

35 years on Square, Dr. Haver to quit optometric practice

After nearly 35 years on the Public Square, Plymouth's first and only optometrist is packing it in.

Dr. Pierre E. Haver, who's just past 64 years of age, announced Thursday that, effective Sunday, he will "gradually phase myself out of this practice."

He announces his association with Dr. Edward C. Winbigger and Dr. Richard Arneson, Shelby, who will serve clients Mondays from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday's, Wednesday and Fridays from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Dr. Haver, a native of Fostoria, came here in 1951 from Bellville to open a practice in a community that had not previously been served by a licensed optometrist. He moved here in 1952. He and his wife, the former Virginia Younker, Fremont, become the parents of five children, four boys and a girl, Richard whom is a graduate of Plymouth High school and of an accredited, four-year higher education institution. The Havers are the only parents in Plymouth's history to have produced five children and sent them through college.

He was an early member of the Community club and has been a supporter and officer of the Chamber of Commerce in its several forms for nearly 35 years. He was a member of the planning committee for Plymouth Public Library, chosen by its donor, Mrs. John F. Stambaugh.

Mrs. Haver has assisted in her husband's business whenever the needs of her children allowed. She was active in the Band Mothers' club and served as its president.

What does he intend to do now? "I'm going to travel some. We have a daughter up next to Chicago and a son in the practice of veterinary medicine at Lancaster, Pa. We have two grandchildren, so far, and we want to get to know them better."

The Havers reside at 126 Sandusky street.

Suspect in DWI fugitive from court on 1981 warrant

A 33-year-old driver charged with drunken driving turned out to be the fugitive from a bench warrant in mayor's court dating back five years.

Carson J. Shepard was taken into custody May 27 by Patrolman Richard Carr, who found him in Trux street at 9:43 p.m.

A computer check that ran to Keaunui, Hawaii, turned up the bench warrant issued in September, 1981. Shepard is also wanted in Puna, Hawaii, for a custody violation.

The charge at that time involved a 42-year-old woman passenger claimed by Shepard to be his wife. She is also known, Acting Police Chief Stephen J. Caudill said, as Emiko Suzuki. She had been placed in the custody of her mother because of her mental state, he said.

Girl, 14, aims to be Miss T. E. E. N.

A pianist and cheerleader, she has been active in volunteer work.

Granddaughter of the Verne Coles, Baker road, and the William McClures, Mifflin, she is sponsored by Plymouth Lions club, Plymouth Jaycee, the Nancy Dry Goods, Plymouth Schwinn Cyclery, Dr. Jeffrey B. Stoller, Not Necessarily New Store, Mack's Super Valu, Moore's Auto Parts, Auburn Research & Development, Wagon Wheel Campground, Nancy's Salon of Beauty and her parents.

$15,200 pay 87 to 34 vote says new base in schools employees will try to buy PLW plant

A new base salary schedule assuring a beginning teacher starting a baccalaureate degree $15,200 in pay was agreed to by Plymouth Board of Education May 27.

The schedule calls for an across-the-board raise of 7.9 per cent in the first year, beginning July 1, and an increase of 5.9 per cent in the second year, starting July 1, 1987, when the base salary will be $16,100.

Fringe benefits, the board was told by Supt. Douglas R. Staggs, will remain "about the same". The benefits for vision rectification and treatment are slightly increased. Severance pay at the end of service was raised to include an additional five days a year, or from 40 to 50 days over the contract.

In the absence of Charles Reinhardt, the board voted four to none to accept the contract which was ratified by the teachers' association May 22.

Resignation of Mrs. Bradley Ream as high school English teacher, after seven years of service, was accepted. She will join the Shelby system.

Staggs' resignation was accepted with regret.

Methodist ministry full-time

Plymouth-Shiloh church, United Methodist church, will advance to full-time resident clergy status effective July 1.

Annual conference session will open at Lakeside June 16.

Ordination of the Rev. Thomas Hoover, minister of Plymouth and Shiloh United Methodist church, will take place June 17 at 8 p.m. in Hoover (no relation) auditorium at Lakeside.

All members of the two churches and the public are invited.

Banner asks $100 'up front'

A deposit of $100 by each employee wishing to participate in the ESOP is expected by Banner Industries as "up front money" in order to proceed with the sale.

By vote of 87 to 34, employees of Plymouth Locomotive Works, Inc., voted Thursday to accept the offer of Banner Industries, Inc., to purchase the century-old manufacturing, Plymouth's only industry, for a price that may amount to $5.4 million.

A committee was appointed to continue dealings with Banner Industries here and in Cleveland to determine how the sale will be funded and terms and conditions of disclosure and payment.

Lack of disclosure was apparently a stumbling block for a number of those who voted Thursday.

"I don't know what I'm getting into," said one, a veteran of a generation of service who didn't want to be otherwise identified. "They say they've been losing money, which I don't doubt, but how much? On what? And you can put this down, too: as long as I've been there, I can't remember, any time when we didn't have something on the order sheet. Today, so far as I can tell or am told, there is absolutely nothing down the road."

Banner negotiators, headed by Samuel J. Krasney, the dimputive, dynamic chief executive officer who built Banner to what is from an earlier career as an accountant, said assets of PLW in land and equipment amount to $8 million. The company owns $1.5 million to banks, making net asset value $6.5 million. The price earlier quoted of $5.4 million encompasses $5.3 million for the business, less the Schreck lift truck line, which Banner and the employees say has lost money and is too much for the manufacturing capacity and capabilities of the local plant, and $100,000 for legal and transfer fees.

The committee will be comprised of three hourly employees, three salaried employees and Miles W. Christian, the 69-year-old chairman of the board who has been with the firm, or its predecessor, since before World War II.

Jerry Slone and Ervin Howard are two of the designers of the committee. Earlier, after he was discharged for what he alleged was an unfair labor practice by reason of the fact he was engaged in union activity — he sought to organize a "white collar union" in the plant, Howard sought relief through the National Labor Relations board and the administrative courts. He was subsequently reinstated in his job with a substantial cash payment representing back pay and allowances and other relief.

Banner negotiators told those who thronged Ehret-Parsons Post 447, American Legion, Thursday, including the three Richland county commissioners and Richland County Auditor Freeman Swank, who is also the new chairman of the Democratic party in Richland county, it could not then submit a profit and loss statement. It committed itself to do so by Tuesday, June 3.

Banner's offer to sell requires 10 per cent of the purchase price to be funded by employees. To do so will require an employee stock ownership plan, which in turn will require a legal umbrella under which such a plan can be effective.

Banner Industries has agreed to loan the employees $1.5 million at 12 per cent interest over the short term — it doesn't state how short that term is — to assist in the transaction.

June 30 was initially set as the deadline date for completion of the transaction. Hardly anyone willing to speak for publication thinks this date can be met. Terry Hopkins, former village councilman who is employed by PLW as a material handler, was quoted as saying "You can't borrow money to buy a house in 30 days, so how can you borrow money to buy a company?"

It was Hopkins also who characterized Banner's actions with some ill will. "Sam Krasney is going to accomplish," he said, "what he's been trying to do, he's going to get rid of the union, he's going to reduce the work force and he's going to lower the overhead."

Nevertheless, Hopkins said, "I'm all in favor of an employee buyout if it's done properly. I'm a firm believer that if we don't buy it, it's history, there'll be an empty set of building there by the first of the year."

Wayne E. Strine, incumbent fire chief, also a former councilman, and an employee of PLW, characterized his colleagues as "either seriously for it or seriously against it, buy they're serious. One group says they're (the company) not going to make it anyway, the other they don't have enough information."

Older employees, who control the largest amounts of the pension fund, see loath to risk their retirement by buying into a company that may go broke. Krasney told the employees Thursday "if you're two or three years from retiring, forget it."

Annual payroll of PLW is about $3,500,000. Some confusion as to the status of the may voters on Thursday, and exactly what the yes voters opted for, remained as workers dispersed from Thursday's session.

"We don't have anybody who is anybody, who has any experience, speaking for us or dealing for us. We don't have any skilled financial advisers. And until we do, we're like a blind man locked in a closet, with the light out," one said.

Representatives of Toledo TrustCorp and of First National Bank of Shelby attended Thursday's meeting but neither was asked to address the question of whether loans would be made, and if so, in what volume and under what terms.

"If Banner could come down here and make us the offer to sell it to us for $5.4 million, or whatever, and propose that the employees have to come up with 10 per cent, and the banks came up with 60 per cent, and the state or somebody, maybe even Banner, can up with 30 per cent, they must, they absolutely must have talked this over with some bankers somewhere. I've got some feelings about banks and bankers, but I don't think they're completely stupid, by any means. They must have looked this over. Somebody somewhere has to have seen a balance sheet."

Edward Olson, R-Mansfield, junior commissioner, said he found the presentation "confusing" and added, "there's really not much we can do, the way it's presented leaves it almost entirely up to the employees and a stock purchase plan."

Five per cent raise in water rates offered to Willard

An offer to pay the City of Willard five per cent more for water actually used by Plymouth was made last week by mayor Keith A. Hebble with the approval of village council.

The council met Thursday night with Paul Capelle, Willard's city manager, and Coloford J. High, finance director, to determine what are the actual costs of distributing water, of which the village under contract will pay its share.

Willard initially asked for an increase of 25 per cent, then went down to 19 per cent, then to 14 per cent. At the last meeting of the Willard council the figure of 17 per cent arose.

An ordinance to use the 17 per cent figure was tabled.

When the original contract took effect May 1, 1981, it called for a minimum daily use of 150,000 gallons. The village does not consume this much. Thus Plymouth paid for water not used.

At the same time Plymouth was paying 85 per cent of the water costs but only using 14 per cent of what was being pumped by Willard.

With pride . . .

For the 33rd consecutive year, The Advertiser presents its salute to the graduating class of Plymouth High school, proud of each of them, and no less proud then to be doing business in a community that thinks enough of its young people to send them off in such splendid fashion.

Since this is the era of trivia and all sorts of guessing games, try this and translate it into regular over-the-coffee-cup English.
I found it simply frabjous. Under the proscenium arch, he voiced a quatrain he had learned in the synod. That he should matriculate in this school, quambly, perhaps, showed he was an idolater devoid of subterfuge, no attitude disguisable, no more invigorating than a garlicky dentifrice.

To put my finger on it, he spoke funerally. And as he spoke of his teetotal habits, the all-but cerise coloration of his face made me laugh. Silently, of course; I was obligated to respect his transhumance, in saying a silent thank you that the insalubrious cigarette upon which he has hellaciously embarked with all the sonambulant grace of a man overfed with fricassee was not longer.
Don't for one second think we hunted up these happy words in Webster. No, they came right smack out of a national spelling bee for school kids.

Just about the only work I really know in the whole bunch is the last one, which is the way I hate chicken. I am greatly fearful that if any of us threw these words around, we would be left out of all local gossip.

Airman Feeman reenlists in New Hampshire

Senior Airman Robert C. Feeman, Jr., son of Patricia O. Miller and stepson of James C. Miller, 66 Trux street, has reenlisted in the U. S. Air Force after being selected for career status.
Assigned at Pease Air Force Base hospital, N. H., Feeman was approved for reenlistment by a board that considered character and performance.

A bioenvironmental engineer specialist, he is a 1982 graduate of Pioneer Joint Vocational High school.
His wife, Susan, is the daughter of the Aubrey Halls, Willard.

Speak your mind by letter to the editor

There is such a thing of being able to spell and use the right words in the right places, but I think this is carrying it a little too far. There's simply too many other more interesting things to know in this world.

How did all these hundred of kids learn it all? English is tricky. Everyone knows that a lot of words are not spelled the way they sound, so there is hardly a beginning point.

Maybe a teacher can come up with the answer.

The whole thing got me going on that last word, which I finally discovered simply meant "stew". You never hear it in relation to meat, only the chicks.

This then led to my digging out a recipe that did not sound bad at all, and it turned out to be really tasty, although it takes a long time to construct.

Start with cut-put pieces of chicken. Flour them and brown them.

Car upsets, three hurt in collision

Three high school pupils were injured Sunday at 6:55 p.m. when the vehicle driven by one of them went off the left side of Plymouth East road, then off the left side and overturned.

The driver was Jennifer M. Cole, 16, 50 Portner street. Her passengers were Donell Branham, 16, Mulberry street, and Ronald Stephens, Jr., 15, Shiloh.
They were treated at the scene by Plymouth ambulance squad.

Sewer plant broken into

Sewer plant at Shiloh was broken into Thursday night, Wayne L. Baker, utilities employee there, told Richland county sheriff's deputies.

Paddock was cut off a gate to obtain entry, deputies found.

Drawers were opened in the office but nothing was found to be missing.

Meanwhile, in a large pot combine three cups of chicken broth, a medium size onion stuffed with about five cloves, a diced carrot, a few peppercorns, a tablespoon of chopped chives, two tablespoons of chopped fresh parsley, some salt and a bay leaf.
Bring this to a boil, and when the chicken is browned, put it in and cook slowly until it is tender.

Take the chicken pieces out and keep hot, strain the broth and add some more chopped onions to it and cook until the onions are tender.

Then, in another pan, melt some butter, add flour that has a half teaspoon each of rosemary and marjoram, in it, stir like mad and when smooth add the hot broth. Keep stirring until it thickens.

The recipe I got my hands on calls for saffron, which is now more valuable than a 10 carat diamond, but what does add to it is a good dollop of sherry.
Spoon the gravy over the chicken.

All about town . . .

The John E. Hedensens spent the weekend with her sister and brother-in-law, the Edgar Kempfs, Fairborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hanlins attended the two day 50th reunion of his high school class of Vaughnsville High school Saturday and Sunday.

A certified umpire for two seasons under rules of the Ohio High School Athletic association, Arnold Robert, Jr., 95 Trux street, has been recommended for advancement to Class 1 umpire by the Norwalk Area Officials' association.

This means he may serve as umpire-in-chief during varsity games.

Plymouth's oldest registered official in point of service as well as age, A. L. Paddock, Jr., 78 Plymouth street, is now a certified track and field official, joining Douglas A. Dickson, 236 Springmill road, in that list.
