The Voice of The Advertiser —
Set a record by recording

A nostalgic piece about the first telephone service, and the first house-to-house mail delivery service, in the village appears elsewhere today. It is the result of some good fortune. A man telephoned the editor's home and said he had in his possession a box of documents that he thought the newspaper ought to have. When he described them, there was prompt agreement and an offer to pay for their transportation.

He did better than that. He showed up on Saturday with the box.

And from material found in it, the nostalgic piece was prepared. But not without some effective assistance by some whose tenure here is longer than ours.

And while the piece was in preparation, it struck the preparer that the great pity of the day, whether today, yesterday or tomorrow, is that we are collectively allowing our history, our story, to pass into the night without recording it.

It is, perhaps understandable, but certainly not excusable, that because so many are loath to put writing instrument to paper because they feel they are incapable of dealing with the native tongue in an acceptable fashion, it is not done. To some extent, this curse is vitiated by the commonality of the tape recorder, which is within the physical and fiscal grasp of almost everyone. Still, there are those who cannot or are reluctant to make use of it. One such said to us, "I can talk on the telephone, when I can hear somebody on the other end, but I could never talk into a machine."

It is not an expensive undertaking. A tape can be had for the price of a couple of packages of cigarettes. It's better for you, to boot.

Some of our neighbors have with great energy undertaken to establish a museum.

It is a good thing, even if there are only a few relics of sufficient impact that are of local origin that would excite a trained museum curator.

Documents are worth so much more than devices.

Consider: We have inveighed for nearly 33 years against the village hall and the police department that to refer to the street in the southwest sector of the village as "Nicholas" is erroneous. Its right name is Nichols, as The Advertiser repeatedly is careful to point out. Now we are in possession of the enabling document. For the village hall and the police department to ignore it is to suggest, perhaps once more, to some of us that you could wallop them over the head with the United States Constitution or the Declaration of Independence and they'd not take any notice of it.

Habits change hard.

To record their persistence is what a museum, is all about. The historical society will be doing us all a great favor if it undertakes, the sooner the better, to record — and we use that term in its limits sense: to place words on tape — the history of this community by those who have lived it and who retain in their clear memories the facts of what has transpired long ago.

Fans expect a good deal of this 11th grader, Ron Stephens, a high jumper in the spring who is expected to jump almost as high as a rebounder for the Big Red basketball team.

He served his apprenticeship with the reserve club last season. He filled out some during the summer.

His team did not rebound well against a well-coached Mansfield Christian quintet Saturday and he fouled out with only a few ticks left on the clock, having scored by two points.

He expects more of himself than that, so do his teammates. Game time tomorrow is 8 p.m. Reserves play at 6:30 p.m.

Stephens home gutted by fire

House of Richard Stephens, Townline road 111, was completely gutted Sunday afternoon.

Plymouth firemen answered the call about 3 p.m.

The Stephenses had recently moved into the house, owned by Ransom Stephens, Shiloh.

It is thought the blaze began in a defective furnace, causing the flames to spread upwards.

Milton R. Brown dies in hospital

Milton Ray Brown, Sr., 61, Shiloh route 2, brother of Mrs. Russell Ross, Plymouth, died Sunday evening of a brief illness in Mansfield General hospital.

Born in Ripley township Apr. 25, 1925, he lived his whole life near Shiloh. He was employed by Festival Homes, Greenwich.

An Army veteran, he is also survived by his wife, nee Alice Moore; two sons, Milton R., Jr., Bucyrus, and James, Willard; two daughters, Mrs. Connie Helen, Atica, and Mrs. Bonnie Francis, Shelby; a brother, Charles, Loudonville, and five sisters, Mrs. Lawanna Lamer, Greenwich; James, Rose Smith, and Milly Curlee Woodard, Mrs. B. Small, Loudonville, and Gladys, Dalton.

There was no final service. Cremation ensued.

When cop talks, pupils listen!

When the speaker is a policeman, pupils had better pay attention.

When the policeman is the teacher's husband, they had better pay double attention.

Which was the case in Plymouth High school last week when Allen Carey, an auxiliary policeman who is a graduate of Willard police academy, spoke to the intensive education class taught by Mrs. Carey on crime and law aspects.

He told the pupils about a drug program being developed by the department, "A Reason for Tears". The department will arrange for an appearance by an officer on this subject by calling 687-4321.

Mrs. Carey intends to set up a field trip soon so that pupils can see how judicial procedures come about.

Patrolman Carey noted that several businesses have contributed to defray expenses of the program.

Girlfriend accused of bribery —
Two arrests, drug overdose: two in custody

A bizarre development in the state's case against K. Charles Cutright, 29, 16½ East Main street, indicted for the murder of Jeffrey (Bambi) Clones of Route 224 east of New Haven on Sept. 21, 22, occurred Nov. 25, almost two weeks before Cutright goes on trial in Richland county common pleas court.

His live-in girlfriend, Patti Lynn Payne, 19, now staying with her sister, Brenda, at 431 Plymouth street, was taken into custody by Richland county sheriff's deputies at her place of employment, 262 Sandusky street, at about 6 p.m. She is accused of attempting to bribe a witness not to testify by payment of $600.

The Advertiser has learned that prospective witness is the accused's sister, Jackie Lynn Cutright, 27, 42 Sandusky street, who is understood to have told Sgt. John Napier, deputy sheriff investigating the case, that her brother's girl friend offered her the money to "leave the state."

It is understood the funds belong to the accused, who left them in his girl friend's care.

Prosecutor John Allen has already said sheriff's deputies cannot find a witness to the actual shooting, variously believed to have occurred in Richland county, whether at or near the place where Clones's body was found by a man looking for discarded aluminum cans Sept. 22 about 10 a.m. or at another place nearer to where the accused lived.

Jackie Cutright was thereupon taken into custody on a warrant charging her as a material witness.

Miss Payne was lodged in the Ashland county jail.

What occurred Friday afternoon may or may not throw monkey wrench into the plans laid by Assistant Prosecutor Jerry Ault to present the state's case against Charles Cutright.

His sister, the material witness arrested by the county on Nov. 25 after she told the deputy sheriff, John Napier, that her brother's live-in girl friend sought to bribe her not to testify, was taken in part in full in a present to Willard Area hospital with what seemed to be, bystanders said, a drug overdose.

She was later taken to the psychiatric ward of Mansfield General hospital.

Charles Cutright has been held since Sept. 23 in Richland county jail in lieu of $500,000 cash bail. He has been indicted by a grand jury on five felony counts, including one of aggravated murder. None of the counts carries the death specification if he is convicted.

Clones was shot four times, five times in the head and neck. The weapon has not been found. Cutright and Clones engaged, perhaps in Weber's Cafe at 16 East Main street, in a dispute over payment for a delivery of drugs. Clones was shot four times, five times in the head and neck. The weapon has not been found. Cutright is also accused of stealing Clones's truck and of taking it to Mentor, where he sought to destroy evidence by setting the vehicle afire in the parking lot of a tavern in Lake county.

Common Pleas Court Judge James Hanson, newly elected to a second term without opposition, will hear the evidence.

Jury selection will begin Dec. 8. Robert Whitney, the Perry Mason among criminal lawyers of the Richland County bar, has been engaged to defend Cutright.

First 'phone call was in '83

Shelby marshal sought help to catch bank robbers

It was 103 years ago Tuesday that the first telephone call was made from Plymouth.

A toll line was installed in Mitenbuhler's barber shop.

It was located where Raymond Klemmer's shop now is. The first call transmitted over the line was for Samuel Nimmons, then employed by Cronky & Tar, a business then situated in North street, in the rear of what is now the Wayne Robinson house.

Mitenbuhler sent for Nimmons, who was told to be on the watch for bandits escaping from New Washington, where they robbed the bank. The call came from Shelby. Nimmons was told the desperadoes had escaped from Marshal Sutter.

The robbery was planned by a Shelbyman named Turner, who was shot in the legs while escaping. His confederates, four in number, fled to Shelby and were arrested by Sutter and his deputy-of-the-hour, a man he chose on the spot for the dangerous mission, a Mr. Longnecker.

Sutter and Longnecker took the four men to a restaurant for food before locking them up. At the door of the eating place, one of the bandits swore he would not enter the place and after a heated argument one of the robbers brandished a gun and shot and killed Longnecker. Sutter opened fire, killing one thief. He himself received a wound on the hand. The three remaining bandits ran toward Plymouth, and it was for that reason that Sutter telephoned Nimmons to warn him and to seek his help in apprehending the thugs.

Nimmons sat for half a day on the kerb in front of the Presbyterian church waiting for the bandits to appear. They didn't appear. When they reached Hazel Grove, one of the trio sought to seize a horse and buggy from a farm woman but was beaten off by the angry driver, who wielded the whip.

Two of the three escaped. One was captured later, tried, sentenced and sent to prison. Later he was pardoned.

The other was never captured.

The third overpowered a farmer driving along what is now Route 61 and took his team of colts. As he was passing near Auburn Center, some farmers who were watching noted his approach and one of them shot at the bandit.

The fugitive received a wound of the legs. The colts were shied at a gallop. Weakened by the loss of blood, the thug could not control the team. The pair ran away, upsetting the wagon and imprisoning the thug beneath the wagon box.

Turner escaped to a farm home near New Washington, was never detected, received succor there and, in time, made off.

One of five robbers, one was slain in Shelby, one was killed by a farmer's shot who was imprisoned under the wagon box, one was wounded, recovered and escaped, two succeeded in escaping of whom one was later captured and imprisoned.

This was the denouement of that first toll call to Plymouth in 1883.

The first domestic line, in the village, ran from the home of Mose Billstein, later the Dr. Holtz residence in North street to the home of William Schoenberg in West Broadway.

First telephone operator, circa 1888, was Miss Flo Tyson, who married Mose Bachrach.

Originally, Northern Ohio Telephone Co., with headquarters in Bellevue, obtained control of telephone service in Plymouth and operated it for many years, with manual operators in the building in the west end of the Public Square that now houses an exchange, with women operators. One of them was Estella Turk, who married Roy Hatch and became, in time, a significant figure in the village's commercial life as a modiste and ready-to-wear retailer.

General Telephone Co. having bought the interests of Northern Ohio Telephone Co., it now controls telephone service northward from Morse's hill in Route 61 United Telephone Co., which also serves Shiloh, Cast town ship and Bloominggrove township, serves subscribers south of that point.

Rates today for 717 residential subscribers are $11.56 a month. For 90 business subscribers they are $23.80 a month. Newark office of GenTelCo. has no data reflecting on the number of unlisted numbers in the Plymouth exchange.

Extended area service, a relatively new service to Plymouth subscribers, enables direct dial service at the same subscriber rate to Willard exchange.

U. S. postal service under-takes house-to-house delivery here on Sept. 1, 1918, during the incumbency of Oliver Shannon Earnest as postmaster. He was notified by the Postmaster-General on Aug. 2, 1918, that carrier service to households would begin on Sept. 1.

Plymouth could not now obtain house-to-house carrier service, since the number of drops is too many to justify the expense, the postal service, says.

Sri Lanka is Ceylon, is Ceylon — Geography week? Make turkey hash!

By AUNT LIZ

So some teachers are very unhappy that their kids simply do not know where some countries on this planet, nor some of the great rivers.

I have news for them.

There are a bunch of fully grown people who do not know, either.

Put the blame on all the politicians.

In the last 25 years or so, countries seem to come and go and their names are changed.

Could the problem really be the fault of those who plan the class room curricula?

Way back, and surely there have to be a couple of people around yet who can still remember, we had a class once a day entitled "Geography," and we did one country at a time, learned it inside and out.

We even learned the names of the wonderful cathedrals, palaces, and mountains.

It kind of made us into a generation of dreamers, wondering if we would ever see it all.

Going to Europe or even Florida or California was always for the very rich. Now we all go.

So starting saving your pennies and take your kids sightseeing.

But you still have to eat each day. If you are in between turkey's right now, this is worth it to buy an extra one or part of one.

It's for turkey hash, which was given the other day on a radio station, and I think the wholesaler did it.

You need three cups of scraps to start. Chop an onion and brown it in turkey fat if you have any left. I saved what we had from the gravy). Stir in two and a half tablespoons of flour along with a cup of stock (or broth) until it is thick.

Before you do all this, though, have the turkey ready with two tablespoons of white wine, a half teaspoon of celery salt, a teaspoon of parsley, a dash of thyme and of oregano, a piece of bay leaf, a few dashes of Tabasco (which we did not have but did have some stuff called Red Hot sauce), salt and pepper, and about a half cup of mushrooms.

Mix this with the onions. Next fold in two beaten eggs and a half cup of cream.

Put it all in a casserole and sprinkle mild Cheddar over the top.

If you are going to serve it immediately, just put under the broiler, but it can wait and go in the oven to heat and melt the cheese.

Getting back to geography, I just remember how much we learned just from knowing popular songs like "On the Isle of Capri" and "My Little Grass Shack in Waikiki, Hawaii."

The perfect gift?

The perfect Christmas gift? "You can't buy it in a department store, nor order it through a magazine or newspaper or purchase it through radio or television advertisement," says Willard Area hospital.

What is it? It's independence. This comes in the form of not having to rely or depend on someone else for peace of mind. For freedom or isolated folks, it is freedom from fear and liberty from worry. One can give this gift of independence to a close friend or relative for Christmas; one can increase their self-sufficiency, self-reliance and self-esteem by giving them LIFELINE, the hospital says.

What is LIFELINE? It is a program that provides 24-hour access to help when one is home alone. A small portable button is worn on the wrist or around one's neck. Whenever an emergency arises, a press of the button automatically dials the telephone notifying Willard Area hospital that help is needed. Immediately the subscriber is called to see what the problem is. If there is no answer, emergency responders are called, friends, relatives and neighbors, people selected by the subscriber when the equipment is installed. If no responders are available, community police or EMT's are dispatched. When a responder arrives at the subscriber's home, the LIFELINE unit informs the hospital that help has arrived. A timer makes it possible to LIFELINE to call for help even if the person is unconscious.

To belong to the LIFELINE program costs $20 a month. More information can be obtained by calling 933-2931.

We need you to help influence your son to register—and to do so on time. You see, registration is the law. In addition to prosecution, non-registration could mean your son is disqualifying himself for federal student loans, federal employment and job training benefits. Don't let a young man you know miss out on any federal or state benefits. Make sure he knows about registering with Selective Service. A complete registration list saves our country six vital weeks in mobilizing our manpower in a national emergency.
