

18th today, No. 1?

That a Plymouth team competed in the international event was more than anyone dared hoped for when the competition started. There were those who said it wouldn't be possible to even raise the money to fund the trip. "Where would we get $4,000 for such a junkie?" one naysayer asked us.

Where, indeed?

Records show that a total of $4,455.82 was contributed. It met the cost with something left over, a nest egg for next year's competition, when our team will be a year older and lot wiser.

Any sidewalk psychologist can put his finger on what ails us.

We think too little of ourselves. We have ingrained into us that because we live in the slow lane we are slow people. We fear the head-to-head, eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation with him who lives in the fast lane. Our children are taught not to look beyond the county line for employment, yet, even for spouses. We think the nuclear family cannot withstand the strain of a 10-hour drive from the home hearth. A mother objects to the consideration by her brilliant son of a new job in a remote corner of the state, one that offers considerably more money and perquisites, on the grounds that "it's too far away." For her to say that she wants to see her son's offspring more often is no more than a crutch to her incapacity to live life in the late 20th century.

Some of our competitors in the Olympics of the Mind affair at Flagstaff, Ariz., feel they were jobbed, that the competition wasn't entirely fair. That's a hard charge to assess. One must defer to the judgment of those on the scene.

To have finished 18th is no shame. Quite the contrary. Only today we report the findings of the capable junior high school guidance counselor after administering the California test battery: our children compare favorably, in fact very favorably, with the national average. They are, in truth, considerably above the national average in most aspects of the test battery.

There are some who would say, with a considerable correctness, that our national average isn't so hot. What one considers to be satisfactory is by another considered to be unsatisfactory. Nevertheless, by the communality of measurement, all but universally accepted in all 50 states, our pupils perform better than the norm among all of those states. Which means Shaker Hts. and Ottawa Hills and Indian Hills and Winnetka and Short Hills and Wellesley and such at one extreme and the children of the Mississippi delta and the Ozarks and the other bayous and hollows and remote reaches of the nation where opportunities are fewer and stimulation is of a lesser order at the other.

We speak from concrete experience. It takes a while for our young people to catch up with the fast lane. They haven't read, they haven't studied, they haven't experienced what the products of the fast lane have read, studied and experienced. But when they catch up, they look 'em all right in the eye and they excel!

The young people and their preceptor who carried our banner to Flagstaff and came away with 18th place, internationally, deserve our respect. Their enterprise was outstanding. Their initiative was unique. Their achievement will be recorded for all time.

For our part, we shall not be satisfied unless and until our young people, in this and similar endeavors, the limits of which we would wish to expand over the remaining years of the century, rank right up there with the best every year, year in and year out.

Which is not to say we won't cheer like the billy Dickens if an athletic team wins 'em all, or almost all, and fights its way to a state or, dare we hope, a national championship game. He who remembers that over 32 seasons we have missed only three football games and just 21 basketball games should know that.

But when push comes to shove, when it's all said and done, it's the achievement in the classroom that counts. Whatever we do, whatever we say, whatever we spend, whatever we encourage that does not aim toward that goal is a shameful waste of time and money.

Graduates told 'Volunteer, help';

12 win scholarships;
11 wear gold stoles

"Our society has always needed the generosity of its citizens. Whatever you believe in, pitch in a 'feel the warm satisfaction of using your time in a worthwhile fashion."

That was the message of Paul Gase, junior high school guidance counselor, to graduates during the 110th commencement of Plymouth High school Friday night.

Kevin M. Taylor, only son of the Michael R. Taylors, whose grade card shows none less than A, was declared valedictorian.

Kristopher Barnthouse, only son of the Donald Barnhouses, whose grade card shows only one B in Spanish, was named salutatorian.

"We always endeavor it be successful," Gase said. "We achieve that success each time we allow ourselves to be happy. Life's happiness is seldom related to global matters but is tied tightly to our satisfaction with our personal relationships. Today is a good time to admit that we want and need other people and that we want other people to want us."

He excerpted a lyric from Bob Dylan to conclude his remarks, after saying he and the faculty are proud of this particular group of graduates because of its signal achievements.

Others in the top 11: Susan Beebe, Marilyn Tackett, Lisa Robinson, Angela Martin, Sandra Polachek, Daina Hudson, Kristina Staggs, Stephanie Guhrrie and Karnel Edler.

These eleven graduates wore, for the first time, gold honor stoles.

They and Rick Gibson, Marla Ousley, Sharon Stephens, Camey Sexton, Ronald Arnett, Tabitha Gayhart and Jeffrey Echelberger achieved 3.0 or better grade-point averages.

Taylor won the Ohio Academic scholarship, a $300 Richard L. Horton Memorial scholarship, a National Honor society scholarship, an OSU distinguished scholar program and Richland county OSU alumni scholarship.

Miss Beebe won a $500 Richard L. Horton scholarship.

Miss Polachek and Arnett won American Legion scholarships.

Injunction vs. Willard set by village

An injunction will be sought in Huron county common pleas court against the proposed water rate raise by the City of Willard.

At last week's Willard council meeting, an ordinance was passed to raise Plymouth's rates by 17 per cent.

Plymouth council members have not been satisfied with figures furnished by Willard to warrant such an increase.

From the figures available, Plymouth council offered a five per cent increase. This was refused.

Since the village has been receiving water from the Willard reservoir via the city's treatment facility, the village has gone over the minimum only a few times and has been paying for water not consumed.

A revised list of street repairs was presented to village council during its committee meeting last week by James C. Root, village clerk. See page 3

Who'll succeed Phelan as judge?

Illness of Judge Vincent R. Phelan, Shelby Municipal court, has led him to seek retirement owing to physical disability because of multiple sclerosis.

Gov. Richard Celeste, on a recommendation to be given him by the Richard County Democratic central committee, will name a successor.

That he will be a registered Democrat goes without saying. In the meanwhile, Judge William McMahon, Fostoria Municipal court, has been sitting in Judge Phelan's court. He and others chosen by the Ohio Supreme court, some of them retired jurists, will decide cases at Shelby until Governor Celeste makes his decision. This is anticipated to be before July 1.

Cassie Stein, who was Richland county central committee chairman until she was ousted in favor of Freeman Swank earlier this month, says she was notified May 21 by the governor's office that a vacancy would exist and nominations were expected. She said she sent the names of those she sent the names of to the Shelby area to the governor for con-

Who'll succeed Phelan as judge?

Now, apparently, this procedure will be nullified and Swank and the new party management will choose a slate of nominees. Some of the names are likely to be the same as those submitted in the Stein list. These are apt to include Jon Schafer, Judge Phelan's hand-picked substitute in the early stages of his disability, and Lee Shepherd, Shelby law director. Paralysis of the judicial process is also reported by some attorneys with litigation in Huron county common pleas court, where a capital case is being tried by Judge Robert W. Smith, in a fanfare of publicity, over what he characterizes as "a likely eight to 10 week period". He has not called in any support on the bench and cases of lesser import are simply not being heard, to the dissatisfaction of attorneys whose clients are impatient for justice.

By AUNT LIZ

It seemed like a great idea last year, when the first letter came about a 50th reunion of my high school class.

Now I am getting cold feet and thinking about it.

To start with, I've been gone too long and have even forgotten names of my old faces.

What really is bothering me is that I know some one will come up to me and nicely ask what I've been doing for the last 50 years.

What's the answer to that?

I've been trying to figure that out for weeks now.

Like everyone else, I got married and had kids. This was time consuming. I think I sat through more band concerts than anyone else in the world. Then there was football, where you had to watch a poor little kid get dragged over ice making a tackle and the other one scurrying around as a cheerleader, wondering how long her back would hold out.

Everyone else had to do it all, too.

So what is left?

Maybe it's some of the people we have known over the years. They were real comrades at the time.

I will never forget visiting one of my high school friends in California. We went to a public high school, but a nice, quiet Roman Catholic girls' college. Those lovely ladies would turn twice in their graves if they knew how Horstene did her gardening.

California, as you know, is the land of fences, which really assure complete privacy. There is Horstene, explaining to us one Sunday afternoon how great it is for her and her husband to get out and dig, and she makes. Even our daughter-in-law gave her a look when she said that.

Then there was one teacher I really remember. She was in English and journalism, and the best Lady Macbeth I have ever seen in action. She could get that "damned spot" out like mad.

Life really is the people you know.

One of our nicest friends is plain Jay. So what? That guy just about saved my life one time when I popped up with typhus fever, which is very unpleasant. He never hid it, and one night took us to a terrific Mexican restaurant in Los Angeles. After a few minutes, our daughter leaned over and said, "Mom, we're the only women in the place." We were, but they did have a ladies' room and the food was good.

Life has been fun, and at this point, I know most of the answers except one: who was The Spy? Somewhat I got in the middle of a messy lawsuit over the sewers, which we needed badly. It was our village solicitor who caught on to it. We would meet sort of secretly, which is happily called "an executive session", on a Tuesday night and by Wednesday noon, a fancy lawyer in Cincinnati knew exactly what was said and done.

I would like to know the answer to that one before I leave this world. It's plain curiosity.

In between such dumb things, there were meals to cook so everyone could stay halfway sane.

Right now we are polishing off a good size can of snails. They were a gift from a nice French lady who visited here last year. They came from the best grocery store in Paris, because I recognized the name, but if you hunt a little, you can find them here.

They are not anymore glamorous than a tasty tuna fish sandwich. Now that school is out and kids are hanging around looking for food, make up a batch.

Chop up some onions and celery, throw in some hardboiled eggs, pickles, relish, salad olives (which every refrigerator should have a jar of), open one can of tuna, mix with mayonnaise and generously sprinkle poultry seasoning over it and some salt and pepper.

New optometrist got urge to treat eyes in Plymouth office

An early teenager, on a Saturday night, his mother fetched him to the office of Dr. Pierre E. Haver for an eye examination.

The procedure was executed and a prescription recommended.

The boy and his mother went home.

Next day, Sunday, the boy's father succumbed to heart surgery in the family pickup truck.

Enough to sour a boy on going to the optometrist? Not to mention taking up the profession?

For a lesser boy, perhaps. (But not for Edwin Winbiger, who confesses his earliest connection with the calling and its practitioner here since 1951. Dr. Haver, prompted him to be qualified as "an eye doctor" and to practice that calling in his old neighborhood.

And now he has come full circle. He owns, lock, stock and barrel, the practice and premises of Dr. Haver, who will continue to see some clients and serve the public, albeit on a limited basis, until further notice.

Dr. Winbiger and his associate, Dr. Richard Arneson, who comes from a small town in Nebraska (email by Ohio standards, big by those of the Cornhusker state), have set new hours during which they will receive patients and prescribe optometric devices and/or treatment.

When he's not busy in his office, peering into cornea and flashing devices on a screen with the words "Darker? Or Lighter?" and "Vertical? Or Horizontal?", he sees to it that his investment in Gambler's Mill restaurant, known to Plymouthites for two generations as the Brickley hotel in Shelby, flourishes — "we're putting some thought to how to develop the upstairs, and no, that suggestion is unthinkable" — and he'll go from there" — and he attends to his golf game. At Shelby Country club, where he plays for the most part, he shoots from (or is it with?) a handicap of 16. Not so bad for a scientist-cum-businessman-part-time golfer, who agrees with the observation stated a long time ago by a horseback philosopher: "Show me a businessman who's got a good golf game and I'll show you a man who doesn't attend to his business or doesn't need to attend to business."

The Winbiger family intends to remain in situ but he expects "to participate as much as my friend Dr. Haver has and do his business in business and civic life of Plymouth."

Runners sought to join pack

Recreational running and jogging for high school pupils and the public, on an ad hoc basis, will be conducted Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. in Mary Fete park by Paul Gase, cross country coach.

Drive set

A paper drive to benefit the Upstairs store will be conducted Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A truck in the lot of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church will receive contributions of papers tied in bundles.

Street paving projects set by village

The village is receiving about $1,500 from Richland county that had not been planned on.

This year plans to spend $602,702. His roof. He is basing this figure on estimating costing $33 a ton. There is the possibility that it will cost less.

Streets to be resurfaced are South Wall, part of West High, the alley between Maple street and Route 61, a section of West Broadway from the bridge to the end of the kerbing, Springmill, Brooks court, Willow drive, Willow Court, Willow circle, the intersection of F and S streets, Plymouth East and Route 61, the roadway in Greenlaw cemetery, and the driveway beside the fire station and its parking area.

Patrick will be done in the driveway of Plymouth High school and a small area in Park avenue.

Most of the funding will come out of the capital construction fund of $65,000.

Chain saw reported stolen

Theft of a chain saw valued at $380 was reported Friday afternoon by William A. Kamann, 8271 Fenner road, who said the saw was taken from a box in his truck that was parked in his barn.

'People' visits Plymouth

Plymouth's centennial benefactor has a page all her own in a national publication.

This week's issue of People magazine devotes a page to Plymouth, Ohio, and the new village library.

Mrs. Stambaugh is pictured with some of the village's best residents, Minda Layzell and Adam Taylor, John F. Stambaugh and the Larry Taylors; Timothy Hanline, son of the Charles F. Hanline, Jr., and Chris and Lori Bayler, children of the eleven Baylers.

W. W. Arnold, Cass trustee for 16 years, dies at Van Wert

Woodson W. Arnold, 79, a Cass township trustee for 16 years and a justice of the peace for 12, died in Lincoln Way Nursing home, Van Wert, June 3.

He was in failing health a long time.

Born in Franklin township Dec. 1, 1906, he lived in Bowman Street road south of Shiloh until two years ago. He was a patient of Hillside Acres Nursing home, Willard, for six months before he went to Van Wert, to be nearer his son, Allen, a teacher in Lincolnview Local schools.

A farmer almost all of his adult life, he was a member of Shiloh Community Grange, of Shiloh Lodge 544, P.O. #1, and of Shiloh United Methodist church.

He is also survived by a daughter, Blanche, now Mrs. John Bowman, Phoenix, Ariz., and of two granddaughters.

His wife, nee Ava Pettit, for many years a teacher in Shiloh and Plymouth schools, died of cancer in 1967. Two sisters, Mrs. Florence Myers and Mrs. Frances McQuate, also died earlier. So did two brothers, Daryl and Frank.

His minister, the Rev. Thomas Hoover, conducted services from the church Monday at 2:30 p.m. Interment by Eastern General home, Greenwich, was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Cass township.

As of last week, Plymouth has only one ambulance in use.

Members of the squad and Fire Chief Wayne E. Strine claim the older vehicle is unsafe to drive.

While council members were deciding how to deal with the problem to keep it as a back-up, it was stripped completely and is now parked at the utility building.

Strine has been urging that a new four wheel drive be purchased. Estimated cost is $70,000.

None of the council wanted to force the issue of asking the squad to drive the older vehicle because there was no desire to allow the squad to say "we were forced to drive something we did not think was safe."

One ambulance available now

Additionally, as of Tuesday morning the secretary of the ambulance squad point-blank refused to provide The Advertiser with a listing of runs made by the ambulance for the past week.

A complaint has been lodged with Mayor Keith A. Hebble. Legal counsel has been engaged by the newspaper to study whether its First Amendment rights, as those of its readers, have been abridged.

'Colleen' victory at Northfield

On a track rated no better than good, Scrogie Colleen flashed home in front in 1:59 3/5 in the ninth race, a $5,000 open pace, featured event on the card at Northfield Park Friday night.

Her margin of victory was two lengths.

The five-year-old mare belonging to Lyle and Robert Hamman, Noble road, Shiloh, broke from the No. 2 hole and was second at the quarter in 29 1/5 secs., second at the half in 59 2/5 secs., second at the three quarter pole in 1:29 3/5 and seized the lead therefor.

Six other pacers answered the starter.

Scrogie Colleen paid $7.20, $4.40 and $2.60. A $6 combination bet returned $14.20, or 2 1/2 to 1.
