

What agenda?

The aim of the school superintendent to conduct a grand public discussion of school finances and how to resolve them may be on target but it won't hit any bullseyes unless some serious adjustments are made to the scheme.

Not the least of these is that there must be careful laying of the groundwork for such a meeting so that every participant — and we would hope there would be several hundred, but the truth is if there are 20, it will be a minor miracle — departs from, or can depart from, if he is so disposed, the same platform.

This will require some staff work.

No matter how hard the preparers of that staff work may try, it is certain the result will be colored, if not tainted, with the classic attitude of the professional educator: if you throw enough money at it, an educational problem will go away. Assuming as we do the good will and sincerity of purpose of him who will direct, nay, probably prepare, most of the staff work, it is still a fact that the results will reflect the stock in trade of the educational establishment.

Nevertheless, is it too much to hope that the planning for this discussion will reflect what members of the board of education, including the two only last week elected to new terms, think about our course of action into the next century? Will there be a Plymouth school district after 2,001? Does it make sense, for example, to continue to have in Huron county eight superintendents costing the public roughly $560,000 a year (counting perquisites) for about one fifth of the number of pupils that Mr. Tutela in Cleveland deals with for roughly one-seventh of that figure?

Only two weeks ago, the state employment office at Mansfield listed the job opportunities for Richland county residents registered with it. There wasn't a single one that called for payment of over $3.85 an hour, save for one that offered, to some candidates, $4 an hour. Are we preparing our graduates adequately for this kind of work?

Teacher after teacher complains to us that he is frustrated, that he can't do what ought to be done because he is restricted by lesson plans, fixed curricula, unsympathetic administrators and no support for strict discipline. One teacher said to us only Thursday night, "If I could just boot the troublemakers and the inattentive out of my classes, I just might get something done!"

Nobody, least of all the management of this newspaper, quibbles with the argument that teachers are underpaid. Vastly so.

To which arguments, we have classically responded, "When what the teacher does is so spectacular as what the surgeon or the lawyer does for his patient or client, then the teacher will receive commensurate pay."

Perhaps it ought also to be said "When the teacher undergoes the kind of preparation expected, nay, demanded, of the surgeon and the lawyer, he will then be paid commensurately."

Idle promises? Perhaps. No one has, so far as we know, ever challenged the arguments.

Administrators spend most of their time dealing with, or trying to deal with, a recalcitrant five or 10 per cent of the pupils, whereas it is the remaining 90 or 95 per cent that ought to be commanding their attention. In the more visitation of the classroom. An administrator, to our way of thinking, ought primarily to be a teacher of teachers. If a teacher is doing an excellent job, tell him so, assist him in every way, fight to get for him the recognition he so richly deserves. And the pay that goes with it.

Not every teacher is a home run hitter with an average of .350, any more than every baseball player is. Those who are not need help. It is the administrator's job to give it to him or to get it for him. The best is none too good for our children. And if the teacher cannot be helped, let's settle on that conclusion and encourage him to move on before the whole matter of his termination becomes either nasty or virtually impossible.

A good teacher is worth his weight in the most precious possession of mankind. He deserves the freedom to develop his rapport with his 102 years!

This photograph of Mrs. Stambaugh and her young friends was published June 16, 1986, in People magazine.

Mrs. Stambaugh marks 102nd anniversary

She was born 102 years ago Tuesday.

Plymouth's oldest citizen was serenaded by her friends on long standing, the school children of the village, Tuesday night.

Mayor Keith A. Hebble called at the residence of Mrs.

John F. Stambaugh, 200 East Main street, to say that she had turned a serene.

High school musicians directed by J. Jeffrey Conklin, who assembled in alliance and covertly on the premises of the Paul Fazzino east of Mrs. Stambaugh's home, accompanied elementary school children assembled by their principal, Mark Sheely, and directed by their music teacher, Daniel Donoghue.

Mrs. Stambaugh, who came to live here in the early 1880's, is the benefactor who paid for the new library.

Village puts off selection of one scavenger for village

A single scavenger for Plymouth was put on hold by village council Nov. 10.

Although five bids were received, the council considered the lowest one from Shaaky Trash Removal, Shelby, as the most desirable and toyed with the idea of putting a questionnaire with the next utility bills to determine how many residents would be interested in subscribing.

The idea was rather quickly dropped when it was decided that only a few people would even notice a question on their bill.

Three councilmen, Everett Eckstein, Mrs. A.L. Paddock Jr. and H. Lee Welker, again indicated they would vote against any contract for hauling trash.

Welker observed the village was getting into a "business it should not."

Leonard Jesse told the council he does not agree with the decision of the new village building inspector, Ronald Catron, regarding the foundation on which his trailer rests in Beelman street.

Jesse was given a variance by the board of zoning appeals to install the trailer in an area not designated for one, providing it please see page 5

Rash of car thefts occupies Plymouth Police department

Frank C. Fenner, 72, Route 598, was summoned on a charge of failure to yield the right-of-way at a stop sign Nov. 11 at 3:36 p.m. after his vehicle left Railroad street and collided with that of Charles R. Hicks, 30, Willard, headed west in West Broadway.

Paul L. Scott, 60, reported to police Monday at 7:25 a.m. the theft of the car of his mother, Mrs. Ralph Rogers, 33 East High street, left in front of her house by him on Sunday at 7 p.m.

William Capelle, 27, 375 Plymouth-Springmill road, was arrested by Shelby police Nov. 15 at 9:22 p.m., enforcing four warrants issued here for false utterance, display of fictitious license tags, possession of an open container of alcohol and hit-and-run driving, to each of which he failed to appear in mayor's court.

A 1979 Chevrolet Catalina stolen from Mansfield was recovered here Nov. 14 by Sgt. Richard Garm in the parking lot of Plymouth Locomotive International, Inc.

A 1978 Monte Carlo belonging to Debra Porter, 32, 15 Prospect street, Shiloh, parked in the loop in the Public Square, was reported missing at 2:16 a.m., when its owner, manager of Bob's Cafe, sought to go home after closing the establishment. It was found abandoned in Shelby.

Wanda B. Karl, 35, 173 Walnut street, told police she suspects a New Washington man threw a rock through the window of her home. Police are investigating.

Patrolman Dave Howard, 22, driving a police vehicle, backed into a car parked outside 35 Railroad street Nov. 14 at 8:36 p.m. and incurred about $150 damage to the parked vehicle. Officers of the sheriff's department are investigating the matter.

Lynchess sue Shelby, driver for negligence

City of Shelby and the driver of its pickup truck are defendants in a $1.35 million damage suit claiming the vehicle ran a red light and collided with the plaintiff's truck, leaving her permanently disabled.

Suelyn, wife of Earl M. Lynch, Shelby route 3, alleges she was driving in Smiley road on Oct. 10, 1985, when Edward A. Amert, Shelby, driving a vehicle belonging to the city, breached the stop light and struck her, causing cerebral contusion and hemorrhage. Her husband claims loss of her consortium. She seeks $1 million, her $350,000.

Theresa Rowe, 22, Ladow road, was arrested by Patrolman Howard in the Public Square Nov. 14 at 6:56 p.m. on four warrants for failure to appear in court here. She posted $46 cash bond and was to head yesterday.

Councilman Richard F. Tallman, 52, 26 West Main street, Shiloh, told police here of a suspected breaking and entering of his rental property at 667 Trux street.

He said he suspects that a neighbor, disgruntled because Tallman will not issue a key to the furnace room of the rental property, may have sought to force its door so he could adjust the heat.

Schools forced to refund $48.88

Refund of $48.88 in tax money paid to Plymouth Local School district by Norfolk & Western railroad has been directed by the Ohio Board of tax appeals.

Why? The N&W declared its property in the district a foreign trade zone, thereby reducing the tax due. Taxes-collected between 1980 and 1983 are subject to the refund. Bellevue School district owes about $100,000. New Haven township owes $5.65.

Villager dead in taxi

Robert Roberts had passed out

A 36-year-old villager died in a taxi here early Friday, apparently of heart seizure and respiratory distress, aggravated by heavy drinking that reduced him to a stupor.

Robert E. Roberts, Lot 1, Happy Hollow Trailer park, was pronounced dead at Willard Area hospital, whence he was taken after CPR by Police Capt. William Burkett and a Richland county deputy sheriff was of no avail.

The driver said he was called to the police station at Willard to collect Roberts, who recited his name and that he lived in Plymouth, then passed out.

The cab driver, Clarence R. Collins, Willard, stopped at Plymouth police station to seek directions to his fare's home. Burkett noted a strong smell of alcohol on Roberts' breath. Collins told Burkett of his concern that he would not be paid. The police officer's instruction was to return to the station if Collins encountered difficulty.

Collins returned to the station with his fare and reported he could route no one to the address and could not arouse Roberts.

Burkett said Roberts could be arrested for public intoxication and taken to Shelby's jail.

The police officer could not awaken Roberts. He called a Richland county sheriff's deputy to help. They determined Roberts was dead after they applied resuscitation methods. Collins was so disturbed he sent for a relief driver.

Born in Willard, Roberts is survived by his parents, the Roy Robertses, Plymouth, two sons, Jason and Gregory, in Kansas; two brothers, James Shelby and Brian; Plymouth, four sisters, Mmes. Luanne Parrigan and Penny Rabold, Shelby, and Debbie Neely and Connie Furr, Plymouth; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Anna Onry Shiloh.

The Rev. Robert Easton conducted services Sunday from Church of God, Shelby. Burial by Secor Funeral home was in Mt. Hope cemetery, Cass township.

Otto Keith dies

Brother of Lowell E. Keith, Otto Keith, 85, died Monday.

He was a former resident of New London.

He is also survived by two sons.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 11 a.m. from Eastman Funeral home, New London. Mourners may call at the funeral home tonight.

Kin of Companys, Mrs. Hainer, 93, succumbs

Mother of Mrs. Harold Company, Plymouth route 1, Mrs. John Hainer, 93, died Nov. 11 in Winchester Nursing home of a lengthy illness.

A widow, born Edna M. Schier in 1894, she lived in or near there all her life. She was a member of Community Bible church.

Two sons, Thomas Hainer, Healy, Alaska, and Carl Hainer, Grand Rapids, Mich.; a brother, Howard Scheier, Palinzra; 11 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren also survive.

A son, William, a daughter, Katharine, and a great-grandson, Victor Van Horn, also died earlier. The Rev. William Thurber and her grandson-in-law, the Rev. Thomas Hoover, Lakeswood, conducted services at Ontario/Catara day at 1 p.m. Burial was in Lexington cemetery.

It's favorite holiday, she can indulge passion for calories

By AUNT LIZ
My favorite holiday is just a week away.

I like it even better than Christmas, because it offers the best excuse I can dream up — turkey, dressing and mashed potatoes absolutely smothered in tasty gravy. This is something I am allowed to indulge in about twice a year. Gravy is kind of a dirty word in our house for some reason.

It is traditional. We were all brought up on it. What was good for the Pilgrims has to be good for us.

There is another aspect to it all: financial. A turkey is about the best investment you can make for your kitchen.

Depending on what size you buy and how many will be eating it, you will have some left, even if it's scraps to make turkey salad or a small casserole. But you will have the carcass, which is great for soup or stock. It is great to have on hand to cook rice in instead of plain water. Over the years I have learned a few tricks with the bird.

It came the hard way. The first turkey I ever cooked, which was a frozen Army deal from the commissary in Stuttgart, seemed to have one end to it. I was actually too dumb to know there were two, so naturally I never did find the little package of the gizzard and all the stuff. It appeared at the dinner table while being neatly carved or a bunch of Swiss guests. They didn't know any better either, so it went unnoticed, since they were not introduced to such oddities as a frozen American turkey.

A turkey can do something to your house much better than any of the commercial deodorizers can. I can remember all those years we did a very large turkey for the Mothers' club's annual dinner. I learned to put it in the oven at midnight and when I would come downstairs at the crack of dawn, the house was beautifully fragrant.

So I am going to day dream all week about the feast we two will have that will simply ignore diets. At least once a year you can forget calories.

Two of us will have an attractive 13-pounder that somehow we will have to share a little. We have three furry friends who will eat anything from bananas to broccoli, even though they like ham, chicken, ice cream and cake better. That is why we never have any leftovers. Charlie, the cat, thinks kids is the greatest thing ever invented and I have to hide it from him.

Somehow between now and Thursday, we are still going to have to eat something and that something for one meal can be a quite a bit. No one ever heard of such a thing until about 10 years ago or so, then they became so popular that they were a joke.

They are not. They are filled with the good things like human body needs and make a nice meal with a few other things thrown in; like a big salad and a vegetable.

Quiches come in all forms, but are best to make turkey salad or a small casserole. But you will have the carcass, which is great for soup or stock. It is great to have on hand to cook rice in instead of plain water. Over the years I have learned a few tricks with the bird.

Tina Buzard wed to J. W. Freeman

Miss Tina Kay Buzard was married Nov. 7 at 1:30 p.m. before the altar of Immaculate Conception Roman Catholic church in Grafton by the Rev. Robert F. Vieweg in a single ring ceremony to Jerome Wendle Freeman, Grafton.

She is the only daughter and youngest child of the Fred L. Buzards, 566 Plymouth East road, a 1980 honor alumna of Plymouth High school who was graduated in 1984 by Bowling Green State university with a B.S. degree. She is dean of academics in Sawyer college, Cleveland.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Wendle R. Freeman and the late Mr. Freeman, Grafton, was graduated with a B.A. degree by Bowling Green State university. He is associated with Briggs and Stratton college, Richmond Hts.

A harpist, Christina Nader, performed the wedding music in the church, where the bride's father gave her in marriage. She chose a fitted French lace gown of teal length with sequins and pearls. A veiling fell from a headdress of pearls fashioned into a puff. It was lined with special embroidery.

She carried a spray of white orchids with red anthurium.

Her college roommate, Miss Carol Smith, Defiance, attired in a gown of red satin with white lace trim, was the bridesmaid. She carried a spray of gardenias and denderia.

The bride's niece, Julie Ann Buzard, 1986 graduate of P. J. Buzards, Route 598, was flower girl, wearing white satin tied with bows. She carried a basket of red carnations and white roses. Her brother, Matthew F., was ring bearer.

Edward Walsh, North Olmsted, was best man. The bride's brother, Fred J. Buzard and his son, Nathan F., Route 598, ushered.

The reception took place in Lambert's Steak House, Westlake, to which the couple was driven in two decorated limousines.

Red and white tulips and white orchids were laid at each table. The wedding cake was created in three tiers. Corrine and Andrew Larson, Westlake, registered guests.

Nathan Buzard distributed red roses filled with bird seed made by the bride's mother.

The ceremony and reception were videotaped by Roc Woodrum, who is assigned to PM Magazine, Channel 8, Cleveland.

The couple will live in Grafton. The reception took place in Lambert's Steak House, Westlake, to which the couple was driven in two decorated limousines.

'67 grad awarded oak leaves

A 1967 alumna has been promoted to major by the U.S. Air Force.

He is David Moore, only son of the G. Thomas Moores, 38 Brooks court, who attended Ohio State university and Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, Pa., before taking his degree from the University of Akron in 1978.

Assigned to a missile base at Ramsey Hunt Combs, England, he is studying toward a master's degree.

His wife is the former Jerlyn Ebersole, daughter of Mr. Donald Ebersole and the late Mr. Ebersole. They have two sons and a daughter.

Cathedral at Cologne draws tourists

The jewel of Cologne is its cathedral, referred to as the "dome" by the Germans who live there.

When Plymouth's visitor to it, Mrs. Fred J. Port, drew up before the majestic structure, "an awesome sight, the largest church in Europe" by her description, functionaries of the hotel where they intended to stop in high excitement managed to convey to them in a babel of German that they (Mrs. Port, her son, C. Otis, a Plymouth alumna, and his wife) couldn't park there. Why not? Their Royal Majesties, the Prince and Princess of Wales, were expected.

So the Ports politely withdrew, not wishing to manifest their impatience, and stood on the steps of the hotel while Prince Charles, the 35-year-old heir to the British throne, and his beautiful bride, Diana, swept past.

A visitor is struck by the constricture of the thoroughfares: "The streets are small and so, therefore," says retired schoolmarm Mrs. Port, "are the automobiles."

And how did she find the Germans? Why, they were right there under her nose. And what kind of people are they?

They are more prim and proper than the Dutch. Not so friendly in the hotel. But the next morning, Otis was trying to take my picture in front of the Dome. After he did so, I tried to get back across the street with cars coming from five different directions; I heard a car horn, looked up and saw there were two men in a van who had pulled out of the flow of traffic, blocking its progress. And they waved to me to get across the street in safety. The man who waved was smiling; I guess he thought we were tourists and I concluded the Germans must like us tourists, even though the hotel folks seemed cold."

And thereafter? "The next morning we took the scenic drive along the river to Heidelberg. We saw many castles. The tourist season is closed and so are most of the castles, but at last we found one that had remained open. This one was very old, and very big and so hard to describe. It defies description, it is that awesome.

"The castle at Heidelberg, particularly at night, when it is lighted up, was strikingly beautiful.

"The next day we set out for Rothenburg, driving along the Romantic drive. The entire valley is dotted with castles. The carriage trade in those days certainly knew how to live!

"In this hotel — the Eifenhut — they can't seem to do enough for one to make one comfortable. I have found the universal language and I am quite competent in it: it's a smile. Most of the people here do not speak English. Our smiles speak volumes for us.

"Today we went to see Linderhof castle, erected by

Her first reaction to her first visit to the Continent appears today. Subsequent pieces will appear as they are received.

King Ludwig II in 1869. He was the one known as the Fairy Tale king. The Walt Disney people in Florida copied this castle for their main display there.

"His summer castle is copied after the Versailles palace in France. It is a symphony in gold; tables, chairs and other furniture were decorated in gold braid or gold paint. The ceilings are covered with handsome paintings.

"Later we went to see the living quarters, the palace built on the top of a high mountain. After driving as far as we could, we walked the rest of the way. I am no longer 39 years old; I had to stop for breath several times. But the walk was worth the effort. God's creation is a magnificent thing to see in such a display as was laid out before us from that mountain top.

"Tomorrow we set out for Switzerland. But I shall not soon forget beautiful Germany."

Hoffman wins Caywood award

Vance C. Hoffman, Sr., is the winner of the Gerald W. Caywood Memorial plaque, an outstanding Legionnaire of the year.

Ehret-Parsons Post 447, American Legion, of which the late Mr. Caywood was a past commander, presented the award to him on Nov. 11.

The plaque was presented to the post by Arthur L. Paddock, Jr., and his wife, Elizabeth G., then members, in memory of their friend and business associate until he died.

Previous winners have been J. Max Fidler, Henry Robinson, Jr., Joel Van Loek and William L. Van Wagner.

PLI donates to 'Jaws of Life'

A contribution of $20 has been made by the Plymouth Locomotive International to the Cashman Memorial fund on behalf of the late Francis Guthrie, a long-time employee of the Fate-Root-Heath Co., who died several weeks ago.

The fire department, which administers the memorial fund, has recently spent $300 from it for new cutters for the Jaws of Life. The fund was set up in memory of James H. Cashman, a member of the department and its ambulance squad. He lost his life in an automobile collision in Elizabethtown, Ky., six years ago. Contributions have enabled the department to purchase the Jaws of Life and other equipment for it.

Hoffman is a past commander of the post who has been an indefatigable worker in its civic presentations, most notably the annual ox roasts. He serves as service officer.

A product of Plymouth High school, he served in an anti-aircraft weapons battalion during World War II. He is retired from the federal civil service, having worked for a generation in military supply and storage, lastly at the U. S. Navy depot at Columbus, to which place he commuted daily. He is the father of a son, Vance C., Jr., New Washington, and a daughter, Deborah, now Mrs. Michael Oney, Shiloh.

He lives at 160 Railroad street.

Rock-a-thon set by Class of 1990

To raise funds for class purposes, including its Junior-Senior Fund, next year, Class of 1990, Plymouth High school, will stage a rock-a-thon in the school between tomorrow at 4 p.m. and Saturday at 4 p.m.

Farm rescue from high debt topic of parley

How to save the family farm that is deeply in debt and about to be foreclosed is the subject of a seminar set by Plymouth Area Chamber of Commerce today at 7:30 p.m. in Plymouth library. The seminar is for those farmers encountering problems, bankers and attorneys. It is open to the public.

Both Richland and Huron County Cooperative Extension services have been invited to attend. Copies of the "Ohio Agricultural Debtor/Creditor Legal Handbook" will be available for purchase. Several examples of asset and cash positions for farms will be presented in both the "before" and "after" Chapter 12 reorganization positions based on data provided by the Nebraska Center for Rural Affairs. Discussion will center around how to reduce expenses and debt.

Chapter 12 is a new federal bankruptcy act which became law in 1986. The seminar is designed to promote an understanding of how the law is supposed to work. Farmers may choose Chapter 12 as a way to settle debts while keeping a foothold in farming.

All about town . . .

The Thomas F. Roots returned from a three week trip to Europe last week. He attended the annual International Ceramic meeting in Stoke-on-Trent in England. They went on a boat trip down the Danube river, which took them to the Black sea and Istanbul, Turkey. They also spent several days in Vienna, Austria, and had dinner with Frau Sven Wolff, the former Deborah Dawson, Shiloh.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Heeden spent the weekend in Nashville, Tenn., where they attended the wedding of Eric Lynch, the son of old family friends, in Two Rivers Baptist church. Their son, James, and his family, Chantilly, Va., and their daughter, Kristin Heeden, Allentown, Pa., will be here for Thanksgiving weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Moore will be hosts at the holiday dinner for the family, the Joseph Moores, and his brother and his family, the Lynn Moores, Cincinnati, and another brother, John Moore, and his daughter, Atlanta, Ga.

Discussion of aims, funding of schools planned

It didn't get much emphasis, but the seed was sown Nov. 9 for the first all-school district public discussion of the future of school funding.

Supt. Jeffrey Slauson told Plymouth Board of Education he aims to convene such a meeting, and more than one, if need be, "some time after the first of the year."

In this meeting, Slauson said, the board should discuss goals of the district, issues facing the district, and funding of the district.

"We have to ask ourselves," Slauson said, "what trail have we taken, where are we now and where we are going."

Marla A. Ousley to marry Dec. 12

Miss Marla Ann Ousley will become the bride Dec. 12 at 4 p.m. in Rainbow Valley chapel in Riggs street of Gregory Daniel Armstrong, her parents, the Franklin DeLombard, Kathy Farmer, John Ganzhorn, Philip Gibson, Susan Williams, Adam Williams, 10th graders;

The Rev. Daniel Hunicrouser will perform the double ring ceremony.

The bride-elect, a 1986 alumna of Plymouth High school, is employed by JoAnn's Fabric, Mansfield.

Her fiance, son of Mrs. Carol Castle, Shelby, and of Gary Armstrong, Mansfield, was graduated by Buckeye Central High school in 1983. He is employed by Smith Dairy, Mansfield.

Also Jennifer Adkins, Jeffrey Blomfield, Brian Bowman, Jennifer Chase, Michael Gibbs, Rachel DeLombard, Kathy Farmer, John Ganzhorn, Philip Gibson, Susan Williams, Rebecca Jamerson, Adam Keene, Aaron Keinath, Max Mullins, Rhonda Neefley, Wade Peter, Timothy Sexton, Timothy Snipes, Jeffrey Stager, Jeffrey T. Two 11th graders pupils of November

Two 11th graders are Plymouth High school's pupils-of-the-month for November and will be honored by the Lions club at dinner next week.

Aaron Keinath, son of the Larry Keinaths, Baseline road, and grandson of the Foster Keinaths, Baseline road, is a merit roll pupil active in vocational agriculture studies. He participated with the soil judging team at the country, district and state levels of competition and in horse judging. He has received an academic letter and a second year pin. In the annual Richland county junior fair his entry was fourth in its weight class in the market lamb category. He was third place individual winner in the district soil judging contest and third in the team judging of horses in the district.

Leanna Keenan, daughter of Mrs. Jane Keenan, Church street, Shiloh, is vice-president of the band, vice-president of the Drama class and an enrollee in the talented/gifted class. She participates in pep, marching and concert bands and is a consistent honor and merit roll pupil.

She was a nominee for initiation into Louis Bromfield Chapter, National Honor society and has won letters for band participation. Her name appears in the U. S. Achievement academy book of outstanding pupils. She is a volunteer for world hunger projects and participates in the cystic fibrosis campaign.

The Voice of The Advertiser

pupils so they may blossom as we wish them to blossom, even if it means that they will far too quickly fly the nest and only come back for ceremonial (read holidays and anniversaries) occasions.

What it boils down to is a matter of which comes first, the chicken or the egg. Do we get better teaching if we raise the pay? Or do we get better teaching by weeding out the lemons and encouraging the survivors to grow without harassment and reward them commensurately, and promptly, for their pains?

Is it a matter of money now? Or later?

And will the forthcoming conference deal with this issue?

Eight businesses in fold

Intensive education work-study begins

Intensive education class taught by Mrs. Allen Carey will begin a community job training program one day a week, starting today. All pupils in the county work-study coordinator, will place these pupils in local business establishments for on-the-job training. The pupils will work eight week intervals. Each interval will be a different job placement, allowing all pupils to gain experiences from each placement.

Local businesses that are participating in the program include Mack's Super Val, Fid's Drive Thru and Gas Station, Harde's, Palmer's Restaurant, Holland Market, Lew's Drive-In, L & K Motel, Country Kitchen and Wildard Marathon.

In golf, Gano, Niedermeier, Todd Gundrum, Aaron Fenner, Heath Howard and Wilke Schuette were awarded letters.

Police crack car theft rash here

A 19-year-old Crestline youth was arrested here Monday evening and charged with grand theft, breaking up a ring of automobile thefts in southern Huron and northern Richland counties, police said.

Donald E. Adkins, 3636 Route 61, Crestline, was said Tuesday by Police Chief Stephen J. Caudill to have admitted seven thefts over the weekend, was taken into custody at a residence near the Public Square by Sgt. Richard Garn and Patrolman Jeffrey Garrigues. The time was 6:45 p.m. Adkins is accused in Richland county common pleas court of these thefts:

On Saturday:
A 1987 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, from Plymouth;

An older four door brown station wagon, from Shelby;

An International cab-over semi-tractor and trailer, from Shelby; A maroon pick-up truck, from Shelby;

A newer model International cab-over with sleeper, from Shelby; A Chevrolet El Camino, from Mansfield.

On Sunday:
A 1980 Chrysler LeBaron, from Mrs. Ralph Rogers, Plymouth;

A 1979 brown Chevrolet four-wheel drive vehicle, from Willard, property of Doug E. Adkins, 19, Austin drive.

Value of the property stolen, Caudill said, is "approximately $9,000."

Wynford foe of Red girls in first game

Big Red girls open their 1987-88 varsity season against the Crawford county powerhouse Wynford here Tuesday.

What's in store for Plymouth this season? Its coach, Mike Badertscher, voted coach of the year in the Firelands conference by his peers last season, acknowledges that his task this year is a tough one.

"You don't lose a player of Kay Niedermeier's caliber without losing something," he reasons, "and she certainly was a real good one."

Miss Niedermeier is now playing basketball for the Hiram college Terriers.

Only five letterwinners people Badertscher's squad. Two of them are 12th graders and three are 11th graders.

These are Laura Paulo and Donell Branham, who will be graduated in June, and Amy Laser, Stacey Branham and Kim Gibson, who're a year away from graduation.

Donell Branham affords the Big Red some rebounding height in addition to her experience. She measures five feet eight inches. So does Miss Laser. Plymouth has had just one big rebounder since it began girls' basketball this time around — she was Renee Taylor — and as anybody who follows the game can attest, without chauvinism of any sort whatever, rebounding is more significant in the girls' game than in the boys'.

Miss Gibson is the playmaker. She has two letters. A seasoned player, she will pair off with Miss Paulo, who with Donell Branham and Sheri Wagers is a co-captain of the Red quintet this year, at guard.

This leaves Miss Laser in the pivot and Donell Branham and Miss Wagers in the forecourt.

There are four 10th graders, three 12th graders and five 11th graders on the squad. Badertscher plans to go with the seasoned group early on, "but they'll all get a chance to play — there's no point in issuing a uniform if it's not going to get some sweat in it — and it's always better to have somebody who knows what it's all about on the bench when you need her."

The reserve squad, peopled wholly by ninth graders, are coached by Larry Kamann, who succeeds Mrs. John Echelberry in the assignment. He was an outstanding player for the Big Red about 17 years ago, he knows the game, and he relates to players well. His material is both thin and small and it may be a tough task for him to produce a winning effort.

Wynford has some experience, good height and a sound coaching department and won't be an easy outfit to contain.

We helped the Torturos when fire destroyed their home. Who can you turn to?

Red Cross disaster relief doesn't stop with just food, clothing and shelter. We helped Michael and Phyllis Torturo re-establish their source of income. They showed them how to use those funds to obtain a trailer home for their family.

What if the next fire in town destroys your home? Who can you count on to lend a helping hand? You can count on us.

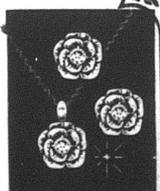

We'll Help Will You?

Social Security protects you.

That's why your Social Security Card is important to you. It answers the call in four basic needs. If you are disabled, it pays disability benefits. If someone you love and depend on dies, it provides survivor benefits. When you retire, Social Security benefits help you enjoy the things you worked so hard for. And when you reach 65, or you've been getting Social Security disability checks for at least two years, Medicare helps pay the hospital and medical bills.

$200. The amounts to be charged are the same as the previous three year contract.

Wolfe's contract as village solicitor is for two years and is also unchanged from the contract that expires Dec. 31.

He will receive $50 an hour plus mileage at 22 cents a mile. Whenever he needs to be out of town for a full day's service, he will receive $400 plus meals and lodging. He will also be reimbursed for stationery, postage and telephone calls.

Councilmen Roy Barber and E. Adrian Cole were reappointed to the Firemen's Dependency board for three year terms. They will serve with Bill Young and Timothy Redden, members of the fire department, and Albert Marvin.

Barber, who heads the finance committee, said, "It looks better than we thought it would", that each fund is well within its budget. The only exception is the salaries for the cemetery employees. That fund has only $1,386.27 left in it with two more months to go. He said he hoped it could stay within the money appropriated.

Councilman Bill Taulbee said after looking into the resurfacing of the Mary Fate park swimming pool parking lot the base should be built up before any backlogging is undertaken next year.

Sir:

I read Mrs. Echelberry's letter in the paper last week, lamenting the fact that most people don't vote. I too think it is a sad situation. I have not failed to vote since I was 18 years old but I understand why a lot of people don't. They think, "Why bother? No one listens. Our election officials do not do what the people who voted for them want, they do what they want."

A lot of us voted with our voices at council meetings and in the paper on the village garbage pick up. One council member was soundly defeated as a write-in candidate mostly because he was for it.

There is no one listening to those of us who do vote and a lot of people say, "Why bother?". We will get another chance, though. There is always another election.

Very truly yours,
Phyllis J. Burton

Six calls noted in October by PFD, PAS

During October Plymouth Fire department and the ambulance squad answered six calls each.

Fire calls amounted to one within the village, four in Plymouth township and one in mutual aid call.

The squad had two calls in the village, three in Plymouth township and one in Auburn township.

Fire Chief Terry Hopkins announces that Shawn Branham has joined the department and three firemen attended the Crawford-Wyandot county fire school recently.

He says 142 hours of work were donated during the month.

Wallace H. Redden, 309 West Broadway, has completed 40 years of service as a volunteer.

Hospital notes . . .

Janice Donnersbach was released Sunday from Willard Area hospital, where she was a patient since Nov. 3.

James Holbrook was released at Willard Saturday.
