Will mayor's court be eliminated?

Will the mayor's court be closed down?

Mayor Keith A. Hebble and some councilmen are looking into the suitability of the proposal, one that some village employees resist. Hebble said Feb. 11 he was told by Mayor Maurice Fishbaugh of Greenwich that since that town closed its mayor's court and turned all cases over to the Norwalk Municipal court, "collections have been much better, because the municipal court has more enforcement authority than a mayor's court" and "there hasn't been any delay in prosecuting cases or any complaint by any accused. They have had 300 per cent more collections with no more arrests."

He said Catron, dispatcher and bailiff of the mayor's court, interjected that reports filed with the village council by Police Chief Stephen Caudill do not reflect a true picture of fines and penalties because they do not rectify which fines have been suspended or what conditions have been imposed by the mayor for payment of the fines. He said rate of collection in the mayor's court is high, about 90 to 95 per cent.

During January, Catron said, a total of $2,296 in fines was meted out of the mayor, of which $1,434 was collected.

By unanimous ballot, the council approved Feb. 11 placement of two tax levies on the ballot.

Roberts ends training stint for firemen

Arnold Roberts, 95 Trux street, has completed, together with 10 other students has completed a 36-hour basic fire training instruction conducted here by Fire Chief Wayne E. Strine.

Seven set as zoners at Shiloh

Seven citizen-electors of Shiloh were appointed by Mayor Delmar Nesbitt Feb. 12 to serve the zoning process in the village.

The zoning board will consist of John Barnhart, Robert Moser and Kenneth Huston. Board of zoning appeals, which includes the mayor, is comprised of Harry Lee Seaman, Richard Tallman, Charles R. Reeder and J. Michael Bauer. Tallman and Reeder are councilmen, Bauer is a trustee of public affairs.

Surety bonds for Nesbitt, the clerk Mrs. Reeder, and William Zonker, zoning inspector, will be obtained through Light Insurance agency, Shelby.

Mrs. Ronald Powers, councilman, was designated to approach David Egner to ascertain if he will incorporate four mapped sections of the village into one large map.

Phillips asks $1,279,296 for injury

Compensatory damages of $279,296 and punitive damages of $1 million against Ohio Seamless Tube division, Copperweld, Corp. Shelby, are sought by Edward Phillips, 2356 Plymouth East road, in a suit laid in Richland county common pleas court by his attorney, Neil A. McKown, Shelby.

Phillips claims his left hand was crushed when an overhead crane malfunctioned at his employer's plant at 131 Vernon road. He lost one finger and mangled another.

One is a two mill general fund tax, to replace a 1.8-mill levy that expires on Dec. 31.

The other is a one mill cemetery tax.

The cemetery levy is proposed to run for five years. It would overlap an existing levy of one mill for one of those five years.

Approval was given to the mayor and clerk to enter into a contract for mutual aid protection in event of fire with neighboring fire departments.

A water line improvement project, by which stronger pressure and more volume of water would become available in East Main street east of the Huron river, will begin as soon as weather permits. Village staff will complete the work save for the burrowing under the river bed.

Street repairs to cost $63,000

Approximately $63,000 worth of street repairs will be undertaken this year.

James C. Root, village administrator, has listed for village council 10 streets that need resurfacing.

He has based the coast of blacktopping at $33 a ton.

Streets to be done are South Wall, from Mills avenue to West High street, 30 tons of blacktopping at $910; alley between Route 61 and Maple street, 60 tons at $1,960; driveway beside the fire station and part of the paring are,

65 tons at $2,045; West Broadway from the bridge to the end of the kerb, 560 tons at $18,500; Springmill road, 550 tons at $18,150;

Also, Brooks court, 250 tons at $8,250; Willow drive, Willow court and Willow circle, 175 tons at $9,075.

Roadways in Greenlawn cemetery are also included, 120 tons at $3,960.

Although it is not on the list, Root wants to cover a small drop-off in Plymouth East road just off Route 61.

Lorainite files to oppose Pease

Businessman John Michael Ryan, Lorain, has filed an affidavit in the May 6 Democratic primary for the 13 district Congressional seat.

Ryan said he is running because he feels the incumbent Congressman is not representing the true interests of the district.

"I favor a return to state's rights and the elimination of the federal blackjack from our daily lives," Ryan said.

He would oppose incumbent

Rep. Donald J. Pease, D-Oberlin. Ryan said he would seek a post on the House's Merchant Marine and Fisheries committee to do the most for Lake Erie residents and businesses that are hard-pressed to deal with high lake levels and devastating erosion on their own.

The 13th district is not now represented on that important committee, Ryan pointed out.

Ryan is married to the former Wyna Kohlmeyer and has four children.

Four file pleas of not guilty here

Four pleas of not guilty were received by Mayor Keith A. Hebble in mayor's court Feb. 12.

Four charges of hit-and-run driving against James L. Wagers, Jr., Plymouth, were dismissed.

Shelby E. Lewis, Plymouth, accused of a stop sign violation, of drunken driving and of having an open container in his vehicle, pleaded not guilty. The drunken driving charge was transferred to Shelby Municipal court. The other charges were continued here for pre-trial hearings.

John C. Hazen, Crestline, pleaded not guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under suspension. The charge was dismissed.

Robert E. Botello, Shiloh, pleaded no contest to speeding to displaying improper license tags.

He was found guilty on each count and fined $26 for speeding and $75 on the second count.

Gun theft solved; boy held

A 19-year-old youth who lives a stone's throw from the Public Square has been charged by local police with the theft of a valuable shotgun worth $700 from Donald F. Ford's truck on Jan. 17.

Police Chief Stephen Caudill said the gun turned up at a weaponry store at Shelby, where the dealer identified it from a series of photographs.

The youth has confessed to the theft, Caudill said.

Sowash to run to oust White

A third candidate has come forward to seek the Richland county commissionership.

He is Rick Sowash, until earlier this year executive director of Renaissance theater, Mansfield.

Sowash will seek the Republican nomination in the May primary. His opposition in the primary is so far no existent.

If this prevails, he will oppose the incumbent Democrat, Paul White, and independent Dale Bricker, Shelby, in November.

Sowash, 36, owns and operates a remodelled Victorian house as a bed-and-breakfast establishment in Bellville, where he lives.

Eric Rath's jubilation was typical of what swept through Plymouth team and its fans in high school gymnasium Friday when Big Red won Firelands conference championship with rout of Crestview.

The Voice of The Advertiser —

A champion at long last! Congratulations to the Big Red!

So far as we can ascertain, only two players of the championship basketball team were alive when the last championship was won.

Which says something of importance: either the opposition was so keen we couldn't prevail, or we were so weak we couldn't achieve.

Truth is, it's probably a mixture of both.

Since we've entered the Firelands conference, we've won a football championship and now one in basketball. The league will have nine teams, come next fall. By rights, we should expect to win, in each activity, boys and girls, at least once in nine years. If we do not, we need to examine what we are about.

It would be nice to win more than once in nine years. But if we do, it means, theoretically, at least, that another cannot. And if that other decides to take his bat and his ball and go home because he doesn't or can't win, then both he and we are the loser.

This newspaper made special note, a couple of weeks ago, that some of the pupils who achieved the highest grades during the second nine-week period are also outstanding basketball players. No one has remarked upon it, which saddens us, a little bit, at least. Not that we're entitled to, or think we're entitled to, any recognition or respect for having pointed it out. It's that those who so achieved deserve to have it pointed out. Because by achieving they are doing what we're spending all the money for: they are learning, they are grasping the lessons that we think are important, and they are equipping themselves to share some of the burdens we inherited and all of the burdens that we old fuds have thrust upon them.

If this is not the case, then what in blue blazes are in running a school for?

We congratulate the team. We think it's fine that it has won. And if we survive another 25 years, and this team is still peopled by champions, then we'll be happy.

One room for junk a great blessing, says she who knows

By AUNT LIZ

Every house should have one. And if you don't now, start one, and 20 years from now you will have a ball.

It will be like discovering an oil well in your back yard, or a gold or silver mine, even a bed of oysters with beautiful real pearls inside.

And it's easy.

Just give up using one room of your house, which is much easier when kids leave home and you don't need that bedroom and closet.

Then over the years you stash things in it, like unfinished sweaters, stuff you have bought to make things with and never got around to doing, old cards of all kinds that are worth framing, even clothes you stopped wearing but were too good to throw out.

We have one and it is great. (Ed. News? Yeah? Wh say so?)

Somewhere along the line I planned on a lot of knitting, and now I have a small yarn shop going. It is old enough to be much better yarn than you usually find today, and a real bargain. I might have paid $1 a skein way back and today it would be at least $5.

Some of the years was started for such things as sweaters and mittens and something I must have been interrupted 15 years and more ago. Lord only knows where any directions could be to finish them or what size they were, so I ripped and am starting over on some things.

Should you find such goods, you can dream up something new for the yarn, just pull it all out, wrap it around a piece of heavy cardboard and dip in water. When it will be smooth yard and not all crinkly.

Another little gold mine has appeared: the winning recipes for various food items and some are plain good. One of our favorite chicken deals was a third prize winner one year and much better than the two ahead of it.

This is this year's chicken winner and should just about cause a run on chicks because it has universal appeal, its cheap and it's Mexican.

Have a six halved breasts handy. They should be boned, but actually do not have to be.

Make a marinade of half cup of chunky taco sauce, a fourth of a cup of Dijon mustard and two tablespoons of lime juice, fresh if you can find the limes.

Put the chicken pieces in it for maybe an hour. Keep turning them so they are well soaked.

In some butter or margarine, not shortening, cook the chicken on both sides until brown.

Then add the marinade and cook a little more until it cooks down and glazes the chicken. When done, pour the left over glaze over each piece and serve with a slice of lime on top.

This comes from a gal in Oregon. They do have good cooks there, because another one came up with a prize-winning rice dessert recipe that makes enough to last several meals.

Bring two and a half cups of water to a boil, throw in a cup of converted rice and a little salt, but salt's not necessary. Cover and simmer for 20 minutes. Cool it and stir a little so all the water has been absorbed.

Then combine two packages, three and a half ounces each, of vanilla pudding mix with a fourth of a teaspoon of nutmeg. Slowly add five cups of milk while stirring until it comes to a boil. That is it. Add the rice with a cup of raisins.

It can all be put into a large bowl or even individual cups.

When you are ready to serve it, spread five cups of milk whipped with more nutmeg on top.

I am sure these two recipes work hours of experimenting, some, however, are simply accidents.

Trying adding peppercorns to a batch of chili. It really heats it up and is great. I grabbed the wrong jar out of the cupboard, and from now on, they go in all chili.

Electrical safety begins at home.

Electricity is so dependable and so much a part of our everyday life, people sometimes take it for granted.

That's why it's important to review the basics of electrical safety.

Check your home and see if you have overloaded outlets. See if the cords and plugs are frayed or worn.

Make sure no appliances are used near a bathtub or sink—be especially careful of hair dryers, blenders and radios.

When working on a roof or ladder outside, stay far away from overhead power lines. And never dig in your yard without first checking with the electric company for the location of any underground cables.

There are many other safety tips you should know about. You'll find them in a free pamphlet called "Electrical Safety." Contact us today and ask for your free copy.

'Cable TV rates here lowest'

A forthcoming rate increase to subscribers to Continental Cablevision, Inc., notwithstanding Plymouth's rates are the lowest in the company's service area.

The local rate will go from $9.25 to $10.70 with the April billing, David Pyffe, company representative, told village council last week.

For the most part, other communities are being raised to $10.95 for basic service. New Washington will be increased to $11.15.

Pyffe answered a complaint from William Van Wagner, who has subscribed to the system since it was installed.

Van Wagner contended the original "selling point" was that athletic events of Ohio State university would be available.

Pyffe said the reception of the Columbus stations that carry OSU contests is not so good in this area as it is near New Washington. He said Attica has a channel for events which has proven to be almost impossible and that the company plans to replace it.

At the moment Continental is negotiating with Channel 19, Cleveland, a new independent station, and it may possibly pick up Ohio State games.

Because of the cost to a station to carry the games, many stations have not scheduled them.

A survey of Plymouth subscribers was recently made, Pyffe said. When asked what station they would like added, the answer was 19, mostly because of the films shown.

He said he would check further about the feasibility of the games and answer the village.

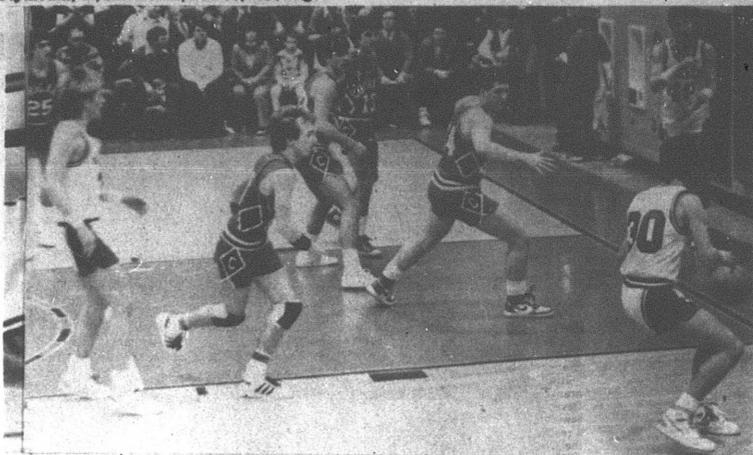

The Council also heard that Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., does not plan to raise its rates this year. Richard Newbold, Mansfield district manager, said rates have even gone down with the January bills, in the amount of four cents per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas usage.

The village has not had a contract with the company since last April, when the coalition agreement of which Plymouth was a part with about 30 other communities ran out.

Newbold said he hopes the village will negotiate its own contract when the time comes, rather than be a part of a large group. He added perhaps it would be cheaper in the long run, and that he himself prefers the "home rule" method.

He said any rate increase would possibly come in the spring of 1987 and that when the company files its request with the PUCO, perhaps this spring, the village will be notified.

Jason Robinson, No. 30, takes inbound pass from Eric Rath, No. 40, in first half of rout against Crestview Friday night.

No. 42, Kevin Taylor, fires pass to Co-Capt. Troy Keene at base line as Big Red advances ball in second half Friday night.

Red wins title over Crestview, first in 18 years

A few in the throng in the Sandusky street gymnasium Friday night thought that because Plymouth would head for the east basket in the second half for the first time in memory the Big Red would go into the dumper.

Those fears, however justified, were unworthy of the moment, for the Big Red stormed to an early lead and simply tore Crestview apart to win the undisputed championship of the Firelands conference.

The score was 78 to 53.

Plymouth never was in trouble after the first four minutes.

It was the first championship won by a Plymouth team in basketball since 1968. It was only the sixth league championship in this century.

"We didn't shoot very well at the start," observed Coach David F. Dunn as he dried off some of the water and other fluids with which he was doused in the locker room, after he and his players had methodically cut down the nets on the baskets in the 15-year-old hall to the cheers of a crowd of Big Red fans. "But we kept our poise and we found our tempo and we played just great defense throughout the game."

Which, under the circumstances, was as good as any description of what happened.

Plymouth drew first blood and Crestview tied it with a shot by Kevin Hart before the game was 20 seconds old. It was the last time the Cougars were in it. At 7:01 Troy Keene scored his second bucket of the night and Plymouth was off to the races.

It did not pour on the coal until the second period began. After eight minutes, Plymouth led by eight points at 14 to 6.

The Big Red got a run of four early in the second quarter and a run of 11 midway in the period to open a lead of 18 points. It ran five just before the half and went to the locker room with an advantage of 34 to 13.

The Big Red came out at the start of the second half as nervous as a golfer with the yips and watched the visitors run three points right off. Then the Big Red got its act into order and ran six, including a remarkable drive down the middle, coast-to-coast, by its leader, Co-Capt. Steve Hall that raised the lead to 36 to 16.

Plymouth closed out the third period with a run of 10. By this point it was just like the little boy who decided to pull the legs of a centipede; it was only a matter of time until the animal collapsed.

Crestview went into the final eight minutes trailing by 50 to 24. Coach Dunn began to pull his starters and his big guns off the floor and he went the rest of the way with the patient and faithful who had ridden the bench all, or most, of the season.

The Cougars outscored Plymouth in the last eight minutes, but the whole matter was moot. Plymouth would be the champions, no question about it, and the Big Red fans had started to howl.

And they had much to howl about.

Kevin Taylor got inside with authority for the first time this season. He scored four buckets from the paint area under the basket.

Bryan Christoff brought his shooting eye back to the arena after an hiatus of too many games and bagged 12 points, all of them on shots from beyond 14 feet.

Hall completed his activity with 19 points and Keene, who ignited the offense with his patented shot from outside, scored 15.

Overall, Plymouth completed 31 of 69 shots at the basket and scored with 16 of 23 free throws. Neither team kept track of rebounds. Plymouth made 14 mistakes on offense, half of them in the final period.

Crestview fired 74 shots, 29 of them in the last quarter, and converted 22. The Cougars converted 11 of 21 free throws. They made 23 mistakes on offense, six of them in the first quarter and eight in the second, when Plymouth's clawing, nettlesome defense forced error after error.

In the battle of Steve Halls, the visitor lost. He was forced out of the game with five personals, having thrown in 16 points. Steve Viperman was the only Cougar in double figures, at 10.

Plymouth thus goes to its last two games with the opportunity to set a modern record for victories. It can avenge an earlier defeat at the hands of Colonel Crawford, a Class AA team that drew a high seed in its tourney. And it can show the world that its overtime victory over Edison at Milan in December was no fluke.

A sparkling performance by the first eight or nine players in these two games will stand Plymouth in a strong position to win the sectional tourney at Bucyrus next week.

Edison upset by girls

You can't hardly, as George Gobel would say, close out your reason on a better note.

Plymouth girls knocked off the 1986 Firelands conference champion and the No. 2 seed in the Class AA tourney at Sandusky here Thursday night when Tami Tackett took down her 15th rebound and threw in an eight footer from the middle of the foul lane as the buzzer sounded. Plymouth won, 48 to 46.

Trailing by three going into the second half, Plymouth managed to go in front three times before the Chargers built a lead of 46 to 44 with 1:12 remaining on a basket by Lorri Burke.

At :44, Michelle Collins fired home two free throws to tie it at 46. The visitors came up the floor and over 19 seconds, in that one advance, missed four shots.

Plymouth attacked, passed the ball around the front of the Chargers' zone defense and with two seconds left Miss Collins threw it up there. The ball missed the hoop, struck the glass, bounced to Miss Tackett and she fired it in off the board.

The Plymouth stands swarmed the players and the coach, Mike Badertcher, who said, "I don't know what I said to them at the half that made the difference. Whatever it was, this team grew up tonight. If we play like this Wednesday, look out!"

Plymouth tackled the top seed, Perkins, in the second game last night.

Kay Niedermeyer scored 15 and Kim Gibson, only a ninth grader, 12 to lead the Big Red, which got off 54 shots, with 15 successful. Plymouth won it at the foul line, where it had 25 chances and converted 15 of them. It rebounded 22 times, 15 of them by Miss Tackett, and shot 23 mistakes on offense.

Edison shot 51 times, succeeding with 24, but had only 10 free throws, of which it made just seven. The Chargers rebounded 35 times and made 24 mistakes on offense.

Crestview girls thump Big Red

Crestview thumped Plymouth, 59 to 43, in Firelands conference girls' basketball here Feb. 11. It was a case of too much Sherri Bond and Pamela Conley.

These two combined for 49 points. Miss Bond bagged 25 Miss Conley 24.

Kay Niedermeyer exceeded her season's average for the Big Red with an output of 24.

Crestview was remarkably accurate with its shooting. In 52 tries for field goal, it succeeded 25 times. Plymouth shot 72 times and converted only 15.

The Cougarettes were accorded 17 free throws. They canned nine, took down 34 rebounds and erred on offense only nine times.

The Big Red missed nine of 20 free throws, rebounded 32 times and made 13 mistakes on offense.

Plymouth outscored the visitors in the second half but the damage had already been done.

Robert Miller, 75, New Haven, dies

He is survived by his wife, nee Harriett Babcock, whom he married 46 years ago, and a sister, Mrs. Violet Gurney, Attica.

A brother, Russell, died in 1972. Two step-brothers, two step-sisters, his parents and his step-father also died earlier.

His minister, the Rev. Bruce Bequette, conducted services from the church Tuesday at 1 p.m. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery, New Haven township.

Sawyer to seek reelection

Rep. Frank S. Sawyer (D-Manfield) filed petitions Tuesday with the Richland county board of elections to seek a third term in the Ohio House from the 64th District.

Sawyer, 34, was first elected to the Ohio House in 1982, after serving nearly four years as president of Mansfield's council.

"When I started my second term a little over a year ago, I met with local elected officials and many of the business leaders in Richland county, to determine what their priorities were for state government action," Sawyer said.

"There were three projects that everyone mentioned; a sewer line to I-71 and Route 13, the Hanna road sewer project, and an interchange at I-71 and Route 39. I was instrumental in obtaining a state grant from the Ohio Department of Development for $300,000, so the sewer line to 71 and 13 will become a reality. I have also worked with the Ohio EPA, and Hanna road will be getting badly needed state funds for that project. And just this past week we learned that the federal government has approved the construction of the interchange at I-71 and Route 39. I was instrumental in the interchange at 71 and 39. While we still have some work to do on the project, we are currently two steps closer than we've ever been before," Sawyer said.
