

The voice of The Advertiser —
Requiescat in pace

Hijackings, murder of American citizens in innocent travel, arrest and detention of an American newspaperman on what seem to be trumped-up charges, arrest of some 50-odd characters in the Madison school parking lot for trafficking in drugs, arrest of a high school principal for importuning sexual favors among his own sex — it has been a terrible week.

But we tend to be less worked up about such things as when calamity, or what seems to be calamity in this very small world of our that we call home, befalls us.

The announcement by the chairman of Village Days that his pride and joy, his baby, that he doted upon almost as much as his two handsome daughters, has died is sad.

The child was only two. It had danced in the Public Square, so to speak, only once, for real, that is. It wasn't such a bad dance, there was reason to hope that with some training and experience, the child might indeed one day be a prima ballerina.

But Village Days is dead.

The formal announcement doesn't deal so much with its demise as it does with what may come down later, down the road, if and when the Historical society can recruit more members and can raise its target of $10,000 to fund a permanent site for its museum.

We must not, however, kick the reason why the event failed under the sun.

The enthusiastic chairman refers to increased liability costs. No argument there. They've gone up everywhere.

The festival lost money in 1985. No argument there. The weather wasn't so cooperative, there were some conflicts, some were disappointed that what was billed as a flea market developed instead into a hustle to buy gimcracks and brand new merchandise that a good many folks of some taste wouldn't give house room.

What seems to be the main reason why the affair went under is the last one mentioned by the chairman in his news release: "A need for more assistance and person power to carry out the two-day festival".

We confess that, after almost 33 years of watching what goes on in Plymouth, we are as mystified and bewildered as when we first stepped into the Public Square in April of 1954 as to what it is that makes this village tick.

Even a blind billy goat would, after all those years, learn something about it.

And, for what it's worth, here it is:

1. Nothing succeeds in Plymouth, it doesn't even get off the ground, without the support of the power structure.
2. The power structure doesn't change much, it's only that some of its timbers stand out more than others from time to time.
3. Identification of and accommodation with that power structure is the key to success of any venture, whether commercial, fraternal, service, industrial or other.
4. The power structure must be cozened to believe that benefits presumed to fall to the program will also fall to it. The power structure will not commit itself unless it sees that success will redound to its credit and benefits as well.
5. The texture of the population has changed, drastically, over the past years. The FFP influence has been watered down. Its mores and approaches to life no longer dominate. They may prevail from time to time, but they do not dominate.
6. Folks withhold their support to ideas and projects and programs the success of which is apt to change the power structure and establish another step-child that cries for money and attention and, after a year or two or three, is apt to be put on the shelf because nobody wants to pay it any mind any more.
7. The first priority, absolutely the first priority, in Plymouth is to rejuvenate the commercial community so that anyone who lives here can walk downtown, or get in his car and drive downtown, and satisfy his fundamental wants and needs at a price he can afford to pay. Any effort that is not aimed at that goal is a waste of time, a fraud upon the people.
8. What it takes is leadership, leadership of an exceptional character, by a bright and charismatic person who can command the respect and attention of his neighbors and the support and the funds of the power structure, and who, above all, can treat the Plymouth syndrome, which, succinctly stated, is an unwillingness to work together with others because we are afraid we will be outshone when it's all said and done.

No. 7, Jeff Staggs, until this season was like the preacher's kid who's expected to toe a very straight line by reason of his father's occupation. This boy is the son of the famed older past superintendent. Left-handed, 11th grader, letterman, wrestler in the winter, he weighs 146 pounds and will see heavy action against Crestview here tomorrow.

Erin Echelberry is the last of the line of the Echelberrys who've played for the Big Red. His uncle, Kenneth, played basketball in the immediate post World War II years. His father, John, played football for Plymouth. This kid can make it in his own right. He plays tough defense, albeit that he's smaller than most defensive specialists at 160 on a six-one frame. He plays at defensive end and linebacker.

Crestview power favored to down Red in opener

To say that Plymouth will have its hands full in dealing with powerful Crestview here tomorrow is the grossest understatement of the season.

The Cougars have won two contests with some ease.

Coach Richard Roll scouted Crestview Friday night and came away from its contest with New London, which it won 38 to 7, early in the third period, "when the score was 31 to 0 and they were putting in the second and third teams."

And what does he think? "I think they're awful tough. They've got 15 players who're 12th graders and the last of the older Bernhard, Rod, doesn't seem to have hurt them one bit. This younger one, Matt, may be even better, certainly at this stage of his development."

"They've got a lot of players that can hurt you and that Phillips is a first class pass catcher and runner. We'll put a team on the field and we'll give 'em our best shot, but they're awful tough."

Ross was disappointed with his team's performance at Norwalk Saturday, when Plymouth went down before the St. Paul's Flyers, 13 to 7.

The Big Red's defenses were shredded on inside plays.

Coach Joe Widman of the victorious Flyers said after the game, "We found we couldn't go outside, they were too good for us there, so we went inside and we made some good gains."

Indeed, Gary Sprague alone tore Plymouth's inside defenders into shreds. And he got ample help from Jeff Nickoli and Paul Myers, certainly the best young quarterback Plymouth has seen for a long time.

Crestview has some horses that have so far been reined in.

But some of them were turned loose against the Wildcats, who sustained a severe loss when their biggest gun, Keith Shepherd, was ejected.

Troy Magers gained 112 yards, Kerry Hart 87, Tony Fliger 77 and Rick Rondy 48.

Fliger is simply overpowering, a please see page 4

Shilohan, W. R. Keith dead at 75

For many years a grocer in Shiloh, W. Russell Keith, 75, 101 West Main street there, died Sept. 11 in Cleveland Clinic hospital.

Born Sept. 26, 1912, in White Oak, Ky., lived in Shiloh 33 years. He is survived by his wife, nee Ruby Adams, whom he married in 1937; a daughter Phyllis, now Mrs. Williams Coffman, Canton, Mich.; five sisters, Mrs. Lloyd Pawley, Centerville; Mrs. Juanita Singleton, West Middleton; Mrs. Robert Brown, Dayton; Mrs. Bonnie Flieg, Hamilton, and Mrs. Rosa Clark, Jacksonville, Ark.; two brothers, Hobart, Huntsville, Tex., and Pete Keith, in New Mexico, and two granddaughters.

The Rev. James Daniels, Church of God of Prophecy, Willard, conducted services at Willard Thursday at 1 p.m. Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Cass township.

Memorial contributions to the American Heart association are suggested.

Adkins sent to prison in B&E

David A. Adkins, 19, 54 Plymouth street, entered a plea of guilty to breaking and entering, a fourth degree felony, in Huron county common pleas court and will serve six months in the Reformatory at Mansfield.

Adkins admitted he broke into New Haven Corner Convenience on Aug. 15, 1985.

His sentence in the Reformatory will be served concurrently with a jail term in Richland county jail, the result of a conviction for theft of a firearm.

New date for trial vs. Willard is Nov. 7

Nov. 7 is the new date set for trial on the issues in the dispute between Plymouth and Willard over a 17 cent water rate increase.

Reason for change of date from Oct. 37 Paul Capelle, city manager of Willard, will be out of town.

Reason for trial on the issues? Referee Henry Young has heard some arguments intended to support and to deny a request by Plymouth for a temporary injunction, but chose not to recommend it.

If Judge Robert W. Smith rules in Willard's favor, Plymouth will be liable to pay the increase retroactively from the effective date of the increase in May.

Capelle sought to have the amount of the increase collected by Willard as from the date of the increase, an aim the request for temporary injunction has thwarted.

Effect of Referee Young's decision not to decide is to deny Willard that money until Judge Smith hands down his ruling. On an annual basis, it amounts to $9,350.

Hunter mistaken for prey

A 42-year-old Baseline road resident was admitted Saturday morning to Willard Area hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds received in a hunting accident.

Thief got her goat — all 24 of them!

Theft of 24 goats from her farm in Baseline road near Shiloh was reported to Richland county sheriff by Nancy L. Parmore, 45.

She said the animal disappeared after Aug. 12 and have a value of $3,600. She told deputies she thinks the goats were stolen two at a time.

Theft of two satellite dish control boxes, worth about $1,000, was reported to Richland county sheriff's deputies Friday night by Stanley Ross, Route 98.

Mansfield, Mrs. Stambaugh interred here

Interment took place here Friday at 10 a.m. for Mrs. Zelma Stambaugh, 89, Mansfield, who died in General hospital there Aug. 3.

Born in Lucas Aug. 12, 1897, she lived most of her life in Mansfield, where she belonged to the Church of Christ.

Her husband, Vern, died earlier. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Elsie Grubb, Mt. Gilead; Mrs. Daisy Messenger, Marion, and Irene, Mansfield; two sisters, Mrs. Grace Darling and Mrs. Esther Borden, Mansfield; five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The Rev. Delbert Miller, Southside Church of Christ, conducted graveside services.

Hamman boy arrested at Shelby

A 15-year-old former Plymouth boy now living with his father in New Carlisle was summoned at Shelby Saturday morning on a charge of driving without an operator's license and reckless operation.

W. Scott Hamman was arrested at 1:45 a.m. after he drove a 1984 Oldsmobile Cutlass northward in Oak street after turning from Whitney avenue, lost control and struck a parked vehicle belonging to Leroy Notheracker, 9 Oak street.

Hamman sought to leave the scene but struck the front porch of the Notheracker house, Shelby police said.

His machine sustained heavy damage to the right front side and had to be towed away. Notheracker's car was damaged on the left front side.

Defense of truth offered by paper in Oney case

Dismissal of a libel suit lodged against the Mansfield News Journal and its reporter, Stephen Hudak, by Michael and Deborah Hoffman Oney, Noble road, Shiloh, is sought in a motion filed before Common Pleas Judge James Henson by their attorney, Richard D. Panza, Lorain.

Panza argues for summary judgment on the grounds that Oney's name was published in a story on Jan. 25, 1985, in connection with some indictments for drug dealing and possession by claiming privilege and truth.

The news story, he says, was privileged under an Ohio law that protects fair and impartial reports of arrest and subsequent criminal and civil court action as well as because publication invoked the doctrine of neutral reporting which was substantially truthful and accurate.

Panza also argues that when the piece was published, the newspaper and its reporter well and truly believed that Oney had been indicted, save that it was later learned a mistake had been made, that Oney was indicted for trafficking in error. When, two days later, the newspaper learned of the mistake, it promptly published that fact.

Profits up $5 million, Banner says

Banner Industries, Inc., continues to dispose of its heavy industrial properties.

It sold one in electronics and another in heavy industry last year, it says in its fiscal year report for the period ending June 30, in which it reported record earnings of $6.5 million, a 62 per cent increase over fiscal 1985.

Banner said the gain in profits is attributable to a strong performance by its aviation aftermarket group, which supplies aircraft replacement parts and tires to airlines.

For the three-month period ending June 30, sales were $39,972,863, up from $34,761,906. Net profit was $1,488,552, equivalent to 32 cents a share. Profits for the same period a year ago amounted to $9,282,889, or 34 cents a share.

On an annual basis, sales totalled $149,447,351, up from $127,998,231. Net income was $6,640,033, an increase from $4,038,927. This was the equivalent of $1.55 a share, up 55 cents.

Ever try to dry herb? It's fun, economical and tasty in cooking!

By AUNT LIZ
It's not too late.
Still you should have done it weeks ago or even a couple months ago.
That is to dry herbs.
You will be glad to have them handy when the snow is five feet deep.
Another reason is that they are free.

Everyone knows what an upward surge such things have taken in the last year, and they are almost in the caviar and champagne class.

The best way to dry them is simply to take a good handful and hang them upside down, tied, in a dry, darkish place.

Being lazy, I simply spread them out on a dining room table in an old newspaper and they dry very nicely. Granted the dining room looks a little weedy, but it is easier than trying to tie them up on high rafters.

Once they are dried, store them in either dark green or brown jars, not white, to prevent losing the color. Plastic containers may also be used, but never paper or metal containers.

Store them away from your stove. The heat will fade them and drive out the oils.

Another happy thought to drying herbs: they make great little gifts all through the winter and at the holiday season.

You can also make things like herbed butters, jellies and even tasty marinades that are gratefully received (I know I would be very happy to get some little jars of such stuff).

Try this on your family first. Then if it approves, you've got half your gift list done, plus any contributions you need to make for all the upcoming holiday bazaars.

This stuff is for a cut-up chicken that can be grilled or steaked in the oven.
Mix a third of a cup of light corn syrup, a teaspoon of grated lemon rind, a third of a cup of lemon juice, a fourth of a cup of corn oil, a little chopped onion AND one and a half cups of dried tarragon. Some salt and pepper too.

Put the chicken, cut up, in tins and soak it out overnight.
Use the marinade to baste the chicken while cooking.
You can increase this according to the amount of chicken needed.
Along with this, an onion dish can perk up a dinner, this is for Onions Amandine.
Start with a half cup of butter - margarine will also work - melt it in a casserole.

When melted, stir in a tablespoon of dark brown sugar and a half cup of chopped almonds, add two teaspoons of chopped garlic, some salt, pepper and some white wine (guess at that). Stir in about four dozen really small white onions so they are well coated.
Cover the casserole and bake at 350 degrees for about an hour. Every so often, either stir them around or shake the dish.

$116,750 approved for village from taxes

A total of $116,750 in tax money for the running of the village has been approved by the Richland county budget commission for 1987.

Village council formally accepted the figures Tuesday night.

The general fund will receive a total of $33,200 which, broken down, is $22,900 inside the 10-mile limitation and $10,300, which represents 1.5 mills outside of the limitation and voted upon.

Fire department is receiving a total of $38,700 from two levies. A continuous three mill levy is bringing in $22,900 and a half mill levy which expires this year is for $6,400.

A three mill levy for Greenlaw cemetery will produce $28,350. The park is to receive $14,500.

After 1987, the park money will drop back a half mill, which expires at the end of this year (but since taxes are collected in arrears the money is available for 1987).

When a fresh one mill levy was passed in November, 1985, trustees of Mary Fate park agreed to drop the half mill.

Terra sets open house Saturday

A local business has changed its name.

The former Sohigo location, Beelman street, Plymouth, will now be known as Terra. The name change reflects a change of ownership. Last year, Terra International purchased all 118 Sohigo locations from Standard Oil of Ohio.

Among the products and services to be highlighted at the open house are Terra private label crop protection products, seed, fertilizer, soil testing and plant tissue analysis.

Other highlights of the Terra open house will be coupon books good for free services and products, discounts on early seed orders, and chemical representatives available to answer questions.

'55 SHS alumnus coaches soccer with a sock!

A 1955 alumnus of Shiloh High School, now living in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., is head soccer coach in St. Thomas Aquinas High School there and was chosen by the Miami Herald as Broward county's coach-of-the-year last season. He is Charles (Jobie) Hughes, whose teams over the past three seasons have won 48 games, lost 12 and tied one.

In the regular season last year, St. Thomas Aquinas won 13 and lost two and in the playoffs went six-and-one.

The eleven won the district tournament of three games, defeated Boca Raton Pope John Paul High school 2 to 0 in Region 6AAA, downed Miami Curley 2 to 1 in the Section 4AAA, and advanced to the state semi-finals over New Port Richey, 2 to 1.

In the Florida finals, St. Thomas Aquinas came across against Clearwater Central Catholic High school, 1 to 0.

Hughes has just started a new assignment as head soccer coach of Broward Community college.

Two of the four players of the St. Thomas Aquinas squad of last season who were chosen to the all-county team are returning and Hughes has hopes of another successful at the helm, despite a tough schedule.

After a month in the hospital, having undergone open heart surgery that went well but developed into an infection behind the sternum that required further surgery, he is well now and at practice every day.

Flyers bat Red, 13 to 7

Plymouth held to minus rushing in last half

St. Paul's shut down Plymouth's running game all but completely at Norwalk Saturday night and produced enough offense to win a 13 to 7 Firelands conference struggle.

The Flyers' defense was all it advertised itself to be, it held the Big Red to net rushing yardage of 39 and, save for one big pass play that was good for 71 yards, kept the Plymouth aerial attack under control.

Offensively, St. Paul's in 60 plays rolled up 128 yards, with 130 yards net rushing and 78 yards through the air. The Flyers threw eight times. They completed four and lost two by interception.

But it was Plymouth threatened, as it did with its second series of the second period, by pushing to the St. Paul's 27, the Flyers braced and denied Plymouth its first yardage. In the first quarter, the Big Red recovered a fumble and stormed toward the Flyer goal. It has five downs but gained only 16 yards, offset by a 10-yard penalty, and was compelled to surrender possession.

Whereupon the Flyers got out of the deep hole promptly with a 82-yard completion by young Paul Myers to Matt Camp, an 11-yard gain on the quarterback draw and a 12-yard pass by Myers to Jeff Nickoli.

It was thus that the Flyer drive for the first score got its start.

Myers passed 13 yards to Todd Berry at the Red 15, Gary Sprague ran 14 through left tackle and was first down at the Plymouth one, he rammed home for the score. The kick for PAT was not good.

The clock read 34 of the first period.

By halftime, on 28 plays, the Flyers had a net of 53 yards by rushing and 57 by passing. On five more plays, Plymouth showed 41 yards by running and 30 through the air.

To examine these same data at game's end is to see how well the Flyers contained Plymouth on the ground in the second half. The Big Red ran the ball 12 times in the final 24 minutes for a net loss of two yards.

The Flyers got their second touchdown in the third quarter. Plymouth punted 34 yards to the Big Red 39. This came about because the Flyers got off a 51-yard punt of their own that rolled dead at the Red five.

With first down at the Plymouth 39, Jeff Nickoli got five with a pitchout to the right, Sprague hit right tackle for 14 yards, repeated the procedure on the other side for 13 yards and with first down at the Red seven, Myers dribbled the ball on the ground in a continuous fumble and managed to carry it into the end zone.

The Flyers' kicker, Mark Voldrich, habitually consumes more than 30 seconds to change his shoe. Nevertheless, with the ball snapped from the eight instead of the three, he split the uprights for No. 13.

St. Paul's kicked off and Steve Hall carried it to the Red 37. A slipping penalty by the player at the Red 15 big one. On the next play, Plymouth incurred another major penalty and the ball moved to the seven and one-half yard line.

On first down, Hall took a pitchback, faded toward the east sideline and fired long and deep to Jason Robinson at the Red 42. That follow, running like a scalded pig, set off for the Flyer and zoned. The St. Paul's defense caught him at its 21. Plymouth called on Billy Castle to ram it home and ram it home he did. Jeff Staggs passed 14 yards over the middle to Jason Robinson for first down at the Flyer six and in two plays Castle was king.

Randy Myers booted the PAT.

Although Hall intercepted Paul Myers on an 11 yard Flyer 17 in the next series, Plymouth cut not spit a lick and surrendered and kick the ball with considerable alacrity. It's just like learning to ride a bike or jump rope.

THE DEATH AT 75 OF cancer of Hank Greenberg, the Hall of Famer who played for Detroit and Pittsburgh and later was part owner and general manager of the Yankees, died on Friday, Sept. 10, at ringside down the curtain on one of the funniest baseball incidents of the O. T. were times.

These were the times when Greenberg was GM of the Tribe and attendance in Municipal Stadium, particularly on Saturdays, when the home contests were televised, was light. During some of these games, Greenberg would repair to probably the upper grandstand along the right field line, where a telephone was at hand.

These were the days of black-and-white television. From time to time the camera panned in on the handsome executive, who retained until the very end his svelte figure, and the number of the telephone could be clearly discerned.

Particularly by the late Mrs. Ross Failor, a rotund woman of enormous good will who then lived in the south side of West High street in Plymouth.

One Saturday, when the Indiana were taking a lacing, and the pitching was poor, she was beside herself with frustration. She went to her telephone and dialed that number, watched Greenberg answer on the tube, and proceeded to tell him what she was thinking.

And this is what it was: "Get that blankety-blank pitcher out of there, you obnoxious obnoxious. What the hell do you think you're doing? Get that pitcher out of there!"

When she hung up, Greenberg, sighed, dialed another number, spoke into the instrument and before long, the Cleveland manager strode to the mound and signalled to the bullpen for another hurler.

Later, Mrs. Failor said, "I probably shouldn't have cursed him out, but they have made so-o-o-o mad!"

possession at the Flyer 25. St. Paul's then mounted a drive that carried to the Red seven in 14 plays, one of which was a pass from Myers to Berry, who dodged five tacklers, and another rollout by Myers of 22 yards to the Red 22. On second down, Myers passed into the end zone, where Dave Powers intercepted.

Plymouth was unable to extricate itself and punted 47 yards, a kick that St. Paul's did not bother to field.

There was time for five plays. It is always reassuring to him who counts himself a student of the game to see the better team win. And this is what happened Saturday.

St. Paul's, on this night, was less flat, less torpid, play with more confidence and with fewer injuries and, on this night, at least, with more players of a superior class. These included Myers, Nickoli, Sprague and Berry. The redoubtable Hall was a hounded man. And he was the victim of three pass completions simply because his opponent, reaching for the same ball at the same time, was taller and stronger.

veritable Percheron. The Cougars used 10 backs in scoring 376 yards on the ground.

Steve Gilbert, the highly successful Crestview coach, says of his team, "We're highly physical. If you can't stand a physical game, you've got no business on the field with us. We're going when you are. We're proud of our conditioning program."

Plymouth does not have the manpower to cope with a bruising attack.

Will Chuck Kosse be back to play, even part time, at quarterback? Perhaps, but it'd be a safe bet to say no. His relief, Jeff Staggs, played exceptionally well on defense and not so poorly on offense.

What does Plymouth need to do to win? "It must get some yardage from its running game, its passing game isn't what it was when Keene was running it, obviously, for there aren't many younger players who can measure up to what Keene was. The running game hasn't done what it needs to do, not so far, at least. This means the offensive line, which may be too small and is certainly somewhat inexperienced, hasn't measured up to what's necessary to win in this league this year," says one seasoned observer.

"On defense, the toll on the linebackers has been heavy because the down linemen have been outcharged and taken out of the play early on. That's what the offense is supposed to do and Crestline and St. Paul's did it pretty well, Crestline in the second half and St. Paul's after the first Plymouth series."
 Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Record budget wins approval, schools to spend $3,785,964

A record budget of $3,785,964.47, was approved by Plymouth Board of Education Monday night. Of that sum, $3,158,018 is earmarked for the general fund, which consists of 26 separate funds, including payment of the staff, operation of libraries, operation and maintenance, and other operational costs.

Supt. Jeffrey Slauson told the board estimated resources for the district, according to the county auditor, are $3,212,978. With the carryover fund balances, the 1987 budget can be met with an anticipated balance of $144,319 at the end of 1987, he said.

He said income is estimated on the low side and expenses on the high side.

Slauson recommended and the board approved the joining of the district to Phase II of the Metropolitan Education Council, a grouping of 48 school districts and 10 libraries to purchase natural gas for heating at a savings.

The district must share in the payment of legal fees, which the board agreed would be not more than $1,500. From that point on, Slauson believes, the district will save from $3,000 to $4,000 annually in heating costs.

Slauson told the board this year's concentration of Richland County Board of Education county projects will be on English composition. The last several years the emphasis has been on mathematics and reading skills.

Another county project is the in-service orientation of new teachers, who will have several training sessions throughout the school year, starting with just one at the beginning of the year. Also, an experienced teacher has been assigned as a member to the new ones.

Because of a new ruling in the Fair Labor Standards act, Slauson recommended the board change its present policy converting compensatory time for any overtime worked by a school employee to read "a 40-hour week" from an hourly day.

Employees who work over 160 hours a month must be paid time and a half instead of given the time off to equal the overtime work. Supplemental contracts were approved for Cindy Hornical at $228 for the high school year book and Kevin Steinmetz at the same pay for the junior high school student council advisory position. Both had those assignments last year.

Mrs. Charlene Burre and Mrs. Rebecca Hamman were again hired as part-time dishwashers at the Shiloh cafeteria.

Approval was given to again hire Mrs. George Ireland, Mrs. Charlotte Adams and Larry Mullins as substitute custodians, who will work where and when needed. Board member Don M. Echebarger will represent the district at the Capital conference in Columbus in November. Charles Reinhart is the alternate delegate.

Two county prepared substitute teacher lists were approved at the rate of $40 a day.

Approval was also given to the high school band to perform at the Ashland county fair Sunday. This will be the band's third appearance there with bands from the Ashland county schools.

Granville Fleisher, high school principal, said the opening day of school went smoothly. So did Mark Shelly, elementary and junior high school principal.

Enrollment is up over last year's 1,077 pupils to 1,096 as of this week Slauson said. This increase was unexpected, because it was thought enrollment would drop, and he was pleased about it all.

Fleisher said the high school student council has already come up with two main projects for the school year. It hopes to be able to purchase a sound system for the building and to put permanent letters of the school's name on the outside of the building, which have been lacking since the last addition was built about 15 years ago.

Red ink for park pool, black ink for all else

Financially, the village will end this year quite well.

Council members meeting as a committee Sept. 2, however, learned that Mary Fate park swimming pool may close the season with about $1,000 in the red.

John Fazzini, village clerk-treasurer, recommended the council hold off any actions on transferring funds to cover the deficit until next month, when all the figures are complete.

James C. Root, village administrator, suggested to the council that next year the pool use dry chlorine in the water, rather than the gaseous form which has been used in the past.

It is safer for those dealing with the maintenance of the pool, he said, but will cost slightly more, which he estimates is about $300 for the season plus the equipment, which would be a one-time purchase.

The council is giving its formal approval to Patrolwoman Lisa Perdue to revert from a full-time employee of the police department to a part-time for a period which began Aug. 29 and will end Nov. 18, when she is attending court classes.

Her full-time position will be assumed by Patrolman Rick Garn, who now is assigned a 32-hour week, for the period.

This assignment will cost the village an additional amount which had not been appropriated because Garn will require a higher cost for hospitalization for his family, whereas Perdue was a single person.

Councilman Roy Barber said he is "all for further education of village employees", but the cost must be considered.

Root is still obtaining cost figures for the required cleaning of the sewer lagoons. He asked the council to approve a "management plan" which will cost less than $1,000. This will be a study of just what and how the work is to be done.

A number of complaints from village residents were discussed, including the taste of water. Councilman Mrs. A. L. Paddock, Jr., said she had received one bitter one of the taste and odors and thought perhaps it could be a fault of that particular water line.

Councilmen Mrs. Terry Jump and Everett Eckstein, who live in different sections of the village, said they found the same faults with their water.

Root said it is a summer problem because of the Willard reservoir water being heated by the sun, causing algae to grow.

Another resident complained of water running into her driveway off Baseline road. Root said it can be remedied by slating additional blacktopping on the roadway.

Another resident complained of fast driving cars in the Willow drive area, where many children are playing. Councilman Bill Strine said he has told the complainant, John Lasch, that signs would do no much good, but that drivers should realize the problem.

Root suggested additional money be paid to Terry Jump, who has now completed his Class I certificate for water and sewer testing. Because he qualifies, the fee of $65 a month will no longer have to be paid to the Willard employee who had been doing the work for the village.

Mayor Keith A. Hebble told the council he and Fire Chief Wayne E. Strine went to New London to look at its new ambulance and that Strine had recently made a trip to St. Paul, Minn., to look at a vehicle.

Although no decision has been made to purchase a new ambulance, the mayor and Councilman E. Adrian Cole, who is chairman of the safety committee, feel one is necessary so that the present vehicle can be used as a "back-up".

Cole said it is not costing the taxpayers a cent because the ambulance fees take care of any costs. Hebble said a second ambulance is necessary so that the village can continue to honor its contracts with the surrounding townships and perhaps acquire new contracts.

Barber asked how many runs were missed because of not having a second vehicle which the village has not had since Nov. 1985 when Strine declared it unsafe and later stripped it down.

It was advertised for sale last month, but no bids were received.

The council then decided to re-advertise it, with bids due Sept. 22, with the right to either accept or reject any bids.

Root says that so far one bid has been received.

No festival in October, PHIS reports

Village Days, born spanning new in 1984, did have a festival.

Douglas Dickson, chairman of Village Days, announced Sept. 3 the festival scheduled for Oct. 4 has been called off.

The promotion lost money in 1985.

Cost of liability insurance rose, to the point now the committee could not pay the price.

Failure of volunteers to support the project was the coup de grace.

Meanwhile, trustees of Plymouth Historical Society are striving to increase membership and to establish a permanent museum site, to which the society is seeking contributions that it hopes will total $10,000. It hasn't said what building may be available for $10,000.

Village Days began in 1984 as a promotion of Plymouth Area Chamber of Commerce. It was taken over by the Historical Society last year.

Now the society is seeking other ways to promote Plymouth, which it calls Gateway to Lake Erie Firelands Gateway to the Fun Center."

Miss Hudson wed here to Randy A. Adams

Miss Fayette Louise Hudson was married Aug. 16 in First United Presbyterian church by the Rev. Julian Taggart to Randy Allen Adams in a double ring ceremony performed in candlelight.

Family pews were marked with lavender and white bows. Jean Click was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in traditional white of floor-length fashioned of tissue taffeta with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and Venise lace placed asymmetrically to the waist across a shirred bust line. The short puffed sleeves were also shirred and highlighted with Venise lace. The form-fitted straight skirt was edged in matching lace. So was the detachable cathedral-length train. A jeweled headband supported a pouf and streamer of illusion.

For something borrowed, she wore a ring of her mother's. For something old, she carried her grandmother's handkerchief. And for something blue, she chose a garter.

She carried a long cascade arrangement of white roses accented with daisies and lavender sweetheart roses.

The bride's sister, Dianna, Shiloh, a freshman in Ball State university, Muncie, Ind., maid of honor, was attired in a darker shade of lavender satin and carried a cascade of lavender roses and white daisies. She wore in her hair a wreath of baby's breath.

So did the bridesmaids, Montelle Levering, Columbus, and Lisa Daron, each dressed in a lighter shade of lavender satin.

Michael Berberick, Columbus, was best man. John Adams, Plymouth, and William Hudson, Shiloh, the bride's brother, ushered.

Mrs. Hudson chose a floor-length gown of dusty rose with matching rose corsage.

Mrs. Ward, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in blue of floor length with matching rose corsage.

A reception took place in O'Brien Post, American Legion, Shelby, where a cake baked by Mrs. Lawrence Myers, Silliman, road, and cut by a knife belonging to the bride's grandmother was served by Sue Dipzinski. Margaret Highlander registered guests.

Jodi Cross, an Indianan, and Sybil Mercer, a Texan, the bride's aunts, were honored guests.

Daughter of the William M. Hudsons, 37 East Main street, Shiloh, the bride is a 1983 alumna of Plymouth High school enrolled as a full-time student in Ashland college. She is employed in Ashland as a computer-typewriter.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs.

Dorothy Willford Adams Ward, Plymouth, and of William Adams, Willard, and step-son of Robert Ward, Plymouth, is a 1978 graduate of Plymouth High school, where he excelled in athletics. He is employed by Marathon Oil distributors.

LINDA SILLIMAN RANDOLPH CHAVEZ

All about town . . .

The Jonathan Enyedis, Alexandria, Va., were guests of her parents, the Francis Millers, over the weekend to attend the wedding of Christopher J. Webber to Susan Klelein at Mansfield. The Larry Johnsons, Dayton, formerly of Plymouth, visited the Neil A. McKowns Saturday.

Spencer Heath, who grew up in the house at 78 Plymouth street, visited it, with his wife, Friday. Now a resident of Stamford, Conn., he is the son of the late Earl Heaths and the grandson of the late Charles Heaths.

Miss Caudill sets Nov. 1

Betrothal and approaching marriage of their only daughter, Jennifer Lynn, to James L. Wagers, Jr., are announced by the Herbert Caudills.

The couple plans to marry Nov. 1.
