight conversions of 18 shots at the basket and control of the rebounding. St. Paul's notched eight caroms in the first quarter. Plymouth only four. The Flyers committed six mistakes on offense, the Big Red none.

The Flyers took an early lead of 17 to 13 after eight minutes. They did so with eight conversions of 18 shots at the basket and control of the rebounding. St. Paul's notched eight caroms in the first quarter. Plymouth only four. The Flyers committed six mistakes on offense, the Big Red none.

Plymouth put on a four point run in the waning moments of the first quarter and into the early minutes of the second, gave up a bucket to Jeff Nicholi and then ran off 10 unanswered points to build a lead of six at 25 to 19. Matt Camp scored and the Big Red ran four. At the close of the half the Big Red was six more and went to the dressing room with a lead of nine at 37 to 28.

Hall by this time had 12 points.

The two clubs shot basket for basket in the early going of the second half, whereupon Plymouth ran six and, after two free throws by the Flyers, was up 61 to 56.

By this time the delicious aroma of cooked goose filled the arena and it was only a question of how well the bird would be roasted.

Hall scored 10 in the third period and Stephens eight as the Big Red cruised to a 24 through the hoop.

Jason Robinson led the Red in the final canto with 12 of his total production of 17.

Overall, Plymouth shot extremely well, with 29 successes in 57 tries, or 50 per cent, and missed 13 of 40 free throws. The Flyers shot 64 times with 24 good ones. They failed with 13 of 36 free throws.

The Big Red took down 29 missed shots, the Flyers only 21. Plymouth failed to get off a shot on 23 advances, St. Paul's on 29.

Mike Lasch's shot from the corner, usually not defensible, was unusually accurate. He scored 11.

Plymouth got eight points from its bench, St. Paul's 13.

The faces were the same, and there was no change in the numbers on the jerseys to start the second half, but the persons were different. Stephens played like a man possessed. Todd Wilson was a strong defense, and the dependable Hall was the glue that kept the whole works together.
